Help for Show Secretaries.

I have just posted schedules for our show, and I should like to acknowledge the great help the second part of CAGE BIRDS Annual, containing the names and addresses of winning exhibitors, has been to my colleague, Mr. Dyer, and myself. Usually it has fallen to our lot to write out over a thousand addresses ourselves, but this year by first going through the annual and crossing out all exhibitors' names who appeared to live too far away from Plymouth, to be likely to patronise us, and then taking the book to pieces, I found that it divided itself into seven parts of something over a 190 names in each. These were passed on to seven committee men, who were able to write the addresses at their homes in their own time, very much to the advantage of all concerned. In fact I consider that this arrangement has taken some real drudgery off the Secretaries' hands.—THOS. POPE, hon. sec., W.C.O.S.

TWITTERINGS.

Mr. H. Fowler, the secretary of the Bristol C.B.C., has removed to 20, Park Street, Easton Road, Bristol.

Will any reader, who knows, kindly send us the address of the maker of Wilson's Patent Seed Crushing Machine.

Will you please mention that the Cage Bird classes are under C.B.U. rules.—Fred Perrin, hon. sec., Brighton Show.

The Secretary Peterborough Show will classify all entries received by 1st post Monday, 7th, don't forget, hurry up.

Owing to an oversight last week, "Dysart Show" (advt. contained the words "1s. 6d. extra," instead of "1s. 6d. entry."

We desire to inform Show Secretaries and others that Mr. J. H. Roe (Derby), has resigned his position as reporter for Cage Birds.

Will secretaries and others please note that I have removed to Roekeliff Cottage, Church Road, Low Fell, Gateshead.—Wm. Stoves.

I am pleased to say I had grand results from the advertisements in your issue of the 21st inst.—Wm. Young, Taw Vale, Barnstaple.

Mr. A. C. Brotherhood, the well-known breeder of Canaries, and exhibitor of British Birds, is judging Crowe Open Show on October 16th.

Mr. Barker Clegg delivered a most interesting and practical lecture on "British Birds" before the Pendleton and Salford Society last week.

Readers of "Cage Birds" must on no account miss next week's issue. It will contain a surprise!

Owing to a printer's error the date of Seaham Harbour C.B.B.A. Members' Show was given in our last issue as Nov. 10th. it should have been Nov. 16th.

It may interest you to know through my advertisements in Cage Birds I am supplying wild seed mixture as far away as Canada:—E. A. Cross (Knapphill),

Mr. William Smith, general merchant, Hoyland Common, Yorkshire, is anxious for the name of a first class firm to supply mahogany and brass cages to the trade.

I have sent this week 26 Norwich and Cinnamons to Calcutta, India, per s.s. Bohemia, sailing Oct. 2nd. Wishing your paper every success.—J. Taylor, Frizinghall.

All Cage Bird Fanciers are invited to our smoking concert at the Crown Hotel, Castle Ditch, at 8 o'clock on October 9th, thus writes Mr. Fowler, the secretary of the Bristol C.B.C.

Mr. Birchley's winning Goldfinch: First at Churchdown (twice), Stonehouse (twice), Finedon, Brislington, Kingswood, etc., has been purchased by Mr. P. Harris, of Bedford Square, London.

The Bristol C.B.S. have placed the advertising rights in their schedule and catalogue to Messrs. Lodge and Son, printers, and Mr. Henry Griffin, of 5, William Street, is supervising the arrangements therefor.

Mr. A. Parks writes that the Leigh and District C.B.S. has joined the Cage Bird Union, and will hold an open show under C.B.U. rules in December next, the exact date of which will be announced later in Cage Birds.

I owe my success to Cage Birds writes Mr. A. E. Charlick (Chelmsford), as from it I learnt most of what I know about birds, and I wish it all success. I find bird keeping a pleasant hobby, and have been fairly successful this season.

At Kilmaurs Show this year there were one or two changes in the office bearers and in the general conduct of the show. There were no catalogues. They did not pay last year. Mr. Fleming, the new secretary, is a fine fellow, a gentleman in every way.

All who wish to compete for the Welsh Cage Bird Club's specials must send on their subscriptions at once. Novices will be supplied with labels for their cages, by sending a stamped envelope for them.—D. H. Tedstone, hon. sec., 4, George Street, Brecon.

The Warrington C.B.S., writes Mr. W. R. Knowles, the chairman, has secured the Drill Hall for their next show. It is splendidly lighted at the sides and roof, and within two minutes of both stations. We have put on the schedules three classes for open novice Yorkshires, and three ditto for Norwich.

Dibbs Canary Seed offer—Special Offer.—As an advertisement we give with every cwt. of Canary Seed purchased, one ewt. of our celebrated Health Grit absolutely free. Giant Spanish, 24s. per cwt.; Finest Turkish, 15s. per ewt.; treble-screened and free from dust. Carriage paid to nearest station. Samples on application from John Dibb, Seed Importer, 31 and 33, White Abbey Road, Bradford. Tel. 247x.—(Advt.)

Mrs. Goodwin, the wife of the popular Treasurer of the Dulwich and Peckham C.B.S., assisted by several well known local ladies, is having a stand at the show for the sale of useful articles, the whole proceeds to be devoted to the Lord Mayor's Cripple Children's Fund. If any reader would like to help by giving any article, please communicate with this lady at the Herne Hotel, Peckham Rye, S.E.—G. F. Woolhouse, Show Manager.

I have received an entry of three from Bexhill-on-Sea, posted this morning with no name or address.—H. C. Lilley, hon. sec., Peterboro' Show.

Mr. W. Bowyer, of Leek, has been appointed judge of the Stockport B.F.A. Members' Show, on Dec. 5th and 6th writes Mr. W. Stafford, the hon. sec.

We have been successful in rearing the following Hybrids this season:—Goldfinch-Bullfinch, and Goldfinch-Greenfinch.—H. Tams and Son, Longton.

I regret that, although our entries are due to close, up to the present I have only received 53 entries in all sections. I must therefore accept up to Wednesday next, Oct. 9th. Our show is held under C.B.U. rules. We have a fine large warm hall, a grand number of open specials, and a popular judge.—W. E. Miller, hon. sec., Rochester Show.

We hear from Mr. Bishop, the hon. sec., that the Sheffield Cage Bird Society are giving as special prizes twenty shillings in cash in each of the 5 classes provided for Crests, in addition to the twenty-two shillings per class prize money, at their show to be held Nov. 8th and 9th. That well-known breeder of Crests, Mr. Robert Rhodes, of Nottingham, is the judge.

There can be no better evidence of the extensive nature of the business transacted by that well-known Norwich specialist, Mr. W. Rudd, than the list of foreign orders he has at present on hand, or has recently executed. From this it seems that birds have been sent to France, Natal, Cape Colony, East London, Durban, Oudtshoon, and other parts of South Africa, Calcutta, Australia, Montreal, Ontavia, Halifax (Canada), Jhansi (India), etc., and cages, food, and goods to the above places, and also to Grenada, Calcutta, Smyrna, Colombo, (Ceylon), East Indies, and Sweden.

Mr. T. Bowen (North Berks F.S.) writes:—With regard to the bound volume of Cage Birds, which you give as a special to those advertising to the extent of not less than 25s.; am I right in assuming that it is left to the secretary to decide which class among the cage bird exhibits this is allotted to?—(Quite right, Ed. C.B.).

A NEW PAPER

FOR

Poultry Keepers:

THE

Place your order for No. 1 NOW!

Very shortly there will appear a new weekly paper solely devoted to Poultry. It will be entitled THE POULTRY WORLD, and it will be priced at the popular figure of One Penny. THE POULTRY WORLD will be an entirely original modern periodical with a real palpitating mission in life. It will aim at catering for the Poultry interest entirely on modern lines. It will not be content with appealing forcibly to present-day supporters of Poultry Journals, it will strive to create interest in the subject where at present none exists. THE POULTRY WORLD will be, in every sense of the word, a specialist journal, conducted by experts who are in the very front rank, and it will, we hope, be bought by the novice with equal avidity, and pursued with equal interest as by the old hand.

THE POULTRY WORLD will contain all that the keeper of utility Poultry desires to know. It will give the Fancier of Prize Poultry all that he desires, and it will strive to attract the man in the street or on the land with the same measure of journalistic magnetism.

Meanwhile we shall be pleased to meet all intending subscribers and helpers at the forthcoming Dairy Show. And next week another sensational announcement may be made on behalf of our new and live Poultry Paper:—

The Poultry World.

"Just the Ideal."

F. CARL, 154, Fleet Street, London.

Our Foreign Bird Essays.

Our Foreign Bird Essay Competition seems likely to prove one of the most successful prize schemes in this line we have organised. A large number of most entertaining and instructive compositions have been secured, all of which will have due consideration. The result will be announced in about a fortnight.

Scottish National Derby.

On the 21st September last it was decided to raise a fund for the purpose of presenting Secretary Smith with a painting of himself in oil, for valuable services rendered to the Association. All subscriptions duly acknowledged. List closes Oct. 20th.—A. Pontefous, James Hogg, Joint Secretaries, 67, Nithsdale Road, Strathbungo, Glasgow.

British Roller Canary Club.

I am pleased to inform you that the Annual Club Show will, by the kindness of the L.C.B.A., be held at the Royal Horticultural Hall, Westminster, December 6th and 7th. As the annexe where the birds are staged is an ideal place for Rollers, we are in hopes of getting the finest and largest number of Rollers together that the public have heard at any show held in London yet. The following shows will be under the patronage of the Club, Cheltenham Oct. 26th and 28th, Wolverhampton Oct. 30th and 31st, Leeds Nov. 15th and 16th, Wakefield L.C.B.A. and Club Show Dec. 6th and 7th, Bolton Jan. 10th and 11th, Llanelly Jan. 14th, Crystal Palace Jan. 31st, etc.—J. W. Norris.

THE MYSTERY OF A TELEGRAM.

An Alleged Bet and its Consequences.

About a fortnight ago we arranged with that well-known fancier, Mr. J. Andrews Eckersley, to send us before he delivered it a certain lecture he was going to deliver to the members of the Coventry O.S. We duly received the lecture and had the same set up in type, but upon the Wednesday morning when going finally to press we received a telegram unsigned which we presumed came from Mr. Eckersley, instructing us to hold over the lecture till the following week. This we were unable to do altogether, but in order to oblige, as we thought, the gentleman who had so courteously sent us the lecture at considerable expense and inconvenience, we held over a large instalment of it. We then wrote Mr. Eckersley and asked him for an explanation. Judge of our surprise when he repudiated all knowledge of it. We wrote the secretary of the Society, he did likewise, professing righteous indignation at the telegram being sent. We communicated with the Post Office officials, who informed us that no name or address was attached to the telegram (contrary to the rules of the G.P.O.). This incident has caused considerable unpleasantness. Mr. Eckersley is annoyed with us for holding over his lecture until we had ascertained to our satisfaction the facts of the case. We were a little annoyed with Mr. Eckersley for having, as we supposed, divulged our intentions to someone whose interest it was to injure our reputation for promptitude. Now we receive another anonymous communication which seems to throw a different light upon the affair. This is how it goes:—

There is not the slightest intention of anyone doing harm to Cage Birds or Eckersley. I will explain how it all came about.

The meetings of the C.O.S. are usually very late, but on the night of the lecture it commenced very early, several coming in the room late as usual, asked where is the lecturer, has he not come? The reply was he had been, given lecture, gone, and it would be in your Cage Birds on Friday. This hardly seemed creditable, and some betting took place; in fact, I know one gentleman who held 10/- that it was in;
that it was not in;
then later came a leakage that it had been previously sent.

Diamond cut Diamond.

Wire them not to put in this week; hold over till next week? No, but someone did, and had it not been in a letter fully explaining would have been sent same day, but as it was in, this was hardly thought necessary, and I know all those concerned would rather conspire to do F. Carl and Cage Birds some good, than harm.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

DOUBTS AND DIFFICULTIES SOLVED BY SPECIALISTS.

Queries will be answered under the following conditions:—

(1)—All questions must be clearly written in ink (or typewritten) on one side only of paper, and must conclude with either the correct name of querist, or a pseudonym, or initials.

(2)—The proper name and address in full of querist must always be written on a separate sheet of paper and enclosed with the query. In no case must the address appear on the query.

(3)—Queries intended for different specialists must not be written on the same sheet of paper.

(4)—Queries must not include or be included in orders for books, instructions re advertisements, or any other matter for publication.

(5)—The department to which the queries refer must be stated in bold letters on the left-hand corner of the query.

(6)—If an answer in the same week's issue is desired, queries must be posted to reach us by Monday's first post at latest. Queries will be dealt with in the order in which they are received, and only as space permits. The earlier queries are received the better attention they are likely to have.

(7)—Queries relating to illnesses of birds, except enquiries as to cause of death (for which see Post Mortems) will be answered by return of post on receipt of a postal order for sixpence and an addressed stamped envelope. Queries of an ordinary nature will be answered by post, if desired, on receipt of a postal order for one shilling and a stamped addressed envelope.

(8)—All who require letters of complaint written to advertisers must state grounds for doing so clearly and fully, and enclose a fee of sixpence to pay postage expenses, &c., otherwise their letters will not receive attention.

(9)—All queries must be addressed the Editor, "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C. Only queries so sent will be answered. Postcards are not admissible.

NOTE.—Readers are requested to carefully study past numbers and current issue before submitting questions. By doing so they may save trouble and unnecessary repetition.

CANARIES.

NORWICH PLAINHEADS.

Answered by J. H. PAYNE.

Weather Conditions.

A.W.—You may safely transfer your Norwich to the room you suggest, and I should recommend you to do so before the cold weather sets in or they will feel the effect, perhaps, of being taken from a living room. The fact of your not having any heat in the fresh room need not trouble you, as they will stand the cold quite well, but during frosty weather you may cover them over at night.

High Colour Wanted.

Sillew.—You may pair up one or two pairs of yellows together if you wish to get a preponderance of yellows, and to deepen the colour; but be sure and select birds for this purpose that are nice and soft in feather, and short on the leg. Birds bred from double yellows are apt to run up on leg a bit. 2. Yes, you may let your birds fly together in an indoor aviary during the winter months, but I should suggest you take out the cocks about the middle of January and put them in separate cages. The hens you can let stop until you require them for breeding. Do not feed your birds on all mixed seeds. Let them have as the staple diet best Spanish canary, and on two or three days in the week you may give them a little of the following mixture: German rape, niger and hemp.

YORKSHIRES.

Moulting Twice.

H.H.T.—Your feeding is at fault. Let the staple food be plain canary seed in the hopper, and twice a week give half a teaspoonful of mixed seed consisting of two parts summer rape and one part maw seed, and for three weeks give six drops of Parrish's Chemical Food in the drinking water fresh every morning. You say the window is open during the day, but there is no draught, but from your description of your bird's condition, I doubt this, and should advise moving the cage to some other part of the room. If you do as directed, I think your bird will be quite fit for breeding by spring. Either a clear or marked yellow hen would suit the cock, but if you want nothing but clears you must use a clear. Length is of value in a stock cock, as then you can, when necessary, sacrifice a little in length on the hen's part, for shape, style, and quality.

High-coloured Yellows.

N.D.P.—The way to avoid breeding buff is to pair two yellows together, but I should not advise this kind of mating if you want birds of all-round excellence. (2). Speaking generally the hen has more influence on shape and style than the cock, but the reverse is the case in regard to size and colour. (3) It is immaterial which bird of a given pair is the ticked or marked bird, and it matters very little whether the markings are green or cinnamon for your purpose, so long as both birds are of rich colour. You say you do not mind a few ticked birds, if you can get the majority of the young ones a high yellow colour. You will not breed high coloured birds, unless you have plenty of green or cinnamon blood in your stock pair, and this will mean having a fair average of heavy-marked birds.

Loss of Voice.

Novice. — Few birds sing immediately after moult; perhaps in a few weeks your bird will regain his song. Give for one week a pinch of Epsom salts in the drinking water. Just make it so that you can taste it, and for a week or two after continue the whiskey and glycerine, fresh every morning. Let its staple food be plain canary-seed, and you may give as well a little of the mixture you name two or three times a week.

GREENS.

Answered by S. HADWIN.

How to Pair.

Sillw.—The best advice I can give you on this point is to put yourself in the hands of a reliable breeder, one who shows a good bird and breeds it himself. He will know how the birds have been bred from a colour point of view. It is sometimes advisable to pair two self Greens together, but as a rule a self on one side and a foul on the other gives the best results. By continually pairing self Greens together the birds become too dark. The cost would be anything from 30s. to £5.

LIZARDS.

Answered by BARKER CLEGG.

Open Back.

J. Dixon.—The open space in the centre of the back of your Gold Lizard is termed open in the back, showing a portion of ground colour devoid of spangling. It is not an unusual occurrence. It is a great disadvantage on the show bench. Yes, it will be all right for stock purposes, matched with a mate more profuse in spangle.

MISCELLANEOUS CANARY QUERIES.

Answered by "OLD JUDGE."

Late Hatching.

S.H.—Your hen might possibly hatch the young from the eggs you mention, but it is hardly likely she will rear them. It is altogether wrong, and opposed to nature for birds to be sitting now. My advice is, destroy them at once. It will ruin the hen's constitution, and spoil her for breeding next year if you allow her to bring up the young.

Loss of Wing Power.

Negrive.—I am much afraid that your bird is in a very bad state, and must have been out of sorts for some time. The best thing you can do is to feed it for a day or two on arrowroot biscuit which has been steeped in boiled milk, when giving th biscuit sprinkle it with a little maw seed. Give this fresh three times a day. Mix in its drinking water thirty drops of Fellow's Compound Syrup to each wineglassful of water. Let it have plain canary seed in its seed hopper, and give each morning for a week half-a-teaspoonful of hemp seed.

Moulting.

F.C.—(1) I cannot recommend any colour food as being the best, either of those which have been advertised in CAGE BIRDS for the past few months will serve your purpose. The makers send out full particulars as to use with each tin. (2) There is no time lost yet. Many birds take quite three months to moult. The head and neck are the last parts to finish, and some birds throw the feathers on them all at once. Birds vary greatly in the manner they go through the moult. If your bird is healthy, eating, drinking, and sleeping well, my advice is—Don't Worry.

Aviary in Kitchen.

W.H.W.—I consider the place described would fulfil your purpose most admirably. It should be dry, even in temperature, and free from draughts.

ROLLERS.

Answered by "SCHOOLMASTER."

This Year's Young Breeding.

W.H.W.—Young Rollers, born July 26th last, will certainly be quite ready for breeding purposes next spring, assuming, of course, they keep healthy and are then in proper condition. I don't know what arrangements you are making, or the extent of your stock, but if you breed from one pair only this last season, then you ought not to pair the young together (i.e., brother and sister), but should get some good unrelated stock to cross into them. Egg-food is best not given except during breeding season. Substitute a good patent food (or plain sweet biscuit), moistened with new milk, taking care it is never sour. Don't omit a young and tender sprig of greenfood every day or so, or piece of suitable ripe fruit.

Long-Standing Trouble.

J. Hearn.—You say your bird has not sung a note for two years, and for the last twelve months has been given to falling off the perch and moulting frequently. Well, it is a puzzle to me the bird is still alive after such a length of time like that, and I don't see how you can hope to get it well and strong again. I should be inclined to have it put out of its trouble, and try another bird, or, if you know any friend with an aviary, to get him to turn it in the same. A long course of tonic medicine might do good, but no one could say for certain. Fellow's Syrup of Hypophosphites is best, but is rather expensive—half-a-teaspoonful in two tablespoonfuls of drinking water for a fortnight, then continue on alternate days for a further period. Parrish's Chemical Food is cheap, and well liked by fanciers as a "pick-me-up," and strengthening medicine.

Canary Seed and Coal Tar.

Anxious.—As you put the canary seed loose in the envelope, most of it got spilled ere reaching me. The grains I saw looked like a very nice, plump, well-harvested seed, which, with a little good summer rape, should make an excellent stock food. Am not very well up in chemistry, but I don't think you should have asked for "coal tar essence," or have been persuaded to take "creosote" as the correct thing. According to Mr. J. North (and he ought to know), it is "standard solution of coal tar" that fanciers want, scientifically termed "Liquor picis carbonis, B.P." Ask for this.

A Terrible Wheezing.

Sillw.—Should think you must have had the bird in a draught, or exposed to uneven temperature, which would account for him starting moulting in March. Has he got over the moulting? I am presuming so. Try a course of treatment with coal tar solution (see reply to "Anxious" this week). Put three or four spots in the bird's drinking water daily, enough to turn it a light, milky colour; don't overdo it. Keep in a cosy, warm corner, and cover over cage at night. Give a small teaspoonful of the mountain bread daily; a good pinch of maw seed will be beneficial also.

In an Aviary.

Aviary.—A few Roller Canaries are as suitable as any other variety, and much more so than some, to keep in a drawing-room aviary for the amusement of the children. Unfortunately you do not tell me the size of the aviary, so I cannot possibly tell you how many birds it will hold. If you mix the sexes, the hens will want to breed in the spring, and you would have to allow them to do so. If you do not wish any breeding operations to take place, then you should only put male Canaries therein. There would no doubt be a little squabbling from time to time during the spring and summer, and any particularly vicious and quarrelsome birds might have to be removed for a time.

BORDERS.

Answered by J. PATTERSON.

What Class (Novice).—Nos. 1 and 2, decidedly Foul, unless marked on thighs, he would then be three-pointed, uneven. No. 3 being marked on both wings, should be shown in the Foul class, see rules of B.F.C.C., but examine his thighs, and more than likely you will find him marked on one or both, as it is seldom we get a wing marked bird entirely clear on thighs, if so, he should be shown as uneven.

Mischievous Hen (Border).—Get a pennyworth of Quassia chips from chemist, pour over them one quart of boiling water, add a little bay rhum to it when cool, then give her a good drenching with a spray every morning, the bitter taste should stop her. I have also found that such a bird put in a large flight for a few days will entirely stop such antics, as their attention is taken away from themselves when they have to rough it amongst a number of others. Should this fail you must get a piece of cardboard, cut it one-and-a-half inches round, make a hole in it, just a shade larger than her head, slip it on to neck, she will be powerless to damage herself, and may soon forget the habit. BRITISH BIRDS, MULES AND HYBRIDS.

Answered by G. E. WESTON.

Stock Mixture for Linnets.

Jumbo.—At this season of the year, when Linnets are either moulting or just getting over the effects of the moult, the following stock seed mixture will be difficult to beat: Canary, three pints, teazle, hemp, linseed, summer rape, and charlock one pint each. For "tit-bits" give them in a finger drawer frequent pinches of maw, niger, wild seed mixture, cracked sunflower, gold of pleasure, lettuce, etc., seeds—not all at once, of course, but varying them. If you can get the ripe wild seeds, such as plantain, gold of pleasure, chickweed, knapweed,, thistles and the like, you certainly ought to supply them—they are invaluable helps in bringing a Linnet through a "good" moult—in which connection, too, a free use of the bath must not be overlooked.

Sexing of Linnets.

Dick.—It seems odd you should write for information on the above point, seeing I dealt with it fully only the week before last. I can't keep repeating the same information week after week; note the editorial injunction to querists to kindly look over recent issues. Briefly, a fully adult cock Linnet in spring and summer dress has a red crown and red breast (more or less expansive, according to age). The hen Linnet has at no time a red breast and head. After the moult and during autumn and early winter, both cock and hen are plain brown, but the hen is invariably a greyish-brown tone, whereas the cock is a deep nutty-brown tone, especially on the shoulders. If you get a bird which is a warm, nutty-brown on the back and the wing-butts, and which has the white on the outer edge of the flight feathers extending back up to the quill (shaft), you can depend on it being a cock. The hen seldom has more than the edge of the web of the flight feathers white, there being a dark line between there and the quill—thus she looks to have less white in her wing than the male; further, she is seldom other than greyish-brown on the back. These are the principal points of difference. If you just ruffle the breast feathers with the tip of the finger, a tinge of rose colour can often be seen which is not otherwise visible; that is a sure sign of a cock. Experience with the species, however, is the best teacher—as in all things.

Colour Feeding Goldfinch.

Ignoramus.—If you think a course of colour-feeding is all that is needed to turn a naturally pale-coloured Goldfinch into a rich-coloured exhibition specimen, then you are certainly "backing a wrong 'un"—to drop into expressive slang. As I have said in the past, I wouldn't personally give "tuppence" for any Goldie (for show purposes) that stood badly in need of pepper - produced colour. See lengthy reply to "Amateur" in issue dated Sept. 7. Still, a good house-moult—by which is meant one quickly got through, helped by correct feeding and liberal use of the bath—will bring out and improve the colour of most Goldies, so that you can reasonably hope your bird will look better later on. In any case, I am afraid you are too late to thoroughly colour-feed him now. Will he eat soft-food? I expect not. And if you try to starve him (judiciously, of course) on to it, he may "go back" and die. A bird it is intended to colour-feed should be got on to soft food well before the moult begins. You might try him with sweet pepper mixed with crushed seed. In any case you would have to start with very little at first, and gradually increase the quantity of the colouring agent. Crushed sunflower seed (shell blown away) being both oily and a good food, is a good vehicle; prepare afresh each day. To a teaspoonful you would mix a quarter-teaspoonful of pepper, which would represent full strength, and should be eaten up every day. The correct (and only) way to colour feed a Goldie is to wait until the body feathers are through, when the blaze will be still in quill; then give the pepper, which charges the blood with colouring matter during the time the bird is "darkening down" (otherwise "coming up,") in colour. If given right through the moult, pepper smudges and spoils the beautiful colour contrasts found in the Goldie's plumage, and the fed bird is thus badly handicapped when competing against good non-fed specimens.

Order the "Bird World" NOW.

An Albino Dove.

Albino.—I know very little about Doves, only having had odd ones at odd times in my earlier days. Still, as they are now on the N.B.B. and M.C. list (Turtle, Ring, Stock and Rock Doves), your pure white pink-eyed Albino Dove is certainly eligible to compete in the Albino classes at our shows. There is this proviso, however, that it be an Albino of one or other of the above four species, and not some imported (foreign) Dove. Personally, I think you have made a mistake, and will get the bird "wrong-classed," if you show it under a judge who "knows his business." The ordinary Barbary (or Collared Dove), a common species in the bird-shops, is often mis-called the Ring Dove (or Ring-necked). There is another charmingly pretty Dove, pure white, and generally pink-eyed, known as the Java Dove, which some do not consider a distinct species at all, but merely an albinistic variety of the Barbary; and this, I expect, is what you yourself have got hold of. Of course the Java Dove could not compete in the British Bird section. The English Ring Dove is the Wood Pigeon (commonly so-called), and between this and the Barbary there is really no resemblance. You want to be sure of your ground. The "Java Dove" has no out-of the way value.

Feeding Fresh-caught Linnets.

H. Thompson.—Your feeding is altogether inadequate, and most probably the cause of your trouble. You should have followed the advice I gave a querist a few weeks ago, when your losses would probably have been very much lower—certainly so if the Linnets were sound and healthy when you got them. I don't like your cages. Newly-caught Linnets are best kept in a long, low cage (if with a canvas top so much the better), with seed inside (water, too, at first; on an old bird, or steady old hen Canary, to show them the "way of things"), and perches about on a level with the food troughs. After they have got over the first "shock" of captivity, they can be caged off singly with safety. Here are a few hints on the feeding; from them you will gather at what points you fail. Newly-caught Linnets must have some "soft seeds" to feed upon. These are conveniently found in seeding shepherd's purse, plantain, chickweed, charlock, groundsel, knapweed, thistles, and the like; also soaked summer rape and charlock, given when just commencing to germinate or sprout, must be supplied. They should be offered maw seed, linseed, canary, summer rape, charlock, teazle, and lightly cracked hemp (fresh made every day). After a few days the cracking of the hemp can be discontinued; offer it whole. Should any of the birds go "soft," separate them at once from their companions, and for two days, and afterwards for a time on every second day, let them have water made slightly saline with sulphate of soda—a teaspoonful dissolved in a pint of water. A good wild seed mixture (such can be cheaply bought) is a good thing for fresh-caught birds to pick over.

Hawfinch "Stuck" in Moult.

British Novice.—Hawfinches are very ticklish birds to get to moult properly. Sometimes they won't drop a feather; sometimes they commence very late—and often incontinently "pop off"; seldom does all go swimmingly. This moulting trouble is unquestionably the cause of the comparative scarcity of Hawfinches on the show bench; they are good prize winners when put down in good form. A friend of mine declares that band-reared birds, or "branchers," are the only ones to be at all depended on to moult easily and well indoors; adult-caught birds seldom do so. It is a puzzle. I have laughed at some of the dodges I have seen resorted to, to try and get unwilling Hawfinches to moult. I have seen them stuck sky-high against kitchen ceiling, getting the full benefit of the gas fumes and heat, and in warm cupboards beside kitchen fires. You should try shifting your bird into a warm room, to a cosy corner, and gradually "sheet down" his cage with a light warm covering, arranging that he may have the bath, or be occasionally lightly sprayed. If you adopt the latter plan just tinge the water with a few spots of Scrubbs' cloudy ammonia. As I related to another querist a few weeks' ago, one Hawfinch I myself had, "stuck in the moult." I tried with a "vapour bath." Briefly, I half-filled a bucket with hot water, laid a piece of board (not too wide) across the top, and put the Hawfinch, run into a wire nursery-cage for the purpose, on the latter, throwing a light covering over the whole, and leaving the bird in this position for several minutes. It is a desperate sort of remedy, but it acted in my case, as the old fancier who "put me up to it" predicted it would. One needs, of course, to be very careful the bird does not afterwards take cold; also that he is not overdone with too much and too scalding steam.

A Crossbill's Nationality.

Jamie.—There seem many people troubled about the nationality of Crossbills, just lately. I can only say to you that you can show your Crossbill at any exhibition of British birds, and no one can challenge its right to compete as a Britisher. You say the dealers told you it was a "Continental bird" when you purchased it; but that does not alter the point. Of course, if your conscience is sufficiently alive to prevent you entering it in British bird classes, all well and good—nothing more remains to be said. "Two wrongs never make a right," as some old saying puts it; still it is an unquestionable fact that many (by far the majority, I suspect) of the Crossbills staged to-day, originally started in cages from the Continent for Old England.

Hawfinch's Show Cage.

Peter Pan.—If your Hawfinch is as nice as the play you take your nom-de-plume from, he should want a lot of whacking. No; I don't like sloping roofs. They are a nuisance in the packing case, and on the show bench too. Have a sloping top inside, by all means, but not outside. Don't have the cage too big. An over-large cage is a mistake with a Hawfinch, especially with a bird not "dead steady," and the species is by nature shy and nervous. Other essentials are: the water hole should be large (some use inside tins hung on a tiny door of, or pushing in the wood of the front), door ditto, perches not far from the floor, and not too far from the top of the cage either, inside seed-trough. Enamel inside and wires, either very light blue, or very dark holly-green, whichever you prefer personally. The size would be in the region of 14 inches long, by 13 inches high, by 7 to 8 inches wide.

Inflamed Legs and Feet.

F.O.H.—I should keep the young Linnet-Mules on perches three-eighths to half-inch wide for the time being. If any of them seem to suffer much pain through perching, keep them in a longish cage without perches in it, covering the floor with coarse-cut pine sawdust, and, of course, arranging the food and water vessels handy. Get a small quantity of boric acid from a chemist, dissolve a teaspoonful in a pint of hot water, and bathe the inflamed feet in this solution for a minute or two twice daily. Afterwards dab dry with a soft cloth, and anoint gently with Zambuk, or other soothing and healing ointment. Give them two mild doses of sulphate of soda as much as will lie on a sixpence, dissolved in two tablespoonfuls of drinking water. Let them have a teaspoonful of sweet biscuit or some good pet food moistened with new milk, every day. Your should not withhold green food, but give seeding chickweed's purse (it is very common), or chickweed, groundsel, plantain, etc.

Some Weeds.

W. White.—The weed you send is Knot-grass. It is a favourite food with Linnets, whole flocks of which may be seen feasting on the seeds, as you yourself have observed. It is intended to deal with Knot-grass in the articles now running.

Bird Lover.—No. 2 looks like one of the Docks. No. 1 I do not recognise. As I have remarked to other querists, you need not worry about any weeds that are not touched upon in the articles on "Wild Plants."

Wild Seeds.—I do not recognise No. 2. The other is one of the Goose-foot tribe, and is commonly called the "bacon-weed." No doubt other finches, besides Linnets, would enjoy the seeds.

Some Interesting Points.

Magneto.—(1) An exhibition Lesser Redpoll should be well laced (or pencilled) down the sides of the breast, running to the thighs. It is only a very exceptional bird that carries pencilling right across the breast—such are seldom seen. Size is not an essential in a Lesser Redpoll, though desirable. The very large Redpoll you mention, would be the Mealy (sometimes called the Greenland, from which place the extra large ones come, it is said). It is a much lighter coloured bird than the Lesser, being quite grey by comparison, and often quite white on chest and abdomen (in breeding plumage, flushed with rosy-pink). It is a winter visitor to England, breeding away up towards the arctic circle. (2) Yes; the markings of a "thorough good" Linnet should extend down to the legs—down betwixt them if possible, though this would be rare—and right down the flanks. (3) Most hen Linnets carry wonderfully good pencilling on the breast—the markings are heavy and profuse. They generally lose in size, though, and practically always in colour, to a good exhibition cock. They do not get the warm chestnut tone of the male, though some are quite passable so far as colour goes. Years ago I myself won a first and special in a strong class with a hen; and I have myself once or twice given hens a card in good classes. Of course, where there was a class for hen Britishers, they would be barred competing against the cock Linnets. I have often wondered, indeed, whether the owners really knew they were exhibiting hens. I quite agree with you that a good show Linnet is one of the very hardest exhibition birds to find.

FOREIGN BIRDS.

Answered by WESLEY T. PAGE, F.Z.S., M.B.N.H.S.

Grey Parrot Weak on Legs.

J.H.C.—Put your bird on a course of Parrish's Chemical food, well colouring its drinking water with same for the next month. If there is any signs of constipation, for one day in lieu of the chemical food, put one teaspoonful of Dinneford's Magnesia in the drinking water, then when relief has been given, revert back to the chemical food. Keep a piece of cuttlefish in the bird's cage, and add to its diet, ripe fruit, nuts and plain biscuits (dry); rubbing its legs has done no harm; keep it warm and quiet, yet not in a stuffy atmosphere. I prefer the following seed mixture:—2 parts canary and white oats, and 1 part each of wheat, dari, rice in the husk, hemp, and sunflower seeds, well mix and always have a supply in the cage. Giving it a few sips now and again of slightly chilled water in which you have put a few drops of brandy would also help—till it is stronger it would be safer to remove the grating from cage bottom. Note other replies in this issue of CAGE BIRDS.

Parrot with Diarrhœa, etc.

K.E.M.—I am afraid your bird is in a very bad way, and that its recovery is doubtful—however, while there's life there's hope. Stop the milk sop at once, and if it will not eat sufficient of the seed mixture, get a piece of stale household bread and moisten it (do not make it really wet, or anything like sloppy) with chilled water, that has been lightly coloured with Parrish's Chemical Food. Also give, for one day only, one teaspoonful of Dinneford's Magnesia in the bird's drinking water, and let it have nothing else to drink for that day—repeat this after an interval of three days. On the days you are not giving the magnesia, make its drinking water the colour of pale port with the chemical food. Keep the bird warm, quiet, and out of draught, yet not in a stuffy atmosphere. Seed mixture: Get a quart each of canary and white oats, and a pint each of wheat, dari, rice in the husk, hemp and sunflower seeds, well mix and always keep a supply in the cage. Also give as extras, and to vary the diet, ripe fruit, nuts, plain biscuits, and green food. Keep a piece of cuttlefish hanging in its cage. Do not give tea, coffee or milk slops, buttered bread, or any kind of animal food whatever. If there is no improvement ten days hence, you bad better write again, giving full particulars.

Cockatoo with Swelling.

Rutherford.—It is a case in which it would be folly on my part to attempt to advise you. If this bird was my own, so far as your details go, I should not attempt to treat, but call in a vet. If there should be any delay in doing so, in the meantime keep the bird warm, and gently anoint the affected part with pure olive oil. A little Dinneford's Magnesia may have a soothing effect, but its bowels must not be allowed too loose. If you are able to give this, do so on alternate days, one teaspoonful of magnesia to two tablespoonsful of its drinking water. But my last word is: consult a vet. promptly, and the bird's life may be saved.

Indian Parrot Plucking Itself.

G.E.G.—It is the "General Tit-Bits" working the mischief. In the first place, spray the bird every day with quassia solution, guarding carefully against draught till dry. For one day only put one teaspoonful of Dinneford's Magnesia in two tablespoonsful of water, and let it have only this to drink for that day. This can be repeated, say four or five times at intervals of three days, providing the bowels do not become too loose. Put it on a course of chemical food—for directions see other replies in this issue—of course, not giving the chemical food on the days you give the magnesia. Diet: Seed mixture—canary and oats two parts each and one part each dari, wheat, hemp, and sunflower seeds. Well mix, and keep a supply continuously in the cage. Also give cuttlefish and greenfood, and, as extras, ripe fruit, nuts, plain biscuits, and a little boiled potato (dry). Do not give tea, coffee, or milk slops, table scraps, or any kind of animal food whatever.

What Birds?

A Bird Lover. (1) This reads somewhat like the Guttural Finch (Spermophila gutturalis), but it is very difficult to name these birds, where so many species closely resemble one another. If the above, the back is dull olive green. It is, any rate, a small Grosbeak of some kind. (2) This bird I cannot recognise from your description before going to press, but will see what I can do in next issue—could you not let me have coloured diagrams? Even a very rough coloured sketch would probably enable me to spot the bird at once.

What Cockatoo.

C. J. Pike.—As regards food, your bird will do well on its present diet, but I should advise the addition of oats and hemp to its seed mixture. Before I can definitely name it for you, will you please repeat this portion of query next week, giving colour of beak, legs and feet, naked skin round eye, also whether the upper mandible is much longer than the lower; also state whether there is any yellow mingling with the rose and white of the crest. If you supply the above particulars I shall have pleasure in naming it for you. At present, from your description, it might be one of three, and which I cannot as yet say.

Stand Cages.

O.H.—You could keep Parrots and Cockatoos in this way, but I don't know whether you are troubled with nerves (or neighbours). A number of these birds would be more than any ordinary person could stand; that is unless they were kept in some shed a little distance from the house. Your arrangement would answer well enough if your stand cages were erected under a shed, having a front which would open out on hinges, and only kept closed during very cold weather. A square foot of floor is hardly sufficient; make it at least half as much again. Re procuring chains, write those advertising Fancier requisites in our columns, any of whom would supply you. Place the ring on the leg.

Parrots and Treatment.

Watson.—It is a Blue-fronted Amazon. Diet: Canary, oats, and Indian corn, two parts each, and one part each of wheat, hemp, and sunflower seeds. Well mix, and let this be your staple diet. Twice a week a little boiled maize (this only keeps fresh one day, and food vessel must be kept very clean), say about a tablespoonful may be given; also green food, nuts, ripe fruit, little boiled potato, and plain biscuit. Keep a piece of cuttlefish in its cage, and let it satisfy its thirst three or four times a day. Do not give slops, fats, or any kind of animal food. Re the vermin, get a bottle of quassia solution from one of your advertisers, and put a little (according to maker's directions) in the washing water, and you will soon be rid of any insect pests.

H.B.T.—A great deal depends upon the wording of the schedule, and it is very difficult to draw a hard and fast rule. (1) A Superb should certainly be quite safe entered in the class for Small Foreigners; that would be its proper place. Supposing the schedule simply described the class (and there were no qualifying regulations) as "Small Foreigners not larger than a Cardinal." (2) The Scarlet should go in the class for "Foreigners larger than a Cardinal."

Japanese Nightingale.

(1) My Japanese lately commenced to gasp, although lively; I lost one a short time ago; what is the remedy? (2) Some young green Budgerigars cannot use their legs; are weak in wings; the female parent also cannot fly. All in outdoor aviary.—H. A. H.

H.A.H.—(1) Withhold the bathing water for a day, and make the drinking water quite saline with Epsom salts; this could be repeated a week hence if necessary. Its diet should be ripe fruit, soft food (several good ones are advertised in our advt. columns), and a few live insects, such as spiders, mealworms, beetles, etc. If you can capture a few spiders (they are very plentiful in gardens and hedgerows at this season), you would find two or three daily have a very beneficial effect on the bird. It will help itself to all the seed it requires from the Budgerigars' mixtures. (2) The parent female Budgerigar is constitutionally weak, and this is, as frequently happens, accentuated in her progeny. I should destroy both her and the young and get another female from some good strain of aviary bred birds—not from where you obtained your present birds, but from some fresh source. You can try colouring their drinking water with Parrish's Chemical Food, but recovery will be very slow, and then only partial, and I consider it waste of time and money to try to improve them, as they would never be any use for breeding; neither should I personally care to sell such stock.

Cockatoo Moulting.

J. Edwards.—I should spray the bird with Quassia Solution twice a week (keep strictly out of draught till dry), and if there are any sores annoint same with spermaceti ointment; or if the skin is dry and hard rub over same a little clear vaseline occasionally. Your dietary is fairy correct, but I prefer that I so frequently advise for Parrots (see other replies). I should also, till it is in condition again, give about a tablespoonful of boiled maize daily (this only keeps fresh one day), well dusting same with flowers of sulphur; its drinking water should also be made the colour of pale port with Parrish's Chemical Food. But it would be as well to let it have clear water once a week to drink. In case of constipation, which I do not think will occur, either make its drinking water saline with Epsom Salts or one teaspoonful of Dinneford's Magnesia; either will soon give relief. While giving drugs use either a glass or china drinking vessel.

Lemon Crested Cockatoo.

K.J.J.—This attachment of female birds to a gentleman, and the other sex to a lady, is quite common with many species of Parrots and Cockatoos, and with many species is a fairly reliable guide to the sex of the bird. It is also not uncommon for a bird that is quite aged to commence laying eggs and exhibit the other details of sexual excitement you allude to. In such cases the chief danger is from egg binding, and with your bird it is rather surprising she survived as long as she did the laying of shell-less eggs; it is often difficult to get this class of bird in a cage to take sufficient grit, lime, rubbish, etc., to supply the material for producing the shell. Of course if the eggs were laid continuously at very short periods, this would be weakening. Going slightly off food, dropping the wing, looking puffy and moping mostly precede the laying of the egg. Of course if this continues for more than a day the bird should be caught and assistance given her in getting rid of the egg. It is quite clear that the bird died from acute inflammation of the ovary through inability to pass the egg. Holding the vent over the steam of a jug of hot water (being careful not to scald the bird), and annointing the vent with sweet oil in many cases will give relief. In a similar case in future I should crush a little lime rubbish, and cuttlefish to the size of small peas and mix with its seed mixture; also dissolve in the drinking water a piece of lime, the size of a small bean, as well as mixing crushed egg-shell with her sand. The loss of such a pet is always keenly felt. I much doubt if a vet. could have saved the bird at the last.

Treatment of Avadavats.

Am feeding on canary, white, French and spray millet, ants' eggs and greenfly. Is this diet correct? What size cage ought I to keep them in? Ought I to give a nest? Do they make nice pets, or are they delicate?—S. H. W.

S. H. W.—You cannot improve the diet you are giving these exquisite, if common, little Indian birds. Keep a piece of clean cuttlefish in their cage; and when procurable free from frost and not sodden with wet, grass in the ear is eagerly eaten. If you want to enjoy the full beauty and vivacity of these birds, keep them in a box cage, 2 by 1 by 1½ ft. high, and put a twiggy branch at either end instead of perches, at the back of which hang up a cocoa-nut shell nest (procurable from most dealers), and there is a probability they will breed—at any rate if a little hay and moss is pushed in them, they will make cosy night shelters. The birds are easy to keep, and not delicate when once acclimatised. They live out of doors all the year round in my garden aviary, but in a cage they must not be kept where the wind can blow directly into it, as draught will soon kill any bird. They are fearless, vivacious little creatures, and will soon get to know you. The sweet little song of the male is almost continuously uttered from morn till night. They may have a daily bath except in very severe weather. The bath should be one of those to hang outside the cage over the open door. They are shy breeders in captivity under any circumstances, but kept as above advised, there is a probability they may do so. A pair of Zebra Waxbills, frequently called Golden-breasted Waxbills, are even smaller still, and would make a beautiful addition. They would agree with the Avadavats and the cage would accommodate both pairs.

Companions for Cockateels.

Aviary 9 by 5 by 6 ft. high, contains pair of Cockatiels, which have successfully reared young this year. Can I next season add another pair of birds (not Budgerigars)? But I don't want to have fighting.—"IRIS."

Iris.—Yes! You can have another pair of birds with your Cockatiels; but I cannot recommend either of the kinds you name. Blossom-heads are very uncertain in their temper at all times, and positively unsafe in the breeding season, save with birds much stronger than themselves. Jendaya Conures, so far as my experience goes, would soon cut their way to liberty unless all wood work was protected with zinc, or some kind of metal. I think you would find a pair of Red Rosellas fully meet your case; they are very handsome, and about half as large again as the Cockateels. In my aviary they live peaceably with Cockatiels, Budgerigars, and Lovebirds, and thrive on the same food and treatment. They also breed freely when adult, and have become accustomed to their quarters.

Grey Parrot Ceasing to Talk.

Cornish P.C.—Your bird has had a bad scare, and also has not as yet got too used to its new surroundings. It is possible something was ruptured or injured during the bird's alarm; but I rather doubt it. Try the effect of six drops of glycerine in its drinking water for a week or ten days. Observe the inside of its throat, if possible, and see if there is any growth, or inflammation. If so, please repeat query with full particulars. I presume you are dieting the bird as advised regularly which should give you a hint or two. I am of the opinion that in a few weeks the bird will "find its tongue." again.

POST MORTEMS.

Mr. J. North, 435, Oxford Road, Reading, will examine cage birds for a fee of 1s. 6d. each bird; for a reply direct, 2s. 6d.; analysis, 21s. Subjects for post-mortem examination must be sent packed in a box direct to J. North, with fee. Any sent to the office of this paper will be thrown away, and if a fee is enclosed the loss will be the sender's.

Canary (G.H.B.).—Death was caused by "Canary Fever." Instructions as to treatment and disinfection of stock and surroundings have frequently been given in these columns, also read Dr. Clarke's booklet on "Septic Fever."

Hen Avadavat (A. Barker).—Death cause by egg-binding. It is suggested that larger cages, or aviaries, should be used if you want to breed these birds; or that only male birds should be kept as pets in cages.

Grey Parrot (C. H. Curtis).—This bird died of well-established liver disease.

Canary (Veronal).—Bird fever. It is spread by infection, and there is no "cure."—Note reply to "G.H.B."

Southern Norwich P.C.

The handbook of the Southern Norwich Plainhead Club is to hand. It bears a representation of the bird which four of the six judges selected as a model, and a map of the district included in the club's operation. Inside is the standard of excellence which is the same as that adopted by the Scottish Club. Full particulars are given of the club's trophies and the shows at which they are to be competed for. The rules are given in full, and there is also a complete list of the members together with the officials and committee. That the club is going strong and doing good work is evidenced by the fact that its membership has now topped the century. Mr. F. S. Matthes, the energetic hon. sec., is still crying for more, and would like ere the season closes to say the number has been doubled. All Southern Norwich breeders really ought to join. Mr. Matthes' address is 34, Rotherhithe New Road, S.E.

Health and Strength.

The great majority of mankind, it is safe to say, find an abiding interest in athletics and all kinds of manly games, and particularly in that side of athletics which leads to better health for those participating—a side fortunately fast becoming widely known. In the spread of this good knowledge, that go-a-head journal, "Health and Strength," has taken a very prominent part, and the up-to-date lines on which it is run have served to make it a prime favourite with an immense circle of readers. "Health and Strength" has carried out its aim, of catering in an interesting and commonsense way for all who desire to keep physically fit—and who does not?—so thoroughly and acceptably that it has attained a measure of popularity undreamt of in connection with a journal of its kind. It is now, in response to the overwhelming desire of subscribers, being issued in weekly form, price the popular penny, instead of in monthly form as heretofore. It is to this fact we would draw the attention of readers of CAGE BIRDS, interested in questions of health and in athletics generally—it is a journal, in fact, which should be read by everybody, and better value for the humble copper cannot be obtained anywhere. "Health and Strength," though now a weekly paper, maintains its magazine-like character, inasmuch as a wealth of photographic and other illustrations of surpassing interest figure in its pages. The articles are of wide range, covering a large and immensely interesting field, ranging from the functions of food, through instructive notes on anatomy and health subjects generally, to gymnasium work, boxing, wrestling, weight-lifting, football, and all aspects of physical prowess. Readers should order a copy of Nos. 1 and 2 of this weekly at once from their newsagents—they will be pleased.

"CAGE BIRDS" GREAT PRIZE COMPETITION.

Notes for the Guidance of Show Secretaries.

All Sections Compete.

IMPORTANT.—Every recognised cage-bird is entitled to compete for CAGE BIRDS' prizes, whether Canary, Hybrid, British or Foreign bird, and of either sex.

How Entries must be made.

Each bird entered by competitors must have the letters "C.B." written against it on the entry form, and "C.B." must be printed against the said birds in the catalogues of the show.

A competitor may enter any number of birds, but for EACH bird so entered one of our Coupons, with the NAME OF YOUR SHOW STAMPED ACROSS IT, must be attached to the entry form. No other Coupons (i.e., bearing the name of another show) are eligible.

Awarding the Prizes

The prizes offered are 10/-, 6/-, and 4/- in cash, to go to the best First Prize bird, best Second Prize bird, and best Third Prize bird, respectively. Note carefully, NOT to the second-best and third-best birds in the show, but to the best bird amongst the winners of the Second and Third prizes respectively. Thus, all the First Prize winners entered for the competition compete for the 10/-, all the Second Prize for the 6/-, and all the Third Prize for the 4/-.

IMPORTANT.—Reserve birds should be selected by the judges in every instance, to provide for any possible objection which may afterwards be lodged against the winner.

No Prizes to be Withheld.

In no case should the prizes be withheld, providing, of course, there are three birds in the show entered for our competition. If none of the first prize winners is entered, then the 10/- goes to the best second prize bird. If there should be a first prize bird eligible, but no second, then the second prize money (6/-) goes to the best third prize bird. In such cases the best fourth prize, or reserve, or vhe, hc, and c birds, as meet the case, become eligible to take whichever prizes remain unallotted. Such necessary adjustment does not, of course, affect the original placings of these birds in their respective classes. If none of the birds entered secure money prize or other award, then they must be judged on their merits for CAGE BIRDS prizes.

Sending Result to us.

The winners' names and addresses, with a description of the winning birds, must be sent to The Editor, CAGE BIRDS, as soon as possible after the close of the show.

Payment of Prize Money.

All prize money will be posted to the winners direct from the offices of CAGE BIRDS.

Objections and Disputes.

All objections and disputes, if any, in connection with the Competition (except such as are covered by the rules of each show, which shall prevail), will be decided by The Editor and a committee formed by delegates from London societies.

A Working Suggestion.

It is suggested, to facilitate the working of the scheme, and lessen secretarial labour, that as the entries come in, and are being classified and numbered up, a special "CAGE BIRDS Class" should be made, and the ordinary class and class numbers of each competing exhibit be entered therein. As the judge's slips come in, the awards secured by the said competing exhibits can be entered against them in the said "CAGE BIRDS Class." Then, at the conclusion of the judging, the numbers of all the first, etc., prize winners can easily be handed over to the judge or judges for his or their decision.

Secretaries and officials are reminded that the Conditions of the Competition must be printed in full on a page of the catalogue of every show (as well as be inserted in the schedule) at which the competition takes place.

NOW READY!

YORKSHIRE CANARIES.

HOW TO BREED, MANAGE AND EXHIBIT.

Price 1/- nett. Post Free 1/1½.

This book is absolutely the very best that has been put on the market. It deals fully with the Yorkshire and its sub-varieties, and should, without doubt be in the hands of every breeder of the bird of Grace and Beauty. It contains instruction upon Pairing, Breeding, Moulting, Exhibiting and how to treat this popular variety in both health and disease.

Mr. J. B. Waterman writes:—

"I am delighted with Mr. Battye's book entitled 'Yorkshire Canaries,' and while it would be like trying to gild refined gold or painting the lily, to speak in terms of praise of the great ability of this enthusiastic lover of the bird of 'Grace and Beauty,' I must say the work will prove a very valuable addition to every bird lover's library. I found it not only intensely interesting, but full of good, sound, useful information, expressed with a clearness not often found in works of this description; and in my opinion it will very materially assist the young beginner to achieve the highest fame in the Fancy. The chapter on 'Don'ts' is itself worth the money, coming as it does from a fancier of such a wide and varied experience with the Yorkshire bird as Mr. Battye."

A WORD TO EXHIBITORS.

A word to intending exhibitors at shows where our coupon scheme and great £200 prize competition is in force, will now be timely and needed. If you are entering a bird or two for a coupon show (look down the coupon show list)—why not run a double-barrelled chance by paying just another sixpence to us for a coupon? This little sixpence may be the means of bringing you in an additional 10s. 6s., or 4s. Remember your bird need not be a topper to stand a chance for our prizes. We are not offering prizes for the best three birds, as some people may think, but for the best first prize bird, the best second prize, and the best third. So that if your exhibit only secures a third, it may still stand a chance of winning the 10s. If it does not win an ordinary cash prize at all it may still win one of our prizes. Where there are no first or second prize birds entered for our scheme (and it is quite possible at many shows there won't be) this is more than likely.

Exhibitors must not run away with the idea that this is a competition for the cracks. It is not. The novice has just as much opportunity. Now run your eye down our coupon list, and post off your application to us for coupons right away.

Coupons are ready for any show on our list of coupon shows. If you don't use them at the show they still have a cash value. (See rules.) But we want the scheme to be a bumping success. If it is, exhibitors will benefit, the societies will benefit, and we shall benefit. It will be a good thing all round. Think how annoyed you will be if your bird wins an ordinary prize and is defeated in our coupon scheme by another bird immeasureably its inferior. This is certain to happen if you don't buy your coupons and safeguard yourself right away. 6d. a coupon—for each bird at each show. Prizes 10s., 6s., 4s., surplus divided amongst the participating societies.

Some Points Elucidated.

SIR,—There seems to be some doubt in the minds of the North Berks. Fanciers' Society (committee) re CAGE BIRDS prize competition. Here are the points which do not seem quite clear: (1) Suppose a dozen birds were entered at a show and none of them were in the prize list, how would they stand for CAGE BIRDS' prizes? (2) May a fancier enter as many birds as he chooses at one show? (3) Are birds entered in members' classes debarred from competing?—C. PEARCE (Member of Committee).

[1.—If none of the birds entered for competition secure an award, then they will be judged on their merits for CAGE BIRDS' prizes—under no circumstances, providing there are three eligible competitors, will our prizes be withheld. This point is fully dealt with in the "Notes for the Guidance of Show Secretaries," published in this week's issue. (2) A fancier may enter for competition any number of birds at any show, providing one coupon for each entry so made has been duly obtained according to the printed conditions. (3) Birds in members' classes are entitled to compete. No bird at any show is barred, in fact, except previous winners.—EDITOR.]

Nests of Birds, Poultry, etc., should be regularly sprinkled with KEATING'S POWDER, especially when hens are sitting. Don't forget to do this just previous to the eggs hatching, to destroy the Red Mite. It kills all insects, harmless to everything else.

Shows of later date given next week.

UNDER THE WHITE ROSE.

ON Saturday, September 28th, three of the Yorkshire Union Societies held their Members' Shows, viz., Bradford West, Windhill, and Great Horton Good Intent, which coming as they did, a week before the first open show, caused great interest to be centred in them, being regarded as preliminary canters for the open events; and many entries at Halifax will depend upon the winnings or otherwise at these shows. Each of the shows had a moderate entry, but very many of the birds were not quite ready, and would do with another week or two before being turned out at open shows.

MANY fanciers, upon receipt of the schedule for Halifax, would be greatly surprised to find that the rules of the Cage Bird Union did not form part thereof, and that it contained no mention whatever of being under C.B.U. licence, after having been advertised as such. But this is partly dispelled by a notice in the columns of CAGE BIRDS of September 28th, from the Halifax Secretary, which states that the show will be held under Yorkshire Union rules only. At the last council meeting of the Yorkshire Union held on September 7th, the question was raised of societies applying for outside patronage, and it was decided to allow societies a free hand in the matter on the distinct understanding that Yorkshire Union rules must prevail at all Yorkshire Union Shows. Now Halifax had already asked for and obtained the license of the Cage Bird Union, and all shows under such licence must be held under C.B.U. rules, and no other rules must be recognised at such shows. This put the Halifax O.S. in a peculiar predicament, and a special meeting was called to discuss the matter, as not being able to hold the show under two sets of widely different rules, they must needs choose to which Union to remain loyal.

THIS is a state of things that, in my humble opinion, should never have come to pass, as without doubt some means could have been devised to have avoided any clashing chaos, for instance, where such rules as the Y.U. rules are in vogue, the C.B.U. might have granted a licence without forcing their rules over and above those of the Yorkshire Union, or might even have made arrangements that the two Unions should uphold each others' disqualifications, etc., and that members of each Union should show at each others' exhibitions, and in fact no compulsion at all should be used, but allow members to show wherever they will. As a matter of fact it was this compulsion that killed the C.B.U. in Bradford and District. Time will perhaps find a way out of this difficulty, and here the proverb, "Better late than never," will hold good.

MR. W. H. Shackleton, the prominent Yorkshire exhibitor, is, I hear, shortly to retire from business and intends to settle down to a quiet life with his birds and a little garden, and no doubt with plenty of time on his hands will make things hum in Yorkshire circles. The place selected by Mr. Shackleton is close to the headquarters of Wibsey O.S., and overlooking Wibsey Park, and no doubt the fanciers of that society will welcome his advent amongst them. But, Mr. Shackleton, if you can beat them with Yorkshires on the show bench, I don't think you will beat them at eating meat and potatoe pie, that is if some of the members' performances at the supper on the 21st are any criterion—where, oh! where, did that tram-driver put it all?

BRADFORD East O.S. have Mr. Chittenden to entertain them on Oct. 1st, his subject being "British Birds," and as he has had good experience and is very enthusiastic on the subject, the lecture should prove very interesting. Mr. Chittenden is the main instigator of the recently formed Bradford and County British Bird and Mule Club, and as such many thanks are due to him for his tireless energy in his endeavours for the success of the undertaking.

GREAT Horton O.S., although their show is so very late in the season, are endeavouring to make arrangements for a good show, and have already secured the patronage of the Y.C.C. the C.M.C., the Green Canary Association, and the Bradford and County British Bird and Mule Club.

SCHEDULES for the second of the Yorkshire Union Shows, viz., Windhill, are now out, and a clerical error has crept into the classification, one class reading "Clear, Ticked, or Unevenly Yellow Marked Cinnamon Yorkshire," and some of the members of the C.M.C. are wondering how a clear cinnamon marked bird will look. Evidently the Windhill Secretary, like most of us, is not infallible.

CORRESPONDENCE.

MR. CLARKE'S RETIREMENT.

SIR,—Referring to Mr. Clarke's "twittering," I beg to state that the reason he was disqualified from competing at our contests was for "disputing the judges' decision," a very unusual occurrence in our club, also unruly behaviour. As regards giving way to novices, we all know in Leeds that he has only been in the fancy four years. E. WOOD, Hon. Sec.

THE CLEAR AND TICKED QUESTION.

SIR,—I think it is time this Clear and Ticked question was settled, as the show season is hard on us now. I think it ought to be settled by the different clubs. The Yorkshire fanciers have settled it, and I think it is nearly time the Norwich men did. I should like to ask if any of your readers could tell me how to enter a bird I have? It is a Norwich, and has not a dark feather anywhere. Its legs are clear, but on the left side of beak, just under the nostril, it has a dark mark. Would the bird have to be entered in a ticked class, or a clear? I thought of showing the same, and should not like to have it passed "wrong class." I quite agree with Messrs. Spillman and Curtis that it is nearly time something was done.

C. H. COOPER.

NEW SOCIETY FOR CO. LOUTH, IRELAND.

SIR,—On September 27th a meeting was held at Trainor's Hotel, Park Street, Dundalk (Dr. Lavery being in the chair) for the purpose of considering the establishing of an Ornithological Association for the County of Louth. There was a considerable number of fanciers present, and it was unanimously agreed that such a Society was desirable in the interests of local fanciers, and it was resolved to form the Society, of which Dr. Lavery was elected president, W. H. Coyne secretary, and E. Johnston treasurer: committee: Messrs. Murgatroyd, Rowe, Niblock, Viviball, Keating, and McKittorick. The annual subscription is 2s. 6d., and the committee cordially invite the co-operation and membership of all interested fanciers. Copy of rules and full particulars can be had from

QUAKERS THAT TALK.

SIR,—I have read with much interest the letters which appear in your issues of September 14th and 21st inst., from "M.B." and Mr. W. T. Page, respecting the Quaker Parrot, and I am glad to take an opportunity of vindicating the character of this species. I believe Dr. Greon in his "Parrots in Captivity," does not speak very favourably of the Quaker, and Mr. Page appears to have the same opinion of this bird. While not professing in any way to be an authority on the feathered tribe, I should like to give my experiences of the Quaker. I had kept birds, mostly Canaries and British birds, for some years, but never seemed to have any desire to possess any of the Parrot species, until one day happening to be in the shop of a dealer I was much amused in watching the interesting antics of a small Parrot, which I was informed was a Quaker. I bought the bird and it soon became a great favourite. Certainly, it screeched a little at first, but when it learned to know us, the screeching became more and more unfrequent, and gradually ceased altogether. The little bird soon became very tame and used to fly about the room, and we could play with it like a kitten. When I bought it, all it could say was, "Come on," but it soon began to increase its vocabulary, and added "Pretty Polly," "Kiss Polly," "Scratch her poll," and most of the expressions commonly taught to Parrots. It would call my wife and daughter by name, and when out in the garden frequently brought out the young lady next door by calling "Edie, Edie," so plainly, as if the call came from one of us. It would say, "Where's Mary?" to a pet Canary, and "Where's Joey?" to a Thrush, and when we unfortunately lost the Canary, soon added, in a most sorrowful tone, "Poor Mary!" Many of the things it said were picked up without any teaching whatever; it used to say to the dog, "What do you want upstairs?" and other things which we certainly never attempted to teach it, and every word it said was clear and distinct, and every sentence was given with a variety of inflection. It was an admirable mimic, and could imitate the sawing of wood, hammering of nails and other common sounds of this kind. I regret to have to write this in the past tense, as we lost our dear little pet nearly two years ago; but I think we feel its loss quite as much to-day as we did the day it died. We have had many pets of various kinds, but none that we loved so much as our dear little Quaker. We missed the little bird so much that I decided to buy another Quaker, but not being able to meet with one, I bought a Blue-fronted Amazon. It was a fine bird, most tame, gentle and affectionate, and a good talker, but it had none of the vivacity and amusing tricks of the Quaker, and only imperfectly took its place. However, I happened one day to walk along Selale Street, and there to my delight saw outside a shop the very image of the little bird we had lost. I promptly purchased it, and we soon installed it in the same place as our first Quaker. The dealer said the bird did not talk, but could sing, and for the first few days it certainly did "sing"—enough to raise the dead. We began to think we had caught a tartar, as it did nothing but screech, and we tried to teach it to talk without any evident result. But, one evening while sitting quiet, what was our surprise and delight to hear the bird talking. It opened the conversation by informing us that it was "Pretty, Pretty Polly Perkins of Paddington-green, of Paddington-green"; and in case there should be any mistake about it, the phrase was repeated about fifty times. It then followed with some of the sentences we had been teaching it, and which it had evidently stored up in its active little brain: "Kiss Polly," "Give me a kiss," "Scratch her poll," and so on. We have now had this bird just over a year, and it has a very good vocabulary. It will bow most gracefully at the words, "Bow for the King." It is a good mimic and exceedingly tame—will follow my daughter about the house like a kitten, and nestle down in bed beside her, and is intelligent enough to get out of the cage by lifting up the door, or withdrawing the pins which hold his food and water tins in place. It is, however, still given to screeching occasionally, but this I attribute largely to jealousy or timidity; it cannot bear to see us talk to or play with the Amazon or even with the dog, and does not like being left alone, and generally raises some noisy objection. I think if we had no other pets this bad habit would soon disappear. But one cannot expect everything perfection, even in a bird, and I think the amusing ways and beauty and high intelligence of the little Quaker counterbalance this defect. I can hardly think that I have been so fortunate as to possess two exceptionally gifted specimens of the Quaker, and I am led to believe that in the hands of anyone who is kind and gentle and patient this little bird can be made to become one of the gentlest, most affectionate, and interesting pets it is possible to possess.

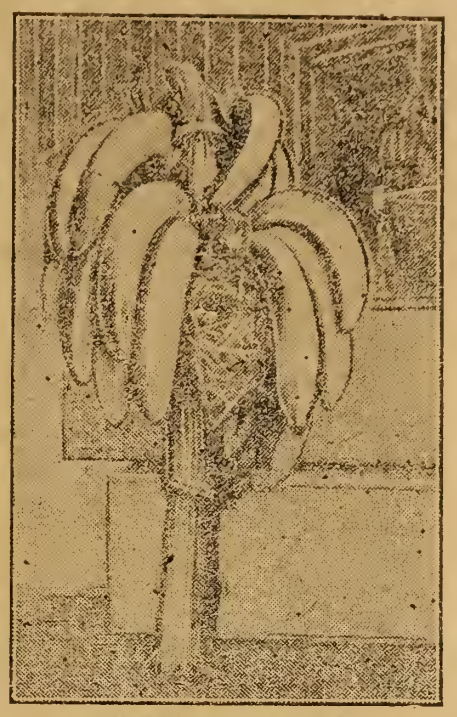
RANDOM NOTES ON HYBRIDS AND MULES.

SIR,—I am much interested in Mr. T. H. Kinch's "Random Notes on Hybrids and Mules," and hope to hear that some of his offchance crosses have proved successful. His notes on Pheasants provided interesting reading to me. I must confess that I was a wee bit sceptical about the female adopting male plumage. However, since reading an article in the "Glasgow Times," it seems to be quite possible. I must wish you and your grand little paper CAGE BIRDS continued success. GEO. R. MCGHIE.



THE VITALITY OF RED MITES.

SIR,—When I read the remarkable assertion of a notable authority some months ago that mites could not walk on glass, I recalled some experiments I made with mites years ago, and then I "smoled a smile," and determined to add one other to those experiments for CAGE BIRDS readers as soon as the opportunity offered itself. This note on vitality is a kind of bye-product of that experiment. The mites that were to form the objects of the experiment were enclosed until a seasonable moment in a perfectly clean, small glass tube. Next day on examination with a lense it was found that a group of eggs had been deposited. Here was another opportunity presenting itself. The mites were all removed from the tube, and the tube closely corked with only the eggs in it. A few days later these eggs hatched into mites, and now at the time of writing, more than three weeks later, these tiny mites are as lively and active as though they were living in the proverbial "clover" on some unfortunate bird's body, and this, mark you, in spite of the fact that they have all along been closely sealed in the tube, and never yet had the very slightest visible means of support of any kind whatever. They ran about the glass tube in every possible shape and position as nimbly and easily as a common house fly runs about a window pane. So much for the science of the unscientific assertion that mites cannot walk on glass. No wonder one hears piteous appeals to friends and fanciers all for enlightenment. But the most remarkable thing about these mites is how they have managed to subsist so long under the condition named. And how long are they going to live? CLAUDE ST. JOHN.

BIRD'S NEST IN A BANANA BUNCH.

SIR,—I read in your issue of Sept. 14th an account of a bird's nest being found in a bunch of bananas. I beg to forward you a photo of such a nest, which I had taken about two years ago. This nest contained three eggs, but I am sorry to say that two were broken. The one you see in the photo I placed on top of the broken ones. The eggs would be about the size of those of the Hedge Sparrow, but the colour of our Skylark's. I have also had since then two more nests containing eggs, one much smaller than the first, with one egg, which, on being shown to a friend, got broken in handling. The third nest contained three eggs. The nest and eggs were in splendid condition, and I gave them to a friend for his collection. I have also had the dried body of a bird come amongst the bananas. The colour of the feathers on the wings was much like our Greenfinch's, the body feather being a dull slate colour. In looking through an encyclopædia I found a bird answering to the description I have given, called Banana Bird or Banana Eater. I am sending this in the hope it will interest readers, and wishing CAGE BIRDS every success.

NEWS FROM NEWCASTLE AND NEIGHBOURHOOD.

SIR,—I had the pleasure of visiting several houses in Newcastle-on-Tyne and district, and was delighted with the hospitality of the miners and their wives. The object of my visit was to see what had been bred. I am a very keen fancier myself, and I find it is beneficial to fanciers who want to have success on the show bench to keep "on the move" and see other's stock. Thinking I had the best birds almost that could be bred, I was greatly disappointed on being shown some bred by others far superior to mine. At this I seemed to lose heart; but, there, we are often deceived when the judge gives his decision at the show. I therefore intend to take courage and advise others, who have not been successful in past years, to do the same, and wait the results of the judging. Comments ran very high last year on the long Norwich birds that were winning, and it is to be hoped that the short thick-set, chubby, full-fronted birds, will be the leading birds in their section this year. Newcastle members are looking forward to having a good time at their coming show on the 18th and 19th of October, and from what I can glean the exhibits will be very good and the competition keen. Altogether, the show promises to be one of the best and largest in the North. A word of praise is due to the worthy secretaries, Messrs. Curry and Hutchinson, who have both worked with a will. Mr. Hutchinson, at the last meeting, read over one of the best lists of specials I have heard, and he must have worked very hard to make it up. There has been a good deal of talk of this year being a bad one for breeding. That is so, mostly with our Crest breeders, which will have a tendency to raise prices. This season has been remarkable for Hybrids and Mules. Our old friend, Mr. Maddison, is well to the front again in breeding some very fine specimens; also an old Wallsend member, Mr. Stubbs, has been very successful in rearing three very fine specimens of the Greenie-Bullie, which should be heard of later on. A word of praise is due to our old friend Mr. Little, who has spent a lifetime in breeding and showing Scotch Fancies. For the last thirty years this bird has varied much in type in the opinion of breeders and judges. The good old half-moon type has died away, and the present day type is the large deep-sided bird, hard away from the shoulder, full of nerve, and well up on legs. I had the pleasure of visiting Mr. Little's birds, and without exception he has some of the finest specimens, young and old, that any man need wish to have. It so happens the writer is an expert judge of the Scotch fancy, and my honest opinion is that he has the up-to date bird, and a remarkable fine stock, and should be heard of at home and abroad. In bringing this letter to a close, I wish to add a word in favour of Mr. Taylor, one of our members—a very keen and enthusiastic fancier—who seems, from his enthusiasm, to have set all the fanciers "on edge," and made the fancy in this district much keener than it was before. Note his splendid special at the six leading shows for most points. The idea is to encourage entries and help the fancy.

A CONSTANT READER.

SCOTTISH BRITISH BIRD AND MULE CLUB MEDALS.

SIR,—Permit me to correct the statement made by Mr. Livingstone that Kirkcaldy was granted medals when neither judge, date of show, nor hall for same was fixed. I have our secretary's notes for that meeting before me while I write, and he has distinctly marked thereon Mr. A. Cochrane, judge; date of show, 9th November, and finishes up his remarks by saying, "Classification given, but not clearly defined." The matter was up for discussion and well thrashed out, and the finding of the meeting was that Kirkcaldy be granted five medals. What more need be said? Mr. Livingstone is perfectly well aware, and so are all members who were present at the meeting on the 7th September, the reason why Bathgate lost the medals, and this he can explain in print if he chooses to do so. I do not agree with all the wordy letters that appear in print. If members feel aggrieved at the findings of the meetings, let them attend these meetings in person. There they can air their views, and possibly be a means of carrying the vote to their own liking. This is my solution of the difficulty for aggrieved members.

L. J. 'ARRIGHI.

SIR,—I wish Mr. Livingstone would read CAGE BIRDS more thoroughly before making such statements. If he looks up "C.B." he will find, in "Show dates fixed" column, that Kirkcaldy has appeared every week since the month of May, with judges' initials beside it. There was also a paragraph in "C.B." stating when and where the show was to be held. For proof of this statement I refer Mr Livingstone to the Editor, or any of the appointed judges

JAMES WILSON.

SIR,—If Mr. Livingstone reads over my note of the previous week he will see that I did not charge the Bathgate officials at all. I merely corrected the statement of a member the previous week. Mr. Livingstone well knows the mistake of the telegram business which lost his Society the medals the previous season, for which nobody but himself was to blame. He cannot get away from facts. I do not require to refer to any gentleman re the last show, as it was a one-day show, and it was only a slice of luck that it got the entries. Mr. Livingstone talks rather tall, and puts more war-paint on than he can wash off. He makes a mistake also re Kirkcaldy, possibly the result of Bathgate vote affecting his memory, which is not always correct. The Kirkcaldy application was read over, date of show, and where held, the rest was explained. Mr. Livingstone may think his voice strong, but the effect is rather weak in prejudicing our members against a popular judge. He must feel that he has got "worsted" this time. Regarding the note by "A Member," why medals were not granted to Hamilton, not even our Bathgate friends voted for Hamilton. When it ceases to amalgamate and cancel classes, it might get better support. Don't be so selfish. Let the medals go round. Attend the meetings, and don't be carried away with gossip. The S.B.B.M.C. is not in a rotten state, and by its members adhering to Rule 11 it is making grand progress. If a member chooses to cut off his nose to spite his face, then he cannot expect much sympathy.

NEW SOCIETY AT HUCKNALL HUTHWAITE.

SIR,—We have started a new Society, under the name of the Huthwaite and District Cage Bird Society, with headquarters at the Workpeople's Inn, Hucknall Huthwaite. We have had a few such sterling fanciers as Messrs. Vardy, Marshall, Beardall, Adnett, Driver, and Vaughan, etc., join in our ranks. Fanciers are heartily invited to join us.

VALE OF CONWAY AND DISTRICT F.A.

SIR,—Although this new association has only been in existence a month or so, it is going ahead with great enthusiasm. Sir Charles McLaren, Bart., M.P., is president, and that good fancier, Col. EGGS IN SEPTEMBER.

SIR,—Seeing in CAGE BIRDS about a gentleman finding an egg in his cage when he was cleaning it out, I think I can put "the topper" on that experience. I have had three eggs this month (September), all from a marked Canary. She has been in a cage with another hen since July, and has had no cock near her. One egg she laid at the beginning of the month, one on the 21st, and one on the 30th. I have just fetched the last one out of the cage, and the bird looks well, too.

R. LAISTER.

SIR,—I have read the correspondence on late eggs, and find from "Madraling's" letter that he has a hen that has laid three eggs. I am pleased to let him know that since writing you last, my hen has laid four eggs. But I am very sorry to say that it died a few days after. Could any correspondent of your valuable paper account for any trouble the hen has had, or the otherwise curious happenings? I hope CAGE BIRDS will meet with every success in the future, and the "Poultry World" the same. CURIOUS.

SIR,—I may say that I have a hen that has laid two eggs this last week, one on the 24th, and the other on the 25th of September. She has laid twice before this season, five eggs each time. She has not been with the male bird since the end of August, and she laid five eggs in July.

HINTS ON BIRD CATCHING.

SIR,—Seeing that no one has answered the query by Colonist, I will give my methods. Get some nice smooth twigs, about a foot long, the thinner the better. Procure the best birdlime you possibly can, as inferior lime gives nothing but disappointment. You can get good stuff through advertisements in CAGE BIRDS. Goldfinches feed on thistles and hard heads in winter, and these are the best to catch them on. Lay the twigs across the thistles (and in this case, as in all others) always try to lime, so that the bird cannot alight without settling on your twigs. Place your call bird under one of the thistles, and lime all the thistles and hardheads near the cage. I always select about a dozen big ones and cut the others down. Do not go out to take the bird as soon as he settles, but wait until he is wing-fast. Take great care of them for the first few days, giving unlimited hemp and inga, in addition to some wild seed. Gradually wean off inga until you are only giving a small quantity daily. Bullfinches are the easiest of all birds to catch, except Redpolls. I get a nice ripe spray of dock, about a foot high, and stick in the ground two or three yards away from a hedge the Bullfinches frequent, for instance, privet hedges. I put my call bird at the foot of the dock, and cover the spray with twigs, not forgetting a few on top of cage. Then I make a fence round him by sticking twigs slanting in the ground, making a complete circle. The twigs should slant about two inches from the ground at the highest point. Do not be afraid of putting a few down, as nearly all cock Bullies take the ground and want to fight. They make for your bird, and as soon as they get to your twigs over they go. They are also very easy to take in a trap cage. Linnets, Redpolls, and Greenies are generally taken on a hedge. A low, well-trimmed one is best. You will have to get holders for your twigs. Nettle stalks cut in pieces about an inch long will do. You stick one on a twig on the hedge, and then put your limed twig in the other end. Hawfinches are very shy birds, and I have not had much experience with them, but an old friend of mine tells me they are easily taken with peas in pod strewed on ground and limed twigs stuck in the ground, same as catching Bullies, but I should prefer a net trap. Skylarks I never bother with, but I have seen them taken with lime. A Greenfinch was pegged down in a stubble-field, and twigs put round him. The first bird that came near at once made for him to drive him away, and was soon fast. I have never seen any Siskins or Brambles here, but I understand the Siskin feeds like a Goldie. The three things necessary for success are: quietness, experience, and patience. Birds are also very easy to take at one of their drinking places, if you can find one.

AN ALLEGED MISLEADING ADVERTISEMENT.

SIR,—I was greatly surprised when reading last week's CAGE BIRDS to see an advertisement from Mr. Robshaw, of Leeds, which reads as follows—"Norwich Cinnamon Greens, bred from Mr. Godley's winning strain, that held both the Leeds cups last year." This I most strongly object to. The cup winners are not related to Godley's strain, as they are all my own breeding, and of the Norwich variety, not Cinnamon. I cannot see how Mr. R. can possess this strain, for I know he had only one bird from my room, a Buff Cinnamon hen, and that at a very low figure. In the interests of the Fancy, I think it is only fair to contradict his statement, and hope this will convince Mr. R. that it is best to advertise honestly. GEO. STEAD.

[In respect to this we may say that the advertisement was not at all legibly written, and the wrong description complained of may have arisen in consequence.—ED.]

A NOVEL METHOD OF CLEANING THISTLE SEED.

SIR,—This being the season of the year when owners of Finches, who have the opportunity, gather a few thistle heads for their favourites, I think from the following sketch a cleaning box will be found easy to make, and prove very useful in extracting the seed. It needs to have three flappers, either of wood or tin, fastened to axle, as shown by dotted lines, a false bottom of perforated zinc to enable seed to drop through into tray on bottom, and the front of box above tray should slide up to allow the used heads to be easily taken out. Place the ripe heads in box (have the box in the open air if possible to allow the fluffy portion to get away), turn the handle quickly, and you soon knock out the seed. The size of box can be such as best suits the maker.

BORDERS IN THE SOUTH.

SIR,—Would you allow me to draw the attention of Border Fancy breeders to the effort of the Dulwich and Peckham Cage Bird Society to still further popularise the Borders down South. After the excellent support they received last year, they have increased their classification, and through the kindness of friends, they have been able to get together a list of special prizes, the like of which has never before been given to the Border section in the South. I am glad to say that since our last show, several have taken up the Borders, and I hope our friends in the North will give their best support. I can assure them that their birds will have every attention, and by the courtesy of the show manager I have got permission to lift the Borders at four o'clock, so as to give them ample time to catch the night mails. Now, fanciers of the Borders, give the Dulwich Society such a bumping entry, that next year they will still further look to your interest.

MANAGEMENT OF SINGING CONTESTS.

SIR,—Will any of your readers inform me how the Linnet fanciers arrange their contest singing matches at Leeds, Yorkshire, Oldham etc.? I do hope some kind reader of your paper will reply. The way we sing in London is—one club sends challenge to another, the date is fixed for race, also the time birds to be on the nail. The prize to be sung for deposited with manager of the club. The birds sing for fifteen minutes, and the one that does the best "chalks" (highest score) wins the prize. I score for my own bird, the gentleman I am singing scoring for his bird, the manager of the club generally is timekeeper. We each have a trustworthy friend to look on each other's bird, to see we take the "chalks," or notes of song correctly, if we make any mistake he instantly puts a chalk against us. At our club, when we sing, all the other birds are taken to another room and covered over, and only the two birds that are racing lifted in the room, which is generally upstairs. When the fifteen minutes are up "time" is called by the timekeeper, "chalks" are counted up, and the winner gets the prize, with a good hearty cheer for the winning bird.

ROBIN-CANARY HYBRIDS.

Who has seen them?

SIR,—While on my holiday, I heard a gentleman speaking about rare birds to a friend of mine. I was interested and also surprised to hear him say he had seen Robin-Canary Hybrids. They were exhibited at Ipswich about 20 years ago, and were the prettiest birds he ever saw. He saw the owner and asked him how they were bred. The owner said he had tried different ways for years, and succeeded by putting Canaries' eggs in with the Robins. The Robins hatched and reared them. Before they could fly, he caged them, the Robins still feeding them. After they could feed themselves, he took them in the house, and he kept them all together during the winter; in the spring he paired them off—cock Robin and hen Canary that were brought up together, result three young Robin-Canary Hybrids. I should like to know if any reader saw them?

ONE IN DOUBT.

A LINNET RACE AT LEWISHAM.

SIR,—With a bird friend we wended our way one Saturday evening to the Coach and Horses, High-street, Lewisham. We were just in time to hear time called for the first pair to be put on the nail. On glancing round the room we saw a rare lot of rough diamonds, but sportsmen to a man. At a long table sit two owners and the timekeeper in the middle, each man scoring in a second or two; off they go, the one small songster evidently had had a few lessons from a Canary or Mule. Amidst breathless excitement and an odd remark, the race continues. The first pair finishing well, the race was won by Mr. E. Robinson with 1 score, 7 points, Mr. Ingram going under. Thus comes a welcomed interval for the sports to replenish those big tankards with the foaming home-brewed; time is called again, and up come Port and Larney, but neither bird was in form, only scoring, Larney 17, and Port, 10. The third pair were to do some good things, but after waiting the allotted span, neither bird would open out at all; these belonged to Nightingale and W. Robinson. The prize, a splendidly appointed singing cage, value 5s., given by mine host, Mr. Fred Houten, was therefore won by Mr. E. Robinson, who had been lucky enough to win a Goldfinch the same day in a raffle. The timekeeper, Clempson, gave us a hearty welcome, and our host, Freddy, asked us to come again, as they have a race every Saturday night. All sports respond as we leave, with many jocular remarks on birdy matters, and looking out for CAGE BIRDS next week.

HEATING APPARATUS REQUIRED.

Which is the best?

SIR,—I notice in a recent issue a Mr. Claude Cowper asking for some information on heating his bird-room, 15 x 8 x 10 feet, facing north, no fireplace in it, but a gas jet. Well, I think any bird fancier who has tried various means of heating his birdroom will plump for a hot water coil as being the safest and most efficient. The best form of coil is that with the heat generator (gas or oil) outside, and the coil of pipes only inside the room. But this can't always be managed, and it is, moreover, expensive, as it would cost from six to ten pounds to fit and arrange. The little coil (kind of "self-contained") to stand in the centre of the room (or where convenient) is almost equally good, or, at least, can be made so where an outlet pipe for any possible fumes can be arranged. This is not difficult, as a brick can generally be knocked out of a wall, into the open-air, or, perhaps, better still, into the shaft of a chimney, or it can, at a pinch, go through a top pane of the window. The gas jet Mr. Cowper has in his room will supply the heating agent, and the heat can be regulated, with a little experience, to a nicety. I much prefer gas to oil, or anything else. For whatever is used, however, I like to have a "fume pipe." Still, the latter is dispensed with by many, and perhaps it is a "fad" with me—I like to be on the safe side. These small hot water coils can be bought from any good maker of greenhouse apparatus. I have, too, often seen them advertised in CAGE BIRDS and CAGE BIRDS ANNUAL, made by practical fanciers, who have been plumbers, or gasfitters, etc. A local plumber is helpful in fitting any outlet pipe, etc. The cost of a small coil is anything from two pounds to three pounds ten shillings—and it is well worth it.

Moulting and Colour Feeding the Norwich Plainhead.

A Lecture delivered before the Members of Coventry O.S. on Sept. 11.

By J. A. ECKERSLEY.

COLD v. HOT PEPPER.

Of course everyone knows that for some considerable time now K.N. has been, to a great extent, superseded by the so-called "Sweet" or "Tasteless" pepper. Some fanciers use the latter exclusively, but they do not, I think, produce such good results as those who use a medium of the pungent agent; the colour being duller, and not nearly so lasting. I myself generally use 1lb. of hot to 4lbs. of cold. I add 1lb. of soft sugar to that quantity of pepper, thoroughly mix, and store away in air-tight jars, to be used as required. Oil I do not use, as I consider it unnecessary.

I do not think there is any likelihood that the fancy generally will revert to the methods and agents of the pre-K.N. days. Those who think that the bird of colour looks just as attractive in his modest yellow garb as he does when arrayed in the rich, glowing raiment of Spanish origin, are hopelessly in the minority; while those who urge that red feed is injurious to the birds have certainly failed to prove their case. This objection can only apply to the hot pepper, the tasteless being perfectly harmless. But when we consider how small is the quantity of K.N. now used, compared with what the birds had to dispose of in the early days of colour-feeding, and that even then, when, as Blakstou tells us, cayenne was not unfrequently mixed with the egg food almost in the proportion of bulk for bulk, it could by no means be proved that the birds suffered in consequence, for they "ate it greedily and in large quantities without suffering the slightest inconvenience"; when we consider these facts we are led to conclude that the objection, if it ever had any force, has certainly lost it. I freely admit that it means extra trouble, and a good deal of it, and considerable additional expense, to colour feed, but the man who is averse to tronble will be well advised to keep out of the Canary Fancy, and as regards the expense, the enhanced value of the fed specimens will be more than a set-off against that.

COMMENCING THE FEED.

I introduce my early hatched youngsters to the tasteless pepper when they are about eight weeks old, commencing with a heaped-up teaspoonful to an egg, half a round of bread from a quartern loaf, and a little soft, or castor, sugar, and gradually increasing the quantity, beginning to use the mixture already mentioned when the birds are breaking up. The youngsters from the second and third rounds require to be put on the feed earlier. The old birds should be given an aperient in the form, say, of a pinch of Epsom salts in the drinking water, at the end of the breeding season, to cleanse the system, and when beginning to give them the colour food, which should be about the middle of July, and in some cases earlier, they can have the mixture right away. Some breeders, I believe, mix a little tasteless pepper with the egg food when the hens are bringing up the last round, but it is a risky thing to do, especially during the first few days, unless you know your hen, for some of them will certainly fight shy of the stained egg, and if they feed the youngsters at all, it will be on something else. For those that require assistance to enable them to shed their feathers freely, I have found a mixture consisting of rum, saffron, and gentian, very useful. To a pint of rum add six pennyworth of saffron, and an ounce of tincture of gentian, and keep well corked ready for use. A tablespoonful to a quart of water will be about the right strength. Milk and flowers of sulphur, turkey rhubarb, and cochineal are also very good.

HOW TO USE MAW SEED.

Many fanciers mix maw seed liberally with the egg and colour food, to counteract the relaxing effects of the cold pepper, but I have found it much better to give the maw seed in separate vessels; if not, many of the birds will delve for it, and absent mindedly distribute half the colour food over the cage bottom. I use a good deal of Spratt's Canary and Cage Bird food during the moulting season, as it saves trouble, because it is not necessary to use so many eggs. I do not know that it is much more economical. The food is sold in granular form, but I always reduce it to powder before mixing with the egg food; there is then no danger of the birds picking out bits that had not properly absorbed the colouring matter. It (the powder) can be moistened with water, but I frequently use port wine. It is advisable to mix the colour food some time before it is required, in order that every particle of egg may have time to become thoroughly impregnated with the red pigment. I always remove the seed for a few hours each day; some allow their birds to have free access to it constantly, but really I do not see you are going to produce the best results—how you are going to get the depth of colour that seems in the eyes of some judges nowadays to be the Alpha and Omega of a Norwich, unless you do deprive them of their seed for a certain period daily. Birds vary in their tastes, just as human beings do, and some of them will turn up their dainty noses at the colour food, make it ever so toothsome and appetising. Others, again, will dispose of their own share and somebody else's, too, if they have the opportunity.

NOT AN ADVOCATE OF GREEN FOOD.

I do not give green food during the moult, but I give a good supply of marigolds, some nasturtiums, and about three times a week either boiled or germinated rape. It is of the first importance, at this time, that the birds should have an abundance of good, sound, nourishing food to enable them to maintain the heat of the body, and to stand the undoubted strain of the moult. With every care and attention you may still lose a few, but they will only be weaklings, and it is, perhaps, just as well that they should not survive. The world seems to have no use for the feeble of any kind.

EXERCISE NEEDED.

I am a firm believer in giving the birds plenty of room to use their wings, during the earlier stages of the moult, at any rate; in the double breeders they content themselves, for the most part, with hopping to and fro; so it is better, where possible, to put them into large flights, and keep them there until quite half through, when the youngsters that seem likely to be a credit to their parents can be sorted out and caged off, two or three in a cage, if they will agree. The old birds, too, that are likely to be wanted during the show season should be removed from the flights, so that they can receive special attention. Of course, the breeding cages must be thoroughly cleansed and whitewashed or distempered before the birds are transferred to them.

SMALL DETAILS.

A little linseed meal should be mixed with the egg food, and given on alternate days, during the latter part of the moult; a bit of boiled carrot is also an excellent thing to give occasionally. A piece of sulphate of iron, about the size of a split pea should be given in the drinking water two or three times a week. A bath on warm, sunny days will be very beneficial to the stock. If any of them should have a constitutional objection to water for any but drinking purposes they must be sprayed. I think I need hardly mention at this time of day that the birds must be screened from the direct rays of the sun. I have venetian blinds in my room, and I find they answer very well. I have also calico curtains running across the wire netting that forms one side of each flight. When you have removed the best birds from the flight, it is advisable to run a thin curtain across the front of the stack of cages in which you keep them, at a distance of a few inches; it will serve to keep the birds clean, and to protect them from draughts, which must, above all things, be avoided during the moult.

TROUBLE IN THE WATER POT.

I advise changing the water at night, for if you do it in the daytime many of the birds will immediately dip their heads in it, regardless of what kind of weather it may be, careless as to whether it is morning or nearly roosting time, and heedless of the state of the poll. This sort of thing often spells trouble, with a capital T, and a good deal of it may be avoided by refilling the drinking vessels when the birds are not looking. You know what curious, inquisitive little animals they are, especially the hens. Take away the drinking glass from the cage during the day, and they will immediately hop down and pop their heads through the water-hole, to see what you are going to do with it. If any of the youngsters should come out rather patchy, owing to their having been plucked a bit before they were put on the colour food, or to any other cause, they must be finger moulted. It will give very little pain to remove a few of the small body feathers. The sooner the birds are through with the business of moulting the better; an early moult is generally a good one, and satisfactory from all points of view.

APPEARANCES ARE DECEITFUL.

Do not assume that a bird is fine just because it appears to be so. Catch it, and you will probably find, on examination, a considerable number of pin feathers about the head and neck; so it will not do to wean the birds from the colour food too soon, or too suddenly. It should be done gradually. Indeed, the show specimens must be kept on the feed right through the show season, not every day, but two or three times a week, or they will lose their bloom, and will, probably, before long look patchy, too, owing to their having lost a few feathers in the wash, or in transit to and from the shows.

From start to finish the moulting season is one of unfailing interest, and when we see birds of great promise as regards type and quality coming out literally aflame with colour, we feel amply rewarded for all the pains we have taken and all the time and attention we have devoted to them. In conclusion, I would express the hope that, although the breeding season may have been a trying one with many of you, success in the moulting season will, in a considerable measure, atone for it; and may the Coventry Norwich of the present and the future fully equal, if not surpass, the triumphs of those of which tradition tells, covering themselves and their owners with "blushing honours," and spreading the fame of the fine old town to every important centre in the kingdom.

Fortune's Favours.

We hear that a well-known breeder and exhibitor of Norwich Plainheads, residing in the city of Glasgow, has had the good fortune to produce a grand nest (four) of light Mules, from a yellow hen and Siberian Goldfinch. They came from a late nest, and number two jonques and two buffs, evenly, or very lightly marked.

DO YOU WANT A BLOCK OF A BIRD?

We have had a series of small inch Blocks prepared for the benefit of advertisers, dealers, secretaries, etc., and can now supply block of any variety at the ridiculous price of 1/6 each, 5 for 6/-, or 9 for 10/-, carriage paid. Larger blocks to order at cheapest possible rates. These dainty little blocks immensely enhance the appearance of note paper, postcards, and advertisements. They are taken from designs by the leading artists of the day.

The Washing of Canaries.

Lecture before the Dulwich and Peckham C.B.S. on Sept. 26th.

By H. E. TRINGHAM.

Our subject to-night is one which everyone who intends exhibiting his birds should try to become adept at. In the first place let me impress upon our novices the necessity of learning to wash, because I don't suppose any of them need to be told that however good their birds may be, they cannot hope to win with them unless they are properly washed, and staged to perfection. I hope some of you have a bird here to-night, with which I can demonstrate to you the vast improvement which can be made in a bird when well and carefully washed. Now washing a bird is not really a difficult operation, but what prevents many from becoming proficient in the art is nervousness. In washing, never allow nervousness to get the better of you, but I am bound to confess that this is advice which I have found hard to put into practice. Well do I remember the first time I had to wash a bird in public, it was some three years ago at the L.P.O.S. Being persuaded to enter, with several others, in the competition, it was my unfortunate lot to be called first to wash. How small I felt to be sure. The bird was extremely nervous, but I was much more so, but keeping my wits about me, and profiting by my practice at home, I was successful in carrying off the coveted first prize, the Society's silver medal, which is one of my cherished possessions to-day. Emboldened by this, I entered a competition at Wimbledon, and although badly handicapped by having to wash three in a bowl, owing to the insufficiency of utensils, being long in the water, and much after all the rest, I took care to rinse all the soap out of my bird, and had the satisfaction of seeing my bird dry out as clean and smooth as wax, whilst others were stuck up with soap. I was again declared the winner of first prize, a silver medal.

NEEDED UTENSILS.

But to proceed, the utensils necessary are firstly a good bright coal or gas fire, three good large bowls (wash-hand basins are good when you can get them), a good badger hair shaving brush, a nice bit of sponge, a piece of any good soap, Sunlight is as good as any other (I am no believer in fads in this direction), and some nice pieces of old soft linen or calico rags, such as you see here to-night. Bowl No. 1 is filled with nice warm water, No. 2 with some a bit cooler, No. 3 just lukewarm. Work up the contents of No. 1 nice and soapy, and when all is ready to proceed catch your bird, place him in your left-hand, breast downwards, holding him by contracting the hand without encircling the neck more than is necessary, immerse the left hand in the soapy water, just leaving the bird's head free of the water. Now take your brush, lay the bird's tail on the side of your bowl, and wash (you will generally see the dirt stream out here), turn your hand over and wash the under part of tail. Now apply your brush to the bird's back, starting right up at the neck and washing downwards always, and a gentle inclination first one side and then the other will enable you to do the wings. If the outer flights are very dirty it is a good plan to wash them on the bowl edge, as you do the tail. Take the bird now by the root of tail and tips of wings, and turn over on to his back, starting under chin, wash right down to the vent. Now only the head and neck remains, probably the most important, and certainly the most difficult part. Close your hand round his body and leave head and neck free, wash well all round neck, then hold thumb and forefinger on his cheeks, and, squeezing your brush to a point, carefully wash round nostrils, eyes, and top of head. Now sponge the soap away from nostrils as soon as possible, and commence to rinse by filling the sponge with water and letting the water run right through the feathers. Out of No. 1 into No. 2, and thence to No. 3 bowls, rinsing well in each. Do not be afraid to rinse, as this, believe me, is of paramount importance.

CAREFUL DRYING IMPORTANT.

Your strips of cloth having been kept warm, take one and gently roll up the bird, lay him about 1½ to 2 feet from the fire, and go on with the next bird. In about ten minutes the first bird will be ready for another cloth, and you will find the one that you remove will be quite wet nearest the bird's body, roll him gently up again and replace to the fire. Give him another few minutes, and then unroll and put into a cage, such as an old Norwich show cage, when you will see him on the perch, which may not be for some minutes, run him into a clean Yorkshire show cage, and take away from the fire. I like them from this stage to dry off quite slowly, and to that end I constantly spray them with tepid water, but I shall not be able to do all that to-night, as the birds would not be dry in time to take home. But it will be understood that if he dries gradually and preens himself whilst doing so, he is much more likely to get his feathers back into natural position than if he dried rapidly before the fire. By this method it is possible to do a large number of birds in an evening, as the moving up process gets them out of your hands, and once in the show cage with a clean cloth over them they practically are done, with the exception of the spraying as mentioned. I put them on a bit of mixed seed and a drink of water when dry, and always leave in the warm room. Next morning they are run back into their stock cages, which I generally manage to wipe out beforehand, and a bath is hung up. This they have up to the day before they go away to the show.

DISCUSSION AND CRITICISM.

Mr. Tringham at this point invited questions, or if any one desired to wash a bird, he was willing to give them all the help he could during the process. The novice members present must have been suffering from the nervousness of which Mr. Tringham spoke, for none came forward. Mr. Simpson, however, washed a bird, proving that he was an old hand at the game.

Mr. Cranfield said he did not quite follow Mr. Tringham's method of washing; he always washed the breast of the bird first, laying the tail along his hand instead of the edge of the bowl, and he always used a small tooth brush to wash round the beak, as he found there was often a lot of dirt there, to roll the birds in he always used butter cloths, these being softer, placing them on a hot-water plate; he always placed a piece of flannel in bottom of cage, as he invariably found that the bird when first going into the cage after a wash lay on its stomach for some time; he also liked white curd soap with which to wash his birds.

Mr. Tringham, in reply, said their methods might not be just the same, but so long as the desired end was attained he did not see that it mattered a great deal.

Mr. Rogers here caused considerable amusement by washing an automatic singing canary, some wag in the company putting a penny in the slot, causing the bird to sing lustily during the operation. It was surprising, but Mr. Rogers was certainly not suffering from nervousness. During the operation someone asked the question, was he using Rogers' R.R.?

A vote of thanks to Mr. Tringham for his exhibition, and to the gentlemen who had brought their birds for Mr. Tringham to wash, and the usual vote of thanks to the chair brought a most enjoyable and instructive meeting to a close.

Familiar Foreign Cage Birds for Beginners.

By FRANK FINN, B.A., F.Z.S., M.B.O.U.

I shall now proceed to draw my observations to a close by mentioning some of the foreign birds the beginner is most likely to meet with exposed for sale, with such of their peculiarities as may be of practical interest. I will begin with a very well-known friend, the Java Sparrow.

THE MASHER OF BIRD SOCIETY.

The Java always looks the dude to perfection. He is that sleek, lavender-grey bird with a big rosy bill and black and white head, and when in good condition looks the pink of propriety. When he has got a bit pecked about the head he looks just as disreputable, and reminds one of "Johnny" after a round of the halls, plenty of drinks, and subsequent encounters with the "chucker-out." But he is not a rowdy bird, although not one to be confined closely with Canaries and other defenceless birds—he bites too hard for that, when it seems good to him. This is one of the cheapest of foreign birds, and a very good liver; but it is hard to sex, and does not breed freely in confinement unless crossed with the white domestic variety.

A CONVENT AVIARY.

There is quite a convent full of "Nuns" found in the trade; they are all little birds, not much bigger than Wrens, with blue-grey polls. Sometimes they are called Mannikins. There is the Black-headed Nun, black and tan; the Tri-coloured Nun, similar, but with a white breast; and the White-headed Nun. The first is much the commonest, and in cheapness rivals the Java. The Nutmeg-bird or Spice-bird is closely allied; it is a chocolate coloured bird, white, with black lacing below, or, in the East Indian variety—the ordinary one comes from India proper—with closer brown pencilling there.

All these birds sing in dumb show, making a lot of fuss with hardly any noise, and all come from the East. They are hardy and long-lived, but are very apt to suffer from overgrown nails, so that their feet want looking to very often.

The little fawn and white birds, pied like fancy mice, are the Bengalee, a domesticated Mannikin that breeds freely even in a cage. This bird possesses an audible song, as also does the Silver-bill, a little quakerish-brown bird, with a rather long black tail and a beak of pinkish blue, not silver, as the name would imply. Silverbills will also breed in captivity at times. Mannikins as a rule, however, are anything but ready breeders.

THE WAXBILL GROUP.

These are red-billed, delicate looking birds of a very small size and slender in form; some are smaller than any British bird. In bird shops you will usually recognise the Orange-cheek by the colour of its cheeks and its grey breast; the St. Helena, with its delicately pencilled brown plumage and long tail; the Cordon-bleu with its delicate combination of fawn and light blue—this is also a long tailed species.

The African Grey Waxbill, with its red eyebrows, and the yellow breasted Zebra Waxbill are particularly tiny. These little birds need care, and should have whatever small insects can be supplied, as well as seed. The smallest of all, the Zebra Waxbill, is the most likely to breed in confinements, and has reared young in an outdoor aviary.

Waxbills and Mannikins should always have little boxes or cocoa-nut shells to sleep in, into which several will crowd at once.

A FEATHERED ARTISAN AND A SHAM CANARY.

One reads much of the wonderful nests built by birds in tropical climes, but few people realise that one of these remarkable nest builders is constantly on sale in bird shops. This is the Red-billed Weaver, a little bird about the size of a Linnet, coloured much like a hen Sparrow, but with a bright red beak and reddish legs. This is merely the undress plumage, which is always worn by the hen, which has, however, a yellow bill. When in full plumage the cock attracts attention by his black mask and the wash of salmon colour over his plumage.

The Red-billed is the only Weaver to be constantly seen on sale, and is a hardy bird, but should not be kept along with Waxbills, being too strong. It will exercise its weaving propensities in an ordinary cage if given some short lengths of twine or other flexible material, and construct its wonderfully woven round nests freely in a large flight or an aviary.

A very smart looking bird is the Saffron-finch, sometimes called the Brazilian Canary, and indeed it is not unlike a yellow Canary in appearance, only greener in the body colour and more orange on the head. The hen is not quite so richly tinted as the cock. This bird has not the Canary's power of song, and is decidedly inclined to be vicious, but it is hardy, lively, and will breed readily in a good big aviary.

THE COLLEGE OF CARDINALS.

The large, beautiful finches known as Cardinals always attract notice, being nearly as big as Thrushes, and very elegant in form. Two species are very commonly imported—the Common Crested Cardinal, grey and white with a scarlet head and crest, and the rather less numerous "Pope," very similar, but without a crest.

The beautiful "Virginian Nightingale" or Red Cardinal is now scarce, owing to the prohibition of the export of birds from the United States, but one dealer at least still manages to get it. In this the male is red all over and the hen brown; in the Red-crested and the Pope the sexes are alike.

In the Green Cardinal the sexes are also somewhat different, the hen having white eyebrows and a grey breast, while these parts of the plumage are yellow in the cock; it is much the best breeder of these birds, which build open nests in a bush, and need much insect food when rearing young.

MERRY WIDOWS AND GORGEOUS BISHOPS.

The Whydahs, or Widows as they should more properly be called, are plain coloured Finches when out of colour, but in the breeding season the cocks assume extraordinarily long black tails, and show many amusing gestures. Two are common in the trade—the Paradise Whydah, nearly all black, with the tail feathers broad; and the much smaller Pintail Whydah, pied black and white, with a red bill, that of the other species being black, a point by which, apart from the size, they can be distinguished when out of colour. The Combassou is a small, short-tailed Whydah, blue-black when in colour, but much resembling the others in its streaky brown garb at other times. Only the males assume the "mourning" plumage.

What sort of Bishops go about in red and yellow clothes I do not know, but that is the way the birds dress which are so called in the trade; though here, again, the breeding male alone wears the gay dress, the hens and the males in undress being coloured much like Larks. The two best known are the "Orange and Lemon" Bishops, whose gold and amber tints are set off by breasts of intense velvety black. These gorgeous birds are allied, like the Whydahs, to the Weavers, and are also very ostentatious of their finery.

Wild Plants for Cage Birds.

Weeds and Seeds of the Field and Wayside described.

By R. MORSE.

With Footnotes, etc., by G. E. Weston.

Mountain Ash (Pyrus aucuparia).

This well-known tree must not be confounded with the more plentiful common Ash (Fraxinus excelsior), as it is in no way related to it. The former belongs to the "Rose Family," while the latter is a member of the "Olive Family."

The Mountain Ash is in some districts called the Rowan-tree, and in others it is designated Fowler's Service-tree. It is one of the most ornamental of our native trees, and in some parts it is fairly common, especially in mountainous woods.

Its leaves are somewhat like those of the Common Ash, which perhaps accounts for one of its popular names. Each leaflet has a serrate (i.e., saw-like) edge. The flowers are small and of a creamy-white colour. (The flowers of the Common Ash are of a purplish-black hue, and appear in April and May, before the leaves have burst their buds. The Mountain Ash blooms about June, when its leaves are in their beauty.)

The fruits, with which we are here chiefly concerned, are round in shape and of a beautiful scarlet colour; but the flesh of them is yellow. In some parts of Northern Europe these fruits are eaten by mankind, but in this country they are chiefly left for the birds. For them they form a very useful food.

The Great Nettle (Urtica dioica).

This plant, which is popularly termed the Stinging Nettle, is probably one of the best known of our native plants. It is certainly an inconspicuous weed so far as its green flowers are concerned, but if accidentally touched with the bare flesh of one's hands or face it soon forces itself to the position of a well-known and much-disliked inhabitant of the countryside.

The intense burning sensation caused by a nettle-sting is due to formic acid, which the plant has the power of storing up for use as a means of self-defence. If nettles are boiled, however, they form a very palatable vegetable, and are eaten thus in large quantities in some country districts, and are held to possess valuable tonic and blood-purifying properties.

The greenish coloured flowers are produced in rather long clusters, the latter being branched. Abundance of seeds may be gathered at the present time.

The Small Nettle (Urtica urens).

This nettle, although almost equally as plentiful as the species described above—is seldom recognised as being a distinctly different species. As its name implies, it is generally much smaller than the Great Nettle in all its parts. It is usually about ten inches or a foot high, but in favourable positions may grow considerably larger.

The Great Nettle is a hairy plant, but the present species has no hairs, except the stings. The flowers, instead of being in long, branched clusters, are in short, seldom branched ones. It grows abundantly in many waste places, and blooms from June to October.

N.B.—These two Stinging Nettles must not be confounded with those plants commonly called Deadnettles. The latter, as is evident from the name, have not any stinging-hairs. They have square stems, and their flowers are very much larger than those of the other nettles. Some common species are the Red Deadnettle, White Deadnettle, Yellow Deadnettle, etc. These plants have large blooms of the colour indicated by their names, and from this fact and the particulars given above, no difficulty should be experienced in distinguishing the Stinging Nettles from the Deadnettles.

The Scotch Thistle (Onopordium acanthium).

This is a very useful plant to the bird-keeper, but unfortunately it is not very general in its distribution, and not very plentiful. In some districts, however, especially in the south of England, a fairly large supply may be found. By some it is called the "Cotton Thistle."

It is a tall, stout plant, generally about four or five feet in height. The upright stem is branched, and is broadly "winged," making the whole stem very prickly. The leaves are wavy, and much "cut-up" (pinnatifid), and are woolly both above and beneath. The base of each leaf seems to run down the side of the stem, thus giving the latter the "winged" appearance mentioned above.

The flower-heads of the Scottish Thistle are rather numerous. (The Musk Thistle (Carduus nutans, another thistle of large growth, common in waste places, and sometimes called the Scotch Thistle, has its flower-heads "solitary," that is, only one on a stalk.) They are large in size, somewhat globular in shape, and have a sort of "cobwebby" appearance. The "bracts" which enclose each flower-head are green; they are re-curved, and have minute spines along their edges. (In the Marsh Plume-Thistle the bracts lie flat instead of re-curving, and in the Spear Plume-Thistle they spread out. In the former they are slightly webbed, while in the latter they are woolly.)

Two Useful Thistles,
A: The Musk Thistle.
B. The Scotch Thistle.
The Scotch Thistle has very large seeding heads. The flowers of the Musk Thistle, as the name implies, emit a strong odour.

The large flower-heads are of a pale purple colour, and are very handsome, the plant being cultivated in Scotland as the national emblem of that country. It is a biennial, and may be found in bloom from July till September. At the present time, therefore, the seeds may be gathered in plenty, if only the right neighbourhood be found. It grows chiefly in dry, waste places.

The Hawthorn (Crataegus oxyacantha)

Although the Hawthorn is most commonly seen as a hedge-shrub, if it is allowed its natural growth it may attain a height of from thirty to forty feet, and the trunk may be as much as three feet in diameter. It is a prickly shrub, with much "cut-up" leaves. The latter are relished to a high degree by horses, cows, etc., and the thorns seem to me a wise provision of Nature, becoming so sharp and strong on the older branches, as to make it absolutely impossible for cattle to feed upon them.

Perhaps the commonest name for this shrub is "May," which appellation it derives from the month during which it most frequently bursts into bloom. It is called also by the name of "Whitethorn," for its bark is quite light in colour when compared with that of the "Blackthorn," or Sloe.

Just at this time of the year the Hawthorn is thought by many to be at its best. The fruits—called "Haws"—have now developed their characteristic red colour, and are adorning scores upon scores of already picturesque country lanes and waysides. Many a bird will soon be seen making a joyful meal from these abundant berries.

Each fruit consists of a hard bony core (which contains the seeds), and an outer, fleshy covering. It is thought by some that the red, fleshy part of the fruits is designed to tempt birds to eat them. The purpose thus served is seed dispersal, for the very hard coverings of the seeds prevent their being digested, and they pass through the alimentary canal and reach the ground again probably some miles away from the parent plant; and so the Hawthorn becomes perpetuated. If this theory is correct, surely it is a most wonderful example of the "provision of Nature."

Happy Holidays.

Last year I spent my holidays in a country place called Forden, where I enjoyed myself bird-nesting and in other ways. I found a starling's nest with young in a hole of an apple tree. A Swallow also nests every year in the cowhouse; she makes her nest with mud which she carries from a pond close by, afterwards lining it with feathers. I found several nests with young ones, belonging to a bird which grandad called Peggy Cut Throat, the nest was generally made in a tuft of grass or in the bottom of a bush. I also found a Wren's with young, which on being disturbed, all flew out. Next I found a Blackbird's, four eggs. Going across some fields we saw three young Lapwings which tried to hide themselves in the grass on seeing us. I also saw some Chaffinches and Yellow Buntings, but could not find any of their nests.—Sent by ALBERT P. MORRIS (age 7), 48, Breeze Hill, Walton, Liverpool.

*The Little Blue Tit.

One day I was invited to a friend's garden to have a look round. The flowers were beautiful. The Bullfinches piping so merrily in the thick of the trees, the Thrush joined in, and could be heard a long way off, his song was clear. The butler walked round to show me the latest; he called my attention to a little nest that was carefully built in a hole in the front piece of a wood gate. This little bird had eggs, and then five young ones as near as could be seen. The gardener being careful in opening and shutting the gate preserved the young birds till they could fly away. The mother bird fed the young, whether the gate was open or shut.—ALBERT H. BEADNALL (14 years), 7, Albany Street, Middlesborough.

*The Good Samaritan.

A pair of Thrushes built their nest between two gardens in a Bootle suburb. These were divided by a wooden fence with wire netting above it, and against one of these stakes, which supported the netting, their nest was placed. Those who lived on both sides agreed to protect the birds. As the spot could be reached by cats, wire netting was placed above the fence and around the stakes. While this was being done, one of the old birds looked on and chattered his thanks. All four young ones were reared and flew away, but one comes back to its birthplace to be fed from time to time.—ANNIE HUMPHRIES (age 15), 74, Cedar Street, Bootle, Liverpool.

A Curious Nesting Place.

I read in a paper the other day about a Robin who built his nest in a drawing-room. The bird comes and goes through the window, which is left open on purpose, and, although the members of the family are constantly in the room together with a cat and a dog, the bird takes no notice of either, and the cat never interferes with the birds. The nest is built on the edge of a book-case, at the far end of the room. The mother bird laid four eggs, and reared three young successfully.—M. PALFREYMAN (age 10 years), South Street, South Molton, Devon.

WILD BIRD LIFE.

The Waste of Bird Life.

Under the large elm trees the grass is carpeted with brown and yellow leaves. The woods are daily becoming richer in colouring, and by the time we reach the month of October we shall have all the glowing colours associated with Autumn. All this has taken place without any apparent change in the weather conditions. The last two or three weeks have been all that one could wish. During a wet Autumn the late nests of birds seldom manage to struggle through, and if, by careful attention, they rise to the dignity of being "branchers," the adverse conditions of day after day with sodden plumage and difficulty of hunting for food is too much for them—they become weak and emanciated, and the first cold nip carries them off.

This year it is different; the air has been warm and still, young birds have been able to bask in the sunshine, food is plentiful and easily obtained, and everything is favourable to a quick and easy growth. Even the old birds love such conditions. To-day an old cock Greenfinch flew out of the hedge and settled on a rail, opening his ragged wings to their fullest extent, and fairly revelled in the warmth. A little chuckling note spoke plainly of contentment—the hedgerows, roadsides, waste, and cultivated lands are full to overflowing with hundreds of ripe seed pods, which may be had without trouble. Few recognise how liberal, almost wasteful, Dame Nature is. The grass under one's feet is thick and matted, yet between them are thousands of tiny grass seed; a stalk of common plantain is loaded with rich, ripe pods, and the tall thistles allow the wind and the Finches to scatter their downy heads in wasteful profusion. And yet can it be wasted? If it were not for this open-handedness, how would the Finches and Buntings fare in the winter, when the hard frost kills everything but the hardiest plants and smallest seeds?

Even in bird life there is no stint. A pair of Greenbirds will nest from April to September, rearing possibly some dozen to fifteen clumsy looking youngsters. But what becomes of the dozen to fifteen Greenbirds before next spring? Think of the thousands of pairs nesting annually in England, and yet the "Greenbird world" is very little larger than it was five years ago. Nature needs to be open-handed, for the "waste" of bird life must be enormous.

The Difference.

A correspondent wishes to know how to distinguish the Wood and Willow Warbler in the field. So long as the birds are singing there is no difficulty, nor is the alarm note difficult to distinguish a plaintive "looie" in the Willow Wren and "pee-oo" in the larger bird. The Wood Wren is larger, more dainty and slender than the Willow Wren; it is yellower in general colour, and has a more distinct eye-stripe, "sulphur-yellow" in colour; the under parts are a purer white. The Wood Wren frequents the woods, and is a little particular about its choice of woodland, too; the Willow Wren, though common in woods, is found everywhere. Now that the birds have lost their spring brightness they are harder to tell than when they first arrived.

Busy Birds.

Mr. P. H. Bahr, in the September number of "British Birds," supplies some interesting observations concerning the activity and endurance manifested by birds. He watched a Nuthatch and his mate, which built is his garden, and concerning the nest he says:—On top of the saucer-shaped hollow a great quantity of silver-birch bark was piled up. Of this I counted no less than 1,820 pieces. The nearest birch-tree is 250 yards away in a "bee-line" from the nest. Granted that only one piece was carried at a time, this would make a total journey of 455,000 yards, or 260 miles; the nest, as I have stated before, was completed in four days; this would make an average journey of 65 miles a day. The birds had also carried fully three pounds of mud to their nest, so that they must have had a very busy time.

THE ONLY ART

in bird catching is to get proper appliances to work with. Given these, and it is just as simple as it looks. Every appliance sold by me is guaranteed to be made by men who are not only practical makers, but experienced bird catchers as well, and neither time nor money is spared to make them the most up-to-date, reliable, and durable on the market. To prove this to your own satisfaction, I only ask you to have anything I sell on approval and compare it with a similar thing from any other advertiser, and if mine is not far better value at a less price, return it to me, and tell your friends that my articles are useless. For months and months last season I publicly asked any dissatisfied purchaser to smash up anything he had had from me, and I would return him the whole of his money, but not one article was smashed up, nor was I ever asked to refund a penny. This fact alone speaks volumes for the quality of my goods. Clap nets made from genuine ¾inch mesh thread, 3 yards long, 4/- pair, 4 yards 5/-, 5 yards 6/-, 6 yards 7/-, 7 yards 8/-, 8 yards 9/-, 9 yards 10/-, 10 yards 11/- pair, all fly 4 feet, and are actually 5 feet deep, in order to allow plenty of "kill." All clap nets have two nets to the pair, and are properly geared all round and fitted complete with pure hemp lines, beech pegs, birch stave poles, and everything ready for immediate work. Any size clap net made to order. Sparrow nets fitted on 19 feet poles, 6/6 pair. Spring net traps, 24 inches long, 1/- each, 18 inches long, 9d. each. These net traps are by far the largest on the market, are entirely self-acting, will catch and hold uninjured, any bird from a Wren to a Rook, and are so simple, a child can set them. Single trap cages 6d. each, six 2/6, twelve 4/6; double ditto, 10d. and 1/- each, 7/6 and 8/6 dozen; treble ditto, 1/3 each, 11/- dozen. Patent self-setting and self-acting trap cages, work automatically, 1/6 each; round or square topped call cages, 3d. each, 2/6 dozen; loose netting, genuine thread, ¾inch mesh, 7 feet deep, 3d. yard, 9 feet deep, 4d. yard, 12 feet deep, 5d. yard, all post free. This netting is exceedingly fine, but very strong, made specially for bird netting, and must not be confused with the thick American cotton netting being sold as bird netting. Real Japanese bird lime, absolutely the strongest made, and only lime to stand all weathers, guaranteed to hold a Rook or Hawk, ½lb. 6d., ¾lb. 10d., 1lb. 1/6; sample box 3d., all post free. Pure hemp pull lines, 64 yards long, 1/4 each, post free. Full list of all catchers' appliances and sample of netting one, stamp. Goldfinch or Linnet cages, 4/6, 5/- and 5/6 dozen; Lark cages 3/6, 4/-, 4/6 and 6/6 dozen; Redpoll cages, 2/6 dozen. All wire Canary cages 3/6 and 4/6 each. All brass drawing-room cages with ruby glass, 5/-, 6/-, 6/6, 7/6 and 10/- each. Parrot cages from 4/- to 20/- each. Every description of cage in stock. Dealers please send stamp for full printed list. Following few testimonials go to show value sent out. "7, Winholt-st., Stockport, Sept. 6th.—Sir,—The netting I got from you some months' ago is best I ever used, please repeat the order, viz: 36 yards of 12 feet for clap nets, Yours, A. Pennor" "Near Elm Tree, Blisworth, Sept. 10th.—Sir,—Please send another ½lb. lime, it is best I ever used, Yours, J. Harris." "Greenhill Gunslake.—Sir,—Please send another ½lb. bird lime, which I find out is better than I can get off anyone else, Yours, W. Phillips." "6, Berkeley Terace, Southall.—Sir,—Please send following netting. I can say that the netting I had from you far excelled all my imaginations, being far superior to that of Messrs. . . . ., Yours, J. Crockford." "Claremont Place, Larkhall.—Sir,—Please send another pound of bird lime. I never lost a bird with the last pound I had from you, it is real good stuff, Yours, G. Alexander." "Harrow, Middlesex.—Sir,—Thanks for netting to hand, which is very satisfactory. I shall bear you in mind in future. Yours, C. Steeles." Remember everything sent on aproval, cash or deposit system, and money refunded in full if every satisfaction not given. By dealing with me you not only save money, but you get appliances with which you can catch birds, not frighten them away. See British Bird Column.

THESE ARE NEW:

Belgrave, South Avenue, Exeter, October 6, 1907. I have received bird lime, and am extremely pleased with it. It is undoubtedly the best I have ever tried.—H. C. Pyper to W. Rudd.

New Lodge, Ctg., Lilleshall, Newport, Salop, October 1, 1907.—Kindly send me two more boxes of your bird lime; I enclose 8 stamps for the same. I must say the last I had was very good, for if a bird got on it, there was no fear of it getting away. I am sure it will hold anything.—J. Williams to W. Rudd.

Windmill Street, Brill, October 5, 1907. I received cage and I am very pleased with it, also the way in which it was packed. I could not wish for better value.—T. S. Pointer to W. Rudd.

7, Jackson Street, West Marsh, Gt. Grimsby. October 2, 1907. Cage arrived quite safe, and I am very pleased with it. It is well worth the money. I thank you for the way it was packed, and the prompt attention my order received, which is business-like.—H. Tanner to W. Rudd.

J. SANDIFORD, Bird Specialist,

HARRY ALLEN,

Champion of all champions. Patronised by all the leading exhibitors, Mule breeders, and contest singers. I am the winner of more singing contests than any three men. To prove it, look up back numbers of CAGE BIRDS. I have the finest lot of Linnets in England. Mr. Saynor, of Newtown, offered £15 for my champion. A gentleman in Preston offered £6 for another; and I have numerous offers for some of my other champions. The Linnet is a speciality of mine, so before trying elsewhere try one of mine, and you will never regret it. Big, fine cock Linnets, well pencilled, very tame, 1/- each; extra picked birds, real beauties, 1/6 each. I have a few grand cocks, very large, good colour, sure winners on the show bench, 2/- each. They are the finest I have ever seen, and I sell hundreds every week in Leeds Market alone. Grand cock Linnets, picked specially for singing, with singing cage, a packet of my Special Mixture, and instructions how to feed, 3/- the lot. These birds can be heard pouring out some of my champion's wonderful notes. All contest singers should try one or two of these. I can highly recommend them. House-moulted cock Linnets, just through moult and singing hard, 10/- each; ready for contests. Acknowledged prize winners, 15/6 and £1 each. No rubbish; will sing anywhere and at anything. Grand Redpolls, as large as Linnets, 1/- each; also one with pink breast, real beauty, the best in Leeds, price 3/-; satisfaction guaranteed. If you want your birds to sing at one another with their wings down, send P.O. 1/6 for my Book of Secrets. With this method I have my birds singing at empty cages daylight or gaslight; to prove it, please pay me a visit. Four packets of my Special Mixture, 1/-. "14, Primrose-place, Tillicoultry.—Sir,—Bird arrived safe; am well pleased with it.—W. Gemmell to H. Allen." "Water Side Newby Bridge.—Sir,—Received Linnets quite safe; I am very well pleased with them.—W. Barrow to H. Allen." "Oakleigh, Alnwick.—Sir,—Linnet arrived safe; he is a beauty.—M. Swan to H. Allen." "Bamford-st., Newton, Alfreton.—Sir,—Bird arrived safe, and satisfactory in every respect; he is a gem. Am more than satisfied. Again thanking you for such a treat.—W. Woodhead to H. Allen." Castle-street, Omagh, Ireland.—Sir,—Birds arrived in due time, and, after travelling many hundreds of miles, they appeared nothing the worse for the journey. Many thanks for your prompt attention. J. Cadden to H. Allen." All my birds are on seven days' approval; cash or deposit. This is the original Linnet firm. Beware of worthless imitations, as I see there are a few trying to copy. All birds safely packed, and postcard send day before.—Harry Allen, 42, Brown Hill Crescent, Harebills, Leeds.

THE GREAT POINT

about my method of dealing is that I don't merely ask you to take my word. I want you to see my birds and satisfy yourself that you are getting exactly what you want, and for this reason I send all on approval, entirely at my own risk, either cash or "Cage Birds" deposit system, and despite the many assertions to the contrary, I claim to be the originator of approval system in connection with wild birds. Splendid large Worcestershire cock Goldfinches, in perfect health and condition, 1/6 each, three 4/-; six, 6/6; twelve 12/-; specially selected large birds for exhibition or muling and warranted in song, 2/- each; three 5/-; six, 8/6; twelve, 16/-; few clean moulted cocks in full colour and superb condition, 3/- each; hen Goldfinches, 1/- each, three 2/6; grand large red-breasted cock Linnets in pink of health, 9d. each; three, 1/6; six, 2/6; twelve, 4/-; few specially selected cocks for show in song, 1/- each; three, 2/6; six, 4/-. Please note every Linnet sent out is guaranteed red-breasted, thus proving that you get all cocks for your money; these Linnets are same sort as supplied by me to contest singers throughout England, so why not buy first-handed and save extortionate profits:—Cock Greenfinches, 6d. each, three 1/-; six, 1/6; specially selected yellow cocks for show, 1/- each; cock Chaffinches, 9d. each, three 1/6, six 2/6; Redpolls, three 1/3; six 2/-; grand cock Skylarks, 9d. each, three 1/6, six 2/6; cock Bullfinches, 1/6 and 2/- each; hen Bullfinches, 1/- each; two year old cock Linnet Mule, 7/6; two year old Siskin Mule, 7/6; young cock Linnet Mules 5/- each; see following few testimonials:—"Park House, The Green, Ealing. Sept. 6th.—Miss Gilpin received Linnet quite safe, and is well pleased with it." "22, Smith's Terrace, Mitcham, Sept. 14.—Sir,—Goldfinches arrived quite safe and am well pleased with them, and will send other orders shortly.—Yours, F. Tulty." "282, Portland Avenue, Langwith.—Sir,—Please send me a Goldfinch; a friend of mine told me what good birds you always send out.—Yours, J. Cutts." "22 Wilne Street, Leicester. — Sir,—Please send me selected Goldfinch. I had one from you earlier in the year, and was very pleased indeed with it.—Yours, W. Riley." "151, Penyrheolgerrig, Merthyr Tydvil.—Sir,—Please send the following. I have bought birds from you before, and always found them as advertised. — Yours, Howell Williams." "Simpson, near Bletchley.—Sir,—Please send the following. The Goldfinch I had last year turned out well.—Yours, E. Hollier." "50, Gossage Street, Widnes.—Sir,—The two Larks arrived safe, and give every satisfaction.—Yours, T. Oldfield." Hundreds of similar testimonials open to inspection any time. Please note all birds are guaranteed properly netted in County of Worcester, and are not lime caught Irish birds palmed off as Worcestershire caught birds. One trial will convince the most sceptical that my birds are exactly as represented. For cages, etc., see appliance column.

MATTHEWS, LINNET KING.

Exhibitors, Mule breeders, and contest singers. If you have never been in possession of a first-class showing Linnet, or a fierce singing Linnet, I should like you to try one of my special birds. I have moulted over 200 grand Linnets this year which have been thoroughly trained under my old Cheshire champions, and are singing his grand notes. I have supplied all the leading contest singers and exhibitors for the last five years, and scores of open winners in showing and contest singing have been supplied by me at working men's prices. Call and inspect my British bird buildings. Everybody is welcome to hear my birds sing; being specially arranged for keeping British birds, and is the largest in England. I always keep three or four hundred in stock of all kinds of British, and nothing but the best. I don't want your money, only your orders. Pay when you are perfectly satisfied. You have only to state what you want. Any kind of British for showing, fierce singing, or large birds for Mule breeding; and I will send any distance at my own risk. I guarantee your birds are carefully selected from hundreds of dozens, which pass through my hands every week. This enables me to send you first-class specimens. I have over 100 testimonials this year, which are open for inspection, from leading fanciers all over England, so if you want a first-class team of British birds for showing, any kind, send at once, and I will send any distance, as all my birds are properly caged and well on seed before being sent out. Big, fine, healthy Linnets, extra large Norwich type, with nut-brown backs, well pencilled, steady, 1/6; also a few extra picked specimens, 2/-; clean moulted Linnets, been specially trained for contest singing, 2/-, with beautiful singing cages, packet of special mixed seed, instruction how to feed, 3/-. All contest singers should try one of these special birds; also a few good Linnets, been used for catching, 2/6. Goldfinches, Goldfinches. Large selected Peartree Goldfinches, well buttoned and mooned, with good broad heads, well tanned, make sure winners, selected from hundreds, 2/6. I have a few grand house-moulted Peartree Goldfinches, well buttoned, will soon make a name for their owners at 5/- each; also a few extra good call birds, been used to catching, 3/- each. Large selected Redpolls, 1/- each; also Greenfinches and Chaffinches, 1/6 each. "October 4th, 1907, Auchinloch, Lenzie, Scotland.—Sir,—Goldfinch cock arrived safe and in fine condition. He is a large, bonny bird, and I am very well pleased with him, thanks to you for your honesty. From Alex. Gray to Linnet King." "October 2nd, 1907, Twysden, Kiladown.—Sir,—Linnets arrived safe, and give every satisfaction; they are good large birds, and well worth the money. Shall send when I require any more, and recommend you to all my friends. Wishing your honest dealings every success. From G. Norman to Linnet King." All birds sent out exactly as described. Anyone requiring a first-class team of British birds should send at once to me. State wants. Gentlemen, could fairer terms be offered? All birds sent on seven days' approval; cash or Cage Birds deposit system, at my own risk.—Matthews, Birdcatcher, 44, George-st., Hyde, Cheshire.

CASCADE ROLLERS,

are what the name implies—Cascades of rippling, bubbling, liquid, melodious song. To paint the lily, perfume the rose, or exaggerate the beauty of a Cascade Roller's song is impossible. They have no harsh, shrieking notes. They can be enjoyed by the most delicate invalid. If you want sweetness and purity of song in excelsis,

TRY A CASCADE ROLLER.

Money refunded within seven days if they do not give every satisfaction. One quality only,

THE BEST.

One price only, 10/-, which includes a splendidly fitted British Roller Singing Cage, an ornament to any home. This strain has never been sold in England under £2 2s. To those who have never heard a Cascade Roller its song is a revelation. Try one.

"High Cliff Farm, Rushden, 7/19/07.—Sir,—The Cascade Roller arrived safely and within two hours was flooding the house with melody, send two to address enclosed.—J. Wilkinson to Pearson, Cascade Roller importer, Greenwich. "Holly Bank House, Evesham, Worc, 8/10/07.—Dear Sir,—The Roller came to hand in good condition, and very soon was delighting us with its cascade of song. My last Roller cost 20/-, but cannot compare with yours.—Mrs. Bonkeith to Pearson, Greenwich.

GLASGOW AND WESTERN COUNTIES N. etc. C.

Special meeting October 5th, 122, Ingram Street, Glasgow. A large muster of members present, Mr. Peter Pettigrew, president, in the chair. Two new members were admitted. It was agreed, after discussion, to give patronage to Bathgate and Hamilton. Other applications were allowed to lie on the table for future consideration. The tit-bit of the evening was Mr. Pettigrew's lecture on "Moulting." Mr. Pettigrew proceeded in a masterly way, showing fine grasp of the subject. The lecturer had not a single note written down to go by. A number of young and old fanciers who were present admitted that they had had good information. A number of questions were put and answered, and Mr. Pettigrew was accorded a unanimous vote of thanks, on the motion of Mr. Martin and Mr. Macfarlane. Mr. Pettigrew, in returning thanks, said if his remarks were of assistance he would be gratified. Next meeting, October 26th, Mr. A. Malcolmson will give an exhibition on washing for the show bench.

GATESHEAD AND DISTRICT C.B.S

Meeting held October 2, Mr. Hawkins in the chair. The attendance was well kept up, between 30 and 40 members being present on this occasion, and business was got through with a harmony that augurs well for our forthcoming show on December 13 and 14. Correspondence was read from Mr. Hadwin, B. and W.B.F.C.C. secretary, re international contest at Gateshead, and it was finally agreed that 16 classes be put on for Border Fancies, Mr. Wilson to judge. Several valuable specials were also promised, for which the donors have our best wishes. The Burt Terrace Hall, one of the most ideal show halls in the country, and much larger than that engaged last year, it was finally decided to take at figure quoted, as it is a much superior all-round hall, although the rent is double. The members considered that exhibitors would be more satisfied with the better hall, and this would recompense us for the additional outlay. Mr. Lister then proceeded to give us a washing exhibition, and took great pains in pointing out all the details necessary for becoming proficient in washing birds. Having put two birds through a tubbing, he followed up with the drying process, and gave a full explanation. Mr. Lowery then followed suit, his method being much similar, although in one or two things Mr. Lowery was slightly different. Marked attention was given by the members present, including several visitors, Mr. Peacock (Spennymoor), Mr. Wood (Newcastle), and Mr. Prior (Low Fell). At the close questions were fairly rained upon Mr. Lister and Mr. Lowery, and answers were given satisfactorily. A good deal of humour contributed by Mr. Lowery and Mr. Little added greatly to the harmony of the evening. A vote of thanks to Messrs. Lister and Lowery brought a most successful meeting to a close, and we trust there will be many more such treats in store on future dates.—THOS. TAYLOR, Secretary.

THE SHOWS.

BURNLEY.

The 21st annual exhibition of the Burnley and District Cage Bird Breeders' Society was held on October 4th, and 5th, 1907, in the Weaver's Institute, a very good room for the purpose, but none too large for the number of birds which were staged. Entries came up grand, numbering 502 in 25 classes, and Mr. H. W. Battye had to be telephoned for, and subsequently came and assisted Mr. Roe (by taking the Yorkshires, British and Foreign classes) in his arduous task. There was also a record attendance, and we are glad to say that the show was a grand success. This being the first Norwich Cup Show of the season made the Norwich into the strongest section, all the old cup fighters turning up to fight their battles once again. The classes averaged 21 per class, and comprised some ideal specimens. In the unflighted class of 45 specimens, another lot of winners could easily have been selected, whilst many grand hens stood cardless, both in Yellows and Buffs. Perhaps the most greatly admired specimen was Mr. S. Cook's grand unflighted Buff hen, a real eye-opener, and one which he (great Norwich breeder though he is) must be very proud of. Mr. Cook has always been famous for his hens, but we think this one quite surpasses anything he has previously shown. Other gems which came in for a great deal of admiration were Messrs. Godley's Clear Yellow, Seed's Clear Buff, Bailey's Ticked Yellow, Twiney Ticked Buff, Wade's unflighted Buff, Seed's unflighted Yellow, and Shaw's Yellow hen. Yorkshires were a nice level lot, choice specimens being staged by Messrs. W. Spencer, Hodgson, Norris, Burns, Hilbury, Lane, Hirst, and Gregson. Mr. W. Rudley's Crest and Mr. E. Godley's Crest-bred are two magnificent birds, and deserve every praise. Mr. Godley was the principal exhibitor in the Cinnamon classes and captured most of the prizes. The four Novice classes provided were well filled, and contained some grand specimens, especially the exhibits of Messrs. Sprint, Todd, Blackhurst, and Wilkinson. The A.O.V. Canary or Mule, British and Foreign classes were good, big classes, and greatly attracted and interested the visitors. With the management of the show we were delighted, everything being in first-class order, Mr. Bee, the secretary, having perfect control, assisted by Mr. J. Evans (President), Mr. Jude Haylurst (Vice-President), Mr. G. H. Ashness (Treasurer), and Messrs. T. Heard, A. Ball, A. Whitehead, G. Watson, A. Huggins, J. W. Garacy, R. Braybrook, J. Lingard, L. Todd, J. Englund, R. Leonard, J. Mitchell, A. Race, G. Roberts, R. Whittaker, J. Aspden, and H. Greenwood.

PAISLEY.

This favourite exhibition of Scotch Fancy Canaries was held in the Clark North Minor Hall on October 5th. The entries numbered less than 180, or an average of about 10 per class, and this notwithstanding the splendid classification and special prize list. Everything possible was done to attract exhibits. Why did they not turn up? Scarcity of Scotch Fancy Canaries is not the cause, many having had a prolific season. One breeder has reared over 110, over sixty of which were class Scotch Fancy by five pairs. Various reasons were assigned for the poor entry. The thoughtful section in Paisley ascribed it to want of enthusiasm, and no doubt there is a great deal in that; while the entries were down it is very satisfactory to be in a position to record that there was a decided advance in the quality. It was a real treat to go through the exhibits; the bulk were distinguished by prominence in shoulder, and an improved depth through the chest. Breeders have been forced to cultivate these properties, owing to the lack of pure Belgian Canaries, upon which so much depended in the days when Belgians were procurable. The principal winner was Mr. McClure, of Glasgow, a gentleman who has devoted much time and attention to the development of the King of Cage Birds, who has now the satisfaction of possessing the finest sort of Scotch Fancy Canaries in the United Kingdom. He had a splendid team forward, but he did not enter his best. For instance, the winner of the trophies at the National Derby and the confined Derby were not in evidence. He has the advantage of lengthened experience, and deserves the success he has justly attained. Taking the other side, it was equally gratifying to observe beginners, or comparative beginners, in the first honours. Mr. McAdam, of Jamestown, has not been many years in the fancy, and has done well on the show bench. A new beginner, Mr. Graham, of Leith, has had a most encouraging start, as will be observed from the prize list. He promises to be a decided acquisition to the fancy. Conversing with the leading fanciers, they stated that the demand for stock has been unprecedented. There would have been no difficulty in selling four times the quantity, proving that the "Evening News" correspondent, whom you quoted, is pretty near the mark. Reverting to the short entries, the esteemed president, Mr. Urquhart, took a thoroughly sensible view of the situation. He said if fanciers do not want the Paisley Show, the Paisley and district will have to go, but it will be a calamity. He admitted that even with the safeguarding of paying half prize money "unless more than seven entries in any one class," there is bound to be a deficiency, but he followed cheerfully with the remark "in all our troubles the fanciers have never failed to come to our aid and extinguish the debt," and he has no fear of the future. The moult was a reason given for birds not being entered, and an important football match in Paisley was against a goodly attendance. The secretary, Mr. Kelly, deserves great credit for his admirable arrangements. For business capacity and a grasp of the work, he has few equals. The executive ably backed up his efforts, and all that was wanted to make the show a success was double the entries. However these may come another year. The show was held under the distinguished patronage of Jolen McCallum, Esq., M.P., Bailie Galbraith (Paisley), ex-Bailie Brown (Paisley), Francis Percey, Esq. (Paisley), Mrs. T. Anderson, and several other county gentlemen. Office bearer: Hon. Pres. Mr. Francis Percey; Pres., Mr. Urquhart; Vice-Pres., Mr. John Kennedy; Treas., Mr. Neil McDonald; Sec., Mr. John Kelley; Committee, Messrs. A. Baird, John Gillies, A. W. Baird, James Allison, Allan McDonald, James Moore, Andrew Ferguson, Peter Richie, and John Stewart. The tried judges, Messrs. John Arnot (Sauchie) and James Curlaw (Falkirk), acquitted themselves with credit. Mr. D. Black (Govan), who is now out of his apprenticeship, was equal to the occasion, and Mr. J. Beveridge (Paisley), who has just come out as a judge, did exceedingly well. With all its disappointments, we have pleasant memories of the Paisley and district exhibition. YELL. (12): 1, special, McClure, fully entitled to the position, erect, decided drive, long neck, very neat-headed, and well under the level of the shoulders, prominent shoulders, good body, wing nicely circled; 2, Frew, erect, fair head and neck, good body and action; 3, Ralston, a neat, tidy Yellow, nicely built, erect, good neck, fair droop, and quick; 4, Hurt, a well-known winner, good stamp; 5, Maxwell, a very nice all round bird; 6, Thornton, really typical exhibit; 7, Urquhart; 8, Caldwell. HEN (10): 1, special, McClure, erect, finely positioned, rare drive, good shoulders, body, and wing; 2, McAdam, erect, good all over, fine droop, body, and wing, full of action; 3, Caldwell, good size, nice style, wins easily; 4, Wishart, erect, decided drive, good style; 5, special, Gray, grand type, rare body; 6, Moore, finely positioned; 7, Urquhart; 8, Ramage. YELL. PIED (13): 1, Graham, a credit to a beginner, erect, prominent shoulder, grand depth of chest, good drive, long body and wing, wins easily; 2, Gray, good sized, erect; fine droop and shoulders, long body and wing; 3, special, Urquhart, erect head, neat, and in proper direction, grand body and wing; 4, Pearson, erect, good all round type, ready and steady; 5, Maxwell, commands position, rare size and quality throughout 6, Baird, erect, fine droop, plenty of shoulder, good body and wing; 7, special, Lauchlan, 8, Hurt. "CAGE BIRDS" FANCIERS' MAP.

HALL'S DISTEMPER.

Important News

TO BREEDERS & AVIARY KEEPERS.

All Breeders should know that Hall's Sanitary Distemper is the best thing known for ensuring perfect cleanliness in breeding and store cages.

It is sold in tins ready to mix with water, and is applied with a whitewash brush.

One coating effectually destroys all the insect life, germs, &c., which collect in cages.

At the same time Hall's Distemper is non-poisonous to bird life.

It is made in two qualities: the outside quality is the one specially recommended for the above use, and suitable colours are—

No. 17. Cream.
No. 66. Pale Green.
No. 47. Pale Blue.

Hall's Distemper is sold by all oil and colourmen, stores, &c.

Remember to ask for outside quality.

Mr. C. J. Ward, the well-known Hybrid exhibitor, wishes Secretaries to send schedules to him at 15, Heath Road, Uttoxeter, Staffs.

Mr. J. H. Payne, the well-known and popular judge of cagebirds, has recently gone in for horses. Mr. Payne is also an enthusiast over furry things.

I have sent all members a schedule of our next show; if anyone has been overlooked will they kindly let me know:—C. W. MEAD (Sec. Walthamstow F.A.).

Our members wish me to deny any knowledge of telegram, and beg to express their regret that it should have been sent:—S. TURRELL, Coventry O.S.

The quarterly balance sheet of the City and Suburban A.C.B., to hand from the Hon. Sec., Mr. Wynn, shows a total of cash in hand and at the bank of £23 3s. 3d.

Mr. J. Patterson, the distinguished Border Fancy lover, is still very weak from his recent illness. All friends will join with us in wishing him complete recovery.

Will Mr. Weston, who gave his address in CAGE BIRDS as Langley, Birmingham, kindly send his full proper address to Mr. J. Isherwood, 1, Monon Crescent, John St., Wakefield?

Tonbridge and District F.A. ho'll their Annual Show at Tunbridge Wells on Nov. 20th and 21st next. Mr. P. W. Burton, Guildford House, Albert Road, Tonbridge, is the hon. secretary.

Just a line to correct an error in twitterings. Mr. Fowler is not secretary of the Bristol C.B.S., but Mr. J. Munro, Pretoria Villa, St. John's Lane, Bedminster, Bristol.—W. G. BULL, chairman.

Wimborne Show seems to be under excellent management this year. Last year this fixture clashed badly with several other events, and did not do so well. This year they are better placed, and exhibitors should take advantage of the fact.

A series of fortnightly table shows has been arranged in connection with the Suffolk C.B.S. during the winter months writes Mr. W. Barritt, the hon. sec., the first to take place, Thursday, October 17th, when Mr. W. Schofield will act as judge.

Will you kindly call attention to our "Essay competition," subject, "Food and Feeding of Cage Birds," asking all those who are sending essays to send them to me on or before Oct. 16th.—H. LAMBERT BROWN, hon. sec., L.P.O.S. 64, Manor Park, Lea, S.E.

Thanks to my advertisement in your valuable paper, CAGE BIRDS. I have disposed of a lot of my stock, only having a few left. The results achieved by advertising in CAGE BIRDS are, indeed, marvellous.—GEO. THOMPSON, 26, Manor Street, Cardiff.

We have engaged Mr. J. H. Roe (Derby) to judge the Cinnamon Classes at our show on November 16th, and we trust that all exhibitors of this variety who possibly can will give him their best support:—G. E. WILKINSON (Nottingham).

The Clapham and District Open C.B.A. are holding a grand Smoking Concert, at headquarters, the Alexandra Hotel, Clapham Common, on Monday, October 14th, at 8 o'clock. All fanciers are cordially invited, and will be made most welcome.—(Advt.)

The show business of Penzance C.B.S. is being attended to by Mr. Lears C. Mabbott, vice Mr. Sampson, the general hon. secretary who is at present unduly pressed with personal business. Mr. Mabbott's address is 20, Regent Square.

I do not compete for the handsome silver medal which I am presenting for most points gained by an exhibitor in Lancashire classes, at Dulwich and Peckham Show. The schedule does not make this quite clear.—F. J. GREEN (Redhill).

Mr. Isherwood (Wakefield), says:—"If you could in any way remind advertisers of the necessity for giving an address which would ensure letters reaching them, I feel sure you would be doing a service to fanciers and advertisers. Wishing further success to our CAGE BIRDS, which is eagerly read at my house by all the family.

As an advertising medium I must say CAGE BIRDS is A1. For my advertisement on Sept. 21st, I had scores of letters, in fact more than I can personally answer myself. Any one not having received word please accept this: Birds gone in one lot.—B. R. NELSON, Macclesfield.

Please thank for us all exhibitors who have contributed to make our show such a grand success. The committee have decided to add a 4th prize of 1s. 6d. to the prize list, throughout the show, excepting the foreign and selling classes.—H. C. LILLEY, S. L. COCKS, Peterborough C.B.A.

I have posted S.N.P.C. rule book to each member of our Club, but if by error I should have omitted any, I shall only be too pleased to post one on receipt of postcard, also to any Norwich fanciers who are willing to join, and write to me for our rule book.—FRED J. MATTHES, hon. sec., Southern Norwich P.C.

Entries at Paisley were somewhat disappointing writes "a chicl." The financial result will entail a few pounds loss which must be made up by the members. It is just possible the management may decide at the next meeting to wind up the concern. Mr. Kelly declares that it is impossible to carry on on Saturday's lines.

The ups and downs of fortune in the Canary world are strikingly emphasised by the experiences of Mr. Evans's ticked buff Norwich. On its first appearance at Accrington it secured the leading position; last Friday at Burnley, its second outing, it was at the tail end of affairs, standing cardless. When judges differ, who shall decide?

Entries are very short at Hayle Show, and we will accept up to first post Sunday, October 13th. We appeal to fanciers to give us their support.—W. PAULL, hon. sec.

If you have time, just draw attention to the date of closing entries, October 12th. Cirencester being noted for closing promptly on advertised date. No whipping up i.e. "Entries do not average 1 per class, and therefore accept till first post on another date." None of this has ever been practised here, and yet we do not get the support we should do.—E. J. WALLIS, hon. sec., Cirencester Show.

I have received the following specials since schedules were sent out, which makes the grand total of £171:—Mr. M'Phial for best 9th in Crest classes; Mr. Craig for best 7th, Redpoll or Twite; Mr. Brown, sec., G.A.W. of S., for best 7th in 35, 54, 56, 60, 61, and 68; Mr. Duncan for most points in clear Borders; Mr. Dempster for most points in Green or Cinnamon Borders.—A. MUIR, sec. Glasgow O.S.

Entries up to now (Oct. 6th) very poor indeed, writes Mr. Woolhouse, of Dulwich. It is surprising considering the splendid offer of prizes. Surely exhibitors will rally round and give us a bumping entry. We are running the show at considerable expense for the benefit of the fancy. We are reluctantly compelled to extend till first post Monday.

I would like to draw the attention of intending exhibitors at Kelty and Blairadam Show to the special under cage bird section, "5s. for best bird shown by a member." It is a printer's error, and should be under the poultry section. Mrs. Dobbie, of Lassodie, is going to dispose of her stock of Scotch Fancies at our show, owing to not having time to give them the attention they need.—J. HUNTER.

I see in CAGE BIRDS a notice from Mr. Norris, the British Roller Canary Club Secretary, saying the Wakefield Club Show will be held on December 6th and 7th, the dates of the L.C.B.A. and B.R.C.C. Show. Will you please say in your next issue that we have altered our date to December 13th and 14th to avoid clashing.—J. NETHERWOOD, hon. sec., Wakefield R.C.C.

Dibb's Canary Seed offer—Special Offer.—As an advertisement we give with every cwt. of Canary Seed purchased, one cwt. of our celebrated Health Grit absolutely free. Giant Spanish, 24s. per cwt.; Finest Turkish, 15s. per cwt.; treble-screened and free from dust. Carriage paid to nearest station. Samples on application from John Dibb, Seed Importer, 31 and 33, White Abbey Road, Bradford. Tel. 247x.—(Advt.)

Mr. Woolhouse, the Dulwich and Peckham Show manager, informs us that exhibitors are sending in their entry forms with notification that their birds are to compete in CAGE BIRDS' prize competition, without attaching coupons to the forms. This is wrong, entries will not be accepted by the show secretaries unless the forms bear CAGE BIRDS' coupon. Those who wish to compete at Dulwich can have coupons by return by applying to us at once.

Boiler, tinned iron body, copper bottom, holding about 5 gallons water, fumes cover and chimney, and about 32 feet 1 inch iron pipe, including bends, safety valves, or taps and pipe. Gass ring, brass bend, and metalic gas tube. All ready to connect to gas bracket. No further use for same, cause of disposal. Sell for £3, or exchange for 1 pair Canaries (to value), any variety.—GEORGE FRANCIS, hon. secretary, South Wharf, Lowestoft.—(Advt.)

We recently had the pleasure of a call from that stalwart Northerner, Mr. Anthony Hay, of Berwick-on-Tweed. Mr. Hay was full of enthusiasm over the forthcoming Cage Bird Show at Berwick, and regretted very much the unavoidable clashing with two other exhibitions close at hand. The railwaymen's grievances were also ventilated (Mr. Hay is on the N.E.R.), and a hope was expressed that matters would finally settle themselves shortly.

Mr. J. W. Rennie, the hon. sec. of the Southern Yorks Canary Club, writes that Mr. F. Easterling is presenting another cup to the S.Y.C.C. member (either novice or champion) making most points at the following shows: Southend-on-Sea, Battersea, L.C.B.A., and Wimbledon, with birds moulted on Ramsden's Peppers, purchased through his agency (other than the winners of general specials 2nd and 3rd). Fanciers wishing to join the S.Y.C.C. should note that the trophies, specials, etc., to be won outright this season, amount to nearly £25.

Our Coupon Competition.

Owing to the lack of security of our leaflets being read by exhibitors, we have decided to only offer our Coupon Competition where the particulars are printed in the schedule or catalogue, but we shall not mind if they only occupy half a page so long as they are placed in a prominent position. This has been decided on as much in the interests of committees as ourselves.

Entries at Peterborough Show.

Norwich P.H., 231 in 10 classes.—Class 1, 20 entries; 2, 28, 3, 14; 4, 26; 5, 22; 6, 30; 7, 18; 8, 36; 9, 16; 10, 21. Yorkshires, 100 in 4 classes.—Class 11, 25 entries; 12, 27; 13, 23; 14, 25. Crest, or Crest bred, 17.—Class 15, 17 entries. Mules or Hybrids, 19—Class 16, 19 entries. British, 119.—Class 17, 18 entries; 18, 14; 19, 24; 20, 29; 21, 21; 22, 13. Foreign, 14 in two classes.—Class 23, 5 entries; 24, 9. Selling Classes, 52 in 3 classes.—Class 25, 16 entries; 26, 20; 27, 16; and two members' classes containing 12 entries, making a grand total of 564.

A SURPRISING COMBINE.

Mr. CARL (London) and Mr. WATMOUGH (Bradford), join forces.

"The Poultry World" becomes the oldest Poultry Journal.

Readers of CAGE BIRDS have noticed lately the announcements about a new paper for poultry keepers which will shortly appear. We are now in a position to divulge a few more details concerning the proprietary interests involved, and the programme that has been decided on. The name of the new paper will be

"The Poultry World,"

It will be priced at One Penny, and will appear every week. It will endeavour to strike an entirely new note in fancy journalism and it will have on its staff many of the ablest experts connected with the Poultry Hobby. Simultaneously with the appearance of "The Poultry World" there will appear, under the auspices of Mr. J. E. Watmough, the well-known Yorkshire newspaper owner and Chairman of the Fanciers' Printing Co., a specialist paper, devoted exclusively and thoroughly to Home and Fancy Pigeons. It will be priced at One Penny also, and will appear every week under the simple but comprehensive title of

"Pigeons."

Mr. J. E. Watmough will have the sole management and control of "Pigeons" and Mr. F. Carl the sole management and control of "The Poultry World" both journals co-operating with each other but remaining financially distinct and preserving their own separate individuality.

AN ANCIENT PEDIGREE.

These two papers will be the lineal descendants of the oldest fancy journal known, viz.: "The Fancier's Gazette," founded 1874, the paper with which the late Mr. W. A. Blakston was for so long honourably associated. For "Pigeons and Poultry," the weekly journal which has catered so admirably in the past for Poultry and Pigeon Fanciers' and which was an offshoot from "The Fanciers' Gazette" will after the first week in November be divided into two specialist organs, one devoted to Poultry, the other to Pigeons, each doing its level best to attain supremacy in its own special sphere.

"The Poultry World" will be owned by a limited liability company, the board of management for which will be made up as follows:

Managing Director: MR. F. CARL—
Proprietor of CAGE BIRDS.

Directors: MR. J. E. WATMOUGH,—
Chairman Fanciers' Printing Coy., present owner of FUR AND FEATHER, PIGEONS AND POULTRY, etc., etc.

MR. W. E. BERRY—
Proprietor HEALTH AND STRENGTH, etc.

J. TREWAVAS,—
Director Fanciers' Printing Coy.

The chief outdoor representative and reporter-in-chief for "The Poultry World" will be Mr. C. A. HOUSE—a journalist who served his apprenticeship under the doyen of Poultry Editors, Mr. Edward Brown, and who for over twenty years has been creditably associated with fancy journalism and fancy matters.

Mr. Carl and Mr. Watmough will both have a large financial interest in "The Poultry World," and it will be the aim of the various periodicals they respectively control to further their common interests. Their various journals will thus cover almost the entire range of fancy topics, viz.—Poultry, pigeons, rabbits, cage birds, cavies, mice. We may as well make it clear, though, that CAGE BIRDS will continue to be run as a private enterprise, and not as a limited liability company. Mutual arrangements have been made to secure a formidable campaign on all sections of interest catered for, and equally in the country as in the town. Mr. Watmough's headquarters will remain at Bradford, Mr. Carl conducting all necessary operations from London.

Thus does the newest paper in the Poultry fancy become the oldest. And it will be the aim of "The Poultry World" to live up to the traditions of its distinguished predecessors. We may at least congratulate ourselves on not adding to the list of existent poultry journals, and upon taking over, right from the start, a substantial circulation—an assured advertisement revenue a long list of subscribers, and an organised list of show reporters and officers.

F. CARL, 154, Fleet Street, London.

CANARIES.

NORWICH PLAINHEADS.

Answered by J. H. Payne.

Bad Feet.

Blister.—I am afraid the perches you have are too narrow and this has been the cause of your having the feet of your bird as you describe. Discard them and use wider ones for the future. Bathe the bird's feet once a day for two or three days in tepid water, and then put on the affected part with the tip of your finger a little Hazeline Cream. Keep the bird, during this time, in a cage without any perches, and put on the bottom something soft for it to stand on.

Hen Out of Sorts.

Osborne Roath.—Let your hen have, in a small teaspoonful of egg food, three times in one week, as much Aromatic Confection as will stand on a threepenny piece, after which you may put in the drinking water fifteen drops of Syrup of Tolu, and ten drops of Ipecacuhana Wine. Let her have this every day for a week, fresh daily, and then on alternate days for another week, when I think she will be well again.

Bare Chest.

J.Z.—Anoint the bare parts on your hen's body three times in one week with a little sulphur ointment, which you can put on with your finger tip, taking care not to daub up the surrounding feathers. Put in her drinking water everyday for a week, fresh daily, fifteen drops of the juice of a fresh lemon. Feed on plain canary seed as the staple diet, and do away with the rape and linseed, except that you may add it to the other seeds you use, and give twice a week as a treat. Your cock bird will soon commence to sing, no doubt. As he is only just finished moulting, you need not fear but what he will sing stoutly again. Feed the same as I have advised for the hen.

YORKSHIRES.

Answered by H. W. Battye.

A Cold.

Constant Reader.—Give for two weeks, in the bird's drinking water, fresh every morning, ten drops each of tincture of lobelia and ten drops of paregoric.—Keep warm and out of draughts. Also give a little soft food (sponge cake, egg food, or boiled milk sop), mixing with it six or eight drops of sherry wine.

Wheezy.

New Reader.—Give your bird that is wheezy four drops of the following mixture in its drinking water fresh every morning, taking the water away at night and well mixing the medicine with the drinking water before returning it each morning: Two parts eucalyptus oil and one part oil of cajaput. If not better in one week, write again, and I will advise you further.

A Class Question.

A. Hendry.—Your bird, having no technical mark on it, should, where a class is provided for ticked birds and another class for unevenly-marked birds, be entered in the former. But where the classification reads "Ticked or Unevenly Marked," and no separate class for ticked birds is provided, you should enter it in that class, and you would be all right. There are very few shows where the ticked Cinnamons have a separate class.

Crooked Claws.

Bangor. — Many birds have feet with slightly crooked claws, similar to the birds you describe. Of course some are worse than others, but this is a fault of only minor importance, so long as it does not interfere with the bird being able to grip the perch with the necessary firmness to enable it to keep its position when the cage is being handled. It is a great advantage, when birds that have a failing of this kind are very steady. If the two birds are, as you say, the best out of about 80, and stand as "straight as an arrow," by all means give them a trial. The chances are the slight deformity may not be noticed, and if it is it will not detract much from the merit of your birds, providing their position, shape and quality are good.

Old and Faint.

E. L.—Your bird is like a number of other birds that are getting on in years; many cannot stand disturbing much when they get seven years old. I don't know of any remedy, only I have found that birds, when kept in a corner where the light is bad, are very liable to have these fainting fits when brought suddenly into the light, or when startled in any way. For feeding a singing Canary, the seed mixture you name is very good.

BORDERS.

Hen Stuck in Moult.

Perplexed.—First of all you took your hen too soon away from young, and the moult she went into was a false moult. Such birds are difficult to bring into bloom, and I very much doubt hen being ready for show in November. Try her in a warm room for two days; give as much Epsom salts as will lie on a threepenny bit each day, in water; take her back to bird room and give her a piece of sulphate of iron the size of a split pea for two days; then give in water three drops rum and six shreds of meadow saffron, until she shows signs of casting her feathers; if this does not start her, she may not go through a proper moult this season. You are giving too much Linseed—once a week is quite sufficient; give a little scalded rape seed one day, and half a teaspoonful egg food with three drops chemical food added the other; if she is a little dull let her have a fly in a large flight.

Grizzle Cap.

George.—Although every alternate feather be dark and light to the eye, if you examine carefully you will find the light feathers are all more or less dark in centre: they are therefore all dark, and your bird must be shown in the Foul Class (2). Keep them clean by giving the bath once a week. Any that do not wash you must spray. Also see that your cages are kept fresh and clean. Give a little egg food twice a week, scalded rape once, with a little boiled carrot once a week. Canary seed, as a staple food, add a third German rape on days you don't give it scalded, or when giving egg food.

CINNAMONS.

Answered by J. North.

Asthma.

W.W.—The treatment for this complaint is the same in every variety of canary. In addition to the bronchial mixture you are now using, let the bird have the benefit of all available warmth. It should be kept in a living room by night and stood within a window with southern aspect during the middle of the day. With aged birds it also often happens that they are unable to crack and digest hard seed, so that it is advisable to let them have some bread and milk sop one day and scalded seed the next, and so on.

Cinnamon Crest.

Snow Annie.—Such a bird was rightly "wrongly-classed" when shown in A.O.V. class, a class for "Crests, any variety," being provided, but neither of the two classes at the forthcoming open show appear to contemplate the inclusion of Cinnamon Crests, so it would be well to write the Secretary, or keep the bird at home.

ROLLERS.

Answered by "Schoolmaster."

Concerning Summer Rape Seed.

Jarvis.—The sample of seed you send is not pure, unadulterated summer (German) rape. If you will chew up a teaspoonful, you will find it tastes quite hot, or "mustardy," and real summer rape never does this, but tastes sweet and "nutty." I am frequently explaining this point (and so are many other writers in Cage Birds), and if you had only adopted the test, you would have been saved being landed with a quantity of this seed. Probably there is charlock amongst it—or, at any rate, one or other of the "bird-rapes," broadly known as "wild mustard" seed. This hot seed might certainly upset the stomachs of Canaries unused to it, and this trouble, if unchecked, might lead to their death. But I could not say that the seed, as per sample, really was responsible for the deaths of your three birds—that would be going too far. Rape seed such as you send is often, and quite unwittingly, sold as "good German rape"—the average corn chandler does not know what constitutes real summer rape, being more often than not guided by the higher price he pays for the article he sells as such.

Not Singing.

New Reader.—Your bird is still feeling the effects of the moult—probably he had a rough time of it when going through it. I should give him equal parts rape and canary seed, as the stock food and give a pinch of mixed linseed and hemp (equal parts) on alternate days, with the maw seed. Give a small teaspoonful of the patent food you mention every day, well stirring amongst it five or six (not more) spots of Parrish's Chemical Food, obtainable from any good chemist—start with two or three spots, and work the quantity up gradually. A few weeks on this treatment should make a "new man" of him, especially if you take care his cage is kept cosy, and out of all draughts, gas fumes, etc., covering it over at night. I should not let him bathe in cold water until recovered. You should blow a little just warm water over him twice a week with your mouth.

CRESTS AND CRESTBREDS.

Answered by W. E. Greeves.

"Short of Breath."

J. Rains.—From the description you give, your bird appears to be suffering from lung trouble. Keep warm in a box cage, and cover the front at night. Give two drops of syrup of tolu direct into its beak morning and night. Feed on Canary Seed and bread and milk only. Over the bread and milk put a drop or two of the tolu. Add to the drinking water six drops of whiskey. Continue this treatment until the bird is well, after which, for a week, add a small quantity of Parrish's Chemical Food to its water. It is impossible to tell the cause of death of your bird which died suddenly without a post-mortem. Should you lose another in like manner send it to Mr. Northb.

MISCELLANEOUS CANARY QUERIES.

Answered by "Old Judge."

Sending Abroad.

J.F.B.—You should ship your birds for New Zealand in a wooden box-cage with wire front. The size of this box must, of course, depend on the number of birds. It should be fitted with a drawboard so that the cage may be cleaned out on the voyage. It is usual to make arrangements with the butcher of the vessel by which the birds are to travel, because all live stock on board is in his charge. You would, of course, have to send sufficient seed and sand for the voyage. The cage should be fitted with drinking and feeding vessels, but in sending the birds to the port of departure these must be properly packed so as to prevent breakage, as good a method as any is to fasten them inside the cage for the journey to the boat. You should write the butcher the day before sending the birds off, giving him full instructions as to feeding, cleaning, etc., on route, and don't forget that a half-sovereign enclosed in this letter will add to the bird's comfort and safety en voyage. The freightage must, of course, be arranged through the shipping company, unless the butcher is known to the consignor or consignee. In such a case he would make the arrangements.

Panting and Twisting.

H.G.J.—I am inclined to think your birds are too fat, and this is the cause of the symptoms you describe. Stop the hemp seed at once, and every other day for a week put a pinch of Epsom salts in the water, not much, but just sufficient to make the water taste slightly saline. At the end of the week stop the salts, and put just enough Parrish's Chemical Food in the drinking water each day to make it a nice rosy pink.

BRITISH BIRDS, MULES AND HYBRIDS.

Cleaning-out Cages.

F. J. S.—A Lark's cage is best when fitted with a sheet of thin zinc (any builder's ironmonger will supply it), or tray, for the turf to rest in. You could scald out the crevices with boiling water, in which a lump of common washing soda has been dissolved; or paint all cracks and crevices with turpentine, half a pint, in which a piece of camphor the size of a shilling has been mixed (after being crushed), working it well into all joints. Afterwards hang the cage in the open air (in fine weather, of course), for a day or so until it is dry, or the smell disappears. Then give the woodwork a good coat of washable sanitary distemper (very light blue or green) obtainable from most paint shops—It is a splendid thing for the insides of cages, aviaries, bird rooms, etc. The cage will then be absolutely clean and sweet. All Larks need a dust bath, half fine sand and half road dust, in which some harmless insect powder has been sprinkled.

About a Jay.

G. H. F.—The stock food, and method of preparation, recommended "J. Potter" this week would suit your bird; or another method, and perhaps simpler and better, is briefly (I am often telling how to treat Jays) to utilise table scraps largely. As a stock food, you could use broken-up dog biscuits or puppy cakes, or "Melox" (or game meal), with coarse crissel—say two parts of either of the former to one part of the latter (by measure). Moisten with hot water, giving it crumbly moist, and mixing with it table scraps, cooked meat, and potatoes, greens, gravy, etc. Give a few trapped mice, young Sparrows and the like (even young frogs, if you can capture them), but not over much raw meat. You will find them very accommodating in the matter of food. Eggs (raw and cooked), acorns, beechmast, nuts (cracked) of various kinds, peas, berries, fruit, worms, beetles, grubs, and butter are other things they will eat. It is an unnecessary, useless cruelty to cut any bird's tongue, because birds do not use their tongues to articulate with. This is also a point I have often dealt with in recent issues—anyone who perpetrates the barbarity deserves seven days "without the option." A good cage for a Jay would not be less than three feet long (four or five would be vastly better), three feet high, and two feet wide.

Bramblefinch Scratching Neck.

H. M. R.—Your bird's cage must be infested with red-mites—the vicious scratching round the neck points plainly to this. Spraying the bird with quassia solution would not, of course, exterminate them from the crevices of the cage—when you sprayed the bird, the pests would, too, be on the cage, for they swarm on birds chiefly at night. You must transfer the Bramble to a new cage, or to a clean temporary one, while you treat the old one as advised "F. J. S." this week. Before returning the bird dip him, keeping the wings spread out, in quassia water, with the chill taken off, not choking him, of course. Dab him as dry as possible with a warmed soft linen cloth afterwards, and keep him in a warmed room, out of all draught, until quite dry (cover the cage, if necessary). A Bramble wants careful yet firm handling, mind you, being very powerful in the wing. When the irritation of the red-mites ceases, he will no longer scratch away his neck-feathers.

A Host of Questions.

H. S. G.—Nine or ten questions at one go is rather thick—three are supposed to be the limit, and if you go beyond that you risk getting no answer. A hand-net is generally used to catch birds out of aviaries. I should certainly think birds just caught out of an outdoor aviary would be too wild to stand much chance on the show bench. British Finches are usually hand-washed by keen exhibitors—it enhances their chance of success. Fanciers in the country need hand-wash but little, however. Peat-moss litter is sold by most corn dealers, or sellers of poultry specialities. It is very inexpensive. Mealworms are most plentiful in the winter—in the summer they turn to beetles. The mixture you mention would do for Softbills; the crissel would have to be the very finest grade (meal). You enumerate too many species, for an aviary the size of yours, to do much good breeding. Cocks and hens of the same species would keep together, and the two cock Goldies you mention would probably only fight for possession of the one hen Goldie. You don't breed Hybrids that way. Read reply to "Sticker In" the week before last. Hen Canaries are far the most certain.

Moulting Slowly.

E. E.—If your Bullfinch is in a cold room, move its cage into the cosy corner of a warmed room—that is the sort of spot the bird wants to be kept in, in a box cage, for heat is very useful in the case of any bird undergoing a difficult, protracted moult. Cover the cage over at night. You want to feed the bird well, giving a good supply of sunflower seed (cracked, if necessary), daily, and his daily fare should include a little linseed, with ripe shepherd's purse, thistle heads, blackberries and the like, as obtainable. In the drinking water, on alternate days, stir a small teaspoonful of Parrish's Chemical Food, obtainable from the chemist.

Dog Rose Bushes.

W. Evans.—No; I am quite sure the dog rose bush need not be removed. As a matter of fact, thorn bushes are among the best live shrubs one can have in an aviary. You need not be concerned over any likelihood of the prickles hurting the feet of the birds. The common hawthorn is also excellent, but gets quickly stripped, unless present in considerable quantity. Privet and box shrubs are bad to beat, especially when of sturdy growth. Your aviary would hold a dozen pairs of small Hardbills comfortably—possibly one or two more. But this would be too many for you to entertain hopes of successful breeding—the latter, as I have frequently remarked, not being easy of accomplishment under such conditions as you outline. Further, you will probably have squabbling in spring and summer; but this you can deal with, if necessary, when it arrives.

Seed Mixture for Flights.

Amateur.—I presume the flight is an indoor one. If so, the following mixture would answer admirably: Canary two pints, teazle one pint, summer rape, charlock and linseed half a pint each. You must have one other dish, at the least, in addition to the self-supplying hopper, and keep this stocked with sunflower seed (or a mixture of half sunflower, half safflower, if you can get the latter). Into this dish a handful of hemp should be thrown twice a week. Once a week (on the Sunday, as you mention), you can give a feed of some good maker's special packet Finch mixture. This treatment will ensure your two Greenies, hen Bullies, and hen Canary wintering in good form, and being in good condition for breeding next spring, so far, that is, as any owner can foresee. You certainly, however, ought to gather, store and use the wild seeds and weeds I am so often recommending—they are common, and accessible to most fanciers. Hybrid breeding is not easy—is always uncertain. Hybrids would hardly be uncommon and so valuable were it otherwise—would they now?

The Insides of Show Cages.

College.—You really cannot better a very dark green (say, a holly-green) for the insides of the show cages of Goldfinches and Bullfinches; and the wires should be the same colour. This colour, in fact, suits admirably all the British Hardbills. The great point, however, is to have the enamel properly put on, and plenty of it. Show cages are quoted at so cheap a rate to-day, that it is, I suppose, impossible to expect the makers to put three or four coats on the back of each (the wires usually need only one). Yet these are what a show cage should have. Personally (unless I paid the maker extra to do it) I always used to rub a piece of very fine glass-paper lightly over the back of my show cages, and add a good even coat of my favourite colour; when this was quite hard, I repeated the operation. The result was a surface really like enamel, rich, deep and glossy, and which showed off the birds to perfection. It requires practice, however, to put even enamel on successfully, to avoid getting it "wavy." The brush is important, too—a tried one is best, for then loose hairs do not come out, and the bristles should not be long, "too free," as it is called. In my own opinion a dull surface is a great mistake. Some will tell you the gloss on the cage back detracts from the gloss on the bird—I "wink the other eye" at that, for I say that a really fine gloss enhances the gloss on the bird, one reflecting from the other, so to speak, in the manner of mirrors. Try both ways—when I leave it to your judgment.

Hens for Light Mules.

A Novice.—Inbreeding once, even though it be brother mated to sister, certainly cannot be said to be thorough enough to "ensure" light mules. In fact, I question whether any amount of inbreeding would "ensure" light mules, unless the soil worked upon (i.e., the hens) was suitable. If you get a hen, for instance, no matter of what variety, which throws mules with a decent amount of light plumage on them, you have the "right soil." You could not do better than mate her to a clear yellow Lancashire Plainhead cock (from someone's strain who does little or no out-crossing), or a clear yellow pink-eyed cock of Yorkshire type. The following year mate mother with her best son, and father with his best daughter. Inbreed judiciously afterwards. By this plan you would be highly likely to get a strain of good-sized hens which could be relied on to throw regularly more or less lightly marked, perhaps even clear, mules. Your own hen you do not appear to have tested at all, and, unless she throws mules with light plumage, I could not, seeing she is bred direct from variegated stock, recommend her as a likely progenitor of a strain of light-muling hens. It is best to get yellow (jonque) blood into a muling strain, because one's mules are then of much better colour—a very important point.

Mealworm Breeding.

R. V. W.—I agree with you that when a mealworm box becomes a mass of the grey mites you mention, and smells disagreeably, it is an abomination. I had considerable trouble with mite myself at one time, and came to the conclusion it was due to the bones, meat, dead birds, dog biscuits (with meat in them), beer, etc., I threw into my boxes, in accordance with old time instructions for breeding the lively and succulent mealworm. I then resolved to try keeping my worms in boxes containing absolutely nothing but bran and sacking, and since that time I have never again been over-run with those afore-mentioned offensive mites. My worms thrive and breed even better than in the old days, though I am willing to admit they do not attain the same great size as when flesh entered into their menu—still, those big, coarse things are fit only for Thrushes, Jays, and the like. The great essential to success is to always keep the mealworm box in a warm temperature. I may say that I sometimes (say, once a fortnight) throw into my boxes a small handful of finely-crushed puppy-cakes. Try keeping your mealworms on the above lines, and see how you get along.

A Wonderful Hybrid.

A. Hendry.—No, sir, I have certainly never seen a Hybrid between an Avadavat and a Canary. What is more, I find considerable difficulty in believing that the friend who "pounced upon" you ever really bred Avadavat-Canary Mules in his aviary—you can tell him so, if you like. Can't you persuade him to send along particulars to this journal? The account would make very interesting reading. Are any of the mules alive?—or did they, as certain other rarities have done, leave the earth early? The breeding of Hybrids between foreign birds and Canaries, is up to the present a but little worked or known field, and I am sure keepers of Foreigners would welcome detailed information about this matter of the successful mating of Avadavat with Canary.

Starling Weak on Legs.

J. Potter.—This leg weakness is usually a symptom of general weakness (or debility), and whenever I get a querist, as I frequently do, telling me his Starling, or Thrush, or Jay, and the like, is suffering from it, I invariably find he is condemning the bird to some wretched dietary practically devoid of nourishing properties—hence the attack of weakness. You do not say how you are feeding, but admit this is your "first bird," so probably are doing so wrongly. Keep it in a cage with the perches very low down, and the bottom thickly covered with coarse-cut sawdust (often cleaned out) until the use of its legs is fully restored. In two tablespoonfuls of drinking water, well stir a teaspoonful of Parrish's Chemical Food, fresh daily, for a fortnight; then, if necessary, or thought desirable, on alternate days for another fortnight. Starlings are very fond of ripe fruit and berries, chopped greenstuff, and live insects, and must be given these freely if they are to thrive properly. A fine stock food can he made as follows, the ingredients for which can be bought in most large towns, or from advertisers using our columns: Game meal (without grit), or finely-crushed puppy cakes six parts, ants' eggs, dried flies, meat meal and powdered silk-worm pupae, one part each, by measure. Damp with a little mashed cold boiled potato, grated raw carrot, finely chopped lettuce, watercress, chickweed, etc., or water occasionally, varying them frequently, and according to season. Add half a hard-boiled egg, finely minced with a fork, occasionally to the daily food portion—or a teaspoonful of preserved egg-flake. Don't forget live food (mealworms, beetles, etc.) and fruit.

Bramblefinches and Chaffinches for Show.

Constant Reader.—Without a good and quick moult, accompanied by (especially towards the finish) free and frequent use of the bath, no system of feeding, O Constant One, will fit your Brambles and Chaffies for show. See that their seed box has always a liberal supply of linseed, maw, sunflower and safflower seeds (in addition to Canary, teazle and rape). Hemp is not to be overdone, a pinch now and again being the limit. Of green-food, a sprig of any of the kinds I am so frequently recommending may be offered, though neither of the species under notice is as keen on it as most others of the Finches. If they will eat berries—rich-coloured, ripe privet, black, elder, etc., give same ad libitum. A little of a first-class insectivorous food should also be frequently given; while live food, mealworms, wasp—grubs, gentles, small grubs generally, flies, etc., must be freely offered. Smashed walnuts, and other nuts, are relished by both birds, and such oily foods are particularly valuable during and just after the moult. This gives you a pretty good list to work upon, and one which, if followed, will bring out your birds in the highest possible condition.

Gold of Pleasure.

J. M.—The sample of gold of pleasure sent is quite genuine, and looks very good indeed. Often birds are chary about sampling a new seed, yet, once they have tasted, develop quite a passion for it. I have noticed this particularly with sunflower seed. A bird will show no inclination to touch it, yet once get him to taste (by cracking it for him, or putting a piece on the perch end), and in nineteen cases out of twenty he is sunflower seed mad thereafter. I have noticed this with Canaries in particular. It is often necessary in the beginning to coax a bird on to a strange seed—many fanciers quite overlook the fact, too, that a bird's taste invariably differs at different periods during the year.

FOREIGN BIRDS.

Answered by WESLEY T. PAGE, F.Z.S., M.B.N.H.S.

Class for Black-throated Cardinal

Pavoavia.—It is a Bunting, and should be shown in the Hardhill or Finch classes. The heading in Crystal Palace Show Catalogue reads: "All species of Grosbeaks, True Finche , and Buntings (including the Cuba Finch and Cardinals)." Where there are two classes given, viz., one for seed-enters and one for insectivorous birds, the Cardinal should be entered in the class for seed-eaters.

Grey Parrot Mending.

J.H.C.—I am pleased to note the bird is much better, as the result of following advice given. Continue the treatment already advised; it cannot be improved upon from data to hand. If there should be any relapse, you had better write at once giving fullest possible details. Hope the bird will continue to improve.

Not Rearing Young.

Barney.—This year has been a bad one for the rearing of young, owing to the constant and severe fluctuations of temperature, owing to weather conditions. The same cause is responsible for the condition of the Zebra Finch, which, I fear, you will lose, as it appears to be suffering from pneumonia, so far as can be gathered from details supplied. Losses have been very heavy from this cause with all classes of birds this year. You cannot do better than continue the remedies you have been giving, save, perhaps, caging the bird up separately, and keeping it in a warmish, yet not too dry atmosphere. I may say some pairs of Cutthroats for the first year only as it were, play at nesting, and act much as yours have done. I should say you would have better success with them next season. I have had young leave the nest in November out of doors, so there is yet a chance for a brood.

Breeding Gouldian Finches.

L.A.F.—The birds, as a rule (i.e., many individuals), do not favour soft food mixture, though my birds take a little. I do not think they will take the moutain bread. Supply the following: Canary, white, French and spray millet, white oats, rice in the husk (if you cannot get this locally, any of the seed merchants advertisiug iu our columns will supply you). Green food, lettuce and grass in the ear, as much as they will eat. Also supply a little of the following mixture: Two parts crumbled sponge cake and one part each ants' eocoons, and dried flies; supply this both dry and crumbly moist, note which they prefer and supply accordingly. The young will, however, be largely reared on seed. It is rather late for them, but if weather keeps fairly open, it is quite possible they will be reared.

Corilla Cockatoo.

L.A.F.—This is the Rose-Crested Cockatoo (Cacatua roseicapilla). It is a hardy species, but ought not to be subjected to keen and cold winds. The ordinary Parrot cnge gives no protection; everything blows through it. On all warm, genial days, it should be stood for a couple of hours about mid-day under your verandah; at other times, and when other conditions prevail, it will be best in the glass enclosed portion of verandah, which, however, should be well ventilated so long as the bird is not subjected to a draught. You are fortunate in having a good talker, as the majority of the species in this country are not talented in this direction; though the bushmen, etc., of Australia make talented birds of them, according to repute.

What Cockatoo?

C. J. Pike.—It is the Slender-billed Cockatoo (Licmetis nasicus). As it already says a few words, it should improve if you keep it where it will hear plenty of conversation, and also repeat to it, at such times as it is quiet and restful (not exactly doscy) such words and phrases as you wish it to repeat. Diet: Maize, wheat, oats, dari, hemp, and sunflower seeds; plain biscuits, nuts, raw carrot, green food, such as green peas, lettuce, etc.; grit, cuttlefish and water must be regularly supplied. Keep it out of draught, and the temperature of any living-room will be ample for its well-being. Hope the bird will do well with you.

Golden Pleasure Seed.

Radium.—I have not found Foreign Finches at all partial to our indigenous seeds. However, I should have no hesitation in offering such, as it would all tend to make variety, a great thing with birds in captivity, especially with seed-eaters. Any seeds they will take in n half ripe condition would form an agreeable and helpful change in the dietary. Many species are very partial to mignonette, both flower sprays and seed-heads. Try them with the Golden Pleasure seeds, by scattering a little on aviary floor or seed-tray.

Budgerigars Nesting in Cage.

Kenneth S. Marsh.—Budgerigars will breed in your box cage, but not with the same freedom as in an outdoor aviary, but birds procured now could settle down to breeding next season, put in branches for perches; put up two cocoanut husks for each pair, fastened up near top of cage with the opening towards the light. Cigar boxes are not suitable for these birds. They require no nesting material. Diet: Canary, white and spray millet, green food, grit and cuttlefish. When young are due to hatch, supply white oats daily. One of the best green foods is grass in the ear, you cannot give them too much, but it must not be frosted, nor yet sodden with wet.

Rose-Breasted Cockatoo.

T.G.F.—It is a hardy species, and the temperature of any living-room will be sufficient, but it must be protected from drnught. Diet: Get a quart each of canary, white oats and sunflower seeds, and a pint each of hemp, dari, small Indian corn and rice in the husk, mix well together, and let this be your staple diet, which can be varied with ripe fruit, green food, plain biscuits, nuts, and a little boiled potato; grit, cuttlefish, and water must be regularly supplied. Keep the bird where it will hear plenty of conversation, also constantly repeat to it such short phrases and words as you wish it to learn. Do not give tea, coffee, or milk slops, table scraps, or any kind of animal food whatever.

Red Rosellas and Lorikeets.

"Cantab."—The Rosella is weak constitutionally, and the unspeakable weather of the past season has not helped matters; I am of the opinion that it would have been better left out of doors, but it will not do to put it out now, neither must you subject it to sudden changes from the warm kitchen to outside temperature at this season. So long as its bowels move freely, do not give aperients. Make its drinking water the colour of pale port with Parrish's Chemical Food, and continue same for some time, let it have cuttlefish, liberal supplies of such green food and ripe fruit as it will eat. If the bird will eat it, a small piece of sponge cake daily, slightly moistened with water and dipped in flowers of sulphur, should assist the bird in recovering its plumage. I do not think the bird will ever be of any use for breeding. The Blue Mountain Lorikeets will succeed well in your outdoor aviary, if the situation is not a very damp one, and there is a draughtproof shed attached to same, this should be well lighted, and during the winter months the food is better placed therein, though the entrance to same should only be closed at night, if at all.

Weavers and Finches.

"Innocent."—The birds you name would have done well enough left out of doors, they are all hardy, but you must not put them out again now. Of course, I am assuming that there is a shed (which should be well lighted) attached to your aviary; if the glass house is not too distant from the aviary, why not connect the two up with a wire run? otherwise, erect a nice run outside the glass house, on its south side, if possible. The birds will do well in it through the winter, providing it is not dnmp and draughty. The Weavers and Bishops scarcely ever attempt to breed, though they weave numbers of nests, the others should breed with you next season, providing they are not overcrowded. The past season has been very largely a failure, so far as breeding Foreign birds is concerned, owing to the unspeakable weather which has prevailed almost everywhere. So you are not alone in your failures, hope you will have better luck next season.

Breeding Java Sparrows, etc.

L. G. Harris.—They usually adapt themselves to our seasons, though I've had young leave the nest in November. There is no outward distinction in the sexes as to plumage, but the hen is a slightly slimmer bird, and her beak is narrow at the base and more tapering than that of the male; she is also mostly a rather silent bird, while the male has a chattering warble which he is very fond of uttering, so that with a little observation one can usually pick out the sexes of adult birds. Make the drinking water just saline with Epsom salts for one day, and then for a week or more lightly colour same with Parrish's Chemical Food, and your hen should soon pick up again. Offer them a bath daily, but if caged, see that they are kept out of drnught. Diet: Canary, white and spray millet, white oats, rice in the husk (paddy rice), green food, grit, cuttlefish and water. When they have young to feed, supply a little soft food, several good ones are advertised in our columns.

PARK & LAKE AVICULTURE.

Answered by FRANK FINN, B.A., F.Z.S., M.B.O.U., etc.

Pheasants for Profit (Argus).—(1) Yes, pheasants should be a profitable adjunct to a poultry farm. (2) Eggs are bought for stocking purposes, and also old birds—not young ones, as far as I know. (3) There is a good demand for eggs. (4) Young birds are best brought up under hens, but they can be hatched in an incubator. (5) Pheasants are more difficult and expensive to rear than poultry; they are more delicate, and need more animal food, only that of good quality. For rearing them profitably they should run in a place where they can find plenty of insect life. Old birds are hardy, and easily and cheaply kept.

POST MORTEMS.

Mr. J. North, 435, Oxford Road, Reading, will examine cage birds for a fee of 1s. 6d. each bird; for a reply direct, 2s. 6d.; analysis, 21s. Subjects for post-mortem examination must be sent packed in a box direct to J. North, with fee. Any sent to the office of this paper will be thrown away, and if a fee is enclosed the loss will be the sender's.

Hen Sapphire Finch (Finch).—Death caused by well-established disease of liver and kidneys. This bird would in all probability have died just as soon even if it had not been moved from aviary. Isn't it a Greenfinch-Canary Hybrid?

Canary (Egremont).—Bird fever. Your hen that you think has been similarly affected for 18 months is quite useless.

Canary (J.G.K.M.).—Just the same disease as the previous one.

GENERAL.

Answered by THE EDITOR.

Photo (Wm. Young).—When sending us pictures so kindly promised, we should like all the details you can give us. Those enumerated in your letter will do admirably.

Money Sent, No Reply (G. Clarke).—Read our rules as to complaints, please.

Sketch of Heater (J. Ryder).—Was this sent as an illustrated l...? We receive some fifty a week of these, so it would take some time to look it up.

Cuttings, etc. (A. M.).—Many thanks for these, which will be made use of later, perhaps. Very interested in your breeding operations. May they prove more successful in the future.

S.Y.C.C. (Consistent).—After careful consideration, we have decided your letter is one we do not care to print, especially under a nom de plume.

The New Venture (W. Aitchison and others).—Thanks for good wishes. Our new paper will, we are certain, be the means of improving the circulation and influence of CAGE BIRDS.

Suggestion re Special Prizes (G. T. H. Maggs).—This is a good notion, but we shall be unable, we find, to adopt it—this season, at any rate.

Yorkshire Sport (J. Thomas).—We could insert a portrait of your bird on our front page for from 10s. to 30s., according to work required and variety of Canary, but it must be winner of a money prize at a leading show. Mr. Norman will not be at the shows mentioned. You are correct as regards Mr. Payne's views. The other judge you mention has much the same opinion. We hope, as you are a poultry fancier, you will not fail to take in THE POULTRY WORLD. It is certain to please you.

OUR SHOW MAP.

With this week's number we give away without extra charge a Show Map. This indicates the locality of all the shows in our guaranteed list of fixtures. Two or three may not be included owing to delay in announcing dates. Fanciers have but to fasten this map on the walls of their birdrooms and to refer each day to the latest list. They will then have a permanent guide to the principal shows in each week.

SINGING CONTESTS.

BLACKBURN.

Blackburn Linnet Singing Association, club headquarters, Old Red Lion, Snig Brook, Blackburn. Special meeting, October 12th, at 7.30 p.m. Business to consider the date for feather show. The club is also open for new members, hoping our Preston Linnet Fanciers will not forget our open contests.—RD. TASHURST, Secretary.

LEWISHAM.

As usual, at The Coach and Horses, High-street, the birds were on the nail at 7.30 p.m. Five pairs competed, as follows:—Chubb, 1—5, Rohiuson; Nightingale, 2 by 4 versus Price, 6 chalks; C. Austin, 1 by 7, versus Scopstime, 7 chalks; King, 1 by 7, versus Wanstou, nil.

LEEDS.

Linnet singing contest, held at King's Head, Shannon-street, owing to a lot of our bird men being off on a trip into Lincolnshire, catching, there were only 16 birds to sing for three prizes, given by Mr. W. Tillottson: 1, Fisher; 2, Hardcastle; 3, Nicholls. Judges, T. Summers and E. Worth.—T. SUMMERS. Hon. Sec.

ST. ANDREWS.

Held in the Town Hall on October 5th, and although a shade down in entries compared with last year, the quality was all there. Many old and new faces made an appearance to fight their battles for another season. The executive are fortunate in having a splendid hall, which for comfort and light would be hard to surpass. Scotch fanciers were well represented, Norwich were a good show, Borders, Mules, etc., finishing a collection which, for the time of the year, will take some beating. The management throughout was of the highest possible order, affairs being headed by a genuine lover of the feathers in the person of Mr. J. Auchterlonie, who had everything in apple-pie order—catalogues to hand as soon as possible, and everything up-to-date. In the above gentleman the Society have secured an ideal secretary, who spares no trouble to do his duty to perfection. He was ably supported by a willing and working committee—Messrs. Brown, Merritt, Mackie, McIntyre, Ness, jun., Robinson, and Smart—who each carried out their individual duties with a spirit that spelt of hard work. The show was well patronised by fanciers, and also the general public, and we hope to hear that it proved a financial success. Scotch Fancies opened the programme, and were judged by two well-known and highly-respected exponents of the bird of circle. When the names of Messrs. Webster and McLennan appear on a schedule exhibitors know their birds are to be worked up to their utmost, and Saturday was, as usual, a regular field day; every bird was carefully handled, and the individual points of each carefully weighed up before the coveted prize was awarded, with the result that not a single grumble was to be heard after their task was over. In some of the classes birds of exceptional merit were to be found leading, the buff cock exhibited by Mr. Low being of outstanding merit. This bird possesses grand substance throughout, combined with plenty of nerve, rare reach, and good quality of feather. The best hen turned up in a beauty sent by Mr. Ramsay, a marvel for action, and the most determined driving hen I have had the pleasure of handling for some time. A bird always to be found when wanted, very free, possessing good size, and very well up in reach; the only fault anyone could find with her was she is just a little rough yet in feather. She was closely followed in her class by the second, a grand built one, but a shade slower in drive. This was a grand class throughout. The local cup winner was the lic yellow cock the property of Messrs. Brown and Whittit. Another good all-round fancy fer a youngster, it possesses good size and quality, and is well up in action. With a little time this bird should be heard of again. Hyde's special winner was the property of that old fancier, Mr. Pringle, of Selkirk, and his exhibit was a great credit—grand depth throughout, and well cleaned out below, lovely position and style; just inclined at times to raise her head too high was her only fault. As a rule special comment is not made on selling classes, but here they cannot be passed. Breeders in request of stock should give St. Andrews their attention, as many of the birds in the selling classes only wanted to be seen to have found a new owner. Norwich Crests and Crestbreds were under the eagle eye of one of Scotland's oldest and most respected judges of this variety, Mr. H. Moreland, of Falkirk. This variety, for the time of year, was well forward in condition, some birds being in rare bloom. The Plainheads were, indeed, a grand collection. Special note must be taken of the buff cock. What a bird for size! Grandly moulted, lovely quality, free from lacking, and put down in faultless condition. In the Crest section, Crest birds were above the average, and very little to choose between the lot. Crest breeders had a treat when they handled that gem of the breeder's art, Mr. Reid's hen, a bird with a lovely headpiece, grand quality of feather, very heavy rung crest of rare length, coming well to end of beak, and beautifully groomed, with grand substance throughout, lovely type, and finished like a model. This was a very taking exhibit, was awarded the special for best in section, approved her position by being runner up for Hydes Special. Yorkshires, Common Borders, Mules British and Foreign were judged by our old friend, Mr. Patterson (whom I am pleased to say is improving after his late severe illness), in his usual painstaking manner, and his awards on the whole were well received. Borders have a good show all round, the team sent by Mr. C. McKenzie proving that he can still uphold his last year's reputation. He cleverly captured the Special for Best, with his Buff Hen, a beauty put down in raw bloom, just the correct size and teeming with quality, but she must have been hotly pursued by his yellow hen, which is also a good one, but just lacking the sheen of the Buff Yellow Cocks and Buff Cocks, contained some grand conditioned birds, beautifully finished, but some appeared just a shade on the large side, for the majority of the fanciers present, however, when judging it is not what it might be, but what you have in front of you. Yorkshires were a good show, and contained some gems. Mr. Fortune (if I am not mistaken, late of Irish notoriety) now resident in Edinburgh, made himself felt in the cock class, staging a gem of a buff. The winning hen of Mr. Pringle's was also a lengthy bird of good Yorkshire properties, but scarcely so free in position. Common Canary class, which is still included in many Scotch fixtures, always proves a teaser, and this was no exception. Mules contained 16, and were a mixture. The winner was Mr. Ross's Canary bullie, a well-known Scotch face. It was very closely pressed by one of the best yellow mules that has been seen for some time, Edinburgh bred, I believe, and which has now found a new owner in England. Britishers were a grand collection. The winning Linnet was a nice one, although I liked the second as well as anything. The winner on the A.O.V. class was a gem of a pied Wagtail, a large one, beautifully marked, and put down in rare bloom. Foreigners were also grand. SCOTCH YELL. COCK (15): 1, Russell, a stormer, grand size and quality throughout, very free, merry worker, gets quickly into position, plenty of depth across, good exhibit; 2, Auchterlonie, fails in cut a little, but good depth, scarcely so free as winner, nice top end when working, good drive, and nice quality; 3, Rodger, straight sided, and slow a bit in getting to work, nice shape, and good depth; 4, Stenhouse, good all round exhibit; 5 and cup, Brown and Whittit, plenty of substance, just wants a little time to finish; 6, Black, fails in substance. YELLOW PIED (8): 1, Carmyllie, a good one, fine style, and grand top end, nice reach, gets to work very quickly, nice length of side, and good substance; 2, special, Thoms, grand sided bird, but a shade slow in getting head down, a nice mover, lacks the size of winner; 3, Black, nice style, good depth throughout, very taking bird, inclined to be soft when taking notes; 4, Dobson, a large one, nice shaped style; 5, Ramsay, good, but slim; 6, special, Merrilees, a good one, wants time. BUFF (16): 1, special, Low, an easy winner, a beauty for shape, rare shoulders and reach, grand back and side, gets to work freely, nice drive; 2, Rodger, plainner, but good quality throughout, fine length of side, and grand feather, fails in depth across; 3, special, Black, a shade smaller, very tightly got up, grand style, and good worker, beaten in substance only; 4, Allan, good all round exhibit; 5, special, Swinton, again good substance, just fails in style; 6, Maxwell. BUFF PIED (12): 1, Ramsey, plenty of substance, grand depth throughout, well cleaned below, fine side and top end, good free action, and in grand bloom, showing signs of age a little; 2, Buchan, slimer got up, but a good one, rare style, grand free mover, and shows to perfection, beaten only in thickness, a close second; 3, Leslie, plenty of substance, a good worker, fine top end, hardly so good in length of side; 4, Carmyllie, beautiful frame; 5, Pringle; 6, Meckle. GREEN or FOUL (11): 1, McMillan, wins, grand all over, not the largest, but a very taking one, free action, and very stylish, nice quality throughout; 2, Beattie, smaller, but grand style, scarcely so well drawn as winner, but a beauty for quality; 3, Keill, strong, good foul Bull, good thickness, not so free as winners, but will be all there after a little while, fails a little in drive; 4, special, Low, beaten in style, but close up; 5, Wright; 6, Ness. YELL. HEN (14): 1, Pringle, grand bloom and feather, rare depth throughout, well cleaned out, and nice length of side, inclined to raise head at times; 2, Rodger, close up for substance, grand depth throughout, fails a little in position; 3, special, McMillan, good style and position, inclined to be a bit straight on side; 4, Swinton; 5, Merrilees; 6, Stiven. YELL. PIED (17): 1, special, Ramsay, a gem, a stormer for style, free worker and pronounced drive, throws body well back, grand shoulder and reach, scarcely so strong got up as some, and a bit off in feather, yet a bird that should be heard of later on, a gem of the first water; 2, Rodger, a good second, but scarcely so determined in drive, grand substance and quality throughout, in rare bloom; 3, Black, smaller, but grand quality, inclined to be straight sided a bit; 4, Rodger, good side, but lacks style; 5, Jule; 6, Wallace. BUFF HEN (10): 1, Pringle, a bouncer, rare substance and quality throughout, grand depth, fine length of side, nicely rounded shoulders, and fine reach, teaming with quality; 2, Cook, good one, also well up in substance, a shade thin in neck, nice side, and good reach, works well; 3, Ramsay, good style, beaten across for depth, but very finely moulded, a good third; 4, Maxwell; 5, Beach; 6, Keill. BUFF PIED (9): 1, Allan, grand style, rare driver, gets to work freely, nice reachy bird of grand depth, not the largest in class, but well built; 2, C. Viven, a shade stronger, and works well, very free, grand length of side and good driver, scarcely so good on top end; 3, Fotheringham, plenty of action, but small, nice free worker; 4, Millar, larger, but lacks style; 5, Sharp; 6, Gillies Bros. GREEN or FOUL (11): 1, special, Ramsay, head mark, buff, good shape, fine droop, grand shouldered bird, nicely rounded, fine depth across, free in action, in grand trim; 2, special, Pringle, plenty of substance and fine style, very grand length of side, good driver, in rare order; 3, Dobson, good length of side, gets head too high at times, and a little nervous, wants handling a bit, and should make a good one; 4, Merrilees, grand, nice quality throughout, beaten in substance; 5, special, Black; 6, special, Cook. SCOTCH FANCY PAIRS: Cancelled. SELL. COCK, £1 (15): 1, Beattie; 2, special, Gibson; 3, Thoms; 4, special, Merrilees; 5, Ramsay; 6, special, Wilson and Campbell. (7): 1, Chalmers, grand substance, rare colour, deep level tone throughout, well finished, good front, rare back and wing carriage, heads a good class with something in hand; 2, Sharp, bouncing heavy, very grandly fed, not so well finished round neck as winner, good showy exhibit; 3, special, Buglass, nice size and good frame, fails in front to winners, neat wing carriage, and full of vigour; 4, Thomson, smaller in size, but lovely shape, put down in rare trim; 5, Martin. BUFF (15): 1, special, Miller, a clinker, enormous substance and lovely quality of feather, grand shade of colour throughout, splendid body and lovely head, as round as possible, combined with great size, a grand one all over; 2, special, Logan, plenty of length and good feather, lacks the substance of winner, fine wing carriage, good second; 3, Carson, grand bloom and colour, well moulded bird, failing in size only; 4, Cameron; 5, Chalmers; 6, Sharp. YELL. VAR. (5): 1, Martin, foul neck, grand front and style, hot colour, good quality of feather, nicely moulded, grand wing carriage, beautifully finished; 2, Dempster, good colour, very nicely got up, well balanced wings, lacks the substance of winner; 3, Overstone, grand wing carriage, fails a little in front, but well got up, nice size and quality; 4, Pringle; 5, Frazer. BUFF (13): 1, Chalmers, head high, teaming with quality, rare moulded one, fine noble outstanding front, pair of grand wings, in full bloom; 2, special, Dickson, smaller, a little inclined to be low on perch, good body, very fine quality of feather, staged to perfection; 3, Cousins, larger than second, fails in front, a little inclined to be thin, very nice quality of feather; 4, special, Dempster, grand shape, a shade smaller; 5, Pringle; 6, Buglass. CREST (11): 1, Esson, wing mark, plenty of substance, grandly groomed top piece, fine quality of feather, nice radiation; 2, Reid, fine length of crest coming well down, scarcely so large as winner, nicely groomed, good substance; 3, Sharp, inclined to be horny in centre, but well up in length of feather; 4, Wilson; 5, Findlay; 6, special, Shillinglaw. HEN (12): 1, special in section, Reid, a clinker for a lady, lovely crest of great length, beautifully groomed, splendid length of feather, good substance, and rare quality throughout, a bird to be proud of; 2, Watt, beaten but not disgraced, another grand headed bird, again well finished in head gear; 3, Chalmers, grand body, neat crest, but not the length of feather, nice quality throughout; 4, special, Arnott, good substance, nice top piece, scarcely the finish of winners; hc, McNaughton; c, Reid. COCK (11): 1, Arnott, almost a green, rare lashing and splendid entrance, very fine leafy feather of grand length, finely lashed, nice cushioned head, enormous substance of body, a clinking exhibit; 2, Buchanan, a heavy variegated, well up in entrance, grandly lashed, fine cushion, head well carried behind. 3, Smart, nice cushion head, fails in lashing, but grand quality of feather; 4, Esson, clear good head and entrance, well lashed, fails a little in body; 5, special, Arnott; 6, McNaughton. CREST-BRED HEN (7): 1, Esson, clear buff, grandly lashed, very wide entrance, well carried back, plenty of feather and good body, a taking exhibit, staged to perfection; 2, Shillinglaw, another clear, close up, scarcely so wide in entrance, but grand length of feather, beautifully groomed, teaming with quality; 3, Overstone, varicgated, good entrance, fine cushion head, very little behind; 4, McNaughton, nice lashing, fair entrance; 5, Cousins; 6, Buchanan. NON-FED (6): 1, Reid, nice Crest, good top piece, plenty length of feather, very nicely rounded, well up in size, in grand trim; 2, Davidson, large variegated plainhead, grand body and rare feather, splendid front, nicely balanced wings, in fine order; 3, Matheson, clear buff, a shade rough, but plenty of size, beaten in finish; 4, Small; 5, Pringle; 6, Chalmers. SELL. NOR., 10s. (10): 1, Miller and Edie; 2, Davio; 3, Myers; 4, Low; 5, Low; 6, Matheson. YELL. BOR. (14): 1, Reid and Philip, a nice one, fairly rounded and well tapered, nice taking style, grand wing carriage and teaming with quality; 2, special, King, duller colour, a little squarer looking on back, but grand bloom, nice carriage; 3, Hislop, stronger made up, good quality of feather, very nicely rounded, neat carriage, rare style; 4, Hutcheson, uneven yellow, good style, but slim; 5, Craig; 6, Auchterlonie. BUFF (17): 1, Barrie, even buff, good eye marks, nice type throughout, fine carriage, scarcely up in feather yet, well put down, wins easily, although a shade strong; 2, McKenzie, good quality of feather, grand shoulders and nicely tapered, a shade thin in neck; 3, Craig, very stout on body, inclined to be low on perch, gains his position owing to quality of feather, grand finish; vhc, McLean, slim, but good quality; hc Craig; c, Hislop. YELL. HEN (11): 1, McKenzie, a clinker, an easy win here, splendid shaped, as round as possible, grand wing carriage, just the correct size; 2, Barrie, wing rich, fails in finish to winner, scarcely so well rounded, nice size and colour, shows well; 3, Cousins, good stamp, inclined to be short looking, but well shaped, put down in fine order; vhc, Arnott; hc, Craig; c, Hutcheson; all nice shapely birds, but lacking the finish of winners. BUFF HEN (7): 1, special, McKenzie, good clear buff hen, rare feather, teaming with quality, splendid size and beautiful shape, in tip-top form, wins special for best Border; 2, Craig, uneven buff, a good second, grand quality of feather, a shade stouter got up, and hardly so stylish, still a good one; 3, Reid and Philip, clear buff, nice made bird, inclined to draw on front a little, fine carriage, good quality; vhc, Craig, fails to winners in style; hc, Irving; c, Saddler. YORKS. COCK (8): 1, Fortune, clinking fed clear buff, easy win to-day, lovely quality of feather, as straight as a guardsman, grand wing carriage and well drawn, a smart exhibit; 2, Mountain, almost an even buff, fails in front to winner, plenty of length, gets well on leg, nice wing carriage; 3, Fortune, hot fed yellow, a little patchy, but grand length and style, heavily variegated, but when up in condition will probably turn the scales; 4, Fortune, good lengthy uneven, behind in quality; 5, McDougal, slim clear yellow, nice taking one, makes in length; 6, Brown and Whittet. YORKS HEN (7): 1, Pringle, pale colour buff, good length and nice style, just a shade inclined to be feathery in front, with time should made a good one; 2, McDougall, hot fed yellow, slim as you like, regular Yorkshire all over, well drawn and grand style, hardly toned down yet; 3, 5, 6, Fortune, stronger made, but grand position of finish, teaming with quality, taking exhibit, well placed; 4, Officer, cinnamon mark and a good one, fine length and style, worth her place. COMMON CANARY (9): 1, Watson, a strong made Cinnamon; 2, Benzie, a large rough buff uneven, regular typical commoner; 3, Duncan, another strong made uneven; 4, Welsh; c, Martin; 3 and 5 marked w.c., nothing more nor less than Borders. MULE or HYBRID (16): 1, Ross, Canary-Bullie, in good order, nice tone of colour throughout, scarcely so large as some, a little too steady to show to the greatest of advantage, wins to-day; 2, McLennan, clinking Siskin Mule, a bounder for size, grand markings, good solid ground colour, staged in A1 condition; 3, Duncan, a variegated Goldie Mule, good size and neat blaze, a bit behind in condition yet; 4, Beattie, Goldie-Bullie, nice size, good colour, lacking in quality of feather; 5, Chalmers, a varicgated Goldie Mule,; Doolan. LINNET, ETC. (13): 1, Irvine, Linnet, well up in size, good tone of colour, steady, but could be better laced, well staged; 2, Barclay, large well fed Siskin, good cap and rare bib, plenty of lacing, teaming with quality, put down in rare bloom; 3, Brisbane, a Twite, good pencilling and nice size, very nice tone of colour, scarcely tight enough; vhc, Small, Redpoll, plenty of size and well marked; hc, Paton; c, Barclay. BRIT. SMALL. (19): 1, McDiarmid, a clinking Pied Wagtail, a bouncer for size, splendid crescent, lovely sheen on feather, a beauty; 2, Gilmour, Hawfinch, and a good one, nice clean cut bib, deep well-toned colour throughout, splendid markings, nice size; 3, special, Mason, Nuthatch, staged in this exhibition usual faultless manner, nice colour and very steady, grand size and markings; 4, Henderson, Redstart, grand size and in rare bloom, could be better shown, however; 5, 6, Malcolm, Yellowhammer, nice quality of feather, well marked, wants time. FOR. SMALL (14): 1, special, Watson, Paradise Whydah, a well-known winner, looking very fit, put down in faultless style, greatly admired; 2, special, Mason, pair Redhead Gouldians, scarcely up in tail yet, but well up in colour, well shown; 3, special, Irvine, green crested Cardinal, again a little short in feather, coming in grand colour, well staged, a beauty; 4, McDonald, good Bullie, house moulted, grand shape and size; 5, Colville and Son, Yellow Budgerigars; 6, Langlands.

ADMIRAL DUNCAN O.S.

The "Admiral Duncan," Nottingham, Ornithological Society.—The annual Goose Fair Open Show, under C.B.U. rules, was held on October 5th. This Society is an old-established one, and has been held in the same house for a number of years. The host, so well known as the genial "Joe" Goode, is a keen fancier, and this fixture is looked upon as a sort of preliminary canter to the shows of the coming season. It is attended by fanciers from the surrounding district in a serious mood, all looking to see what will have to be reckoned with later on, and many of them ready and willing to put their hands deep down in their pockets if a star may be picked up. But these Notts fanciers are keen old hands, and are not usually to be tempted with filthy lucre. They believe in their birds, and will not entertain the idea of partiug until they have proved them. The entries this year were in some classes meagre, owing, no doubt to the fact that many birds are not yet ready. The Norwich classes introduced us to some "hot uns," and, ye gods, what size! Where are we drifting to in this matter of size? Surely these monsters—almost as large as small pigeons—are not typical Norwich Canaries, and how fast we seem to be losing quality as we race each other for size. If there is not a change in the state of affairs the Norwich show cage will need to be enlarged, or the tenants will be unable to move, even if we succeed in getting them through the doorway. Crests and Crestbreds were not numerous, and not yet at their best, although some very promising birds were put down. Mules were fairly representative, but nothing out of the ordinary. British Hardbills were a fairly strong class. The winning Bramblefinch was as steady as a rock, and in good form. Softbills brought out a sweet Yellow Wagtail and a charming Meadow Pipit. Foreign: the winning Nutmegs appeared to us to be two cocks. The Zebrafinches placed second were one of the finest pairs it has been our lot to meet, the hen in particular being remarkably smart. The show was well attended, and the secretary, Mr. Healey, was attentive to everyone. The Union representative was Mr. W. Roslyn, of Mansfield. Prize list is appended:— YELL. "CAGE BIRDS," 154, Fleet St., London, E.C.

HALIFAX.

Halifax O.S. held their annual open show on October 4th and 5th, in the Talbot Hotel Assembly Room. The Room is a good one, of very fair size, the only drawback being that it is lighted only from one side; thus, when visitors turn up in numbers, the far side of the room is rather too dark to see the exhibits properly. This show opened the season of the Yorkshire Union, and in most classes a very fair entry was obtained. A real good schedule had been provided, specials being offered in all the classes, as well as a good array of extra specials, while the Y.C.C. and the C.M.Y.C.C. patronage had been allotted the show. 20 classes were provided, but out of these six had to be cancelled, including no less than three out of the five open Norwich. Here the members laid the blame on the Cage Bird Union, putting forward as arguments that they knew they could not get sufficient entries from the West Riding districts to fill five Norwich classes, so they had relied upon having the C.B.U. licence, and getting entries from the near Lancashire districts. The total number of exhibitors was 141, and the number of exhibits 397, giving an average of 18 per class on the classes that stood A very large percentage of the birds were not what could be called ready, being short of condition. In a few weeks' time no doubt many of the awards will be altered, backward birds going up over the heads of winners to-day. The quality seemed as high as ever all round, and gave every indication of there being another season of keen competition ahead for lovers of the lengthy ones. The novice classes were very hot, containing many very good birds, well put down—birds that will do well out in the open classes. They have a good lot of officials at Halifax, who stage and look after the birds in first-class style, and in Mr. J. F. Thackray they have a secretary of the correct type,, straight and hard-working, who tries all he knows to make things comfortable and successful. The list of officials is:—President, Mr. A. Ross; vice-presidents, Messrs. H. H. Sutcliffe, H. H. Mitchell, J. Robertshaw, J. H. Greenwood, W. Speak, and S. Howarth; committee, Messrs. B. Benton, B. Garside, H. Whitaker, W. H. Ball, J. H. Greenwood, and G. A. Murgatroyd; with Mr. H. Whitaker as assistant secretary. The judges were Messrs A. Hirst (Accrington) and W. Vardy (Huckuall), and their decisions seemed well received.

DALKEITH.

Dalkeith and Dis. Canary Club Annual Young Bird Show was held on Oct. 5th, in the Corn Exchange. The president, Mr. Smart, and the officials had matters well under control. Entries numbered 309, an advance on last year. The Hall in which the Show was held is large and well lighted, free from draughts. A nice feature of the staging was that, instead of the usual cloth, it was lined with strong white paper, which showed up the exhibits exceedingly well and looked very clean and tidy. The secretary, Mr. Thos. Briggs, who is one of the right sort, was ably assisted by an energetic committee and had everything well in readiness for the judges. The following gentlemen acted in that capacity:—Scotch Fancies—Mr. David Brown (Edinburgh); Borders—Mr. Henry Bennett (Kelso); Norwich, etc.—Mr. James Mason (Peebles). In the Scotch Fancy, although the entries only numbered 42 birds for 12 classes, some grand birds were seen, especially the medal winner belonging to Mr. Johnstone, a bird of grand size and substance. The Borders had eight classes, with an average of 20 per class. There were some very fine quality birds amongst them, but a lot of them had to take a back set, being scarcely through the moult. The medal winner belonged to Messrs. A. and J. Thomson, and was a real good one for type and quality, as was also the Yellow Variety belonging to Mr. Hamilton, the runner up. The Norwich sections had four classes, with an entry of 52. Mr. Wm. MacAdam (Broomicknowe) took premier place with a grand buff hen of good type and quality. A great fault in some of the birds was that they showed too much brow, making them look like crest birds. The Mule Class had some fair birds in it, Mr. Wr. Smart taking both first and second places with two Goldie Mules, which, although on the small side, were of good colour. The British Bird Class had an entry of 21, the winner being a Siskin belonging to Mr. Jas. Pearson, but we would suggest that this class might be divided, making a class for large and one for small British.

SCOTCH FANCIES, YELL. CK.: 1, Noble, good size and substance, fine length of side, good top; 2, Johnstone, fine drive, well up on shoulders, tail well under perch. BUFF: 1 Johnstone, grand bird, fine head, great depth throughout, nice mover; 2, Johnstone, another good one, all there for size, fine position, grand style; 3, Carson, fine erect drive, good shoulders, good length of side; 4, Rowe, good bird; 5, King. YELL. HEN: 1, McVie, sweet bird, good size, fine snaky head, takes position quick, very nervy; 2, Noble, slimmer, fine style, good top end; 3, McAdam, nice one, fine depth of chest, good style. BUFF: 1, Johnstone, grand hen, good style and reach, very fine and shapely; 2, Johnstone, good shape and drive and plenty top; 3, no name, nice model, plenty size and reach 4, Jardine, plenty size; 5, Carson.. YELL. PIED COCK: 1, Jardine, good top and reach, nice size; 2, Carson, hardly so big, but size very shapely; 3, Noble, good model, plenty size and reach; 4, Noble, large bird, of good substance; 5, McVie. BUFF: 1, King, winner nice size and shape, good length; 2, Carson, large and well shaped, nice top; 3, Rowe, good build and size. YELL. PIED HEN: 1, Briggs, very shapely hen, full of quality, wins; 2, Carson, another nice hen, but not quality of winner. BUFF PIED HEN: 1, Beveridge, nice size and shape, good length and nice head; 2, Beveridge, large and well shaped; 3, Carson, good build and size; 4, Noble, very smart; 5, Carson; 6, Rowe; 7, King. FOUL COCK: 1, Noble, nice size, good top and reach; 2, McVie, good shape and drive. HEN: 1, Johnstone, shapely hen, nice head, good top; 2, McAdam, another shapely hen, nice length. GREEN COCK: 1, no name, good size, neck and top full of life. GREEN HEN: 1, Jas. Noble, large hen of great substance and quality; 2, John Noble, good shape and drive, and plenty top; 3, Rowe, nice hen, very shapely, fine size; 4, Beveridge, plenty size. BORDERS, CLR. OR TKD. YELL. COCK: 1, McAdam, neat and compact, excellent carriage, fine quality; 2, no name, well rounded head, good style, a little open in feather; 3, Thomson, well set bird, good fitting wings and tail; 4, Thomson, very typical, nice feather; 5, McAdam; 6, Thomson; 7, Ewing. HEN: grand colour, nice quality, and the best of type; 2, Hamilton, lighter build, well set up, full of quality, nice taper; 3, Bickerstaff, very nice quality, fine carriage good finish; 4, Bickerstaff, nice condition, good type; 5, Hamilton; 6, McAdam; 7, Ewing. BUFF COCK: 1, Thomson, large buff, thick set, nice feather, good wing carriage, grand condition; 2, Thomson, very neat feather, finely tapered, good condition; 3, Linton, very nice bloom and condition; 4, Pearson, good type, nice quality of feathers; 5, Linton; 6, Smart; 7, Thomson. YELL VAR.: 1, Hamilton, lightly variegated, sweet hen, best of feathers and condition, wins easily; 2, Thomson, stronger bird, but good quality of feather and condition; 3, Thomson, nice shape, well finished, nicely tapered; 4, Hamilton, good type, rare quality, nice carriage; 5, McAdam; 6, Ewing; 7, Briggs. BUFF VAR.: 1, 2, 3, 4, Thomson, 1—really good type, nice quality of feather, grand condition, 2—very neat feather and carriage, 3—nice close feathered bird, good finish. 4. —good type; 5, Muir; 6, Noble; 7, Thomson. EVEN MKD.: 1, very good four pointed Yellow, nice type, good condition; 2, Noble, good feather; 3, Bickerstaff, better type, but fails slightly in markings; 4, no name, nice quality of feather and condition; 5, Sinclair; 6, Briggs. GREEN OR CINN.: 1, Thomson, the best in colour throughout, fine type and condition; 2, Thomson, another of the same, shows itself well; 3, Thomson, huff, not so good colour, but nice lacing; 4, Carson, a Cinnamon, fine colour and lacing; 5, Pearson; 6, Flockhart; 7, Pearson. NOR. YELL. COCK.: 1, Sinclair, fine type, nice wing carriage, grand size and quality; 2, Bilton, larger bird, good exhibit, not so good in finish, but will improve; 3, Smart, nice soft feather, well fed; 4, Nisbit, nice feather, good bird; 5, Pearson; 6, Nisbit; 7, McAdam. HEN: 1, McAdam, on the small side, grand quality, nice shape and colour, well fed; 2, Sinclair, larger bird, good head and quality, nice wing carriage; 3, Sinclair, heavily vari., grand type and quality; 4, Bolton, nice quality; 5, Berridge; 6, Sinclair. BUFF COCK: 1, Sinclair, grand size and colour, fine head and neck; 2, Smart, good size and colour, but too much browed; 3, no name, grand head and neck, tip top colour, fine wing carriage; 4, Beveridge, another good bird; 5, McAdam; 6, Sinclair; 7, Beveridge. BUFF NOR. GLOUCESTER & DISTRICT C.B.S.

Meeting held October 3rd, Mr. G. Gwilliam in chair. Mr. J. H. Payne read a paper, which was much appreciated, on "Canaries of all Varieties," dealing with their good and bad points, and giving advice in selecting their breeding stock, etc.—J. HOUGHTON, Sec.

DULWICH AND PECKHAM C.B.S.

At headquarters on September 26th, some 40 members and friends met to witness an exhibition in washing Yorkshires by Mr. H. E. Tringham. Mr. G. F. Woolhouse, who was in the chair, in calling upon Mr. Tringham, said there was no need for him to introduce that gentleman, as he was already well known to them all, both as a vice-president of the Society and as an exhibitor of Yorkshires. Mr. Tringham was accorded a splendid reception from the company, and at the close received a hearty vote of thanks.—W. H. HODSON, Hon. Sec.

HASTINGS C.B.S.

The Migration of Birds formed the subject of a lecture given by Mr. W. F. Field, at a meeting of the Hastings Cage Bird Society, held at the Royal Oak Hotel on Thursday evening. There was a very good attendance of members, presided over by Mr. T. G. Coombes. The lecturer dealt with a few of the many feathered visitors to this district year after year to enjoy the genial climate. The visitors he was going to deal with were "cheap trippers," those who indulged in mixed bathing, courted and married, and brought up their offspring, and on the approach of cold weather returned to a much warmer country. These were his feathered friends, and he took a keen interest in their migration, their ways and habits. The lecturer pointed out the time of the arrival and departure of birds, and showed several stuffed specimens, which added to the interest of the lecture. He also pointed out the colours of the birds, and how they could be distinguished by their songs, nests, number and colour of eggs laid, etc.

OUR COUPON PRIZES.

How to Supplement your Prize Money.

A word to intending exhibitors at shows where our coupon scheme and great £200 prize competition is in force, will now be timely and needed. If you are entering a bird or two for a coupon show (look down the coupon show list)—why not run a double-barrelled chance by paying just another sixpence to us for a coupon? This little sixpence may be the means of bringing you in an additional 10s. 6s., or 4s. Remember your bird need not be a topper to stand a chance for our prizes. We are not offering prizes for the best three birds, as some people may think, but for the best first prize bird, the best second prize, and the best third. So that if your exhibit only secures a third, it may still stand a chance of winning the 10s. If it does not win an ordinary cash prize at all it may still win one of our prizes. Where there are no first or second prize birds entered for our scheme (and it is quite possible at many shows there won't be) this is more than likely.

Exhibitors must not run away with the idea that this is a competition for the cracks. It is not, The novice has just as much opportunity. Now run your eye down our coupon list, and post off your application to us for coupons right away.

Coupons are ready for any show on our list of coupon shows. If you don't use them at the show they still have a cash value. (See rules.) But we want the scheme to be a bumping success. If it is, exhibitors will benefit, the societies will benefit, and we shall benefit. It will be a good thing all round. Think how annoyed you will be if your bird wins an ordinary prize and is defeated in our coupon scheme by another bird immeasureably its inferior. This is certain to happen if you don't buy your coupons and safeguard yourself right away. 6d. a coupon—for each bird at each show. Prizes 10s., 6s., 4s., surplus divided amongst the participating societies.

Entries are not coming up to our expectations in this coupon scheme, especially at the shows where leaflets only have to be inserted. Everyone is afraid that everyone else has entered. We have decided to supply coupons up to within 36 hours of entries being finally closed.

UNDER THE WHITE ROSE.

THE lecture by Mr. Chittenden before the members and friends of the Bradford East O.S., on "British Birds," proved most interesting, the subject being handled in a masterly manner. Mr. Chittenden dealt principally with the Finch tribe, giving in a racy style the sexual differences of the Goldfinch, Linnet, etc., also explaining the various types, and giving reasons why certain types are to be preferred for muling and showing. He also gave his ideas upon the style and breed of Canary to be used for Mule breeding, as well as his system of gathering the wild seeds to be used for preparing his birds for exhibition and breeding. This was Mr. Chittenden's first attempt at lecturing, and he is to be congratulated on its success. A hearty vote of thanks to the lecturer closed a most enjoyable evening.

BRADFORD City O.S. held a most successful members' show on Saturday evening, October 5th, over 70 birds being staged, and amongst them many of exceptional merit.

HALIFAX O.S. Show, held on Friday and Saturday last, could not be called a great success, as no less than six classes had to be cancelled owing to insufficient entries; four of these were in the Norwich section, and the classes left standing herein were only poorly patronised. The Yorkshires came up in fair good numbers, with the exception of, perhaps, the Cinnamon Marked Yellows, which class only contained seven entries. The Novice Yorkshires made a fine display, some birds of exceptional merit being staged in this section—in fact many of them would have won in the open classes. On the Saturday afternoon a very large number of visitors attended, and the gate-money, in addition to the percentage from sales, will probably put the financial side of the show "right side up."

BRADFORD and County B.B. and M.C. patronage has being given to Harrogate C.B.S., Leeds C.B.S., Brighouse and District C.B.S., Great Horton O.S., Shipley O.S., and City of Bradford C.B.S., in addition to Otley (October 19th), and Windhill, who hold their show on Saturday next (October 12th).

CORRESPONDENCE.

EGGS IN SEPTEMBER.

Going One Better.

SIR,—Seeing in CAGE BIRDS about eggs in September, I may say I have eggs in October. I have two hens that laid in September, one laid four eggs and one five. On September 8th I found eight eggs in the cage the two birds were in, on September 9th I found another, and on September 22nd I found another in the same cage. I then put one hen in another cage, to see which hen laid, but no other eggs were laid until October 3rd, 4th, and 5th, and the hen is in the moult. J. W. COCKER.

SCOTTISH BRITISH BIRD AND MULE CLUB MEDALS.

SIR,—"A Member" has struck the nail on the head. I have authentic word that the meeting at Kirkcaldy was wrought by a clique. Mr. W. W., of Leith, acting the part of spokesman. The wise men have at last managed to disestablish the S.B.B. and M.C. I consider that the refusal of medals to such societies as that of Bathgate and Hamilton is a bit shabby, and very low indeed, especially when it emanates from a division that claim to call themselves fanciers. I am acquainted with a number of fanciers that have tendered their resignations, and I herewith publicly tender mine.

W. JOHNSTONE.

SIR,—The attitude taken up by this club regarding medals is perhaps the most remarkable thing about the conflict between the members. It certainly is a very strong grievance, more so, when such societies a Bathgate and Hamilton, which give such good classification, have to stand down for lesser shows with smaller classifications. It used to be the boast of the members to support such societies as gave most classes. I am afraid they have departed from this. Your correspondent, "A Sweet Briar," says "let the medals go round." So say I. Does he contend that giving medals for two societies in one place is going round, thus depriving some other society in another part of the country of the patronage? Surely there is something wrong. I venture to assert it savours of a clique at work. So this year will end my membership.

ANOTHER MEMBER.

SIR,—In my last letter I spoke of the rotten and chaotic state of the above club. The letters appearing since then have thrown no further light on the matter, but have had a tendency to strengthen my conviction. Your correspondent, Mr. Arrighi, says "attend meetings and vend your grievances." I make bold to say that I have attended as many meetings as Mr. Arrighi, but on this occasion I found it inconvenient. Still, my presence would hardly have made any difference—it requires numbers to break up a clique. With regard to "A Sweet Briar" stating that the club is making good progress: Does fourteen members present at Kirkcaldy meeting constitute a strong and healthy club, and about a dozen all in the one swim at that? Anent Rule 11, may you break it as often as you have done formerly? He also states "Let the Medals go Round." Does he consider granting two societies in Glasgow (one with a credit balance of over £100, the other nothing) medals, "letting things go round?" A MEMBER.

INTERESTING EXPERIENCES OF AN AMATEUR BIRD LOVER.

SIR,—I am a great lover of birds, and have kept several, all of which were extremely tame. My first pet was a hen Greenfinch-Canary, she was quite a baby when I had her, and perfectly tame from the first. Every morning she was let out of her cage while we dressed; after a fly round she did her best to drown herself in our hand-basin, though she had a bath of her own. Once she slipped in and as the water was deep, would have been drowned, only I fished her out just in time. Our bare feet interested her very much, and she would hop round the room and peck at them. We even couldn't do our hair in peace, for she would sit on my head and pull my hair with all her might. I always sifted the large stones out of the sea sand before putting it in Dick's cage. One day I was away, so my mother cleaned out the cage, but did not sift the sand. Half an hour later, all the stones were found lying round the cage, and Greenie was sitting proudly on her now nice smooth sand. But funnier still, was my Blackbird, who was playful as a kitten; he would run all round the room after a piece of string drawn across the floor, and try to fly off with it. Nothing that he could carry away was safe from him. If I sat down to write or draw, he would take my india rubber, pencil, etc., and drop them over the side of the table, listening with a chuckle of delight to the clatter they made on the floor. He always got very excited if he found a little bottle. One day he found one full of Iodine, and pulled the cork out, spilling the nasty stuff all over himself, he had a fit after that, so he let the bottles alone as rather spiteful things to play with. He simply adored a bath, anywhere where he could get water he was happy. He liked to be stroked, and his favourite place was on my shoulder or lap, here he would nestle down and go to sleep. He always came when you called him, even if he was at the top of the house. He was kept in a place outdoors when he was shut up, and one sad day our dear old Pip was stolen, and we never saw him again. I have just had a hen Thrush die which was in perfect health in the morning, but towards the afternoon I noticed her sitting on the floor of the cage with her eyes half closed (her feathers perfectly smooth though), and wondered what was the matter with her. I took her out of the cage, and put her in a warm cloth, but she very soon died, after a slight struggle, in the cloth I found one of the scales off the slank part of her leg. Have enclosed scale for you to see. Does anyone think this was the cause of death? I have heard of Thrushes casting their scales off their legs, and in every case it caused death, but did not believe it before. E. M. PALMER.

A MISTAKEN IMPRESSION.

SIR,—Being under the impression that if any feathers were plucked from a bird they would not grow again until the moult, thought the following case might be of some interest. I have a Golden-breasted Bunting from Africa which has now been in my possession for about nine months, and on September 8th I caught him in my hand to examine him for red mite, as he had been ailing for a day or two. He once struggled slightly to escape and when I returned him to his cage I was surprised to find every feather of his tail left behind in my hand, which, to the say the least of it, was annoying, as I had already entered him for a show. In about a week I noticed new tail feathers in the bird, and by September 20th the tail was fully grown again; not a single feather having been moulted in the meantime. Is this usual in all birds, or have only certain species this peculiarity? I may mention the bird soon regained his health by putting him on to plain Canary seed and giving him a liberal supply of fresh ants' eggs. COLONIST.

Parrot Taught by a Phonograph.

SIR,—Having read correspondence on this subject I would like to give my experience with one of those Parrots. I purchased it quite young, and after a few weeks it became so tame that I allowed it to fly in and out of the cage, in fact it used to follow us wherever we went. When less than a year old it commenced to talk. It did not say many words, but what it did say was spoken very distinctly. Having read in CAGE BIRDS that it was possible to teach them by a phonograph, I purchased one, and amongst my records was one entitled "Beautiful Birds Sing On," also a cornet solo; in a few days it could imitate either of these in such a way that surprised us all; it would carry the tunes through after a little time without the aid of the phonograph. The bird was a great favourite with us all. It could, moreover, not only whistle, talk and sing, but scream. The noise was simply deafening when it commenced, and it would sometimes carry on this for hours. At last I sold it to a farmer who lived in a place with no other neighbours within a couple of miles, it drove the old farmer to drink. It changed hands several times, and the last I heard of it was it was in a menagerie —Bostock and Wombwells.' We were all sorry to part with such an intelligent bird, and would like to get another if I thought it possible to cure it from the hideous screaming. J. TRELEASE.

SIR,—I have taken your interesting paper since the commencement, and always read it with great pleasure. I keep, and have always kept all sorts of birds. Now I have a Quaker, which I have had for fourteen years, and it is the best and plainest talker (barring Greys and Amazons) I have ever had, and he knows every word I say to him. When I go into the room in the morning, he says: "Good morning, dear papa; how do you do? Give me a kiss; come on, come on." I open the cage door and he comes on my shoulder, and is talking to me until half past ten. He talks very distinctly, and he says nearly 100 words. I walk in the garden, and on the front of the house, with the bird on my shoulder. If anybody attempts to touch me, while there, he flies straight to their cheeks and bites them. Even my wife dare not touch me; he has bitten her twice on the cheek. He very rarely squalls or makes unpleasant noises. He imitates my Lark and Chaffinch to perfection. JNO. MARTEN.

SOME STRAY NOTES ON FOREIGN BIRDS.

On Taking Indoors.

SIR,—A few rambling notes just as they come to mind about the foreign bird section of the fancy may not prove out of place at this time. Just now there will be several momentous questions exercising the mind of the beginner. One of the foremost will be about the desirability of restraining the breeding proclivities of his birds. This is always rather a troublesome question for the novice, for the simple reason that one cannot interfere and separate the sexes as is generally done with Canaries and British birds. But as long as the weather keeps mild and temperate, as it has been during the past month, there is really no necessity for one to take matters into one's own hands and endeavour to frustrate the birds' natural desires. That there is a certain amount of risk to be run at this time of the year when the weather may very suddenly become severe, is not denied, but even this risk is not more serious than that likely to result from interference. Therefore, it will be far better to let Nature run its course, and devote one's energy to extemporising some form of temporary protection, or shelter from winds and rain and the weather generally, and then trust to luck to bring one through without loss.

Something in the same strain will also apply to bringing birds indoors from open-air aviaries, with the additional remark that close observation of the birds themselves should be carried on, and the apparent discomfort or otherwise of the individual birds should be the key to the proper time for bringing them indoors. There are so many local considerations affecting this matter that it would be simply impossible to lay down any hard and fast rule for the observance of everyone, and, at the same time, it would be folly to submit any valuable birds to any test of hardihood by leaving them out until some specified time, no matter whether they belong to a species of reputed hardiness or not. All individuals are not alike in any species, which is a point that cannot be too strongly impressed upon the beginner.

AN AVIARIST.

THE TREATMENT OF FRESH CAUGHT BIRDS.

SOME POINTS OF IMPORTANCE.

SIR,—Already the management of newly-caught birds is becoming a seasonable topic; more's the pity. The pity, of course, is that in many cases the birds are caught too early to get accustomed to the diet of caged birds, and the consequent loss of a large number of specimens which might have made fine cage birds had they retained their liberty a few weeks longer is inevitable. The surest means of preventing this loss is for the owner to lay in a good supply of wild seeds of the kinds most suitable for the variety of birds one is intending to handle, and use them liberally until the birds that are caught before the moult is over are completely moulted. If these seeds can be gathered fresh as required, so much the better, and never attempt to clear away any green-fly from the seed-stalk, nor larvæ from obviously worm-eaten heads. Give them as they are gathered; the birds will relish them better, and derive infinitely more benefit from them than from any kind of picked, screened, and doubly-cleaned seeds. The best kinds to gather for particular birds should be known to attentive readers of CAGE BIRDS now. To a certain degree it is waste of time to gather docks and sorrels for Goldies or Greypates, but the Bullfinches will prefer them before all else. Similarly, almost each species has its especial favourite seeds. Another point of importance is that newly-caught native birds should on no account be transferred immediately from their life in the open air to a close, warm—or, as it may be termed, a snug—kitchen or artificially heated bird-room at this season. With very few exceptions British birds are at all times better in a normal temperature. But the sudden change from the natural form of existence to the artificial is very apt to form a brief prelude to the supernatural, so far as fresh-caught birds are concerned. Although a bad master heat may be made into a very good servant. Here's a case in point. Where the small foreign Waxbills are moulting late, and failing to renew their plumage satisfactorily, and also in the case of all newly-purchased small foreign birds which are very bare, keep them warm. That is, keep the temperature up to about 60 degrees for a time until the birds are in perfect feather, when it may be gradually reduced again to somewhere between 45 and 50, which should be ample heat for the remainder of the winter. Birds that got stuck in the moult should also be treated on these lines, though with an early beginning and a spell of fair weather at the close, there should be few cases of this kind to deal with.

THE CAGE BIRD UNION.

Union Shows are open to all.

SIR,—There still seems to be some doubt in the minds of the show secretaries as to accepting entries for their shows. Will you please announce and print it big, that ENTRIES CAN BE ACCEPTED FROM ANY EXHIBITOR, whether a member of a society affiliated to the Union or not, provided he is not under suspension. It is of course understood that show committees have the right to reject any entries they think proper. This is provided for in the Union's Show Rules, No. 5. GEO. W. F. LYTHGOE.

THE SMALLEST EVER SEEN.

SIR,—I am enclosing the smallest egg I have ever seen. It was laid by my hen Bullfinch paired with a cock Greenfinch. I had two nests of clear eggs and of normal size, but the one enclosed I found at the bottom of their flight. Thinking it might be of interest I have sent it for your inspection. T. B. MARES.

[We looked eagerly for the tiny egg our correspondent mentions. When a first search failed to reveal it we looked more eagerly still—"it must be a midget," we thought. But though we looked high and low, and pressed the sub-editor's 40 horse-power pocket magnifier into service, the whereabouts and exact size of that egg still remain a mystery. Whether it "slipped its moorings" in the post, or accidentally fell into the capacious maw of the waste-paper basket, we know not.—EDITOR.]

A CANARY BREEDER'S SUCCESS.

One Hundred and Fifty Young from Fifteen Hens.

SIR,—I find that my success in breeding has been about as good as anyone's, but I did not enter into your competition, although I am a regular reader of CAGE BIRDS. I had one hen rear nineteen grand youngsters in four nests. Altogether I have reared 150 from 15 hens, the 16th hen died, and I had three youngsters from her. I mostly let the cocks remain with hens to rear, and as soon as old birds want them gone I hang in a nursery in front of cage. I have even taken nest before youngsters were fledged and placed in nursery, and they have come on grand. The old birds often come on to nest and are glad enough to have them out of the way. Mr. Broome's lecture was very instructive for young or old fanciers. I had to read it over more than once, as I am deeply interested in Yorkshires. J. THOMAS (Bugle).

CLASSIFICATION AT SHOWS, ETC.

An Appeal for the Hybrid Section.

SIR,—Now that the shows will soon be in full swing, I should esteem it a favour if you will insert in your next issue the following:—Having received several schedules I again notice many classes amalgamated, and societies not catering for Mule and Hybrid breeders. Seeing the great efforts now being made by breeders in this department of the fancy, and the large number exhibited at the shows last season, surely we should have a class for Mules and another for Hybrids, and not Canaries, Mules and Hybrids all in one class. Where is the encouragement to persevere for rare Hybrids if a separate class cannot be provided? It is not a fair run to the Canary exhibitor, neither to the Mule nor Hybrid enthusiast. Many will not exhibit at shows where such classes are so amalgamated. Instead of having three classes well filled, it often results in cancelling, or the one class is often a poor one. Then, again, we have at most shows only half prize money on eight entries. Surely that number should command full prize money, or, as the saying goes, "The game is not worth the candle," seeing the 50 per cent. extra on cage birds to and from the exhibitions. Another thing I should like to mention is, some societies omit to state in schedule at the week-end shows when the birds will be despatched, consequently much extra trouble is caused not knowing whether they left on the Saturday night or were detained until the Monday morning. Again, the cards placed on front of the cage are a great eyesore; say there are two firsts and special, they almost hide the bird from view. Cannot more societies follow the plan of the Manchester and Northern Counties O.S. by placing gum labels showing awards on woodwork of cage, sending prize card when remitting prize money. I shall be pleased to hear what others have to say on these important points.

PRESENTATION TO MR. THOMAS SMITH.

SIR,—Will you kindly state in CAGE BIRDS, which is weekly growing in favour with fanciers, that the following subscriptions have been received:—Mr. John Moor Crossmyloof, 10s. 6d.; Mr. F. Carl, Editor of CAGE BIRDS, 10s. 6d.; Mr. L. W. Bean, Editor of "Fanciers' Review," 10s. 6d.; Mr. Bullions, Glasgow, 5s.; Mr. Dobson, Galashiels, 2s. 6d.; A. Bowie, Kilmarnock, 2s. 6d. A circular has been posted to each member of National Derby Association. It may not be known to all that Mr. Smith undertakes the duties of this society without remuneration, and we are all desirous that all members may assist us in making this presentation something of note. We shall be pleased to hear from the Derby members. All subscriptions will be duly acknowledged. The list closes on Oct. 20th.

MR. CLARK'S RETIREMENT.

SIR,—I would like Mr. Wood to understand that I only asked for my rights. I won three prizes and they would only give me one. As for all Leeds knowing I have only been a fancier for four years, I hung my first Linnet at a contest at the King's Head in 1892, when Mr. Johnson was the proprietor, and I defy any man to contradict this. J. CLARK.

SIR,—I think that Mr. Wood should not talk about Mr. Clark only having been in the fancy for four years, as I have known Mr. Clark twelve years, and he has had some very good birds. Mr. Wood, however, should think that he is only a recruit in bird singing. I have never known him to have a good bird yet. T. SUMMERS.

WHY DID SHE DO IT?

SIR,—Having taken your paper for a considerable time, I thought it might interest your readers to send the following: I noticed rather a remarkable incident in my foreign bird aviary this last week. In the outside flight I have a large dish, which is always kept full of water for the birds' bath, the aviary consists of Rosellas Cockatels, Blue Wings, and Yellow and Green Budgerigars; one half of the ground is covered with grass, the other pebbles and sand, etc, and for some time I have been at a loss to tell how the bath got half full of pebbles, until last Sunday my daughter drew my attention to a Yellow hen Budgerigar carrying pebbles for a considerable distance, and dropping them into the water; some were so large that after carrying for some distance it could not possibly put them over the edge of pot, or get upon the edge, but tried over and over again. I cannot understand this performance, unless it is to make the water shallower, seeing it is rather deep for the Budgerigars. Can you, or any reader suggest any other motive?

J. SMITH.

HEATING APPARATUS REQUIRED.

SIR,—I have observed the letter of Mr. C. Elegans, and wish to emphasise the importance of his remarks with reference to the necessity for "an outlet pipe for fumes," which should be fixed in some such way as he suggests. Under no circumstances should you be prevailed upon to buy or place in your bird room, any stove or apparatus in which fuel is burnt, if there is not provision for the exit of the produce of combustion out of the room into the open air or into a chimney. I can assure readers of this paper that it is no fad, but that he is in strict accordance with the teaching of science. By analysis it is found that ordinary paraffin contains 85 per cent. of carbon, coke 91, some kinds of coal 94, and coal gas almost 50 per cent. Every atom of carbon in above mentioned kinds of fuel unites during combustion with two atoms of oxygen and forms carbon dioxide. Carbon dioxide is a colourless gas, possessing a slightly pungent smell and acid taste. It is the choke-damp which is produced in mines by explosion, and which in that event is the cause of the suffocation of the men after the explosion. If this gas is given off into the room so as to give six to seven parts to 10,000 of the air, it is not fit for bird or animal to breathe in that room for any length of time. If any reader has what is called a slow combustion stove such as the Tortoise, never allow the top to become red-hot, because at the temperature at which the iron is red, it is in such condition as to allow a gas known as carbon monoxide to pass through into the room. This gas has a most fatal effect on the lungs, is a very poisonous gas, as it combines with the haemogloben of the blood, and when very small quantities are inhaled giddiness and insensibility occur, and in a short time, death. It is said that the poisonous nature of this gas was understood as early as 1716.

A WELL-KNOWN SCOTTISH SECRETARY.

Mr. Thomas Auchterlonie.

We have much pleasure in reproducing the portrait of Mr. Thomas Auchterlonie, the hon. secretary and treasurer of the St. Andrew's O.S., a position he has filled, with much acceptance, for a period of six years, during which time the St. Andrew's Society has prospered exceedingly. He became a member in 1901, was appointed a member of the committee during the same year, and in the year following, on the retirement of the then secretary and treasurer, he was, with great unanimity, appointed to the honourable position which he has filled with every satisfaction since.

As a proof of the good and hard work he has accomplished during his term of this office, it may be said, that the membership has been trebled, in fact more; that the list of the Society's patrons has also been very largely increased; also the number of entries for the Society's annual show. All these improved circumstances are due, and owing in a very great measure to his zeal and enthusiasm in the cause.

Mr. Auchterlonie has had some seven years' experience as a keeper and breeder of birds, and during that period has been more than ordinary successful, having bred not a few very good Scotch fancies, which have in their time done a fair amount of winning for their owner. This year he has been fortunate in rearing thirteen young ones, nine of which are off the father of the famous Yellow Pied hen belonging to Mr. Ramsey, of Gayfort, Fifeshire, their mother being off the good buff pied cock, belonging to the same gentleman, and these birds are shaping very well indeed. Mr. Auchterlonie does not confine himself to one variety alone, having kept and bred also Norwich, Yorkshires, and Borders.

We have visited St. Andrew's Show for a number of years, and there have had the pleasure of meeting Mr. Auchterlonie, and of personally witnessing the great success which has attended his efforts. We can also bear testimony to his great affability and courtesy to all, which, in no small measure, accounts for the prosperity of his society. As secretary we can most assuredly say he is the right man in the right place, and we hope that the same success will attend him in the future as in the past, and that his committee will continue to do all they can to assist so faithful and willing a worker, as he is deserving of every encouragement.

That they appreciate fully what he has already accomplished for the society is amply evident from the fact that after last year's show, which, it may be mentioned was the society's greatest financial success, they presented him with a handsome marble timepiece as a token of their respect and in recognition of his work.

LANCASHIRE CLASSES AT DULWICH AND PECKHAM SHOW.

SIR,—Will you kindly allow me a short space in your "Go-a-head CAGE BIRDS" to plead for the support of Lancashire exhibitors at the above show. The committee have kindly made two classes and offered four prizes and four specials. These two classes being guaranteed by two of their warm-hearted members, I am presenting a very nice medal to be won by exhibitor gaining most points other than myself. I do most earnestly ask any fancier who possibly can enter a few Lancashires to do so, and thus assist me in making this most handsome bird popular down South. Again thanking you for your kind support in the past.

F. J. GREEN.

"STAMP FOR REPLY."

SIR,—At different times I have noticed in your esteemed journal complaints from advertisers who have had birds or other articles for sale therein, that people have written asking for particulars of the goods advertised, and have neglected to enclose stamp for reply. Now, my complaint is the other way about. During the last month I have written one of the largest advertising dealers in the Midlands, asking particulars of things he had for sale, enclosing stamped addressed envelope for reply, but up to now I have not received a reply. Three more I have written to in Nottingham, enclosing stamped addressed envelope, also one in Scotland, with the same result in each case. Why do they advertise if they won't answer inquiries? Their advertisement appears every week, so they cannot say they have sold out. It is a million pounds to a hayseed the letters have not gone astray. I think it is a great injustice to inquirers, and the least they can do is to be courteous.

ANNOYED.

ELGIN BREEDING RESULTS.

SIR,—Having a few hours to spare, I went round to a few of the fanciers here, and nearly every one has the same tale about it being a bad season. Two or three have had fair luck, Mr. Lumsden being top with 45 young Norwich from eight hens, and only had two rounds. He has a few good ones. One Buff cock is just the right stamp of a Norwich, and should do well on the show bench. Mr. R. Garden has reared over 30 Norwich from seven hens, and has some very promising birds, one Clear and one Yellow Variegated, both being grand birds. Mr. Gunner has also 30 from 8 hens, including a few Scotch Fancies, and has some very good ones amongst them. Mr. Barber has 15 from 4 hens; Mr. P. Garden 14 from 5 hens; Mr. McBain 8 from 3 hens; Mr. McDonald 6 from 3 hens; Mr. Murray 6 from 2 hens, and our old friend Mr. Minnie says this has been the poorest season since he started some 45 years ago. In former years he could always show anyone 40 to 50 young birds, including Mules. He has bred some very good birds in his time. Only last year he had a fine Linnet-Bullfinch, a grand bird, one light Goldfinch-Canary, and three Siskin-Canary Mules. We wish Mr. Minnie, along with the rest, better luck next season.

THE YOUNG NATURALIST.

Prizes of 1s. and two of 6d. each will be given for respectively the best and two second best cuttings of original bits about birds. Competitors must be children under sixteen years of age. All efforts must be briefly and clearly written, and ON ONE SIDE OF THE PAPER ONLY.

Two stars indicate the Winning Contribution; one star the runners up.

M. Scarborough and Myra Stock send poetry, which is very pretty, but so many verses take up too much room in Uncle Peter's corner, which is always overful.

Emily Ketley found a Robin's nest in her garden, and made friends with the young birds when they hatched out. James Forrester tells how he caught a beautifully-spangled Starling, by means of some limed twigs. But the Sparrows were much too wily to get caught.

*The Swallow which was not easily frightened.

One day as I was going out for a walk, I came to a bridge under which flowed a peaceful little stream. When I was looking over the bridge I saw a great number of Swallows flying to and fro. I also saw a Swallow sitting on some railings close by the stream. Of course I tried to frighten it away, but to my surprise it would not go. I advanced two or three steps towards it, but still it would not fly away. At last I walked up to it, and put my hand out to catch it, but when I was about six inches from it, the artful Swallow flew away.—R. T. WRIGHT (age 13), 4, Stuart-road, King-street, Norwich.

The Cruel Rook.

My father has a lot of Canaries, Finches, and Mules. One day this summer I was out with him pulling dandelion heads and shepherd's purse, when we saw a Rook battering away at something on the ground, and two Thrushes flying about making an awful noise. My father ran to see what the Rook was doing, when it flew away with something in its beak. When my father came back he told me the place was lying thick with feathers, and the Rook had killed a young Thrush which I thought was very cruel of the Rook.—W. BISHOP (age 10), 140, Main Street, St. Ninians, Stirling.

*The Beautiful Kingfisher.

This beautiful bird is not much larger than the Swallow and frequents the banks of rivers and feeds on fish which it catches in surprising numbers. It is almost constantly in action, and takes its prey by balancing itself at a certain distance above the water for a considerable space, then darting into the deep and seizing the fish with certainty. This bird lays from five to nine eggs, and builds its nest by the river side or in the deserted hole of a rat. During the season of incubation the male brings the female large quantities of fish. She is generally fatter at that time than any other. The young are hatched at the end of twenty-one days incubation, but do not acquire the beauty of their plumage in perfection till after their first moulting season.—H. HAMMOND (aged 13), 39, Bath Street, Leamington Spa.

A Venerable Canary.

Mr. M'Cormack, baker, Burnbank, Hamilton, last week found that his pet Canary had died overnight. He had had it since June, 1885, so that the little feathered fellow was in his 23rd year.—Cutting from "Glasgow Citizen."—Sent by Mr. G. CARRICK.

Looking Backward.

Some Rambling Thoughts on the Norwich Fancy.

By C. A. HOUSE.

It is now twenty-seven years ago that I exhibited my first Norwich Canary, and during the whole of my career as an exhibitor, no matter what other varieties came and went, I always had a few good Norwich in my bird-room. Twenty-five years is a big slice out of one's life. My connection with the Canary Fancy commenced whilst I was a lad in my teens, at a time when Blakston, Barnesby, and Bemrose were England's three great judges.

THE FOUNTAIN OF COLOUR.

Times change and men change with them. In those days the Norwich bird was a small, smart little fellow, not a great deal larger than a good-sized Border Fancy of to-day. My readers may judge of what the Norwich birds of the time were like from the fact that Lizards and Norwich were very much alike in shape and size, and were often crossed one with the other to improve the colour of the Norwich. In fact, the Lizard was the Norwich breeder's fountain of colour. As the Lizard is now, so the Norwich was then, a bird of about five inches and a quarter in length. Now the regulation length is six and a half inches, and we have a different stamp of bird altogether, stouter and fuller, as well as longer. The increase in size has brought with it other features not so desirable, and the soft, sleek, silky jackets which the Norwich of those days used to possess, are no longer with us.

ANCIENT AND MODERN STANDARDS.

In the days of which I write forty-five points used to be given for colour alone, out of the one hundred, making an ideal bird, and as if this were not enough, an additional twenty were given for extra sheen and brilliance. Eight points were given for size, and only six for shape. A vast difference this to the present day, when thirty points go for type and rightly so. Fifteen points used to be allowed for condition and quality. Now quality is supposed to rank about equal with colour. The differences are so great that one can scarcely believe that a couple of decades should have wrought such changes in the popular idea of what constitutes a good Norwich Plainhead.

CHANGE NOT VIOLENT.

This change of opinion has not been caused by any sudden revulsion of feeling. It has been a gradual growth. It is now as nearly twenty years since as can be that we saw the first of the large birds in the South of England. It came from the stud of one, who in those days, turned out many a good Norwich, and, who I am pleased to say is with us still, occasionally showing and judging—Mr. C. E. Silk, of Emsworth. This bird was called "The Wonder," and it was well-named, for it did, indeed, make people wonder. I remember how astonished were Messrs. Jacob Mackley and Walter Greeves, when they saw "The Wonder" first, which was at Ipswich Show, where my esteemed friend, Mr. Joseph Bexson, had placed it first. Mr. Bexson liked large birds; to use his own words—"I like a good big 'un." How often have I heard him use that expression when someone has been criticising his judging.

THE NORTH TO THE FORE.

In most forward movements the North has taken the lead, and in this question of big birds they very soon began to give the judges something to look at, which resembled a cross between a Bullfinch and a Thrush, that is, so far as size was concerned. From Lancashire came these big birds, and in plenty, too. The chief breeding centres being around Liverpool, St. Helens, and Prescot, the latter place taking the lead. A real good Prescot Norwich was the highest form of praise that a Northern breeder of the later eighties could bestow upon any bird.

OPEN SHOW CAGES.

Prescot Norwich were shown in open wire cages, and not in the box cages similar to those now in use. The Lancashire breeders were wedded to the open wire show cages, and it was many years later that they discarded them altogether, some years even after I became known as an All-England judge. Many hundreds of Norwich have I judged in these cages at shows in the North, North-west, and West districts of the County Palatine. These cages were longer and broader than those used by Yorkshire fanciers, but were not so tall. I certainly cannot claim for them that they were nice to look upon, but one advantage they certainly had over the now universal box-cage—a judge could see all over a bird at once.

AN AGE OF PROGRESS.

It is not only in the style and form of their cages that Norwich breeders of the North have made progress, but also in the shape and form of their birds. Prescot held the lead when the big birds were asked for, and it has held the lead many a time since. From the town, famous for its watch and electrical equipment works have come some of the most typical and high quality Norwich of modern days. The men of the North went too far in their craze for large birds, and a reaction set in amongst the men of the East, West, and South. Agitation in the papers of the time led to the calling together of the famous Conference at the Crystal Palace in 1890. At that historical gathering, it was said 300 or 400 breeders were present, the majority coming from the City of Norwich, although other parts of the country sent a fairly large number, and the result was a new standard was decided upon.

TYPE THE BATTLE CRY.

Henceforth, it was decided, that birds were to be judged more for type, and the length was limited to six and a half inches, so as to shut out the long-sided birds, whose over-hanging eyebrows and shaggy thighs gave evidence of Crest blood running in their veins. Type! This was the battle cry, and from that day to this has more and more attention been given to type, thanks in very great measure to the action of the Norwich Plainhead Club, which was formed in 1897, principally because of the type question, and whose efforts of recent years have been backed up by those of the Scottish Norwich Plainhead Club, the Northern and Border Counties' Norwich Club, and the Southern Norwich Plainhead Club, each of which have a strong, virile membership, and are yearly becoming stronger and stronger.

EVOLUTION.

Evolution is, we are told, continually going on in the world around us. There is no standing still. New types and forms are being evolved in every direction, and when one looks back to the early eighties we see many changes in the Norwich Fancy. At that time, Norwich was the great stronghold of the Canary named after it. The breed having been evolved, it is generally supposed, by the men of Norwich, from the, now almost extinct, London Fancy and the Lizard. After Norwich, came Northampton, Coventry, Nottingham and Plymouth as great breeding centres. Now all this is altered. The Norwich Plainhead has become more universally popular, and one finds knots of breeders scattered all over the Kingdom. The City of Norwich no longer leads in the production of high-class exhibition birds, even though it does in mere numbers. It has had to strike its flag to the men of Lancashire. At the present time I should say more exhibition Norwich are produced in the land of the Red Rose than in any other district in England. Northampton and Coventry have fallen from their high estate, and, although many good Norwich are still bred within their boundaries, breeders of other districts do not now make yearly pilgrimages to the towns of leather and cycles, as they used to do, in search of first-class birds for the show bench. The days of Thompson, Howe and Robinson, Adams and Athersuch, Curzons, Gayton, Cox, Mason, Martin, Anderton, Webb, Muscutt, etc. Nottingham and its suburbs, and Plymouth have maintained their positions, and now, as then, some of the best in the land annually hail therefrom.

THREE POPULAR SOFT-BILLS.

Some Notes Thereon

THE REDSTART.

The Redstart is to my mind the nicest of our migratory birds and much resembles our gay coloured foreigners. He is commonly called Firetail, Redtail, or Redcap, arrives in April and leaves again in October. Their eggs are of a pale blue. They build generally in a wall on the roadside, out in the country, sometimes in a hole in a tree. The male bird when perched on a wall on a summer day is a real picture to look at. With his red-brown breast, red tail, white forehead, black throat and slaty-blue back, when the sun is fair on him, he looks just lovely. For a soft-bill class, smaller than the Lark, a Redstart, I think, stands the best chance of any, provided he is a good bird. The best way is to bring them up by hand, so that they are tame. The cock bird sings very nicely in a similar way to the Robin. They feed their young ones on insects, caterpillars, etc. They have a real full nest of young ones, generally six in number, sometimes even seven, and look just like young robins, being of a yellowish-brown colour and spotted with dark spots. The old birds are very shy, and you have to wait a while before they go to the nest. The bird is constantly calling a mournful solemn whistle when anyone gets near the nest. They only have one brood in a season, unless someone takes the eggs, and then they build and lay again in another place.

THE WHEATEAR.

The Wheatear is another of our many migratory birds like the Redstart, and is to be found on our moors and country roads, building in walls. It lays a pale blue egg, generally five in number. Like the Wagtail, they are never still; constantly their tail is wagging, and as you approach them they fly down and up on the wall a few yards further on. They build usually in a loose old wall. Last year I found a nest in which all the young ones were dead, a stone having fallen on them. If you look in the nest when they are feathered, they are like mice, they run all over in the wall, and you have lost them for ever; you can even pull the wall down and then not find them. The best way is to go for them a day or two before they are fairly feathered, or else you will miss them altogether. They make ideal show birds. They are very active and of a bright colour, greyish brown on the breast, with a grand slaty-blue back, and have a mark on the cheek like a moustache. The bill is long and pointed, and the legs are black. They are very common in this district (Keighley) and I have found as many as a dozen nests, all with young ones in, in a day. They stand a good chance in a small British class.

THE RING OUSEL.

The Ring Ousel is of the same family as the Blackbird and Thrush, and commonly called Moor Blackbird and Ring-necked Blackbird. These birds arrive in England about the first week in March and leave us again about the middle of October. In colour, the Ring Ousel is a dullish black with a delicate greyish lacing on the margin of the feathers. This lacing improves with age. Across its chest is a greyish white crescent shaped marking. These birds, same as all other kinds, vary a great deal, some being a lot better than others. They begin building soon after they arrive, and make a nest similar to a Blackbird. They generally build in a wall, amongst rocks, or on the ground, the nest being well hidden by the heather. The best way to find their nests is when they have young ones; to sit down, keep quiet and watch the old birds go to feed. When you go to a nest of young Ring Ousels feathered, the old birds come chattering and make such a noise that if anybody is anywhere near they seem to be telling them that you are after taking their young ones. Their eggs are similar to those of a Blackbird, and are usually four in number, sometimes five, and are of a greenish blue colour, spotted with light brown spots of a flaky appearance. It is a grand time about Whitsuntide to go seeking for young Ring Ousels. The best way is to get them young and bring them up by hand, as they make nice pets and they are much more easily tamed, and they are better, especially if they are wanted for showing. These birds make up grand for showing, but they do better when two years old, the crescent is then better defined. These birds do well in any variety British bird larger than a lark class at our shows.

RANDOM NOTES ON HYBRIDS AND MULES.

Some Interesting Experiences.

By T. H. KINCH.

THE CROSSING OF OWLS.

A friend of mine is next year going to have a try in a large aviary with the Long-eared Owl and the Little Owl. He has already made suitable places for them with old logs and trees. He thinks if he uses the Little Owl as female it will build in one of these logs. These Little Owls are prolific breeders; he also intends to try the other Owls as well. I hope he may meet with success in one of these crosses, for I quite believe, the same as he does, that these crosses have never been attempted; of course, we are both open to correction. I do know that he and his brother, this year, tried to cross the Carion Crow with a Rook, but the result was nil. He has now two Jays and two Magpies; this cross he intends to go into. I can assure you he is quite original in everything he undertakes, for at a comic football match for the hospitals, he came out as a bear, mask and skin quite complete and natural. I have only mentioned this to show your readers he is a great student of nature. Another cross next year, he means to try, is with the Kestrel and Sparrow-hawk, or vice versa. He is very fond of these large birds, and, like myself, he thinks they should be on the Show Bench. No doubt they would be quite a novelty, as well as a great attraction. I don't see why these should not be shown, as well as Choughs, for even the smaller birds such as the Swallow. The time may yet come for these birds to be shown.

DOVES AND WOOD PIGEONS.

Another of the larger crosses I have under my ken is the wild Wood Pigeon and Common Pigeon, also the wild Wood Pigeon and Turtle Dove. These birds have been put together this year when young, quite by chance. They may go on to breed. I am only mentioning these incidents encourage others. A young Dove was given away to some children, and the result was they wanted another, so went out into the woods and fields and got young Wood Pigeons, which they hand-reared to place with them. Now this experiment is worth trying, it is quite original for boys, for such they are, to try this way. I have encouraged them, and tell them they might do it. Now they are happy, but how long that will last I cannot say. I am quite afraid they will soon get tired of their hobby. These crosses, or I may say arrangements of theirs, may lead to some good results. If such crosses should come off, it will stimulate them to go further into the hobby, and become good fanciers. I am sorry to say two or three who have started with wild birds, and paired them up, have, just because they could not get the birds to go on as they wished, cleared the lot out. One lot, which was cleared out this week, was a Linnet-Greenfinch pair, they were sold, cage and birds by this young fancier for 2/3. The cage, was, of course, home-made the person who bought them has now two or three eggs, which the hen laid in some moss in the cage bottom. He has put her in a nest from the fields; she has taken to it, and I believe she now sits on these three eggs; if they should be good, and I do hope they are, it would help others to hold on, and try again. The individual who sold them is now sorry he parted with them, and so thinks he shall have another try, but not this year.

The Cage Bird Traffic in the United States.

The Retail Trade.

While retailers do more or less business during the entire year, three well-defined seasons are established. In February Canaries begin to breed, and for the first two or three months of the year the trade in breeding Canaries, especially females, is brisk. About the time it subsides the first shipment of young Parrots arrives from Cuba and Mexico. These at once take the stage and hold it until the middle of August, when it is no longer possible to secure young birds. Interest then turns chiefly to singing Canaries and the many other small cage-birds that are imported. The sale for these grows greater and greater, and reaches its maximum by Christmastide, after which it abruptly declines. Many dealers probably make more sales in December than during all the rest of the year. In the Christmas season of 1905 one Philadelphia department store sold 4,000 Canaries, besides other cage-birds.

From the character of the demand for cage-birds it is evident that the retail trade is, as a rule, not enough by itself to yield a profitable income. It is usually, therefore, combined with some trade of an allied nature. In retail bird stores one may usually find fowls of various kinds, pheasants, dogs, monkeys, squirrels, white mice, guinea-pigs, goldfish, and even lizards and snakes. The sale of food and cages also constitutes an item, and sometimes the proprietor acts as surgeon and physician to domestic pets.

During the year ending June 30, 1906, more than 200 species of cage-birds were imported into the United States. These comprised Canaries, Parrots (under which term we may include Parrakeets, Cockatoos, Macaws, and Lories), European birds, Oriental birds, African birds, Australian birds, and a few South American, Mexican and Cuban birds. It is obviously impossible, in the space of the present article, to consider all these in detail; but a brief account of some of the most important will be of interest.

An Appreciation of the Canary.

So widely known has the sweet singing Canary become that should an inhabitant of one of the civilised countries of the world visit the Canary Islands and hear the wild birds in their native home the strains would, in all probability, bring to the traveller memories of his own home. The clear and varied notes of this favourite singer are familiar to young and old, and many dwellings, from the great mansion to the obscure cottage, are alike brightened by their beauty. The position of the Canary amongst cage-birds is unique—not only because of its widespread popularity, but also from the fact that centuries of domestication have rendered it peculiarly dependent on man. Its cage has become its natural home, and to it liberty would probably mean death.

The bird is a native of the Canary Islands, the Azores, and Funchal (Madeira), and is said to have been brought from the Canaries to Spain, and kept as a cage-bird by the Spanish nobility shortly before the discovery of America. Other accounts make Italy the first country into which it was introduced, and place the time early in the sixteenth century. It is sufficient for present purposes to note that it has been domesticated and prized as a cage-bird for the past four centuries. The wild bird is smaller than the bird now so familiar, and is also differently coloured, having less bright yellow and considerable olive and brownish in its colouring. Nor does it sing as sweetly. Nevertheless, it is so attractive that soon after its introduction it became a general favourite, and was bred so assiduously that it is said by the beginning of the eighteenth century 27 different varieties were produced. It is interesting to note that Canaries are now exported from England to the Canary Islands.

The Roller Industry.

The Canary is a very good imitator. Mature birds have been known to reproduce very closely the songs of even such birds as Chewinks, House Wrens, and others, and the faculty has been utilised by breeders to determine to a certain extent the quality or character of the song of a young bird. In Germany young Canaries have been associated with Nightingales and in England with Woodlarks to this end. But the method commonly employed at present is to place the young bird with a Canary that possesses a superior song, and is kept solely for training purposes. The fine singers used for this purpose are called "campaninis" (or "schoolmasters") and command high prices. Singers are measured by the richness and sweetness, not the strength, of their tones. Thus the voice of one of the choice St. Andreasburg "rollers" (which sell at wholesale for 24 dols. to 36 dols. a dozen, according to season, while ordinary Canaries range from 15 dols. to 21 dols. a dozen) could easily be drowned by the singing of many an inferior Canary. A single bird with a superior voice, especially a "campanini," will sometimes command a price for which several dozen ordinary singers can be bought. Ordinary female birds, on the other hand, which are purchased mainly for breeding purposes, may be had as low as 6 dols. a dozen at wholesale.

As previously stated, singing Canaries are bred in the Hartz Mountains of Germany. Large numbers are raised by the cottagers of this region, and are bought directly from them by buyers for the wholesale establishments of Germany and England, and the German branches of American establishments. How much the industry means to the peasants near St. Andreasburg, the Brocken, and other localities in the Hartz Mountains, may be gathered from the fact that thirty years ago it was estimated that the trade amounted to 300,000 dols. a year.

Some Canaries sing much more freely than others, and immediately after the arrival of a consignment at the store of the importer the interesting process of testing the singing qualifications of the different individuals is begun. Cages are piled one deep in a tier containing forty or fifty rows. In front of this large somewhat semi-circular pile, each cage containing a single occupant, sits the tester, watching and listening. Many notes may be heard, but it is difficult to determine from which of the many score of throats they proceed. This is the duty assigned the tester, and when he is certain that any particular bird is singing, he places a chalk mark on the cage containing it. Marked cages are subsequently removed and their occupants are sold as guaranteed singers. Testing Canaries is difficult, and requires both patience and training, yet on a clear sunny day, when the birds sing more freely and can be more clearly seen, an expert will sometimes mark 500 cages.

A Yankee's View of Fancy Points.

In the breeding of Canaries song has not been the only desideratum, but has shared consideration with shape and colour. The potency of artificial selection is as well shown in this pursuit as in the rearing of fancy Pigeons, and some quite as distorted shapes are produced. Thus Belgium has succeeded in giving to the world a big Canary with broad shoulders abnormally raised above the small head. And Scotland has produced a type—the Scotch Fancy Canary—that is bent like a bow, so that when the bird is at rest on a perch (our author ought rather to have written "when the bird is in position"—Editor, "C.B.") a line drawn from bill to tip of tail would pass well in front of the feet. Other abnormal products of the breeders' ingenuity are the Yorkshire Canary, very long and very slim, and the Lancashire (or Manchester) Coppy, well proportioned, but a very giant among Canaries.

Still other fancy varieties are the Norwich, at present a popular favourite, the London Fancy, the Border Fancy, and the Lizard, a dark bird with gold or silver spangles and yellow crown. All these are further sub-divided by breeders and fanciers. Norwich Canaries and Manchester Coppies are frequently ornamented with crests. Endowing with a crest a bird that has none naturally, is striking evidence of the possibilities of artificial selection.

The diversity is further augmented by colour possibilities. All Canaries are either "yellow" or "buff." These are technical terms, however, and are somewhat misleading. A yellow (or jonque) Canary is one whose plumage is lustrous; a buff (or mealy) is one whose plumage is dull and has a frosted appearance. Cinnamon Canaries with pink eyes (and green and piebald Canaries also) are bred, and a few decades ago it was discovered that by feeding young Canaries freely on cayenne pepper the yellow could be deepened into a rich orange. The combinations offered by these different characteristics are very numerous, and when to them are added the results of hybridizing with other species—Goldfinch, Linnet, Siskin, and others—as is done for the production of the much-prized "Mules," unlimited possibilities seem to open out before the breeder. In breeding for shape and colour, singing qualities are neglected, and Canaries in which these are so highly developed often have little left of the sweet song that was the chief cause of their original domestication.

In view of the great number of varieties that have been produced and the difference in style and quality of song, and taking into consideration also the patience, care, and skill bestowed by breeders in producing and maintaining at an established standard the various results of their work, it is not surprising to find great differences in the price of Canaries. Ordinary male Canaries can be bought for 1 dol. 50 cents to 2 dols. apiece at retail, and from this the prices rise, through Norwich, Yorkshire, Lizard, Manchester, and Belgian Canaries in order, and reach in the last a wholesale rate of 30 dols. to 50 dols. a pair. Song production has not been led into bizarre channels, and that beauty of song is more highly estimated than odd shape is shown by the fact that one of the finest singers amongst the "Rollers" may command as much as 150 dols.

(It may be as well to mention here that our American friend goes a little astray in the foregoing paragraphs, as no doubt most readers will discover for themselves. Thus the London Fancy Canary has now, we are afraid, to be written down as extinct; the Lizard has not always a yellow crown; the Lancashire (or Manchester) Coppy has always a crest—Coppy being the breeders' name for the head feathers—while a buff bird has not necessarily "dull" plumage.—Editor, "C.B.")

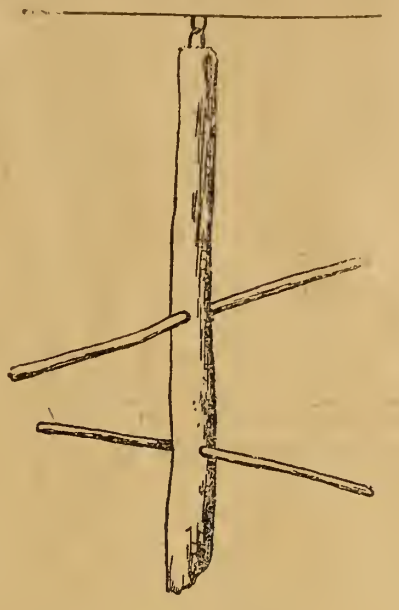
ILLUSTRATED IDEAS



Under this heading we shall illustrate weekly some idea useful to the bird keeper. Readers are invited to send us particulars of any novel and practical appliance of use in our hobby, either in cage, bird room or aviary, with a rough sketch of same where possible. Every "Illustrated Idea" used in this column will entitle the sender thereof to a postal order for two shillings and sixpence.

A SWING PERCH.

Sent by S. T. Perrin, "Montrose," Garfield Street, Kettering.

The enclosed sketch is of a swing perch suitable for aviaries or large cages. First get a piece of bough the thickness of a broom handle, and about 15ins. long. Set perpendicular, hanging from the top of the cage, by double staples, one fixed to the cage, the other to the perch, looped through each other. Next get two pieces of wood, same length and substance, 12ins. and ⅝in. thick, these to be fixed through upright, the first 6in. from the bottom, the next 4in. lower, so that the perches point in four directions.—S. T. Perrin.

No. 144.

NOVEL PERCH HOLDER.

Sent by P. H. Harris, 34, Bedford Square, W.C.

I have, in common, I daresay, with other fanciers, found there is a great deal wanting in the old method of fixing perches in cages, especially the long lower ones in front of feeders. The idea I send I find works perfectly, allowing perches to be taken out, and cleaned in a second. These little brackets can easily be made by anyone, all that is required being a little piece of tin and a pair of shears, or an old pair of scissors would do. In the sketch the top figure gives the pattern the tin should be cut to. A should be folded over B to make the bracket stiffer. D shows perch with saw cut (slot) to slip on the bracket.—P. H. Harris.

WILD BIRD LIFE.

Doings of the Starlings.

Early this morning the grassland outside the village was alive with Starlings. They were in flocks of from fifty to one hundred birds, of both sexes, and young and old. There had been rain during the night, and food must have been plentiful near the surface; they were all busy feeding together, yet as quarrelsome as birds could possibly be. The Starling always appears to hunt for his food as though time was of the utmost importance. He probes and prods the ground in a most business-like manner, quite oblivious of his surroundings—excepting when his neighbour gets too close, for he is a greedy bird, and will fight upon the slightest interference. But it is never of any long duration, for he has much on hand, and cannot waste time arguing with a relative. When disturbed there is no waiting and watching about the Starling; he simply discontinues his work, takes wing, has a fly round, and settles again almost immediately.

Towards evening the flocks make their way to the woods about Banstead, where they join with other flocks, making together one huge gathering of many thousands of birds. In the early morning they break up and depart their several ways. One wonders if these flocks consist of the same units day after day, or do they get so mixed in the big gathering that they are unable to find their friends? If one watches any of these clouds of birds going through their nightly evolutions just before roosting, it seems as though they must get so thoroughly mixed up that it is impossible for them to find relations or friends the next morning! Yet each season we have almost positive proofs of the birds pairing for life. Many of us know several places where a nest of young Starlings is reared annually. For three seasons in succession a hole in an elm tree near the station has contained a nest. This is evidently the work of the same pair, or why should this position be selected so regularly? Besides, we have it upon the authority of many eminent naturalists that the Starling pairs for life, so that in spite of the numbers and the big gatherings they either keep more together than we know of, or they have some means of meeting again, probably upon some common feeding ground.

Weight of the Bustard.

The Great Bustard, a bird common in Spain, and occasionally visiting this country, has been known to weigh as much as thirty pounds. These heavy birds are probably old males.

An Early Fieldfare.

It is reported that a cock Fieldfare was killed in a garden in Essex on August 15th. When the bird was dissected its crop was found to contain gooseberries. This occurrence is quite out of the ordinary, for in bad weather we do not expect to see any of these handsome birds before the present month. If this was this season's visitor, it was unusually early; but one is inclined to think it must have been a bird that for some reason was unable to migrate with the others in the spring, or possibly an escaped cage bird. If the latter, its feathers should show some trace of captivity.

Revival of Bird Song.

The hot, dry days of the past month have had a refreshing effect upon the bird song of the autumn. Many of the feathered tribe have left us, and others have recovered from the moulting sickness. The tuneful song Thrush, proud of his bran new spotting, struts about the lawn in the early morning, and from the dead bough of the elm tree pipes a few delicate notes; they are soft and clear, lacking the vigour and wild outburst of the early spring. The Greenbird drawls a few mechnical notes from the hedgegrow, and of course the Robin is generally in a tuneful mood. The last few days of the month were marked by the return to song of the Skylark, the one bird, perhaps, more than all others, that is best known of our birds of the fields; from now onwards we shall hear his silvery notes, throughout the winter, whenever a ray of sunshine or cessation of frosts allows him to warble.

ALWAYS USE OUR

DEPOSIT SYSTEM.

We are not responsible for the statements made in advertisements, nor for the bona-fides of either buyers or sellers. In all transactions the adoption of our Deposit System should be insisted upon.

IMPORTANT.

SEND THE FULL COMMISSION.—If the full commission does not accompany the deposit, the vendor will not be notified of its receipt until the amount deficient, plus the extra postage incurred, has been paid to us.

HOW TO REMIT.—Under no circumstances will Cheques or Post-dated Money Orders be accepted as deposits. Uncrossed Postal Orders must be sent and the numbers taken for safety.

RULES.

1.—PROCEDURE.—The intending purchaser should send to this office the amount of the purchase (our deposit fee included), and at the same time he should communicate with the seller, stating what it is he requires sent on approval. We acknowledge receipt of the deposit to both parties. In all cases the depositor should give his name and address, and also that of the vendor, and must write same clearly and distinctly.

2.—END OF TRANSACTION.—The deposit is retained by us until we hear from both parties that the transaction has been completed. If a sale has been effected, we hand the amount deposited to the seller. If a sale has not been effected, we return the amount to the depositor. The transaction must be conducted by the parties themselves. We merely hold the deposit.

3.—AMOUNT OF COMMISSION.—The fee is 6d. for each £1, or fraction of £1, and it must be sent at same time as the deposit.

4.—IMPORTANT POINTS.—The depositor must decide within forty-eight hours of the receipt of the goods whether he will keep or return the same, unless, that is, some other period of approval (of which we must be advised) is agreed upon by both parties. The depositor must at the same time notify us of the fact that he has returned the goods. If the goods are not returned within the said forty-eight hours, we reserve the right to send the deposit to the seller after the expiration of that period. And should the seller fail within three days to notify us of the receipt of his goods back again, the transaction will be treated as ended, and the deposit be returned to the depositor.

5.—A SATISFACTORY PURCHASE.—When a transaction has been completed to the satisfaction of both depositor and seller, both parties must at once return the deposit receipts as a guarantee of its completion. The depositor must at the same time instruct us to pay over the deposit to the seller.

6.—GOODS ALREADY SOLD.—If the goods are sold before our deposit note reaches the seller, or, if for any other reason he declines to do business, he must at once return the deposit note to us. Failing its receipt, we reserve the right to return the deposit to the sender after the expiration of three days.

7.—FRESH TRANSACTION.—In case no sale be effected, a deposit is available for purposes of a fresh transaction, provided another deposit fee be paid.

8.—GOODS IN TRANSIT.—Goods in transit are at the seller's risk, and any damage or loss sustained on the journey must be borne by the seller. But goods not approved of must be properly packed and returned by the same means as were used in sending the same.

9.—PAYMENT OF CARRIAGE.—The payment of carriage must be a matter for arrangement between the vendor and depositor. We do not undertake to settle disputes affecting questions of carriage. But in the absence of other arrangements the purchaser is liable for the carriage of the goods, and if the goods are sent on approval and returned, each party pays the carriage one way.

10.—DISPUTES.—In case of a dispute, the decision of the Editor is final.

PREPAID ADVERTISEMENTS

UNDISPLAYED.—Three Words a Penny up to eighteen words, MINIMUM Fourpence. One Halfpenny per Word for each word over eighteen.

IMPORTANT NOTE.—Two or more Advertisements coming from the same advertiser, even if sent in different names, are reckoned together, and, after the first eighteen words, are charged at two words a penny, but no single advertisement, even if accompanied by others, will be charged at less than the minimum price, viz., Fourpence.

Headlines or Footlines 6d., 9d., 1/-, 1/6, according to size.

Postal Orders must be sent as far as possible. All moneys should be made payable to F. CARL.

The Proprietor reserves the right to refuse any advertisement, or to cancel any advertisement ordered for a series, at any time, without assigning any reason for so doing.

Advertisements close Tuesdays first post in each week, and should be sent to the Advertisement Manager, CAGE BIRDS, 154, Fleet Street, London. Terms for Display Advertisements on application.

IN MY OPINION

satisfied customers are the best possible advertisement a man can have, therefore my sole ambition is to give every customer the fullest satisfaction possible, and to do this I send everything I sell on approval entirely at my own risk, and refund every penny of your money if you are not thoroughly satisfied with goods I send you. If you would have the best catching appliances, as used by all the leading professional bird-catchers, I earnestly solicit a trial and as I am supplying all the large catchers throughout England and Continent, I am certain of pleasing you; clap nets made from genuine thread, ¾ inch mesh, 3 yards long, 4/- pair, 4 yards 5/-, 5 yards 6/-, 6 yards 7/-, 7 yards 8/-, 8 yards 9/-, 9 yards 10/-, 10 yards 11/- per pair; all are 5 feet 6 inches deep and fly 4 feet. Each pair clap nets have two nets to the pair, and are complete with birch, stave, poles, beech pegs, hemp lines, geared all round to hang level and work true, and are fitted with every requisite ready for immediate use; bat folding Sparrow nets, fitted on 10 feet bamboo poles, 6/6 pair complete; loose netting, made from genuine thread, specially for bird nets, ¾ inch mesh, 7 feet deep, 3d. yard, 9 feet deep 4d. yard, 12 feet deep 5d. yard, post free, This netting must not be confused with the thick American cotton netting now being sold as bird netting; mine is very fine, but strong, and does not show on ground. Pure hemp pull lines, strong as boat lines, 65 yards long, 1/4 each, carriage paid. Stave poles, pegs, store cages, etc., all in stock, real Japanese bird-lime, absolutely strongest made, guaranteed to hold a Hawk, or Rook, and will hold birds in frost or rain, ¼ lb. 6d., ½ lb. 10d., 1 lb. 1/6; sample 3d., all post free. Self-acting spring net traps 24 inches long, 1/- each, 18 inches long, 9d. each. These net traps are by far the largest and best traps on the market, and are guaranteed to catch and hold any bird from a Wren to a Rook. They cannot get out of order, and a child can set them. Single trap cages 6d. each, 4/6 dozen; double ditto 10d. and 1/- each, 7/6 and 8/6 dozen; treble ditto, 1/3 each, 12/- dozen. All have separate compartment for call bird, in addition to the traps. Patent self-setting and self-acting trap cages, guaranteed to reset without any attention immediately a bird is caught, 1/6 each. Round or square topped call cages 3d. each, 2/6 dozen; 27/- gross. Goldfinch and Linnet cages, 6d. each, 4/6 dozen; Lark runner cages 6d., 8d., 10d., and 1/- each, 3/6, 4/-, 4/6, and 6/6 dozen; singing box cages, 10d., 1/- and 1/3 each, 8/6, 10/- and 12/- dozen. Bright all metal drawing-room canary cages, with cut glass round, 3/6 and 4/6 each. Solid brass ditto, with ruby glass round, 5/6, 6/6, 7/6, and 10/6 each. Parrot cages from 4/6 to £10 each. Penny tin drinkers, absolutely neatest and most durable made, three doz. 1/3, six doz. 2/3, or 4/- gross; zinc ditto, same size, 9d. doz., three doz. 2/-, six doz. 3/6, or 6/- gross. Black enamelled drinkers for show cages, 1/- doz., post free, halfpenny tin drinkers, three doz. 10d., or 3/- gross. Dealers should send stamp for trade list of cages, prices and sizes will astonish them. See following testimonials. Little Eaton, near Derby, October 10th.—Sir,—Received netting this afternoon; many thanks for same; it is stronger than I expected.—Yours, F. Moss." "Milton, near Northampton, October 10th. Sir,—Please send ½ lb. lime, as I cannot get any good about here.—Yours, John Green." " 19, Victoria Street, Buckland, Dover, October 8th. Sir,—I am very well satisfied with the nets, they are far better than I expected.—Yours, R. Buddle." "2, Hollingdrake Yard, off James Street, Doncaster. October 7th,—Sir,—I received netting, and think it is the best netting I ever had, and I have tried all the other firms, as I should know. Please send another 12 yards.—Yours, A. Croxford." (On October 14th Mr. Croxford orders another 20 yards.—W.G.) "23, Clarence Square, Gosport, October 7th. Sir,—Birds, cages, nets, etc., to hand, and I am very well satisfied with all, thanking you for promptness.—Yours, W. Buxton." "47, Bells Road, Gorleston. Dear Sir,—I like my nets very much; indeed, they work splendidly, they are so light and fine they enmesh the birds so well, it's a pleasure to use them.—Yours, E. Morley." "1, Field Cottages, Rassau, Mon. Sir,—Please send following netting, etc. The last netting I had from you was grand, I caught a number of birds with it, and then sold it for treble the price I paid you for it.—Yours, W. Hayward." "Gedney, Holbeach, Lincs.—Sir,—Your netting is as superior to other firms' stuff as gold is to copper.—Yours, C. Cubley." "46, George Street, Altofts, Normanton. Sir,—I am very pleased with nets you sent me, and I only wish every other advertiser would be as honest as you have been to me. Please send on the following.—Yours, Ben, Siddaway." "Greenfield House, Bedwas, Mon. Sir,—Received netting and am quite satisfied with it; please send 3 more yards same as last.—Yours, A. Davies." "89, Cumberland Road, Reading. Sir,—I am very pleased with netting received from you before; it gives every satisfaction, and I recommend it to all my friends. Please send on the following.—Yours, G. Bowyer." Please note some of the above letters are from expert catchers, who probably catch more birds in one season than most men see in course of their lifetime. For full printed list of all catchers' appliances, send stamp, and don't forget that everything I sell is guaranteed exactly as represented, and sent on approval, entirely at my own risk, either cash or deposit system, and money fully and freely refunded if every satisfaction not given. See British Birds, and also Roller Canary columns, for further advertisements,

THERE'S NO HURRY

yet for you to get your Siberian Goldfinch, as the first consignment of the real Siberian birds will not reach England until first week in November. I am now booking orders in strict rotation for the selected exhibition specimens, from my first consignment at 7/6, 10/- each. During past 14 years I have supplied hundreds of winners to Scotch exhibitors alone not to mention other parts of United Kingdom, but as the real "Deck Sweepers" are not at all plentiful it would behove all intending purchasers to send in their order quickly as possible, in order to avoid disappointment. Birds will be sent on approval as usual, and money refunded if fullest satisfaction not given. See other advertisement in this column, and also Appliance and Roller Canary columns.

W. COPE, 131, Cooch Street, Birmingham.

HARRY ALLEN,

THE ORIGINAL LINNET KING.

Champion of all champions, and winner of more prizes than any three men. Patronised by all the leading exhibitors, Mule breeders, and contest singers. I claim to have the finest strain in the world, bar none. Kindly note, I never copy anybody; they all follow me. If you want the finest 3/- worth in the bird world, come to me. Beware of spurious imitations; they will not give you satisfaction. Mine never fail to please. Big fine cock Linnets, well pencilled, very tame, 1/- each. Extra picked birds, real beauties, 1/6 each; honestly worth the money. I have a few show specimens. The largest ever seen, 2/- each; no rubbish, and every bird guaranteed a cock and in the best of health. Cock Linnets picked specially for singing, with singing cage, a packet of my special mixture, and instructions how to feed, 3/- the lot. Everybody welcome to hear them pouring out some of my champion's wonderful notes. I defy any dealer to supply the same for the money, and please note every bird is being trained by one who thoroughly understands the Linnet and its song. House-moulted cock Linnets, just through moult and singing hard, 10/6 each. Acknowledged prize winners, 15/6 and £1 each. All ready for contests; will sing anywhere and at anything. Redpolls as large as Linnets, 1/- each. Goldfinches, Goldfinches. I have the finest cock Goldfinch ever seen or heard; twice housemoulted; bred Mules this year; finger-tame. Beautiful blaze bars, buttons, etc.; will sing anywhere, and one of the largest ever seen for a British Goldfinch, price 15/6, with box cage; a bird that will make a name for its owner. Also a few grand Yorkshire specimen Peartree cock Goldfinches, well buttoned and mooned, beautiful blaze, with good broad heads, and impossible to get larger, 2/6 and 3/- each; satisfaction guaranteed. Every bird is sent out safely packed and exactly as described. The last Goldfinch I advertised at 12/6 was bought by Mr. John Clifford, 14, Mansfield-place, York, he being highly satisfied with it. If you want your birds to sing at one another with their wings down, send P.O. 1/6 for my Book of Secrets. I have my birds singing at empty cages daylight and gaslight. £5 to anyone if not true. Four packets of my Special Mixture, 1/-, which is said by all the contest singers and exhibitors in Leeds to be the finest ever put before the public. Once tried, always used. Please give me a trial order, and you will never regret it. I keep nothing but the best, and can win when I like. See singing results. All my birds are on seven days' approval at my own risk; cash or deposit. Anyone visiting Leeds on Tuesday and Saturdays should call in the Leeds Bird Market and see my stall. Grand assortment of birds, medicines, etc. See last week's advertisement for testimonials. Thanking you all for patronage.—Harry Allen, 42, Brown Hill Crescent, Harehills, Leeds.

EVEN IN MADNESS

there is method, so why shouldn't there be a method in buying birds. The best method I can advocate is to buy on my well-known approval system, so that unless you are perfectly satisfied with your deal I refund money in full. I was originator of approval system in connection with wild birds, and during the whole of my business career have never dealt on any other terms. Genuine large Worcestershire cock Goldfinches, in perfect health and condition, 1/6 each, three 4/-, six 6/6, twelve 12/-. Specially selected cocks, for exhibition or muling, and warranted in song, 2/- each, three 6/-, six 8/6, twelve 16/-. Few extra large clean-moulted cocks, in full colour and superb condition, 3/- each, three 7/6. Heu Goldfinches, 1/- each, three 2/6; spendid large cock Brown Linnets, with rose-red breasts and nut-brown backs, 8d. each, three 1/6, six 2/6; twelve 4/-; specially selected cocks, for show or muling, and warranted in song, 1/- each, three 2/6, six 4/-; every Linnet sent out is guaranteed clean-moulted, in pink of health, and are exactly same as supplied to contest winners throughout England. I am selling 100 dozen of these cock Linnets weekly, and people who have never before purchased Worcestershire Linnets are astounded at their quality. If I wished, I could fill this page weekly with testimonials from Linnet customers alone. Cock Chaffinches, 8d. each, three 1/6, six 2/6, twelve 4/-; hen Chaffinches, three 1/-, six 1/6, twelve 2/-; cock Greenfinches, three 1/-, six 1/6, twelve 2/-; cock Bramblefinches, three 1/6, six 2/6; Redpolls, three 1/3, six 2/-, twelve 3/6; grand large cock Larks, three 1/6, six 2/6, twelve 4/-. All Larks guaranteed big bold cocks, not half hens, as my hens are sold to poultry dealers. All birds are guaranteed to be well caged, steady, and well on hard seed before being sent out, and visitors can come and see hundreds upon hundreds in stock at all times. See following testimonials, all recently received, and never before been published. "Croom Station, County Limerick, Ireland, October 12th.—Sir,—Please send following; you are the only man advertising that has ever given me satisfaction, as every bird I got from you turned out well. Yours, P. McCarthy." "35, Titchfield-st., Mansfield, October 12th.—Sir,—Please send following. I had three Goldfinches from you last year, and was highly satisfied. Yours, R. Ellis." "26, Albert-road, Tonbridge, October 9th.—Sir,—Please send following. I had four cock Goldfinches from you a few years ago, and better birds I never saw. Yours, J. Peters." "35, Watson-crescent, Edinburgh.—Sir,—Received birds all right, and am very well pleased with them. I am expecting to send another order shortly. Yours, J. McDonald." "22, Primrose-place, Tillicoultry.—Sir,—Bird arrived to-day in pink of health, and is a splendid bird at the money. You will hear from me again. Yours, A. McIntosh." "56, Hume-street, Batley.—Sir,—Please send three more Linnets; the last I had proved good birds, and have given every satisfaction. Yours, W. Spidding." "2, Westminster-parade, Lower Edmonton.—Sir,—Received Goldlinches in pink of condition, and have advised CAGE BIRDS to pay the money over. Will send another order shortly. Yours, G. Smith." "156, Marine-street, Tallis Town, Cwm, Mon.—Sir,—Please send another Linnet. I had one from you last year; he started singing week after arrival, and been singing ever since from morning till night, and even through the moult, and so tame and steady. Yours, T. Baker." "140, High-street, Falkirk.—Sir,—The three Goldies arrived safe. Am well pleased with way you executed order. You will hear from me again shortly. Yours, D. Boyd." "13, Byron-street, Burnley.—Sir,—Please send me three Linnets. I got some from you when working in Birmingham, and was always well satisfied. Yours, C. Mitchell." "35, Grey-street, Carlisle.—Sir,—Please send cock Linnet. Those I got from you when in Birmingham turned out very well. I think you can claim the honour of being the largest bird dealer in England, as I have seen a good many bird shops; but as regards your establishment, seeing is believing as regards the quautity of birds you stock. Yours, S. Stamper." "45, Highland-road, Southsea.—Sir,—Blackbird arrived safely, and is singing nicely already, although only been here few hours. I must confess he is a perfect gem, so very tame with the best plumage a Blackbird can have, and his song is purely the mild one. I have, during past few years, bought a number in order to get one such as he is, and have never before been able. Yours, A. J. Burridge." The above few letters by no means exhaust my stock of testimonials, as I have piles upon piles of them, which have never been published, not one of which has been solicited by me as apart from business transactions; the senders of these testimonials are utter strangers to me. Please note every bird is sent on approval entirely at my own risk; either cash or deposit system, and money refunded in full if fullest satisfaction not given. If you would like genuine Worcestershire netted birds, together with straightforward, honest dealing, please give me one trial. See appliance column for list of cages and further testimonials, etc.

3, Court Ord Cottages, Rottingdean, near Brighton. October 13, 1907.—I am writing to say the birds arrived quite safe on Tuesday, and in good condition. I am very pleased with both.

Better than any advertisement.

Post Office, Newry, October 7, 1907.—I beg to acknowledge receipt of yellow Norwich cock and to say that it gives entire satisfaction. I must say I think it splendid value for the money, in fact, it is better than any advertisement you could publish, for several who have seen it are convinced of the genuineness of your birds.—T. Mallon to W. Rudd.

Greatly surprised for the money.

35, Berens Road, Wakeman Road, Kensal Rise, London. October 13, 1907.—A line to inform you birds arrived safe in the pink of condition. I was greatly surprised at the birds for the money. I expected similar to what I had received before from others. But they look like two pictures. There was not a feather out of place. I am more than satisfied with them, so are my friends.—J. H. Allum to W. Rudd.

Can recommend you, etc.

10, Prospect Terrace, Brinscall, near Chorley. October 7, 1907.—Birds arrived all safe, and am very well pleased with the same. I can recommend you as being the right man anyone can trust for getting their value for money. Wishing you every success.—J. Backhouse to W. Rudd.

Very good value, etc.

53, Barmeston Road, Catford. October 9, 1907.—Received birds quite safely this morning. I am pleased to say they were in very good condition. I am pleased with them and think you have given me very good value, so shall recommend you whenever I can, as I have been taken in with other advertisements, but shall always send to you in future; you evidently believe in the saying, "Be just and fear not." Again thanking you for your prompt delivery.—A. J. Weston to W. Rudd.

Melrose Terrace, October 9, 1907.—I visited our Cage Bird Show with some recently, and while looking over birds I was astonished to see a Crested cock supplied by you to a gentleman in this city. This bird took 1st and special, and was the admiration of all fanciers. I want a Crested cock; let me know particulars.—C. M. J. to W. Rudd.

WHY INCUR THE DANGER

of a bad bargain when you can purchase Rollers of the best quality from us on seven clear days' approval entirely at our own risk; our first consignment of pure Seifert Rollers have just arrived from Germany with pure deep sweet soft bass rolls, water-bubble runs, etc., bell, harp, and gong notes, Nightingale, Woodlark and Titlark notes, perfect little music boxes, 7/6, 8/6, 10/6, and 12/- each; hens, 2/-, 2/6 each, also our first consignment of Hartz Mountain Rollers, pure day and gaslight, with good loud clear song, 5/-, 6/- each, hens 1/0 each, 2/6 couple; proper made Roller singing cages 1/6 each, all on seven clear days' approval.—Parker and Wilden, Bird Merchants, 257-258, Farm Street, Birmingham.

HARTZ MOUNTAIN

Roller cock Canaries, direct from Hartz, beautiful birds, only 3s. 9d. each; 21s. a stick. Try one.—Varney, Stratford.—"The Elms, 18, Whitehouse Loan, Edinburgh, January 1st, 1907.—Hummell arrived safely, and sings lovely; it is a pretty bird, and gives satisfaction.—N. Turnbull."—"January 2nd, 1907.—Birds arrived, are singing well.—R. M. Lee, 79, Mill Street, Crewe."—"Broom, Newton Mears, Glasgow.—The birds arrived in good condition; I am well pleased with such value.—J. Broom."—"January 2nd, 1907, 32, Easson Road, Darlington.—Bird to hand. I like the song wonderfully well, and thank you for your prompt delivery and attention to my instructions.—H. Hutchison."—Send all orders to Varney, Stratford, London.

I AM EXPECTING

a large consignment of Hartz to be brought direct from Germany by the breeder to my place in Norwich before this advertisement appears, which should include some of the best I have offered, but how can I tell you before I hear them? No, I cannot understand the quality of what I have never seen or heard!! Will you therefore write me stating requirements, then I can tell you exactly. But, I do know they will be given no name, which, correctly put, spells NOTHING.

Hummel Rollers.

Finest Rollers imported. To speak well of the Hummel is to gild refined gold. Testimonials from customers who say the Hummel is still singing as sweetly as when purchased four, five, six, and seven years ago. All Hummels have delightful deep, delicate bow roll, hollow roll, hollow bow roll, du pipe, hollow bell roll, grand round bass roll, vibrating hollow roll, and charming water bubble roll; one price only, 12s. 6d.; no fancy prices; Hummel hens, 5s. each; a beautiful pair of Hummels for 15s. St. Andreasberg Rollers, 6s. and 7s. 6d. each. Hummel Schoolmasters, 20s. each, better than can be obtained elsewhere at treble the price. Thousands of testimonials have been published by me in CAGE BIRDS from satisfied customers. I guarantee strictly honourable trading and satisfaction to all.—Varney, sole proprietor and importer of this remarkable Roller Canary. Twenty years advertiser.—Varney, Stratford, London. Export a speciality. "The Schools, Overton, Ellesmere.—Hummel arrived, it at once commenced to sing—yes, a song worth listening to. It is the most exquisite songster I ever heard—decidedly a perfect Roller. I may say I never expected such perfection; they are worth all you charge for them. I must thank you for your courtesy, and shall be able to recommend your firm to those who require birds and not rubbish."—F. Robbins. June 22nd, 1907. N.C.O., Royal Engineers, Aldershot.—"Hummel arrived; delighted with it.—J. H. Munford." "June 12th. Stobo Castle, Stobo, N.B. The Hon. Mr. Philipson has had the Hummel a week and will keep him; he is such a sweet singer." "June 24th. Ash View, Alkmans Mold. I am writing to say I am delighted with the Hummel purchased a few months ago. Please send another.—R. James to Varney, the Great Hummel Importer." Sole proprietor and only importer of Hummel Rollers, Stratford, London.

LOTS OF YOU

have been waiting for this advertisement to appear, and I am pleased to inform everyone that my first consignment of the season of the world-renowned Leipzig Rollers has arrived in grand condition and song. Every cock is guaranteed already in full song day and gaslight, with long hollow and double rolls, sweet silvery trills, soft roulades, water-bubble runs, piccolo trills, jug jug of the Nightingale, bell, harp, gong, and du du pipes, etc., and guaranteed entirely free from Titlark or other harsh notes. Prices for few weeks only, 6/- and 7/0 each; no Roller hens nor common Hartz cocks yet. Although I have not previously advertised Rollers this season, I am already receiving testimonials from delighted purchasers, of which following is sample. "11, Sandhach-rd., Coleridge, Staffs, Oct. 8th., Sir,—Please send following birds. The Roller I had from you is doing well, and I am very pleased with him. Yours A. Draycott." "Copeland-rd., Govan, Sir,—Received Roller no worse for his long journey, he soon started to sing, and I am well satisfied with him. Yours, W. Simpson." "108, Leamington-rd., Blackburn, Dear Sir,—Re Roller, I am very grateful to you for your prompt and straightforward dealing. The contest master you sent me is truly a champion and is in every way indicated as its name implies. With all future success for you, Yours, J. Ward." "53, Pemberton-lane, Wigan, Sir,—Rollers arrived Wednesday in splendid condition. I think they are three fine birds and give me entire satisfaction. Your honest and straightforward dealing reflects great credit upon you, Yours, J. Webster," "28, Church-lane, Wolverhampton, Sir,—Received Roller quite safe, am well pleased with him, he has some splendid notes. Please send, etc., Yours, F. Cheese." "125, Church-st., Silverdale, Sir,—I am pleased I sent to you for Rollers, they are just the sort I want, I am more than satisfied, I am delighted. Wishing you every success, Yours, A. Cadman." Every bird is guaranteed exactly as represented, and sent on full week's approval at my risk, either cash or CAGE BIRDS' deposit system, and money refunded in full if every satisfaction not given. I don't say that Rollers advertised by others are no good, but I do say that there is no other Roller being imported that can equal the Leipzig Rollers imported by me, and to test this statement to your own satisfaction, have one from me and one from elsewhere at any higher price than mine, test them side by side for a week and keep the one which suits you best. I am the actual importer and can therefore offer you better birds at lower prices than middlemen. Dealers please send for wholesale list. See British birds and appliance columns.

W. CORE, 131, Coach Street, Birmingham.

Miss Storey begs to inform her numerous customers that have already ordered Hartz Mountain Rollers that she has despatched the first 100 orders on October 14th and others on the following days (all orders taken in rotation; advice before bird). She has for many years led the way with Hartz Roller Canaries; these are undoubtedly the best and cheapest songsters in the world. Birds well on song by day and gaslight that are sure to give satisfaction; cocks 5s. 3d., 5s. 9d. each; a few extra good ones, 6s. 3d. each; hens, 2s. 3d. each, two for 4s. All birds on seven days' approval, carriage paid, at sender's risk Travelling cages, 2d. each.

Miss E. L. STOREY, Bird Specialist, Crowle, Doncaster.

THE CONFIDENCE TRICK.

Pearson's confidence is so great in his Cascade Rollers which, as the name implies, are Cascades of rippling, bubbling, liquid, melodious song, that he sends them on seven days' trial and refunds money if they don't give satisfaction. Perhaps you think this is a confidence trick. Well! deposit with CAGE BIRDS; I shall never see your money unless you are satisfied; then I gain your confidence, see the trick?; and all your neighbours will want to know where such a Roller was obtained for 10/-, which includes a splendid fitted British Roller Singing Cage, an ornament to any home. This strain has never been sold in England under £2 2s. If you have not heard a Cascade Roller you have not heard the perfection of Roller song. It's a revelation, and it costs nothing to prove this; ask your local dealer to let you have a Roller for a week before you pay for it, and let me have his answer; it will be more amusing than Limericking. "104, English-st., Dumfries, 14/10/07. Dear Sir,—Received Cascade Roller all right, and am very pleased with him.—Alex. Innes."—Note a fresh testimonial every week, full name and address. Cascade hens, 2/- each, special terms to trade and large buyers.—

BOOKLET FREE.

Finest Talking Parrots. I only deal in Parrots that will make first-class talkers; no rubbish. I am willing at all times to send my Parrots on four weeks' trial and three months' talking guarantee. Why? Because all my Parrots are young, strong, and reliable. My lifetime has been spent among grey Parrots, both at home and abroad. I guarantee every customer every satisfaction. Grey Parrots are my special fancy. I have trained them, know their wants, and can give every purchaser a bird that will please him in every way. I can supply grey talkers, not thinkers, that will say almost anything, at reasonable prices. Before you purchase a grey or green Parrot, send for my Booklet, entitled "Talking Parrots." All my birds are sent on four weeks' trial, at my risk. Send postcard for catalogue.—Mrs. Forster, Princes Park Aviaries, Violet Street, Liverpool.

PARROT PROBLEM

solved. For full proofs send postcard at once for my large book, "Parrot Prattle," now containing 168 pages. This is the most wonderful book ever offered free of all charge to all Parrot fanciers. (This "Parrot Prattle" is registered copyright, and all infringers and imitators will be proceeded against). It contains hundreds of testimonials from all parts with full names and addresses, many interesting facts, and gives valuable advice and hints to all parrot buyers. Full details of our original system of selling Parrots on four week's trial, at our risk, which we were the first to introduce. We sell Parrots of all descriptions on four weeks' trial, at our risk, before settlement. Cheapest and best in the Kingdom, and any Parrot sold by us, and not giving full satisfaction, will be exchanged any time within twelve months. Remember we lead and others try to follow. Write to other dealers as well as us, and judge for yourselves. Lists of Parrots for sale and above book post free on receipt of postcard.

CLUB REPORTS.

DERWENT VALLEY C.B.S.

Usual monthly meeting held October 5th. Rev. W. Rickaby in chair. Seeing that cage birds fanciers in the Derwent Valley district are mostly novices, it was, after a good discussion, agreed to have a five-mile radius show on November 30th, to try and strengthen the Society, so they might be able to hold an open show next year. The members will be glad if all fanciers living inside the limit will help in any way to make the show a success. The classes were arranged, and the schedule will be out shortly.—W. RICHARDSON, Sec.

BRISTOL C.B.S.

On conclusion of the necessary work in connection with the annual show, the Society decided to hold a smoking concert, and this took place at headquarters on October 9th, and was well attended. About 40 members and a great number of friends turned up, well supplied with music, a most enjoyable evening being spent. A very high compliment was paid to the members by a friend, who stated he should certainly take up Canaries as a hobby, for all those in the fancy seemed to have good vocal powers, which they must have gained from their pets! It is intended that a number of these social evenings shall be arranged in the future, for it is felt that they tend to cement that friendship that should exist amongst fanciers.—J. MUNRO, Hon. sec.

LANCASHIRE CANARY ASSOC.

Members met at Oldham, October 12th. Mr. Fred. Steeple presided. The minutes were confirmed and correspondence accepted, which included several letters from secretaries thanking us for our offer of guaranteeing the Lancashire classes at their coming shows. It was suggested that societies where we give our patronage should have printed opposite the classes, the L.C.A. Guarantee, the following, viz.: "Guaranteed by the Lancashire Canary Association." This, it was thought by all members present, was as little as the secretaries can do, seeing the amount the L.C.A. is liable for in case of short entries. Secretaries please bear in mind, next meeting at 6 p.m. at Rochdale Good Intent Show, opposite Rochdale Station entrance, November 2nd.—J. LAW, Hon. Sec.

WALLSEND AND MID TYNE C.B.

Special meeting held at headquarters, October 10th, Mr. John Macdonald in the chair. There was a good muster of members, and the first business was the "christening" of our two new massive silver cups, and how they had to be offered for competition. After a very lengthy and thorough discussion, in which all the members present took an active part, it was finally decided that No. 1 "The Percy Hood" £10 10s. silver challenge cup, be awarded to the exhibitor gaining most points in open classes in the show, the cup to be won three times, not necessarily in succession. The members think they are fortunate in having such a staunch and genuine supporter as their most esteemed vice-president, Percy Hood. This is the second massive cup he has presented the association with, within two years, the other being won outright last November by Stanger and Herdman, of Pelton Fell. The silver cup the members subscribed for themselves was named the "Club Challenge Cup." After all the pros and cons had been discussed, it was decided that it be awarded to the member gaining most points with three nominated birds in members classes. Afterwards we lixed up the specials for open classes and extra specials. We have been fortunate in getting numerous medals for competition, gold and silver, and a large assortment of useful articles. One member in particular, Edward Langlands, having two subscription lists full of money and goods, specials, and still he is on the hunt for more "victims." He even knocks our chairman into a "cocked hat," and, believe me, that takes some doing! If our approaching show is not a huge success, it won't be the fault of the present committee, as everyone is working with a will to that end. We have got the patronage of the following specialist clubs, the Border Counties N. and C.C.C., the Northern Crest C. the Northern Yorks. C.C., and the Northern British B.M. and F.C.C.—JAS. JOHNSTON, Hon. Sec.

CITY AND COUNTY OF PERTH O.S.

Monthly meeting held October 14th, with a record attendance of members, Mr. Brown (President) in the chair. Communication read from Scottish Plainhead Club, granting patronage for open show, at which two cups and three gold medals will be competed for by members of the club. We have also patronage of Border Fancy Club, and a medal for best Border Fancy. Arrangements were made for club show on October 19th with a large number of special prizes, and everything points to a record show.—J. KERR, Secretary.

DUDLEY AND DISTRICT C.B.S.

The annual meeting took place at headquarters, on October 9th, Mr. Bill occupying the chair. The balance-sheets, which were read, showed a balance in hand of 7s. 3d. on the members' show held November, 1906, and of 19s. 5d. on the ordinary account, making a total of £1 6s. 8d. in the treasurer's hands. Mr. J. J. Mullett was unanimously re-elected secretary, with a vote of thanks for past services. Mr. J. G. Leech, of the Cross Aviaries, Dudley, was elected chairman. Mr. W. Harper Bill, solicitor, Dudley, was elected vice-chairman. Part of the working committee was then formed, and will be completed at the next meeting, on the second Wednesday in November, when Mr. R. Russon has kindly consented to give a washing exhibition of Canaries; all fanciers are invited, with old members and intending ones; meeting at 8.30 prompt.—J. J. MULLETT, Sec.

PRESTON O.S.

Meeting October 1st. Mr. Howarth presided. In the course of the proceedings Mr. Charles Blockhurst, who on many occasions has given lectures and demonstrations to the members, made the gratifying announcement that, as the result of an agreeable interview which he and the Rev. S. E. Collinson had with Lord Stanley, his Lordship had consented to take the presidency of the Society, and offered a most valuable challenge cup to be competed for at the forthcoming show on the 8th and 9th of November. His Lordship promised to open the show, and to do all he could to promote its interests. After such encouragement has been extended by one of the members of the house of Stanley to the interests of one of the great hobbies of the Lancashire working men, who have always been distinguished for their love of nature and their peeps into its wonderful mysteries, it is to be hoped that the members will bring a newer and greater interest to bear, and thereby secure a roll of membership worthy of so illustrious a lead. It is most desirable that the coming show shall be of a magnitude which shall command wide attention, and that all fanciers shall make a special effort to swell out the classes. Mr. Cleminson gave a demonstration of how to wash birds for exhibition, which was greatly appreciated by all the younger members of the Society.

LONDON AND COUNTIES A.C.B.

A well-attended meeting was held at the Bay Malton, Great Portland-street, W., on October 10th. An important and pleasant announcement awaited the members after the schedule of the autumn show had been agreed upon, the treasurer, Mr. Williams, intimating that a silver cup to be presented by this association, would be offered for competition, and the terms of winning it settled at a later date. It is hoped that this will stimulate the members to a great effort to make the show a success, as, judging by the money already subscribed, the trophy promises to be a splendid one. Mr. Sam Smith was down to give a washing exhibition. Owing to regrettable indisposition, he was unable to attend. The breach was filled by those two able veterans in the art of washing, Messrs. Shakespeare and Davies. Some of the novices afterwards took a hand. It was a particularly instructive exhibition, and judging from the brisk discussion which followed, it was evident the novices present had learnt a good deal. Mr. Shakespeare very ably showed how necessary was the washing of British birds for exhibition, but strongly advised novices to get a good deal of practice before attempting some of the species, such as Bullfinches, which required the most careful handling. An inspection was then made of the washed birds, and it was soon seen where the "art of washing" lay. Much merriment was caused, but the novices took it in very good part. Taken all round, it was, perhaps, one of the most instructive meetings held by the society. Another surprise awaited the members, Mr. Morrison handing a handsome cup to the chairman, which was to be won outright for most points in the Canary section at the autumn show. Mr. Morrison was very warmly thanked for his kindness, and suitably replied. Votes of thanks were then accorded Messrs. Shakespeare and Davis, to Mr. Williams for kindly lending the birds, and the meeting closed with a further vote of thanks to Mr. Edward Pretty for presiding. A novel washing competition will be held on the next meeting night, October 24th.

BURY AND DISTRICT C.B.S.

Meeting held September 10th, at Textile Hall. Mr. J. E. Wolstenholme presided over a good attendance. Mr. Nelson, of Stockport, read a paper on the "Cinnamon-marked Yorkshire Canary." He said there was so much colour in the Yorkshire Canary that special precautions should be taken in breeding, there being a right and a wrong way in the pairing process. This he briefly dealt with, pointing out the common errors, and afterwards informing them how and what to pair. Following this was a description of the ideal markings for an exhibition bird, and referring to the colour of the "Yorkshire," he gave his assurance that it was possible to colour this bird equal to the Norwich by use of Cinnamon blood. Then followed a practical description of breeding from stock from his own personal experience. He went on to say that with many fanciers this branch of the fancy was not satisfactory, owing, in his opinion, to their scanty stock and insufficient scope in the bird room. They must remember that marked birds were not got so easily as colour birds. The "Cinnamon" was the most mysterious and interesting of the whole fancy, the powers of reproduction being marvellous. He gave a detailed explanation of the results obtained by different pairs. Speaking of even-marked breeding, he advised Yorkshire fanciers to avoid cap-marked birds. On the show bench the markings were taken into consideration more than the Norwich, and many judges undoubtedly followed the Yorkshire Union standard, maintaining that even marks were variegation to perfection. To make one's own strain meant years of unnecessary labour and expense, and he advised fanciers to visit reliable dealers, purchase a good bird, and start at once. Breast and saddle-marked birds were bad, and along with cap-marked should be avoided. They should not pair two evenly-marked birds together, as this would result in heavy variegation, which was not desirable. Referring to inbreeding, in which he was a firm believer, he said that fanciers should know what they were going in for, viz., hen or cock side. In his opinion the male bird carried the marking better than the hen, size also being on this side. On the other hand, with the hen they got quality, style, and position. The pairing of marks was next dealt with, like producing like to a great extent, especially on the male side. At the present time all Yorkshiremen were deeply interested in the cinnamon-marked birds, and it would be observed that plenty of cocks were kept in their bird-room, these being used for enriching the colour. In conclusion, he urged those present to look after their birds well, meeting all their requirements, and their ambitions would be fulfilled. After the lecture many questions were asked, and were satisfactorily answered. A vote of thanks to the lecturer was passed, on the motion of Mr. Fallowes, seconded by Mr. Bentley. The ordinary business was afterwards dealt with, this chiefly relating to the proposed Roller contest. The annual show will be held on November 8th and 9th.—J. E. HOLDEN, Asst. Sec.

BEGINNERS read THE ANNUAL.

UNDER THE WHITE ROSE.

BRADFORD EAST and Gt. Horton O.S. each held members' shows on Saturday last, the first-named having a real good show of over 100 entries, and as they are not in the Yorkshire Union they were able to hold their show during the afternoon. Gt. Horton had 54 entries in the 9 classes provided, the birds being staged in the evening, and many of them came direct from Windhill to again uphold the prestige of their owners in the race for specials.

WHO is the prominent Bradford judge who colour feeds his maggots when he goes fishing? I hear it is a splendid wheeze to get a good catch. But is it hot or cold that he uses? Other anglers would like to know.

THE Malton Society have had some little trouble during the last few weeks. But now that the clouds have been dispersed and the silver lining brought well into view, the Society will no doubt be the better and healthier for it. That it will now progress is certain, as nothing is worse than discontent and discord, and it is better to free the air from impurities, be they real or only imaginary. "STRAIGHT 'UN."

Nov. 8th.

A RED LETTER DAY FOR POULTRY KEEPERS.

The First Number of THE POULTRY WORLD will appear on Nov. 8th next.

Readers of CAGE BIRDS have noticed lately the announcements about a new paper for poultry keepers which will shortly appear. We are now in a position to divulge a few more details concerning the proprietary interests involved, and the programme that has been decided on. The name of the new paper will be

"The Poultry World,"

It will be priced at One Penny, and will appear every week. It will endeavour to strike an entirely new note in fancy journalism, and it will have on its staff many of the ablest experts connected with the Poultry Hobby. Simultaneously with the appearance of "The Poultry World" there will appear, under the auspices of Mr. J. E. Watmough, the well-known Yorkshire newspaper owner and Chairman of the Fanciers' Printing Co., a specialist paper, devoted exclusively and thoroughly to Homer and Fancy Pigeons. It will be priced at One Penny also, and will appear every week under the simple but comprehensive title of

"Pigeons."

Mr. J. E. Watmough will have the sole management and control of "Pigeons" and Mr. F. Carl the sole management and control of "The Poultry World" both journals co-operating with each other but remaining financially distinct and preserving their own separate individuality.

AN ANCIENT PEDIGREE.

These two papers will be the lineal descendants of the oldest fancy journal known, viz.: "The Fancier's Gazette," founded 1874, the paper with which the late Mr. W. A. Blakston was for so long honourably associated. For "Pigeons and Poultry," the weekly journal which has catered so admirably in the past for Poultry and Pigeon Fanciers' and which was an offshoot from "The Fanciers' Gazette" will after the first week in November be divided into two specialist organs, one devoted to Poultry, the other to Pigeons, each doing its level best to attain supremacy in its own special sphere.

"The Poultry World" will be owned by a limited liability company, the board of management for which will be made up as follows:

Managing Director: MR. F. CARL—

Directors: MR. J. E. WATMOUGH,—
Chairman Fanciers' Printing Coy., present owner of FUR AND FEATHER, PIGEONS AND POULTRY, etc., etc.

MR. W. E. BERRY—
Proprietor HEALTH AND STRENGTH, etc.

J. TREWAVAS,—
Director Fanciers' Printing Coy.

The chief outdoor representative and reporter-in-chief for "The Poultry World" will be Mr. C. A. HOUSE—a journalist who served his apprenticeship under the doyen of Poultry Editors, Mr. Edward Brown, and who for over twenty years has been creditably associated with fancy journalism and fancy matters.

Mr. Carl and Mr. Watmough will both have a large financial interest in "The Poultry World," and it will be the aim of the various periodicals they respectively control to further their common interests. Their various journals will thus cover almost the entire range of fancy topics, viz.—Poultry, pigeons, rabbits, cage birds, cavies, mice. We may as well make it clear, though, that CAGE BIRDS will continue to be run as a private enterprise, and not as a limited liability company. Mutual arrangements have been made to secure a formidable campaign on all sections of interest catered for, and equally in the country as in the town. Mr. Watmough's headquarters will remain at Bradford, Mr. Carl conducting all necessary operations from London.

Thus does the newest paper in the Poultry fancy become the oldest. And it will be the aim of "The Poultry World" to live up to the traditions of its distinguished predecessors. We may at least congratulate ourselves on not adding to the list of existent poultry journals, and upon taking over, right from the start, a substantial circulation—an assured advertisement revenue a long list of subscribers, and an organised list of show reporters and officers.

F. CARL, 154, Fleet Street, London.

THE YOUNG NATURALIST.

Prizes of 1s. and two of 6d. each will be given for respectively the best and two second best cuttings of original bits about birds. Competitors must be children under sixteen years of age. All efforts must be briefly and clearly written, and ON ONE SIDE OF THE PAPER ONLY.

*Mules and Donkeys.

Last year father put a Linnet and Canary together in a breeding cage, and one day we were surprised to see some eggs; soon after some young birds appeared, and we have reared five young ones, some of which are now singing. One day when we were talking about them, and calling them Mules, a lady made the funny remark: "Well, I never knew that you had a stable before. I am surprised at your starting with donkeys." Of course, we had to explain matters, and didn't she laugh.—MARION STOTT, 217, Great Horton-road, Bradford; age, 12 years.

*Water Fowl.

A little while ago I visited a moderate-sized lake, which contained a number of water-fowl. Of Canada Geese I counted forty, moving gracefully from one side of the lake to the other. There were a large number of Mallards or Wild Ducks, some on the water and others flying overhead—a pretty sight. Many Coots and Water-hens were swimming about in groups, and here and there a Dabchick or Little Grebe, which is considered the best diver of all water-fowl. Lastly, I noticed a great Crested Grebe, which looked like a small Gosling: for it was without its ruffle or crest, with which it is adorned during the spring and summer months. —FRANK OSWALD FEW, Claraville, Buckley-street, Wigan; age 10 years.

A Mischievous Greenfinch.

I started keeping birds in 1904, my first bird being a cock Greenfinch, a common but very pretty bird. I found a nest of three, which I took home. Two of the birds died, but the one left was a nice cock, and very tame. I used to let him fly about the room while I played the piano. One morning, as usual, he was out, and presently I was startled by a crash. I looked and saw that a picture had fallen to the floor. The bird had been pecking at the string which had held the picture up, and had pecked it in two. He was so frightened at this that he has never sat on the picture since. We called the Greenfinch "Perky." I have since had more birds, and my father soon became interested in them, so that we now have about sixty birds altogether.—From GEORGE MAINPRIZE (age 13), Park Villas, Witham, Essex.

SINGING CONTESTS.

LEEDS.

Usual weekly Linnet singing contest at the old Bird House, King's Head, Shannon-street, when 19 of the best birds in Leeds sung for three good prizes. Result: 1 and 2, T. Stead; 3, J. Nicholls. Some very good singing was heard before a crowded house. Judges, T. Summers and C. Cooper. Timekeeper, E. Worth.—T. SUMMERS, Hon. sec.

Usual contest held at the Prince Albert Inn, October 6th, Mr. J. R. Saynor gave three good prizes. The birds gave a very good account for time of year. 1st, A. Binner; 2nd, W. Dean; 3rd, J. Sellars. Also a contest, October 13th; good number of birds turned up to sing for three good prizes given. Judges, Messrs. B. Jackson and G. Towers. Result: 1st, F. Allen; 2nd, A. Binner; 3rd, F. Allen. —E. WOOD, Hon. Sec.

LEWISHAM.

Linnet singing contest at the Coach and Horses, High-street, Lewisham, on October 12th; 7.30 saw the first pair on the nail, and rare fun was caused by this champion pair not opening. The second pair only did 13 chalks, the third and fourth not doing much over a score. The fifth was a treat to hear after such quiet times from start to finish. The winner (D. Cartright) was challenging his opponent all the time, being an easy winner by over three score, other chalks he would not take.

TWITTERINGS.

Please note that Bodmin Show takes place on the 6th of November.—A. E. Jago, Sec.

We hear that Mr. W. R. Miles, of Chichester, is to adjudicate at Worthing Show, held November 27 next.

All specials at Cheltenham Show are for most points, writes the secretary, Mr. A. S. Treasure. This was omitted from schedule.

I have removed to larger premises at Chelmsford, where all communications should be addressed, writes Mr. H. Ireland.

Mr. J. C. Barnes (Sheffield) is engaged to judge at Mansfield, November 1st; Langwith, November 23rd; Cresswell, December 14th.

All prize money won at the Peterborough C.B.A. Show was sent within 24 hours of the close, writes Mr. H. C. Lilley, the Hon. Sec.

Mr. J. A. Wilkinson, late of 114a, Hughenden-road, writes: "My address on and after the 12th inst. will be 9, Holmesdale-gardens, Hastings.

We hear that the entry for Peckham Show is a very fine one, over 1,000 birds, and the exhibition promises a treat for London fanciers.

Report of St. Andrews Show states that Malcolm was 5th with Yellowhammer, whereas I was fifth and special.—W. Paton (Thornton, Fife).

Will members of the Dudley and District C.B.S. please note change of my address to 5, New Rowley-road, Dudley, writes Mr. J. J. Mullett, the secretary?

I have received a postcard (I suppose for a schedule), with no writing on, and as postmark is not quite plain I cannot tell where it is from. J. Simcock, Sec., Potteries Show.

Darley Dale entries extended to Sunday morning post. Not a single entry turned up; "Fanciers help us." Norwich Plainhead hen is Class 76a. Fanciers please note.—WM. ELLIOTT, Sec.—ADVT.

Just after we had gone to press last week we received a telegram from the secretary of the Barnstaple Show asking us to notify exhibitors that this fixture was not being held under Cage Bird Union rules.

Your excellent paper, CAGE BIRDS, is the only paper that interests me, and I shall hope to see the new "Poultry World" shortly, which I am sure will be another boon to fanciers.—J. KINSELLA (Wexford).

Kindly announce that my private address after October 23 will be 18, Lisvane-street, Cathays, Cardiff, writesMr. E. J. Banks, where I shall be pleased to welcome all fanciers, especially those of the Yorkshire variety.

Mr. E. W. Johnson, hon. sec. of the Wibsey and District C.B.S., writes to the effect that trams are now running to the "little village on the hill," and that he hopes to see a few more friends at their members' shows, etc.

The handbook of rules, etc., of the Welsh Cage Bird Club, which reaches us from the hon. secretary, Mr. D. H. Tedstone, is a tastefully produced little booklet, and one which should be very useful to the members.

Kindly notify fanciers that the Welsh National Show (Swansea) is under Cage Bird Union rules, writes Mr. S. J. Nicholas, as it has been brought to my notice that the fixture is not so starred in your "dates fixed" column.

Please discontinue my advertisement of Bramblefinches, writes Mr. G. Cooper (Norwich), for I have had so many sales that I have been compelled to return money to would-be purchasers—high eulogy to your circulation.

We hear that the firm of Messrs. Brown and Arrighi, the well-known Scottish exhibitors, have dissolved partnership by mutual consent, and that John Brown and Louis J. Arrighi will for the future each exhibit their own birds.

In our issue of October 5th last Mr. H. Fowler was inaccurately given as the secretary of the Bristol Cage Bird Society, whereas Mr. J. Munro, of Pretoria Villa, St. John's-lane, Bedminster, Bristol, is the rightful hon. secretary.

We have received a neat booklet of rules from the hon. secretary of the Kent County Cage Bird Association, Mr. H. Sarjeant, the Belle Vue Villas, Shakespeare-road, Dover, who ill be glad to hear from anyone wishing to join.

On behalf of the members of the Accrington Society, writes Mr. D. Harwood, the secretary, I thank you for the excellent report of our recent show. Our date fixed for next year's show should be October 23rd and 24th, and not the 16th and 17th.

With reference to our advertisement in last week's issue of CAGE BIRDS, re Siberian Goldie, we are unable to reply to all applicants, having got over 30 letters. This speaks highly of CAGE BIRDS as the paper to advertise in.—A. and W. SINTON (Jedburgh).

I have moved from Painswick-road to 2, Saintsbridge Villas, Saintsbridge, Gloucester, writes Mr. Henry J. Davis, where, now that I shall have more time at my disposal, I hope to go in for breeding the popular Norwich Plainhead on a much larger scale.

At the recent Selkirk Show one well-known fancier was heard to remark to another well-known fancier, who had won Hyde's teapot and a gents' umbrella: "Well, John, you'll now be able to put the wet inside the Hyde, and keep off the wet outside the hide."

Mr. R. P. Breome has very kindly given a 21s. teapot to the S.Y.C.C. member making most points out of the money, open to either section, and members must show at three shows to be eligible to compete.—J. W. RENNIE, Hon. Sec. Southern Yorkshire C.C.

The hon. secretary of the Kent County C.B.A., Mr. George Sanderson, writes that an error has crept into the schedule of their forthcoming show in reference to the members' specials. In the eighth line the words "current year" should be followed by the word "exhibitor."

At Watford Show, writes Mr. R. J. Watts, the secretary, there will be 2s. 6d. cash specials in all open classes. Watford is on the L.N.W. Railway main line, with a splendid train service, and every effort will be made by the executive for the comfort of exhibits and exhibitors.

Chesterfield Show, on October 25 and 26, is for cage birds only, writes the secretary. The large room in the Market Hall has been engaged, and being of a very spacious character, well lighted, and free from draughts, comfort both for the exhibits and visitors is assured.

Grimsby's first open show proved a great success, we hear. Over 300 entries were obtained, including 143 Norwich in eight classes. In the Foreign (seed eater) class 22 exhibits were staged, a really surprising turnout. The judge, Mr. J. C. Barnes, had no easy task in separating the specimens.

The Falkirk and District C.B.S. held a committee meeting on October 12, writes Mr. W. Clubb, Sec., for the purpose of arranging their special prizes for the forthcoming annual show, to be held in the Oddfellows Hall on October 26, and when we hope to receive the full support of brother fanciers.

The Neath and District F.A. have decided to take the Drill Hall of the 3rd Glamorgan Rifles, writes Mr. W. R. B. Richardson, the secretary, and they have now five cups in hand, one for each section; also that special prizes will be given at the show, which is to be held at the Drill Hall on November 5.

Kindly notify my change of address to 471, Battersea Park-road, S.W., where all communications should be addressed, writes Mr. A. J. Head, Hon. Sec. of the Metropolitan Association of Canary, Mule, and Hybrid Breeders. Information will be gladly given to any person desirous of becoming a member.

Our show has the patronage of the Border Counties Norwich and Cinnamon Club, Northern Yorkshire Canary Club, Northern Crest Club, Northern British Bird Mule and Foreign Bird Club.—W. DUKE (North Shields and South Shields).

I should like to testify to the advantage of the part 2 of CAGE BIRDS Annual. We sent 900 schedules out from the addresses contained in it, and there is no doubt the grand result is mostly due to it.—H. C. LILLEY, Peterborough C.B.A.

I see in a report I sent you respecting a smoking concert of the Bristol C.B.S. there has been a mistake in putting me down as secretary. I am not such. I sent it in on behalf of the society, our secretary being away:—H. FOWLER.

Messrs. Hindhaugh and Co. (Newcastle-on-Tyne), write:—We have had an enormous number of enquiries from all parts of the country for very small orders of seeds which we are not prepared to deal with.

The judge of the Norwich Plainheads at the forthcoming show of the Swansea C.B.S. is Mr. J. Pritchard, of Mountain Ash, one of the oldest breeders and exhibitors of Plainheads in our Welsh districts, so writes Mr. J. EVANS, the sec.

A friend of mine writes "A Chiel," was at a show in Scotland the other day, and met a reporter with a notebook. He asked him what he thought of the judge's work, and his answer was: "I have no love for the judge, and I'll give him beans," A nice Christian spirit, truly.

Notwithstanding prize money guaranteed and good specials, the cage bird entries at Weston-super-Mare Show, held October 31, don't average one a class, writes Mr. Geo. W. Read, the secretary. Compelled to extend to 22nd October. Will classify if sent on. Fanciers, do help one of the finest shows in Somerset.

The entry at Rochdale Show is the very gratifying one of nearly 600 birds, writes Mr. J. Butterworth, the secretary, which is good, seeing we have no specialist club show this year. I hope neighbouring fanciers will give us a look in on Friday and Saturday, and see the finest show room in England, and some fine birds.

Battersea Show is very hard up for entries, and compelled to extend the closing date until Monday next, first post, writes Mr. F. Easterling, the secretary, when we hope fanciers will rally round, and not let us suffer a loss. We are doing everything we possibly can for exhibits and exhibitors, as a perusal of our show advertisement will prove. Send a few entries along to us.

Class 26 of the Wolverhampton and District C.B.S. schedule is for any variety Hybrid, writes Mr. F. Howes, the secretary. The codicil "between two British birds" is used to distinguish them from the Canary Hybrids. There is also a printers' error in Class 28, which should read: Linnet, Redpoll, Siskin, or Twite—not Turte. Some fanciers have written me asking if the latter is another added to the British bird list!

Dibb's Canary Seed offer—Special Offer.—As an advertisement we give with every cwt. of Canary Seed purchased, one cwt. of our celebrated Health Grit absolutely free. Giant Spanish, 24s. per cwt.; Finest Turkish, 15s. per cwt.; treble-screened and free from dust. Carriage paid to nearest station. Samples on application from John Dibb, Seed Importer, 31 and 33, White Abbey Road, Bradford. Tel. 247x.—(Advt.)

Although the Cheltenham Show is held in C.B.U. rules, writes Mr. A. S. Treasure, anybody can show, whether a member or not. The room is an ideal one for the purpose, and is entirely free from draughts. On Sunday the birds will have a complete rest, as none but the stewards on duty will be allowed in, and a guarantee is given that every bird will be properly packed for the return journey. I have several letters thanking me for the splendid way the birds were returned last year.

Kindly announce that the entrance fee in the amateur classes in Norwich Show schedule should read the same as in champion classes, viz., 1s. 6d. per cage, members 1s. 3d. per cage. I regret that this was not noticed when going through proof from the printers. Some six hundred schedules were sent through the post last Monday morning before the error was discovered, and shall be glad if intending exhibitors who are not members will take note of this.—R. OLL, Secretary.

At a meeting held at Llandudno Junction on October 10, writes Mr. A. T. Johnson, secretary of the Vale of Conway and District F.A., it was decided to appoint delegates to represent the association in the various parts of the district. The names of these will be published in due course. New members continue to join the association, and the cage bird fraternity are particularly strong. Will all who wish to be elected send their names to me (Glanconway, N. Wales) as early as possible? The minimum annual subscription is 2s. 6d. The next committee meeting is fixed for Thursday, October 24, Station Hotel, Llandudno Junction, at 7.

What will they say?

There has been some little speculation as to who would judge the Green Canary classes at the next Crystal Palace Show. The upset of last season over "square feathers in greens" has left the atmosphere unsettled. We met Mr. Ramsden, the Palace Show manager, the other day outside a London chemist's, and it struck us he was looking thinner than was his wont. Incidentally he informed us that Messrs. Heath and Mundell were appointed to judge the champion Yorkshire classes at the Palace, and that they, as "a natural sequence," would take the champion Greens. What would Liverpool say to this, we wondered?

OUR COUPON PRIZES.

How to Supplement your Prize Money.

A word to intending exhibitors at shows where our coupon scheme and great £200 prize competition is in force, will now be timely and needed. If you are entering a bird or two for a coupon show (look down the coupon show list)—why not run a double-barrelled chance by paying just another sixpence to us for a coupon? This little sixpence may be the means of bringing you in an additional 10s. 6s., or 4s. Remember your bird need not be a topper to stand a chance for our prizes. We are not offering prizes for the best three birds, as some people may think, but for the best first prize bird, the best second prize, and the best third. So that if your exhibit only secures a third, it may still stand a chance of winning the 10s. If it does not win an ordinary cash prize at all it may still win one of our prizes. Where there are no first or second prize birds entered for our scheme (and it is quite possible at many shows there won't be) this is more than likely.

Exhibitors must not run away with the idea that this is a competition for the cracks. It is not. The novice has just as much opportunity. Now run your eye down our coupon list, and post off your application to us for coupons right away.

Coupons are ready for any show on our list of coupon shows. If you don't use them at the show they still have a cash value. (See rules.) But we want the scheme to be a bumping success. If it is, exhibitors will benefit, the societies will benefit, and we shall benefit. It will be a good thing all round. Think how annoyed you will be if your bird wins an ordinary prize and is defeated in our coupon scheme by another bird immeasureably its inferior. This is certain to happen if you don't buy your coupons and safeguard yourself right away. 6d. a coupon—for each bird at each show. Prizes 10s., 6s., 4s., surplus divided amongst the participating societies.

Entries are not coming up to our expectations in this coupon scheme, especially at the shows where leaflets only have to be inserted. Everyone is afraid that everyone else has entered. We have decided to supply coupons up to within 36 hours of entries being finally closed.

"Hands Across the Sea."

Please mention, writes Mr. J. W. Ramsden, that I have received a letter from Mr. White, of Melbourne, who wishes to be kindly remembered to all he met when over here. Mr. White very kindly enclosed £2 2s. in his letter, being four 10s. 6d. specials from the Victorian Society, to be given at the next National Show, viz., 10s. 6d. for best Crest, 10s. 6d. for best Crestbred, 10s. 6d. for best Norwich, 10s. 6d. for best Norwich Cinnamon.

Norwich Plainhead Club Medal.

I notice quite a number of members have not sent in their vote, writes Mr. J. Raynes (Hon. Sec.), although they have had a month to consider it. I should be glad if they would do so at once, along with subscription, which is considerably overdue, so that I may be able to complete and place same before the annual meeting of all members, which is to take place at the Nottingham Show on November 16; time and place will be posted on the champion gold medal winner.

A Nailing Good Notion.

At the last meeting of the Wimbledon C.B.S., when Mr. A. W. Curtis gave a most interesting exhibition of cage making, he kindly offered the cage, a beautifully made stock cage for Norwich Canaries, to anyone present who could guess most accurately the number of nails he would put in it. The lowest guessed was 18 and the highest 55, and as the members, one by one, saw the numbers they had guessed passed, they treated the competition as a huge joke, and got no end of fun out of it. The total number of nails used was 91, and Mr. P. Rorke, whose guess was 55, was awarded the prize, which he immediately handed over to the secretary, who is to include it in the list of special prizes for the forthcoming show.

A Deplorable Loss.

At the last meeting of the City and Suburban A.C.B., writes Mr. WYNN, the Secretary, the chairman, Mr. A. C. Burn, rose and announced that he had some painful news to impart. Mr. H. Davis, one of their oldest and most respected members, had met with a deplorable disaster in his birdroom, losing thereby over 50 birds at one fell stroke, and the cream of his stock. He (the chairman), felt sure that all would most sincerely sympathise with Mr Davis in this dreadful calamity, the financial loss from which must be considerable. Messrs. R. L. Crisp, A. W. Curtis, and G. E. Weston also made touching references to the sad affair. With obvious emotion Mr. Davis rose to thank the members for their kind words of sympathy. Not only had he lost practically all his best birds, but also the best bird it had been his pleasure to breed in his life. He would leave them to imagine his despair—upon going into his room in the height of his misfortune, a thought came over him: Shall I finish off the work, and put an end to the whole stock by suffocation He had sent specimens to Mr. J. North for a post mortem examination, and in consequence of following his advice had been ablo to save the great majority of those left when his letter arrived, but his prospects for the ensuing season were hoplessly ruined.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

DOUBTS AND DIFFICULTIES SOLVED BY SPECIALISTS.

For Conditions see Issue dated October, 5th.

CANARIES.

NORWICH PLAINHEADS.

Answered by J. H. PAYNE.

Egg Food and Other Things.

Tam-o'-Shanter.—Let your hen have in her drinking water every other day for three weeks ten drops of Tincture of Quinine, and instead of the milk sop, let her have a small teaspoonful of egg-food, to which add five or six drops of Parrish's Chemical Food. (2) I am afraid you lose your young birds by taking away the egg-food too early. In the future, let them have a little until they are right through the moult, gradually lessening the quantity of egg. Milk sop and rape seed is enought to upset them. (3) Bathe the lump on the hen with twenty grains of Boracic Acid to two tablespoonfuls of water night and morning. Should this fail to disperse it after a week's trial, write again. (4) The No. 2 sample of canary seed is much the best, being much bolder and very clean. Use this in the future.

Red Mite.

H.G.J.—I should recommend you to well dust your hen under the wings and at the root of the tail with Keating's Insect Powder, as I am of opinion she is troubled with red mite, and this is the cause of the barrenness you speak of on the shoulders. For the heavy breathing, give in the drinking water, fresh daily, fifteen drops of Syrup of Tolu, ten drops of Paregoric and ten of whiskey. Keep her covered over at nights with a warm cloth, and see she is in a warm corner quite away from draughts. Continue the treatment for a fortnight, and then you may put a piece of mutton suet between the bars of the cage for her to peck at.

Rheumatism in Leg.

T. W. Guest.—I think you are correct in assuming your bird has rheumatism in its legs. Let it have in its drinking vessel three grains of Iodide of Potassium three times a week, for two or three weeks. Keep it in a warm place out of draught, and cover over at night with a warm cloth.

YORKSHIRES.

Case of Bronchitis.

Constant Reader of C.B.—Your feeding in respect to seeds is all right, but I certainly prefer egg along with colour food in place of the food you mention, and should advise you to change to that and not use more than one part hot Natal to three or four parts cold. Perhaps your best plan would be to stop colour feeding, except about twice a week, until bird is better. Keep the bird warm and give fresh each morning a little egg food or milk sop, well mixing with same six drops of syrup of buckthorn, and give this for a week. For another week give in place of buckthorn six drops of Parrish's Chemical Food, take the drinking water away at night and give fresh every morning, well mixing with same six drops of this mixture—two parts of oil of eucalyptus and one part oil of cajipat, cover up at night and keep free from draughts during the day, when I think your bird will recover.

A Slow Improvement.

Nil Desperandum.—Keep your bird in a snug warm corner and follow the instructions given in CAGE BIRDS September 28th, re covering up at night, etc. Take the drinking water away at night and give fresh every morning, well mixing into it ten drops each of tincture of lobelia and paragoric. Do not give any soft food till the bird has had a drink or two, say an hour, then give half a teaspoonful of egg food or milk sop, the former for preference, well mixing with it six drops of Parrish's Chemical Food, and sprinkling a pinch of maw seed over the lot. Follow this treatment for a few weeks when your bird may be all right again. Glad to hear your bird is a little better, but the improvement will necessarily be slow.

Remedy for Asthma.

In a Fix.—Give fresh every morning in the drinking water ten drops each of tincture of lobelia and paragoric, taking the water away at night, and giving a little egg food daily, well mixing with it eight or ten drops of syrup of buckthorn. Try this for a week, when I think you will find a great improvement. If so, substitute Parrish's Chemical Food for the syrup of Buckthorn. If there is no improvement write again and I will try and advise you further.

ROLLERS.

Answered by "SCHOOLMASTER."

Three Seed Samples.

J. Johnson.—I must say that personally I do not like the look of any of the seeds you send. The canary seed is very small, very small indeed—more husk than kernel, I should think. It may be good seed of its kind, but I should not buy it for myself for use with high-class birds. It certainly is not Spanish—the grains of genuine Spanish are as large again. I should say it is what the trade call Turkish. The maw looks shrivelled and old (dried up) when seen through a glass. The rape is too large and black (and looks like a mixture of two or three kinds). The summer rape favoured by fanciers is a very tiny reddish-black seed, tasting sweet and nutty when chewed in the mouth.

Summer Rape Seed.

Yellow Bird.—From examination under a glass I am of opinion the rape you send is not all of one kind (that is, the seed of one plant). No one can identify the bare rape seeds with certainty, but if you were to sow a small plot in the garden (protecting it from birds) a botanist would with certainty name the plants which grew, and so set the matter at rest. The grains are of such very different sizes (and colours), which leads me to the above conclusion. No hot rapes (mustards) are revealed by chewing.

What's In a Name?

S. Measham.—Hartz Mountain and St. Andreasberg are trade names given to Roller Canaries, and supposed to indicate the districts in Germany from which the birds come. But I expect many sold as the above never were within miles of the districts mentioned. In a general way, "St. Andreasberg" is used to indicate a rather better quality Roller than the "Harlz Mountain," and they are generally the higher-priced of the two. Seifert was a great breeder of Rollers, who lived in Germany. His birds became famous for their exceptionally good low (bass) rolls. And so a Seifert Roller is (or should be) one bred from his strain and very good in the lower register. Hummel is the trade name used by an English dealer in Roller Canaries.

In the Moult.

A. M. M. Anxious.—I have given advice on treatment of moulting Roller Canaries several times this last few weeks. Cuttlefish is certainly not conducive to diarrhoea; the other way about, I should think, if anything. It is very necessary to moulting birds (as is a free supply of good grit), and you made a mistake in removing it. All birds eat it and grit freely during the moult; they contain material used in the formation of feathers. Keep the birds out of all draughts, and lightly cover the cages at night if it seems desirable. Your birds do not want much green food during the moult—a sprig of tender watercress (the young growths) or seeding chickweed or shepherd's purse once a day, or a little tender lettuce. A bit of ripe fruit, such as sweet apple, pear, orange, or banana, is also a most excellent thing. In addition to the canary and rape seeds, mix some hemp and maw seeds together (equal parts), and give a teaspoonful every other day. In between give a teaspoonful of some good maker's patent Canary food (or bread) in which you have well mixed 4 or 5 drops of Parrish's Chemical Food, obtainable from any chemist. This treatment will bring any healthy Roller through the moult in good form. A little linseed should be sprinkled amongst the canary and rape towards the finish of the moult, every day.

Various Matters.

Lillian.—Your bird must be very bad, indeed, to have such a discharge from nostrils, etc. The best and safest (harmless) remedy I know of, is Glycothymoline. It is not exactly cheap, but what is left over makes a nice toilet preparation for one's own use. It should be used warm—exactly, and of same strength as advised on bottle—twice a day. A very small feather, or tiny camel hair pencil brush, should be used to clear out the nostrils, and wash out throat and mouth. A little can also be mixed with the drinking water for a few days. The proprietary coal-tar essence would not, I should think, be identical with the B.P. preparation. Singing birds need not be covered over to learn their song. The young will pick up any notes they hear, of course, and will be certain to acquire most of the notes of the Norwich, in addition to notes of the Roller—in fact, I should certainly say they will find the former's song easiest to acquire.

The Best Show Box.

Eager.—Yes; I am sure the Roller Club secretary (Mr. Norris) would be glad to give you any information he could. I don't like the song boxes which have loose wire cages inside, for use to send to shows. The inside wire cages never seem very strong, and they want tightly packing to avoid rocking and knocking about while on rail. I like the tin boxes which have a wire front fitted in, forming the cage themselves. You want to mind, of course, there is nothing loose to rattle about, even in those. A wood box (travelling box) should be made to hold this exhibition cage—light, yet strong. A piece of paper, folded to a suitable shape, placed at each end, will serve to wedge the cage securely in the travelling case. Have your name and address inside the lid of the latter. The bird, of course, should be kept in the exhibition cage during the show season (or he thoroughly used to it), or he will not sing, probably, when at the show, if in a strange cage.

CINNAMONS.

Cinnamon Moulting.

Midlothian.—As you say they were separated 1st August and the cock is in full song, I think he must have moulted before that date, or since, in an imperceptible manner, as some birds do this and have a curious way of eating every feather which comes out. Anyhow, there is no occasion to adopt any special line of medical treatment for him. The hen on the other hand would seem to be in low condition. Plain seed is poor diet during moulting season for Fancy Canaries, and I think a little expenditure in this direction would produce better results than drugs. A seed mixture of equal parts canary, hemp, rape and mustard, should be prepared. Two teaspoonfuls of it should be treated each day with scalding water, drained when cold and sprinkled with "canary cake," or crushed biscuit. Six drops of Parrish's Chemical Food may be added.

Borax as a Bleacher.

W.A.—In framing an answer it would have been helpful to have known in what way or for what purpose it was proposed to use the solution of borax, made of the strength of one teaspoonful to a quart of water. I do not perceive that it would in any way benefit a colour-fed bird, nor, to reply to your specific question, do I consider that it would tend to bleach the colour of a bird if served merely as bath water.

GREENS.

Weakness of Green Cock.

Cambuslang.—Seeing that your cock is eight years old, I should say old age was the principal cause of the weakness in his feet and legs. Plain canary seed is not sufficient; give him a little mixed seed twice a week, and bathe his feet daily in warm water, afterwards using a little borasic ointment. See that his claws are cut. Hang him on the wall near the window (not in it), where he will be free from draughts, and give ½-dozen drops of tincture of iron to wineglassful of drinking water, twice weekly. Glad you find our paper so useful.

MISCELLANEOUS CANARY QUERIES.

Answered by "OLD JUDGE."

Cause of Death.

M. Baker.—I am sorry I cannot help you. It is quite impossible to give the cause of death from drawing of the dead bird. You should have sent it to Mr. North for post-mortem. You say nothing about its symptoms before death, so I have nothing to guide me in hazarding the cause of death. Had you described symptoms of illness, what food it had, and what its appetite was like, it would have been some guide.

Sits Thick.

B.J.—Your hen is suffering from asthma. Epsom Salts are not quite the remedy for this complaint. Try the effect of the following in the drinking water daily, twelve drops of glycerine, and two of creosote. Mix these well together, and then stir well whilst adding the water. In addition to the seed, give a little egg food daily.

BRITISH BIRDS, MULES AND HYBRIDS.

Canary Seed Samples.

Dick.—I cannot say that I think very highly of any of the three samples of canary seed you send. You can certainly get much better. No. 1 is just a fair seed, small, and uneven in size at that. No. 2 is a very small and pale seed, which I would not buy at any price for my own use. No. 3 looks much the better of the trio—rather small, but plump, and even in size, and of a nice colour, apparently well harvested. I don't think you could go far wrong in using this latter seed; still, bolder can be obtained.

Hemp Seed Under Suspicion.

C. Creese.—The sample is not one of what I should term really first-class hemp seed. It contains far too many green corns for that. Still, I should not like to say it is responsible for the "epidemic" amongst your Goldfinches, whatever you may mean by that term (I assume you have had a number of deaths). I have not heard of hemp seed being either "chemically treated, or artificially ripened and dried." Taking this point of view (for the sake of argument), then any injurious chemical would leave traces on the shell of seed, and may be in the kernel, and it would also leave traces in the intestines of the birds, if the cause of death, when in both cases, I should think, its presence could be determined by any skilled analyst. It could not be determined by any other means, so far as I am aware. However, I think if you purchased a healthy, inexpensive bird (say a sturdy Redpoll) and housed it right away from your other birds, and your bird-room, if you have one, and in quite a new cage (the latter is important) and fed it entirely on the suspected hemp seed, you might arrive at something. For instance, if it survives, all well and healthy, then clearly the seed cannot be to blame; if it sickens, and dies, then it might be worth while carrying your suspicions further. But "epidemics," of course, are brought about by many things beside seed. Any way, you won't mind me declining to test the seed on one of my own Goldics, eh?

Robin in an Aviary.

R.W.B. (Tottenham).—I have frequently stated that Robins are usually veritable terrors in an aviary, and most dangerous companions for other birds. To their own kith and kin they are absolutely brutal—that is to say, Robins fight and maim and slaughter one another in a callous manner, which might well be described as perfectly fiendish. "Maim," perhaps, is hardly accurate, for once a fight is begun, the ultimate decease of one or other of the combatants is assured. Yes; I noticed a correspondent some few weeks' ago recommended keeping a Robin in an aviary with Canaries, to keep down earwigs. I can only say that personally I would not care to try the experiment. If I did, however, I should put in a female, which I have heard said are not so aggressive towards others. A Pekin Robin would be the thing, though, I should fancy, for earwig-eating. If you try the experiment, keep your eyes open, anyway—and let me know the result. I have watched Robins in the canal-bank aviary at the Zoo, and wondered why on earth they were put there, for they bullied and terrorised every bird in the place the live-long day. They require a good insectivorous mixture, and mealworms, and other live insects (as described practically weekly in my column for small soft-bills).

Sending Birds a Journey.

Matthews.—Any of the bird-shops in Leicester will supply you with proper travelling cages for the despatch of live birds by rail (or any of the cage-makers advertising in our columns). They cost from twopence to fourpence each, according to whether they are plain box form, or with a wired front. The bottom is strewn with a handful of seed, and the box covered with brown paper and tied up with string. A CAGE BIRD'S "Live Bird Label" (with address written on, of course), is stuck on the top, two air-holes bored in the paper with the point of a lead pencil, and the bird is ready for delivery to the railway company best suited to carry it to its destination. No water is needed inside, but the bird should be allowed a drink just before being packed. Put it on a fast night train, so that it arrives at its journey's end first thing in the morning; that, at least, is generally best. An empty 100-cigar box, with the lid sawn across (not lengthwise) in the middle, and one half tacked down (the other forming a lid) with a perch nailed across the bottom in the centre, makes a fairly good travelling box for a small bird—one often used, in fact.

A Stock Mixture.

F.P.—Probably you will know that I do not recommend a stock mixture as an economical method of feeding aviary birds. It entails a certain amount of waste, and this can be avoided to a great extent by supplying the principal seeds in separate hoppers or dishes. However, for your Goldie, Bullie, Chaffinch, Greenie, Bramble, Siskin and Redpoll, in your large aviary, the following seed-mixture would be a good one: Canary and teazle three pints each, sunflower two pints, hemp summer rape, charlock and linseed one pint each. The other seeds (maw, niger, etc.), wild seed mixture, and also the seeding wild plants (thistles, dandelion, knapweed, shepherd's purse, chickweed, etc.) with a few ants' eggs, or a little prepared insectivorous mixture, you could give occasionally, as a ebauge, or a treat.

Chaffinch not Moulting.

A Novice.—It is getting rather late, certainly, but I don't suppose for a minute your own Chaffie is the only one not yet started moulting. I should remove it from the window to a cosy corner in a warmed room, and gradually "sheet down" its cage with some warm material. It will experience no difficulty whatever in finding food and water, providing the cage is of the usual box type—the best are those with food and water on a level with the perches. This is a practically certain method of inducing a bird to "strike moult," and when its feathers commence to fall free, the "gloom" can be relieved by lifting the cover, more or less, during the daytime, but replacing it at night. Keep all draughts off it, of course, and on no account remove it straight-way to a cold room when the moult is concluded. Give the bird a mealworm or two every day or so.

Mule's Ragged Jacket.

A. W. Anderton.—I should think your Mule has had a check in the moult. Your best procedure would be to follow the advice given "A Novice" over a Chaffinch in this week's issue. If this is inconvenient, then keep the bird in a warm corner in a warmed room, partly covering the cage (if an all-wire one) in the daytime, and wholly so at night. Get a small bottle of Scrubb's cloudy ammonia from a chemist, and put a few spots in a teacupful of slightly warm water (just enough to cloud it), and lightly spray the bird with this every morning—only just sprinkle him, not half-drown him. This will cause him to preen himself, and tidy his plumage up generally. But when the feathers begin to fall, discontinue until moult is almost over.

A Would-be Contest Singer.

W. C.—I really know very little about the inner details of singing contests. Why not visit one of the houses where such take place, make the acquaintance of some of those who indulge in the sport, and get the information you want from them? Have never gone in for contest singing, myself. Probably your bird is nervous, and wants taking about to different places, to get him used to change of surroundings, and so that he will sing anywhere. Are you sure he was not sold you because he was faulty in this respect? If in real high condition, he should not be "afraid" to sing at another Linnet. Your feeding reads all right, and is the same as I have observed Linnet singers using. The birds are usually kept more or less covered up for a few days before a match is due, and uncovered and hung on "the nail" just about the time they will be hung up in the actual contest. They are also taken about to different houses to "break them in" to being shifted about, and, as I said before, to accustom them to change of surroundings. A good and well-trained bird knows quite well what is expected of him, and usually "opens out" as soon as hung—certainly as soon as his opponent starts

About a Linnet Mule.

Kindness.—You should certainly not be persuaded to keep your Linnet Mule continually in a "back cage," which is far too small for regular use with such a bird. An ideal house-cage would be the Finch stock cage recommended "S. Norman" this week. If you want to hang him in a window, get a waggon-shaped cage, as big as you possibly can (some window cages are far too small), made of plain, tinned wire. If with glass round, and enamelled prettily at the bottom, such a cage looks very nice. Your stock mixture would be better as follows: Canary and teazle two pints each, summer rape one pint, linseed and hemp half a pint each. Give a little maw, wild seed mixture, sunflower, green food (especially shepherd's-purse), as tit-bits. Cuttlefish is very good stuff to have always in the cage.

A Varied List.

V. M. E. M.—A canvas-topped cage is a good one for fresh-caught Chaffinches. The size you mention (one foot long) is only large enough to keep one bird in permanently. Chaffinches are apt to be aggressive towards one another (the cocks, and especially towards the spring), fetching each other cruel digs in the eye (generally) with their strong, dangerous beaks. Many are blinded (Bramble-finches, too) in this way. Newly-caught Chaffies should have a free run of hemp, linseed, canary, maw, teazle, summer rape, and lightly-cracked sunflower seed; also a few mealworms daily, placed in a small glazed dish they cannot crawl out of. I should think it would be rather a good plan to obtain several cocks and hens, keep them for a week or two, and then select the best couple from amongst them, and let the remainder fly away. Birdlime makes a nasty mess of a bird's plumage, if any quantity gets daubed on the same. Everything depends on how the bird alights on the limed snare. I have known many caught without any of the lime getting on the plumage at all; others sort of roll on the twig and make a sad mess of flights, etc. When I bought a limed bird (not often, I can tell you) I cleaned its plumage of the lime with a mixture of lard and fine ash from the fire-grate, kind of drawing it down the feathers until all the lime came away. Washing won't remove it. Benzine will, but is not nice to use.

An Indoor Aviary.

F.W.T.—If you are an ordinarily tall individual I should think a height of six feet would be admirable for your indoor aviary 6 ft. long by 3 ft. wide; of course, 4 feet, or 5 feet, or thereabouts, would answer well, too. I don't see the object of the four small side divisions. If the sliding partitions were permanently put in, each compartment would be only 1½ feet long (the place being 3 feet from front to back), and so would be a very bad, almost useless shape, more like the shaft of a chimney than anything else. But perhaps I don't understand what your idea is in having them—you certainly don't explain. I see, however, you speak of putting the place on a table, and in this case a height of 4 feet would be ample. If up against a wall, a wire back would do; wood, of course, is handier to fix anything to, if needed. It would hold about 20 small birds comfortably.

A Greenhouse Aviary.

South Devon.—Much though I regret to say it, it is impossible to speak cheerfully of the prospects of an aviary erected in a lean-to greenhouse, containing growing vines, etc. The differences in the temperature are too great, the heat of summer being practically unbearable, and the unavoidable moistness of the atmosphere an even worse enemy. You can try the proposed plan, if you like; but if you take my advice you will rather build a snug, sheltered place in the garden outside the greenhouse. A place 14 ft. long by 8 ft. from back to front and 6 ft. or so high, would hold about 50 small birds (including Foreign) very nicely, but crowding is a mistake at all times, especially if breeding is desired. Half-inch netting should be used. If built outside have only the front wired. If inside, roof and sides may be open, arranging to shade the former in summer. Have it in one large compartment. One or two Softbills could be kept in—very pleasing ones would be pairs of Yellow Wagtails, Blackcaps, and Stonechats. For list of suitable Foreign birds kindly address a query to our foreign bird expert. Budgerigars and Lovebirds are dangerous with other small birds.

Late in Moulting.

Midlothian. — Wild seeds are not absolutely necessary to the moulting of Finches, by any means, still, they are valuable helps. A good wild seed mixture is sold by many advertisers using our columns. Thistle-heads, knapweed, etc., however, are best gathered, and given in the head. You can even get supplies of these, though, from advertisers. There are doubtless many other birds besides your own Goldie and Linnet which have not yet broken in moult. The only thing I can suggest is the old and generally successful method of "sheeting down" the birds in a warm spot. See reply to another querist this week. Medicine is of no use. Of course, your birds may moult naturally yet, and moult successfully too.

Feeding a Hawfinch.

Constant Reader.—Don't give ordinary mixed Canary seed. The white seed you mention would be sunflower, and this should be a Hawfinch's principal food—get it (the seed) sound and plump (with good kernels). Given this, and a mealworm or two every day, the bird asks for little more. The mealworms, however, should be given direct from the fingers; a little patience, and he will take them fearlessly, so great is the bird's love for them.

They are an invaluable agent in steadying a Hawfinch. The bird also appreciates hemp, linseed, canary, oats, and sometimes a little buckwheat, dari, groats, summer rape, small maize, etc. His powerful beak makes short work of beechmast, walnuts, plum and cherry stones, hawthorn, privet, etc., berries, and the like. One never need be fast for dainties acceptable to the Hawfinch. Green food they are not particularly keen on, but appreciate a little young lettuce, watercress, chickweed, shepherd's purse, also ripe apple, pear, etc., occasionally. They make an exception in favour of tender green garden peas, and those should be given in the pod when obtainable. Let the bird bathe freely.

Natural Food of Plovers.

One Interested. — "Plovers" is a very wide term, and covers species which feed on somewhat differing items. The commoner Plovers we see in the fields, however, feed, generally speaking, largely on worms, snails, slugs, caterpillars, insects generally, weed-seeds, portions of plants, and will take small fish. They are real good friends to agriculturists, without a doubt.

Two Greypates Doing Well.

J. E. T.—Pleased to know your two Greypates are doing well on the treatment I advise. They are ticklish things to get to live, as many fanciers of the lively Goldie know to their cost. A good seed-mixture for Goldfinches now would be: hemp and tenzie two pints each, Canary and linseed one pint each, maw a quarter pint. Give a pinch of niger now and again; also sunflower (cracked, if necessary), if it is liked. Of course, the thistles, teazles, hardheads, seeding groundsel, etc., you would give as "tit-bits," as I am so often recommending. You can put a pinch of rape in the stock mixture, if you like, but I never have a Goldie that will eat it.

Fever in an Aviary.

No Name.—I don't know that I should offer indiscriminately the growths from the waste seed thrown on the garden. Canary and rape seedlings are good for, and liked by, most birds; but the seedlings grown from other seeds I have not tried (except just bursting sunflower seed). I really don't know what to advise you over the outdoor aviary, you say you have lost the birds in from "bird-fever." Are you quite sure it was the latter complaint? I understand it is easily confused with another common bird-disease (or "epidemic," which form it can assume), termed "avian cholera," though the latter is not so impossible to check, or stop. You could wash over the place thoroughly (walls as well) with a strong carbolic disinfectant, then dig a good dressing of chloride of lime well into the top surface of the soil. After a fortnight or so's interval, dig out the soil, throw it away, and replace with fresh; also do the place out thoroughly with sanitary washable distemper. Perches, fittings and utensils I should replace with new. The place would probably be safe to use then. I can't say for sure, for fortunately I have never been troubled with epidemics of any kind—I should proceed on the above lines, I think, if I ever had the misfortune to be. I have known several cases of said-to-be bird-fever where all the Canaries have perished, yet a few British birds have come through unscathed—in one case a Goldie Mule was the only survivor.

Keeping a Goldfinch.

S. Norman.—I strongly advise you, as a beginner, to purchase a white-legged house-moulted Goldfinch in preference to a newly-caught one. Keep it in a cold room, if it has been used to such (get to know from the seller), but if it has been kept in a living-room (warmed), you must also keep it in the same way, or you will risk it dropping into a cross-moult. Next winter you could keep it in a cold room. A box cage is certainly the best—one known as a Finch stock cage, about 16 by 10 by 8, with two perches, seed-trough inside on a level with them, and water vessel outside. All up-to-date cage-makers stock them. Feed as advised "J. E. T." this week, though it will be well to enquire how it has been fed previously, and not to change its diet too hurriedly.

Show Yellowhammer's Markings.

F. Dodd.—The chief colour points of a show Yellowhammer are rich yellow (golden) top of head, cheeks, throat, and breast, especially the two latter, though the breast is usually shaded over (across) with a beautiful warm brown. The back should be a rich deep brown, showing the dark markings (pencilling) distinctly and evenly, also the wing markings. Very important markings are the V-shaped black streaks running down each side of the crown, meeting at the beak, and the somewhat horseshoe-shaped cheek markings. These should both be dense black, thick, and well-defined (clear-cut). The centre of the head-mark should be as clear and bright a yellow as possible (free from black ticking), and round about the cheek-marks should be the same. I may say that the head and throat of the Yellowhammer "clear up," as fanciers say, towards the spring—that is, loses the dark edging to the feathers and so become a purer, brighter yellow. This "clearing-up" process is hastened by rich feeding. Most of the big winners are colour-fed. But a naturally rich-coloured bird, if really perfectly marked, need not fear the competition of any fed specimen.

FOREIGN BIRDS.

Answered by WESLEY T. PAGE, F.Z.S., M.B.N.H.S.

Moping Cockatoo.

Relielut.—You will find full diet given in reply to other querists that it will be safe to tempt your bird with. I should still persist in offering a small piece of fruit occasionally, and also a little green food. As regards nuts, try it with a few shelled walnuts. Give one teaspoonful of Dinneford's Magnesia in drinking water for one day only, and let it have this to drink; repeat the dose in a week's time. On other days (and continue for a month at least) make drinking water the colour of pale port with Parrish's Chemical Food. A bird left to itself is apt often to spend a lot of time dozing, but if in health usually wakes up and is lively as soon as anyone comes near it. Try a bit of sweet apple, and let the bird see you eating some. Glad to note it has got over cold, and consider it will soon improve in general condition.

Teaching Parrot to Talk.

L.B.—There are only two courses open to you: 1st, keep the bird where it will hear plenty of conversation; 2nd, constantly repeat to it such words and phrases as you wish it to learn. There is no other way. I should advise you to try both methods and persevere with them. Diet is satisfactory; hope the bird will continue to do well, but you cannot force them in the matter of speech. There is a great deal of individuality in it; one bird will go on picking up new things almost all his life; another will be content with a limited range of words, and all the training in the world won't improve him. Persevere in the hope that you have a teachable specimen.

Aviary Queries.

H. V. Johnson.—In bitter weather, in an unheated room, within the limits of a C.P. cage, I fear these birds would suffer. At the same time they would take no harm out of doors in a roomy aviary. They would be safe in the room if they had more space in which to exercise. The Redhead, and also the Blue-winged are not very amiable when mixed with other birds, and I should not care to confine them together within the limits of a C.P. cage. The division of your aviary should answer well, though the lack of a flight is a decided fault. All the species you name have bred, but none of them are free breeders. I am decidedly of the opinion that many spoil their collections by mixing Finches and Parrakeets by dividing an aviary that is a success as a whole, to provide space for Lovebirds and Parrakeets. Frequently the money spent on alterations (alterations are always costly in time, if not material) would erect a separate moderate-sized enclosure. It is the conditions of importation that cause such mortality among Pintail Nonpariels and other species. All you can do is to preserve until you succeed in acclimatising a pair, and then you will find them fairly enduring. Your treatment and dietary was correct.

Parrot's Poor Plumage.

A. M. M.—By all means let bird have groats if he is fond of them; ripe fruit is very wholesome also. Get the following from your corn merchant: One quart each canary, oats, and groats, and one pint each hemp, wheat, dari, and sunflower seeds; mix well and always keep a supply in the cage. Give ripe fruit, shelled walnuts, plain biscuits, and a little boiled potato for variety. Grit, cuttlefish, and green-food should be regularly supplied. Make the drinking water quite saline with Epsom Salts for one day. Follow this by making drinking water the colour of pale port with Parrish's Chemical Food, and continue this for a month at least, letting it have a drink of clean water once a week. If the Chemical Food should occasion any constipation, one dose of the Epsom Salts as above should give prompt relief.

Sex of Parrots.

F. W. Curson.—It is always difficult to name these birds from a written description, there being several species very much alike. I believe your bird to be the Festive Amazon. The outward sexual distinctions are discernible only by comparison; the male is the larger bird, with a larger and more tapering beak. Feed as advised to other querists in this issue. Some species of Amazons make poor talkers, but with persistence they should all talk well. In noting diet in other replies, as your bird is in good condition you will not, of course, give any drugs, that are advised in addition to the diet, to meet an individual case.

White Java Sparrows.

"Curly."—Speaking of the birds usually on the market, 10s. 6d. to 12s. 6d. is full value for a pair. A large, clean (this is having no foul feathers) male would not be dear at the price you name. Of course, a pair that had been successful on the show bench would command a much higher figure. A pair, large in size, tight in feather, and pure in colour, would stand an excellent chance of catching the judge's eye.

Sexing Spice Birds.

"Foreign."—There is practically no outward difference in the sexes. I have had true pairs, and could never detect any. Certainly I always fancied the female was a slightly smaller bird than the male, but her plumage is just as brilliant as that of her mate. However, after the taxidermist has had the skins to deal with the difference is scarcely perceptible; but in life it certainly exists. I could never detect any difference in the form of the bill, with many of the Numias, that of the female is narrower and more pointed than that of the male, but I could not discover this to be the case with the Spice or Nutmeg Finch. I always rely on the play of the male to enable me to sex my birds, and should say that if one of your birds is silent, while the other utters his peculiar and faint call, you have a true pair, but it needs a little close observation to settle the point. I have known two males take it practically turn and turn about to make play one to the other. However, I incline to the opinion that you have a true pair.

Saffron Finches.

Abbess.—Supply bird with a little soft food mixture, say equal parts of crumbled sponge cake, ants' cocoons, and dried flies, mix and make just crumbly moist, it will only require a little daily. Let it have a couple of mealworms daily and also one or two spiders and smooth caterpillars if you can capture such. Canary, white, and spray millet should form its principal diet, with a few oats and a little paddy rice (rice in the husk), green-food, such as lettuce, and any non-poisonous garden weeds, with grit, cuttlefish, and water for drinking and bathing, usually keeps these birds in finest condition. This particular bird has evidently got into a very low condition, during importation to this country. Make its drinking water just saline for one day with Epsom Salts, and repeat the dose in a week's time if necessary.

Waxbills and Finches.

"Diabolo."—They should be through the moult by this time. Supply one bopper of mixed canary, white, and Indian millet in equal parts, also spray millet, and a few oats and paddy rice (rice in the husk) for the Java Sparrows. The Cutthroats will probably share the latter with the Java. Supply a little green-food, such as tender lettuce and grass in flower when you can procure this free from frost, or not sodden with rain. Grit, cuttlefish, and water for drinking and bathing must be regularly supplied. My book on foreign birds will be published very shortly, and treats fully with these birds. If you want one at once, send to Editor of CAGE BIRDS for Dr. Greene's "Favourite Foreign Birds." If you keep these little birds in a roomy cage in your ordinary living room, and in a light position where they will get fresh air, but not exposed to draught, they should do well, and give you much pleasure with their interesting birdy ways.

Young Amazon Very Thin.

Baby Amazon.—Glad to note your bird has so much improved, but it is not "out of the wood" yet. You might try Allen and Hanbury's Bynophosphates, but they are somewhat similar preparations, and possibly you will find the effect the same. I should advise (providing its bowels do not become too loose) a weekly dose, one teaspoonful in an ounce of water, this should be sufficient liquid for the day. I should give this bird about a tablespoonful of boiled maize daily (this only keeps fresh one day, and food vessel must be kept very clean), well dusting same with flowers of sulphur. Try it with the phosphates on a piece of bread or biscuit (about 15 drops), or any other absorbent that the bird favours. Its cage should be kept very clean, cuttlefish and grit liberally supplied, also such ripe fruit as it will take. If the bird becomes at all weak, let it have a few sips of chilled water, into which put three or four drops of brandy. It is advisable to use water which has been boiled and allowed to become cool. Hope your bird will continue to improve.

Parrot Infested with Insects.

L.A.G. (Ealing).—Spray the bird every other day with quassia solution. This can be obtained from several of our advertisers; follow the maker's directions as to use. You must, during such weather as we are now getting, keep the bird out of draught till dry. The bird is evidently in a rather weak condition. For one day put one teaspoonful of Dinneford's Magnesia in its drinking water; follow this by making the drinking water the colour of pale port with Parrish's Chemical Food, and continue this till the bird is in condition again. You must repeat the magnesia as necessary to keep its bowels moving freely, not loose, omitting the chemical food on such occasion. Diet the bird as advised regularly in this column. Keep a piece of cuttlefish hanging in its cage. Do not give tea, coffee or milk slops, table scraps, or any kind of animal food whatever.

Parrot Eating its Voidings.

Joe.—You have taken practically the only precaution possible under the circumstances, and must continue to keep the grating closely wired, by close observation prevent the bird having the opportunity of exercising this "repulsive" habit. Once a week for the next month put one teaspoonful of Dinneford's Magnesia in its drinking water, and on the other days putting it on a course of Parrish's Chemical Food, i.e., make its drinking water the colour of pale port with same, when not giving the magnesia. A continuous diet of boiled maize is not wholesome for the bird; nearly fill its hopper with the dry seed mixture, and only put a thin layer of the boiled maize on top of same, not sufficient to satisfy its appetite, and you should soon be able to discontinue the boiled maize. If this does not succeed, you must try giving only the seed mixture, not for a week at a stretch, if you are satisfied it has eaten nothing, you must then give a little boiled maize, but again, I repeat, not sufficient to satisfy its appetite: by one or the other methods you should succeed in forcing it on to seed. You should also give ripe fruit, plain biscuit, nuts, etc., but no slops, table scraps, or other messes.

Talking and Eating.

G. Palmer.—Your bird is the Indian Ring-necked Parrakeet (Palæornis torquata). Yours having so soon begun to speak a few words, should make an accomplished talker, such are by no means uncommon with this species. Keep it where it will bear plenty of conversation, also try the constant repetition of such phrases as you wish it to learn. Diet: Canary, wheat, oats, maize, dari, and a small portion of hemp and sunflower seeds. Also give ripe fruit, plain biscuits, green food, nuts, boiled potato or raw carrot. Do not give slops, table scraps, or any kind of animal food.

Rosella and Cockateel Bald.

A Bird Lover.—As these birds are out of doors in a large aviary, I fail to see what you can do for them, save leave them to nature; your information as to diet is somewhat meagre. Supply a mixture of canary, millet, oats, wheat and hemp, with plenty of green food (such as lettuce, green in flower etc,), fruit, cuttlefish ad. lib., and make your drinking water the colour of pale port with Parrish's Chemical Food. In a large outdoor aviary you need have no fear as to the Budgerigars taking harm from the above diet, they would if caged, but in a large aviary the circumstances are different. Usually insects don't trouble birds out of doors, but you had better catch them and ascertain this fact, if such is the case, wash the birds with quassia solution, and cleanse the aviary walls with washable distemper (see advertisement columns).

Sex of Roseate Cockatoo.

F. Leyss.—I regret I cannot inform you as to the sex of these birds, sufficient data is not yet to hand, even at the British Museum, to form a correct opinion as to outward sexual distinctions of this species, and yours being a young bird makes it impossible to hazard an opinion. As regards talking capacity this does not rank high in this country, though I have heard of talented specimens and also known many which were companionable, trick and excellent mimics. Keep it where it will hear plenty of conversation, and also teach, by the constant repetition of such phrases as you wish it to learn. You need not worry about the beak, that will come right in due course. Diet: Maize, oats, wheat, dari, hemp, canary and sunflower seeds; also ripe fruit, green food, nuts, plain biscuits, and a little boiled potato or raw carrot. Do not give slops, fats, table scrap, or any kind of animal food whatever.

What Parrakeet?

A. W. True.—It is either a Red-headed or Rosy-faced Lovebird, I think the former; if its beak is red, it certainly is the red-headed. The Rosy-faced Lovebird differs from the Red-faced in having a decidedly greyish-green (pale) beak, rosy cheeks and chin, and sky-blue rump and upper tail coverts. I should certainly call the head of the first-named scarlet, however, if the colour of your bird's beak is almost as red as its head, it is certainly the Red-headed Lovebird (Agaporius pullaria). If the underside of the wing is black, it is a male. In the Rosy-faced Lovebird (A. rescicollis) the sexes are only discernable by comparison of the amount of rosy colouring on the face and chin. Diet: Canary, millet, oats, and dari, with a little green food and such ripe fruit as it will eat.

A Feather-Eating Parrot.

Geo. Bleach.—The correct diet, both for Ringnecks and Greys is given in this issue, bring the diet you give into conformity therewith. You do not say what kind your Parrot is. Give it two or three doses of Dinneford's Magnesia (one teaspoonful in its drinking water for one day), with a week's interval between each. Spray the affected parts, and any such parts as it shows a tendency to pull, with quassia solution, of course, keeping it out of draught till dry. Persevere with this treatment for four or five weeks, if there should then be no improvement, repeat query. Supply cuttlefish, also a piece of wood and cotton reels for it to chew up and play with. Do not give sops, fats, table scraps, or any kind of animal food whatever.

Oats and Death of Parrot.

E. Dryland.—Every corn merchant keeps oats, if your local bird dealer does not; and you should have no difficulty in obtaining these; any of the corn dealers advertising in our pages will supply you. There is little doubt your Parrot died from the so-called "Parrot Plague," becoming contaminated during the voyage to this country, and if your present bird is occupying the same cage, you will most certainly lose it from the same complaint. Cages in which an infected bird has died should be first well painted over (thoroughly searching all crevices) with paraffin, some hours later every part well swilled with boiling water, finally a thorough cleanse with cold water and left in the open air to dry. Whatever diet you are giving, gradually wean it on to that advised to other queriats in this issue; keep the bird warm, but not in a vitiated atmosphere, free from draught, and repeat query next week, with full details, if necessary.

Parrot in Bad Way.

T.W.F. (Guildford).—I do not recollect the details of your previous queries, but your bird is now certainly in a very bad way, and I am very doubtful as to remedies being of any avail. Spray the bird's nostrils with diluted glyco-thymoline, and put 20 grains of chlorate of potassium in an ounce of drinking water, and let the bird have only this to drink for three or four days, of course, giving a fresh supply daily. Dip a feather in pure salad oil, and if you place it by the side of the bird's bill you will find it will suck it in; one application of this should be sufficient. Nothing more can be done, save that if it should appear very weak, you can offer it a little chilled water in a spoon, into which you have put three or four drops of brandy. Continue to keep it warm and quiet. It would be better if you reported progress in a week's time.

POST MORTEMS.

Mr. J. North, 435, Oxford Road, Reading, will examine cage birds for a fee of 1s. 6d. each bird; for a reply direct, 2s. 6d.; analysis, 21s. Subjects for post-mortem examination must be sent packed in a box direct to J. North, with fee. Any sent to the office of this paper will be thrown away, and if a fee is enclosed the loss will be the sender's.

Canary (R. W. Green).—Well-established disease of liver (ulceration) probably inherited. Rupture of blood vessel (Apoplexy).

Canary (B.J.J.).— Septic inflammation of lungs, liver and bowels, ending with apoplexy. You must go in for a thorough disinfection.

Canary (D. Thomas).—Chronic liver disease, giving rise to acute pneumonia and apoplexy.

LEGAL.

Answered by a BARRISTER.

A Question of Will.

Kelmore.—The answer to your question depends on the date of her first husband's death. If he died after 1883, and the property and money were left to her, she can leave it by will to anyone she likes. If he died before 1883, and if she married again before 1883, all her property becomes her second husband's, except any property settled on her for her separate use. If her second marriage was after 1883, she is within the protection of the Married Women's Property Act. The will must be signed by her in the presence of two attesting witnesses, after it has been read over to her in their presence, or she must acknowledge the will as hers in their presence. Remember that an attesting witness cannot benefit by a will; so that the attesting witnesses should be persons who do not benefit under the will.

GENERAL.

Answered by THE EDITOR.

Article (M. Barr).—Accept our thanks. We shall be pleased to publish the article at our usual rates for such contributions.

Breeding Results (J.T.C.).—Pleased to publish your notes at the earliest moment pressure on space permits. Your Society and its members have our best wishes for the future.

Letter (H. J. D.).—Many thanks for interesting communication, which we are only too pleased to print.

Buying and Selling (J.R.S.).—No dealer, or any other person, has authority to say he is "recommended by CAGE BIRDS," for the purpose of obtaining stock, and if instances of the practice are brought to our notice, we shall certainly take steps to stop it. Purchasers should not accept such statements from anyone, especially without any confirmation whatever from ourselves, but insist always on the deposit system being adopted.

THE SHOWS.

GREAT HARWOOD.

The Eighth Annual Show of the Great Harwood and Dist. C.B.A. was held on October 11th and 12th, in the Unity Club, a spacious building, and one well adapted for a bird show, being quite free from draughts, and fairly well lighted. The entries were not so numerous as last year, the chief falling off being in the Norwich Plainheads, but amongst those staged were several gems. Cinnamons made a grand show, Mr. Godley scoring well with a fine team put down in rare pomp. The same exhibitor also won the special for best team of two with his first prize crest and second prize clear yellow Norwich Plainheads, the crest also capturing Hyde's Special. Mr. F. Sharples again had charge of the secretarial duties and right well did he acquit himself, as he had everything in thorough working order, and was the personification of tact and courtesy. He was well backed up by a good hard-working committee of genuine fanciers. Mr. J. H. Payne judged Canaries and Foreign Birds. Mr. David Bentley taking the British

ROCHESTER.

Amidst the multitude of shows held this week in the South some were bound to suffer, and amongst them were our friends at Rochester on October 16th, who, in the clashing of Brighton, Dulwich, Southall, and Caterham, found their entry something over a century below last year's record figures, only 186 exhibits being entered in the twenty-eight classes provided. The committee safeguarded themselves somewhat against loss by with-holding one or more prizes in all classes having less than eight entries. Although the entry was less we think the quality was better than last year, especially in the Mules, British and Foreign, each of which contained exhibits fit to hold their own in very keen competition. Much excitement is engendered by the cups at Rochester, and this year Mr. Casemore not only won the Challenge Cup for the best members' exhibit, but he also captured the points, Challenge Cup as well, and both wins were indeed most popular, and many were the congratulations which this good fancier received. At Rochester the Cage Birds are well looked after by an enthusiastic trio of stewards, Messrs. Casemore, Morris, and Thompson, whilst that other good fancier, Mr. Acland, was devilling for the secretary. With such fanciers responsible for the section, it goes without saying that everything that could be done for the comfort of the exhibits was done. Mr. W. E. Miller, the hon. sec., is one of the most energetic and obliging officials one could wish to meet, and with Mr Giles, the Chairman, and Mr. H. Miller, the vice-chairman, busy directing and supervising, all went as merry and as smoothly as wedding bells. Our Rochester friends are triers, one and all, and they deserve well of the Fancy. Mr. J. Robson judged.

MANY REPORTS CROWDED OUT.

BATH.

The Bath and District F.A. held their annual members' show on October 10th in the Corn Market. The cage birds made a very attractive collection, and were staged in a nice cosy room. The quality for a members' show was exceedingly good throughout, Norwich being above the average, while British birds were also very good. The exhibits were nicely staged, and their wants received every attention from a very capable hand of fanciers, whose names included Messrs. Taylor, Jones, Andrews, and Biss. Mr. Turtle is an ideal secretary, who does his work in a masterly manner, being courteous and obliging to all, and the members highly appreciate his services. The awards gave entire satisfaction. Third Annual Young Stock Show of the Ilford and District F.A., held in the Alexandra Hall, on October 12th. Mr. W. Simmonds, the hon. secretary and a band of willing stewards and workers had everything in splendid order, and although the hall was somewhat crowded, yet the host was made of the space at command. We bear that the local authorities, who seem to have retained an antiquated aversion to Fanciers' Societies, are gradually awakening to the fact that fanciers now are men of a different class, with different objects. Consequently there is a prospect, in the near future, of the public hall being placed at the disposal of the Society. The birds staged were a very nice collection, in which quality was well represented, particularly in Border Fanciers to the winner in which class (Mr. Aberdeen's) the special for best bird was awarded. One thing seemed apparent in connection with the show, and that was the unity and good fellowship which seemed to animate all concerned in its management. Mr. Geo. Gardner judged, and his awards were well received.

YORKS (8): 1, vhc, c, Holliday, the winner hardly so fine drawn as we like them, but nice pose and quality; 2, 3, hc, Thinlow, the former, nice quality, needs more length. BORDER (8): 1, spl, 2, 3, vhc, Aberdeen, a nice team, the winner, very sweet Yellow, jaunty, full of life, rich in quality and very pure in colour, good enough to compete in the open; hc, c, Reader. A.O.V. (4): 1, 2, Collins; 3, Holliday; vhc, Kershaw. LINNET, ETC.: 1, 3, Overy, a steady, good coloured Linnet leading; 2, vhc, Drew, the former a fairly good coloured Siskin. GREENFINCH, ETC. (B): 1, Overy, a very rich coloured Bramhling, in beautiful feather; 2, 3, Drew, Chaffinch and Bramblefinch hen respectively. BRIT. LARGE: 1, Thinlow, Magpie. SOFTBILLS (4): 1, Drew, a well-spotted, rich coloured, alert Song Thrush, very steady; 2, Overy, also Thrush, not so smart or rich in spotting; 3, Kershaw, very smart, hardly so clear in spots; vhc, Thinlow.

LOUGHBOROUGH C.B.A.

Members show held October 9th at Cross Keys Hotel, Loughborough. Judge, Mr. J. H. Roe. This is the second show held under the auspices of the society, and according to the good number of entries, and the excellent quality of the exhibits (especially the Yorkshire section), it promises a successful time through the series of shows to be held every month. YORKS.: 1, spl., Thorpe, best Yorkie in show, hot colour, nice length and style; 2, Jeffery, not quite so good in colour as winner, but nice, long-drawn bird; 3, Taylor, good colour and length, but too thick; vhc, Wortley; hc, c, Foster. YORKS., UNFLI. YELL.: 1, 2, Wortley, two promising youngsters, winner excels in shape and position, but trifle smaller than 2nd, which will improve; 3, hc, Jeffery, trifle better position than winner, but fails in length and feather; vhc, Simpkin; c, Foster. BUFF UNFLI.: 1, Jeffery, ticked, nice quality and beautiful shape, wins well; 2, 3, Thorpe, two nice birds, but not the stamp of winner; vhc, Wortley; hc, c, Foster. NOR.: 1, Hallam, and spl. best Norwich, good Yellow, nice shape; 2, Hubbard, Buff, not so shapely as winner, but good colour and quality; 3, Hallam, Yellow, not size enough; vhc, hc, Hallam; c, Dufner. NOR. YELL. UNFLI.: 1, Hallam, good fronted Yellow, capital chest and back; 2, Dufner, a long way behind, not nearly finished moult. BUFF UNFLI.: 1, 2, Dufner, winner good thick bird and fine feather; 2nd loses in style and quality; 3, vhc, c, Taylor, marked Buff, poor head and feather; hc, Simpkin, natural colour, or would have been higher. BRIT.: 1, 2, Hubbard, fair Goldie, blaze bit pale; 2nd very nice Linnet; 3rd, Wortley, Redpoll very nice bird; vhc, Widdowson, nice Chaffinch, but very unsteady; hc, Hubbard; c, Taylor. MULE,: 1, Blower, light Goldie Mule, frequent winner; 2, Taylor; 3, Blower. FOR.: 1, 2, 3, T. Widdowson, Orange Cheek, Silverbill, and Spice bird. Kindly permit me, writes Mr. R. Brownlie, to thank the Border Fanciers for the magnificent support they have given to Dulwich and Peckham Show. I have just bees informed that they have closed with a record entry for the South, about 60 more than the last Palace Show, and my best thanks are due to the many exhibitors for the hearty way in which they have responded to my appeal.

THE MAROON TANAGER.

A Coupon Scheme First Prize Winner.

It gives me the greatest pleasure, writes Mr. W. H. Pickles, of Morecambe, to acknowledge the receipt of 10s., the amount kindly given by CAGE BIRDS for the first prize in the Coupon Scheme, which I won at Great Harwood Show, held on October 11th and 12th. The Maroon Tanager (Rhamphocoelus jacapa) which won it, I took first and special with at Burnley Show, October 4 and 5, and first and special Great Harwood (in addition, as you know, to first prize in CAGE BIRDS Competition). This fine species has been on view at the Zoo for the past two years, but until now has not previously been obtained by aviculturists. To briefly describe it, the upper surface is velvety black, with a rich crimson sheen, head, neck, and breast rich crimson-maroon, passing into black on the abdomen and ventral region. Total length, 6½ inches. I believe it is the first time on record (Burnley Show) that this species has been on exhibition, and I think it is well worthy of note.

What should "Show Preparation" Cover?

At the last meeting of the L.C.B.A., questions on "Crests" were banded round and drawn for, the drawer, of course, answering, as best he could, whatever query came his way. Mr. J. S. Clarke was in the chair, and took the opportunity of dropping a "poser" into the bat—curiously enough, however, it was his fate to draw out the very same question he had put in. It read, briefly put: "What is legitimate show preparation?" Mr. Clarke's reply to this led to a most interesting and animated discussion. He held that a certain amount of latitude must be allowed an exhibitor to stage a good specimen to the best possible advantage. He would countenance the removal of a twisted feather from an otherwise perfect Crest, but not the removal of feathers which altered the character of any bird, such as the removal of dark body feathers to render it eligible to compete in a clear body dark Crest class. Mr. Clarke very eloquently defended his view of "show preparation," which, as might be expected, "drew" a lot of his audience, many being against him, and others, again, supporting him.

DEAL.

This fixture under the auspices of the Deal, Walmer, and District Fanciers' Association, was held on October 9th and 10th, in the Theatre Royal King-st. and competition was restricted to the County of Kent. The entry in Cage Birds was most disappointing, no less than ten classes being cancelled. This was no doubt due to the late moulting season, several local fanciers whom we met explaining the absence of their birds as due to this cause. The arrangements were excellent, the birds being nicely staged at the most comfortable end of the hall. Messrs. M. N. Avis, and W. H. Thompson, the secretaries, had everything in perfect order and assisted by capable stewards, everything passed off with clock like precision. Mr. G. H. Bellett judged NORWICH CL. (10): 1, Patterson, buff, thick-set and chubby, nice colour and meal, A1 feather; 2, Taylor, neat shape, nice feather, good colour, fair size; 3, Lacy, buff, good colour, nicely mealed, loses to leaders a little in wings and tail; 4, vhc, Boncey; hc, Meades; hc, Thompson. MKD. (8): 1, Ramsden's spl., Patterson, buff marked, nice shape and feather, hot colour; 2, Taylor, ticked buff, nice shape and carriage; good in head; 3, Eade, nice head and shoulders, little longer behind; 4, ex. 4th, vhc (2), Thompson. MULES (5): 2, Mrs. Ivatt, buff Goldie-Canary, marked eyes and wings, very neat bird; 3, Baker, same variety, loses markings, and smaller; 4, Eade. SELL. 15/- (8): 1, Thompson; 2, 3, Boncey; 4, Mrs. Kew. GOLDFINCH (5): 1, Mrs. Kew, nice blaze, good chest, wings and bars, house-moulted; 2, Shaw, smart bird, and nice shape, not as large; 4, Baker. BULLFINCH (4): 2, Mrs. Kew, nice shape, grand chest, cap and back, in rare feather; 3, Mowle, good feather and steady, just beaten in colour on chest, nice cap; 4, Lacy. PARROT, etc (4): 2, Miss Conway, Paroquet, grand colour, feather and condition; 3, 4, vhc, Allen, couple of Amazons, a blue-fronted in rare feather, leading. A.O.V. FOR. (9): 1, Miss Conway, Superb Tanager, in grand feather; 2, 4, Wood, pair of good green Budgerigars; vhc, Lacy. NOVICE (11): 1, Lewis, buff Norwich, rattling shape, nice colour and feather; 2, he, Goodbar, another buff Norwich of nice shape and feather; 3, Munnock, very fair Crest; 4, Mowle, nice Yorkshire, little strong in build; vhc, Sharpy (2); he, Baker, Lacy, Junr. MEMBERS, A.V.C. (10): 1, Meades; 2, 4, vhc, hc, Thompson; 3, vhc, Munnock; ex. 4, Mowle; he, Lacy. HEN (8): 1, 2, 4, Thompson; 3, hc, Lacy; vhc, Munnock.

WINDHILL AND SHIPLEY.

The Windhill and Shipley O.S. held their twenty-first grand annual exhibition of Canaries and British birds in the Windmill Library, on October 12th. We cannot bestow too much praise on the secretary, Mr. E. Broadley, and his working committee in selecting such a fine room for the exhibition. It was an ideal one—lofty, free of draught, and well lighted all round, so that every bird could be seen without handling. Mr. Alderson and Mr. E. B. Denton worked like Trojans, looking after the wants of the birds, and we can say, without fear of contradiction, that we have never seen a show better managed. The committee is made up of good fanciers in Mr. R. W. Alderson (chairman), G. Hartley (vice-chairman), and Messrs. Matt. Broadley, J. Cook, R. Garnett, A. Midgley, C. Smither, T. Whitley, E. B. Denton, G. H. Walton, R. Sutcliffe, J. Verity, S. Hillar, H. J. Chittenden, W. Skirrow, H. Bailey, L. Pollard, and J. Exley. In Mr. Ernest Broadley they have a hard-working secretary, thorough in all he does, and successful as well, the show reflecting every credit on him. The entries totalled up to 420. This being too much work for one judge, the committee called in Mr. John Broadley, who took the British and selling classes. This was the second show of the Yorkshire Union, and the first cup show of the Yorkshire Canary Club. The competition in the classes was very keen, as must be expected when such an array of cracks meet, as Messrs. Bailey and Swanger, W. H. Shackleton, J. Wilcock, Ambler Bros., Ogden Bros., A. Hirst, Sutcliffe and Son, Murgatroyd and Son, H. W. Walsh, etc., etc. Mr. W. H. Shackleton's winning Yellow and Yellow Tick were two birds of rare length and quality, full of nerve and well on leg. Messrs. Bailey and Swangar's winning Buff tick is a rare length and brimful of colour; it will be a gem in another couple of weeks. Their Buff hen was like marble, and very steady. Mr. H. W. Walsh's Yellow hen is a good one, very rich in colour, well on leg, and a long one. The Yellow hen class was one of the best we have ever seen. Mr. A. Hirst put down a nice team of Cinnamon marks, but they want more time spending with them; they are too wild. Many a good bird loses honours for want of training. The novice section contained a grand lot. The winning Buff of Mr. F. Drake was a gem, feather like wax, and position like a guardsman. We congratulate Mr. Drake on having such a beautiful specimen, and hope be will win more honours. Mr. Frankland's Buff hen we liked very much, and we were pleased to see him successful, for Mr. Frankland has been one of the best supporters for years of the novices' classes, and we shall be one of the first to congratulate him when he wins his medal. In the British classes Mr. H. W. Axe won with a Yellowhammer and Thrush. Mr. W. Mundell (Bradford) judged the Yorkshire classes, and Mr. John Broadley (Windhill) British and Selling, and these "old stagers" seemed to please everybody with their decisions. During the afternoon the showroom was packed with visitors, and many of the birds were claimed. This was one of the best shows the Windhill Society have ever held, and was very pleasing to the committee, who had worked hard to make it a success.

Mr. W. Mundell's Classes.

CL. YELL. YORKS. (9): 1, 2, W. H. BLACKWOOD (Mon.)

The annual show was held on October 10th at the Drill Hall, where the birds were well staged, out of all draughts. The entries were not so good as might have been, owing doubtless to the fact that the moulting season is barely over. The judge was Mr. Tom Gower (Tredegar). Mr. H. Carter made an able secretary, and the arrangements of the show were carried out on the right lines. Goldfinch and Foreign classes were cancelled. NORWICH (6): 1, Williams, clear, chubby bird with a good head, standing well over the perch and nicely feathered; 2 (no name), plenty of size, making a good second; 3, Williams, smaller, but very fair bird, worth its position. YORKS. (10): 1, Beavan, stands well, plenty of leg, nice pipe tail; 2, Williams, neat head and neck, nice beak, fails a trifle in wings; 3, Davies, very fair specimen, nice length; vhc, Farrow. A.O.V.: 1, Farrow; Scots Fancy, 2, no name; 3, James.

STRATFORD & EAST LONDON.

The 20th—not a bad record of work in the Fancy—annual show of young stock by the members of the Stratford and East London F.S., was held in the Workman's Hall, Romford Road, on October 8th. The show, taken all through, was a decided success. The entry in Cage Birds was good for the limited classification, and although the two classes for Norwich were amalgamated, and a class for British was cancelled, the three standing classes drew an entry of 32. The quality was excellent, some very smart Norwich and Yorkshires being staged by Messrs. Gravestock in the former, and Mottram in the latter sections. Special for best Canary was awarded to Mr. Gravestock for a really nice buff Norwich of excellent quality, deep, rich, natural undercolour, well fed. Special for best Yorkshire was won by Mr. A. Mottram, with a typical grizzle-winged Buff, of lovely quality. Mr. Sidney Sheldrick fulfilled the duties of hon. secretary with much ability and courtesy. An excellent band of fanciers forms the committee, one and all gave their aid, and there is every prospect that this old-established Society will make a record at the annual autumn event. Mr. Geo. Gardner judged. NOR. (11): 1, spl, and special best Canary, 2, Gravestock, the winner a beautifully fed Buff, with a profusion of deep undercolour, well-fed, and when fully bloomed will need a little setting back, good shape, rich quality of feather; second, a capped Buff, rather free in feather, nicely mealed, hardly so rich in undercolour, bonny shape; 3, Ancell, a good bodied silky-feathered Yellow, rather weak on head, and bit open in feather yet—hardly ready; res., he, Mallett; vhc, c, Corby. YORKS. CL. (10): 1, 2, Mottram, two sweetly pretty birds, fine drawn, nice whips, neat heads and clean waists and chests, very fine quality, the former best wing carriage, else little to choose; 3, Corby, not quite so stylish or well buckled up, but a smart bird withal; res, vhc, Fuller; he, Hutch; c, Forse. YORKS. TKD., ETC. (11): 1, spl, 2, Mottram, the former a very smart grizzle-winged Buff, not a high fed one, but with feather like marble and mealed like a peach in the morning, took its perches gaily, and answered to the call instantly, a very nice specimen, but would not please the lovers of giants; second, not so smart, but very good; 3, Fuller, elegant in pose, nice style and feather; res, c, Corby; vhc, he, Forse.

EDINBURGH O.S.

The sixth annual show of Scotch, Fancy, Border, and Norwich Canaries, Mules, and British birds in connection with the Edinburgh O.S., held in the Artillery Hall, Grindlay-street, on October 12th. The quality was very satisfactory for a club show. Several very excellent exhibits took part in the contest, the competition being keen, and as this has ever been a favourite hunting ground for stock, fanciers from far and near visited the show. The arrangements were admirable, under the direction of Mr. Kerr (President), Mr. Hope (Vice-President), Mr. Wright (the able and courteous secretary), and the committee of management, Messrs. Allan, Campbell, Melrose, and Ross. The judges have only to be mentioned to confirm the popularity of their decisions, the gentlemen who acted being: Scotch Fancy, Messrs. A. Melrose, W. Muirhead, J. Watson, and R. Wright; Norwich, Mr. Thomas Knight.

PETERBOROUGH.

The third Annual Show was held on October 10th, and it gives us the greatest pleasure to be able to record a magnificent success. There was a grand total of 885 entries, 573 of these being in the open classes, giving the splendid average of over 21 per class. (Had the £5 limit anything to do with this, we wonder?) The hall itself is one of the best we have seen for the purpose, having a grand top light, and being absolutely free from draughts. We must also congratulate the Committee upon the business like way in which the arrangements were carried through; in fact, nothing could have been better. A few of the exhibitors failed to get their exhibits to the show at the proper time, for which, of course, the Committee were not responsible; they, however, generously held over those classes until the delinquents arrived. In some of the Norwich, Yorkshire and British Bird classes it seemed almost a pity to see so many really very fine specimens without a card; but with 20 to 30 entries in a class there was no help for it. Naturally the officials were all well pleased with the success of their exhibition, and one and all seemed to do their best to deserve it, the birds lacking for nothing in the way of attention. Mr. H. C. Lilley, the worthy hon. secretary, goes about his work in a whole-hearted way, and pleases all comers by his courteousness and readiness to oblige. He was backed up by a first class band of stewards in Messrs. Barley, Cocks, Popple, Rowles, Sales and Smith, excellent fanciers, every one of them, who know their duties. The attendance was a very satisfactory one, and the visitors seemed delighted with the rare good display of birds put before them. Mr. J. Robson judged the Canary, Mule, and Foreign classes, Mr. R. J. Howe the British, and there was very little grumbling to be heard. Norwich opened with 244 entries in the 10 classes! With such a splendid array the committee generously added a fourth prize to each class right through the Canary and British Bird sections.

Norwich.

CLEAR YELL (20): 1, Sandiford, sound in colour throughout, excellent type, wings carried nicely, might be a trifle better in head, perhaps; 2, Ellis, beaten in colour, but a good one, and will improve yet; 3, Sherrington, very smart appearance, lovely quality, just a wee bit small; 4, Symonds and Son, very fair bird all round, full of quality; vhc, Townsend, good one, rather preferred this bird to 4th; hc, Gilbert, grand headed bird, but hardly ready yet; c, Hart. CL. BUFF (28): 1, spl., best bird in show Geo. Cooper, sound in colour, tight as a Java, has rare head and body, carries wings properly, and is just a nice size; 2, Priestley, buff of rare colour and quality, with a grand body, may be a shade longer than winner; 3, Sherrington, quality A 1, good head, neat wings, hardly so cobby as winners; 4, Walton and Noakes, fine large bird, of true Norwich type, hardly the under colour of winners, although nicely mealed; vhc, Adnitt and Driver, good type, but very unsteady; hc, Smith; c, Oliff. Nos. 2, 5, and 11 in this class we also thought very fine birds. TKD., ETC., YELL (14): 1, Mason, mkd. head and wings, shown in faultless condition, very taking exhibit, beautiful type and quality; 2, Bedwell, another marked bird, correct type, neat and well cut, beaten in quality only; 3, Sandiford, heavily mkd., rare body and colour, should make splendid stock bird; 4, Adnitt and Driver, smart one, typical, neat and has quality; vhc, Dent, very nice ticked bird, wee bit heavy in tail; hc, Smith; c, Rathbone. BUFF (26): 1, Townsend, tight as wax, very fine typical Norwich throughout, rare body and head; 2, Gilbert, similar bird to first, difficult to separate them, exeellent at all points, carriage and quality A 1; 3, Walton and Noakes, another fine big bird, well made, correct type, teeming with quality, not far behind; 4, Winckley, heavily mkd., of rare size and condition; very shapely; vhc, Gilbert, good but wild, would not show himself; hc, Muddiman, biggest bird in class, looked too fat on breast; c, Cresse, good heavily mkd. bird; No. 16 we made another good one. YEL. HEN (22): 1, G. Cooper, honny lady, cobby, correct type, very superior quality and style; 2, Irons, a trifle longer, especially in flights, otherwise real good one, plenty of chest, fine head; 3, Walton and Noakes, has a rare good bead, and splendid body, finished off well all over, some preferred this bird for second; 4, Sherrington, ticked, cobby and shapely, yet hardly so fine in feather as winners; vhc, Jupe, correct type, hardly ready yet; hc, Goodall, smart looking bird, deserved her card; c, Bertie, the right type. BUFF HEN (31): 1, 2, Geo. Griffin, 1st very smart, bit patchy in colour, but a real Norwich, short, well cut up, fine carriage; 2nd, ticked, again, lovely quality and type, a pair of beauties; 3, Jupe, big, bouncing bird, good colour, very fine chest and head, neat all over; 4, Freer, smart appearance, chubby and well rounded, one of the right stamp for breeding; vhc, Hall, well made hen, rather pale in colour; hc, Hatwell; c, Handley. YEL. UNFLI. (20): 1, Osborne, bold bird of grand substance and excellent type, well fed, sound in colour, a bit unsteady, but wins well; 2, Marshall, excellent quality of feather, fine colour, not quite equal in head to winner, but up in other points; 3, Watts, another very smart youngster of the right stamp; 4, Green, good big hen, trifle long, but full of quality; vhc, Handley and Son, very nice really smart bird; hc, Adnitt and Driver, has rare body, and excellent colour; c, Pennells. No. 7 and 17 both good quality birds. BUFF (36): 1, A. Keech, a gem, close feather, of rare quality, excels in head, body, wings and tail, this bird was soon claimed at catalogue price; 2, Muscott, well made bird, good chest and head, teems with quality, but has not quite the position of winner, still, a really good one; 3, Hathaway, another nice one, rich in plumage; 4, Waters, full of bloom, nice size, a real Norwich; vhc, Walton and Noakes, a bird we liked much, hard lines; hc, Pennell, nice one; c, Charlesworth. TKD. etc., YELL. UNFLI. (16): 1, Sandiford, dark cap and neck, wonderful colour, grandly made bird; 2, Bellamy, nearly clear, of lovely colour, and correct type; 3, Oliff, excellent body, nice wings and tail, wee bit flatter on top; 4, Sidgwick, bouncing big bird, wants steadying down, roughs out plumage, otherwise looks a nice one; vhc, Packer, excellent type, and full of quality; hc, Waters; c, Wiggins. BUFF (21) 1, Adnitt and Driver, real Bullfinch type, short, thick-set, wonderful head and neck, rare colour; 2, Pennells, bigger bird, fine body, not quite so good in head qualities, still a really good one; 3, Mullis, smart bird, of the right stamp, teeming with quality; 4, Daynes, fine large bird, neat good quality; vhc, Keech, rare colour and type; hc, Oliff, smart youngster; c, Weaver, very good one, but much too wild.

Yorkshires, etc.

The Yorkshires turned up well, 107 entries in 4 classes, many of them in prime condition, and looking as if they had just come from the laundry. YEL. COCK (27): 1, Dykes, shown in faultless condition, being full of bloom, really very fine bird; 2, Hawes, just a shade longer than winner, but hardly its equal in position, must, however, have run the first bird very close; 3, Cowgill, nice straight bird, stands well on perch, beaten in quality of feather only; 4, Easterling, another very nice, slim, typical bird; vhc, Spence; hc, Parrott; c, Brumby and Stone. BUFF (30): 1, 2, Dykes, a gem, shown in prime condition, excels in head, well filled in neck, fine back, nice pipe tail; second, a shade longer, equal in condition and quality, loses a bit in neck; 3, Warr, rare quality bird, shows itself well, but crosses wings a bit, otherwise very close up; 4, Mole, another smart bird, full of Yorkie properties; vhc, Burton, good one, bit stonter than winner; hc, Walsh; c, Spence. HEN (24): 1, Halliday, tkd. yell., grand head, wings and tail, stands well on perch, rare quality of feather; 2, Rev. Sales, buff, rather pale in colour, but of excellent quality, fine stand, well drawn; 3, Burton, buff, well-shaped, good position, perhaps a trifle stonter, shown in excellent condition; 4, Hawes, marked bird of nice length and rare quality of feather; vhc, Spencer, long one, rare size for a hen; hc, Linsey; c, Easterling. HEN, 1907 (26): 1, Spencer, very nice yell., correct length, good position and shown in excellent condition; 2, Hawes, yell., not quite so brilliant in plumage as first bird, but equal in other respects, fine length and shape; 3, Mole, buff, well drawn, excellent type and full of quality; 4, Smith, buff, similar to second, and almost its equal; vhc, Gray, mkd. yell., nice length and position; hc, Howes; c, Halliday. CREST OR C.B. (19): 1, Peters, fine big green, with nice large crest, will improve yet; 2, 3, hc, Simms, another green, similar to first, will also improve, third has rare large well-formed crest, but being rough in body spoiled its general appearance; 4, vhc, c, Radford, C.B. with abundance of feather and well browed.

Hybrids, British and Foreign.

HYBRID (19): 1, Davies, Linnet-Bullie, rare size, shown in faultless condition; 2, Cook, evenly-marked Goldfinch in prime condition; 3, Marshall, Greenfinch Mule, rare colour, also in fine condition; 4, Tams and Son, very nice Goldfinch-Bullie, not quite so large as we have seen them, but good colour; vhc, Symonds and Son, very large Greenfinch Mule, just lacks the polish and brilliancy of third; hc, Andrews, smart Goldfinch Mule, ticked on eye and marked on one wing; c, Bodley, Goldfinch-Bullie, fine, large bird, unfortunate to-day. GOLD OR BULLFINCH (18): 1, hc, Judd, fine large Bullie, with nice breast colour and well-formed dense cap, big one for a Britisher; 2, King, smart Goldfinch, with nice blaze and body colour; 3, Tams and Son, a larger bird than second, very steady, rare blaze and well tanned, some preferred this bird for first; 4, Harrison, Bullfinch, excellent cap and colour; vhc, Mays, good Goldfinch, hardly ready; c, Levett. LINNET OR GREENFINCH (15): 1, King, Linnet in rare condition, rich colour and nicely marked; 2, Prior, equal in markings and size to first, not quite so forward and rich in plumage; 3, Goode, smart bird, but not steady enough; 4, Tams and Son, fine, large bird, well marked, rich plumage, also a bit unsteady; vhc, Marshall; hc, Hunt; c, Henshaw. No. 4 is a good Linnet, but wants steadying. SISKIN, ETC. (26): 1, Shaw and Hawkins, excellent Siskin, beautifully laced, rare colour, had some pepper; 2, 3, Goodhall, Lesser Redpoll, good colour, nicely marked, good bib; third, nice Twite, in good condition; 4, Coper, mealy Redpoll, rare size and quality; vhc, Cook, very nice non-fed Siskin; hc, Mays; c, Henshaw. HARDBILL (33): 1, Axe, charming Yellowhammer, markings perfect, in grand plumage and very steady; 2, Barwell, very smart Hawfinch, in rare bloom; 3, Levett, Bramblefinch, perfect condition and rare colour; 4, Cocks, good Bramble, similar to third, but a shade smaller; vhc, c, Mays, very nice Hawfinch and Bramble; hc, Pearce, Yellowhammer, seemed a bit thick. No. 17, Prior, was a very nice Chaffinch, we thought hardly dealt with in being passed. SOFTBILLS, SMALL (22): This was a wonderful class; we noticed two Yellow Wagtails, Stonechat, two Tree Pipits, Lesser Whitethroat, Nightingale, Willow Warbler, Nuthatch and Gold Crest, all cardless, and all good specimens; 1, 3, Lowne, very rare Pied Flycatcher, and a lovely Bearded Tit, one of the celebrated Norfolk gems, both specimens in prime order; 2, Burrows, very fine Wryneck, in rare trim, no one could have grumbled if this bird had won, three splendid birds; 4, vhc, Mays, sweetly pretty Gold Crest, in good form, and an excellent Nightingale; hc, Summers, lovely Redstart in grand condition; c, Mackwell, Treecreeper, was very lumpy when we took our notes. LARGE (13): 1, Axe, excellent Song Thrush, markings very fine, shown in splendid condition; 2, Bescohy, equally good Redwing, in spotless condition; 3, Poole, very fine Ring Ousel, steady and in good form; 4, Underwood, very nice Blackbird, with fine crocus beak and eye cere; vhc, Bloodworth, very steady Missel Thrush, also in good condition; hc, c, Cocks. FOREIGN, LARGE (5): 1, F. Howe, very fine Lory; 2, Davies, pair nice Redrumps; 3, hc, Twelvetree, couple of nice Parrots; vhc, Wilson, good Amazon. SMALL (9): 1, Cooper, Whydah, in rare form, rich in plumage, tail in perfect condition; 2, Davies, pretty pair of Ruficanda Finches; 3, Goodall, sweet pair of Nonpariels; vhc, Gouldian; hc, Howe, pair of Waxbills. SELLING £2: 1, Packer, good buff Norwich; 2, Swingler and Blackwell, yellow Cinnamon; 3, Hawes, Yorks.; vhc, Allen; hc, Peters; c, Waters.

SELKIRK.

The Selkirk O.S. held their 19th exhibition on October 10th. The show was held in the Union Hall, and the cage birds were staged round the hall, presenting a fine spectacle. The cats, rabbits, etc., were staged in the lesser hall by themselves. The total entries showed a splendid increase of 300 over those of last year's, and this is evidence of what the hard-working and energetic secretary, Mr. A. J. Watson, in conjunction with Mr. A. Westland, as assistant-secretary and treasurer has accomplished. Selkirk is known to have a goodly number of fanciers, who put their heart into their hobby, and they were well repaid by receiving a record entry. The committee, which is composed of Messrs. J. Thomson, W. S. Brown, J. Robertson, W. Turnbull, W. Reid, A. Rodger, C. Thom, J. Davidson, W. B. Thomson, W. Turnbull, J. Thomson, R. Graham, W. Imrie, J. Linton, R. Philips, J. Watson and A. Gill, gave their secretary every help, and were in full attendance on the show day. Altogether it was a most successful show, both as regards quantity and quality. Cage birds had an entry of 242, about 100 more than last year. In spite of the early season the cage birds were fairly well forward in condition. Mr. Henry Bennett Kelso, who acted as judge, had a pretty tough day's work to get through, but he, with the help of the stewards in attendance, had the cards on the cages in good time, and the fanciers, who mustered in good force to the show, were seemingly well satisfied with his awards, little dissatisfaction being expressed. Borders were well represented by most of leading fanciers, entries coming all the way from North Wales and Ayrshire. Yellow cocks formed a very uniform class, and the winner, which was shown by the successful Cumberland breeder and exhibitor, Mr. J. S. Wilson, Workington, was ahead of the class for finish and steadiness. Yellow hens taken altogether were scarcely up in bloom, although the winner was a nicely finished one, shown by another good Border fancier, Mr. J. Patterson (Chirnside). Buff cocks were a grand class throughout, and not a few really good ones had to stand down, owing to the absence of that bit of extra bloom and finish which sets off a Buff to advantage. Buff hens were hardly up to the average generally seen at the Border shows, although the winning hen was a really good specimen. She could do with two or three weeks yet to get the bloom up on her. Even marks were a choice lot. Mr. P. McKenzie was the successful exhibitor here, and he staged a hen with quality of feather, combined with type, and nicely balanced markings. Uneven Yellows were a nice class, but perhaps slightly unsteady. Uneven Buffs contained some real gems, and a few winners could be found in this lot. Mr. McKenzie here again came to the front and secured the B.F.C.C. Medal, with a splendid three-pointed, shown in faultless trim. Yellow fouls were a very level lot and hard to separate. Buff fouls were all very fair. Greens mustered in strong force, and formed a fine class. The winner, which was staged by the well-known judge and breeder, Mr. John Watson (Selkirk), was quickly claimed at catalogue price. The same bird also won Hyde's teapot for best bird and the special confined to three-mile radius. The selling class contained many bargains, and some of these found new owners. The Norwich classes contained some good specimens, though most of these will be better in a month's time. British were a very choice and varied collection. The winning Bearded Tit was a marvel for condition, great credit being due to Mr. Sinton, a young fancier for turning his exhibit out so well. The large British was won by Mr. R. Laidlaw, with a nice Missel Thrush in fine condition. Foreign were also a choice lot, and the veteran fancier, Mr. J. Mason (Peebles), secured the first with a grand pair of red-faced Gouldians, which were greatly admired by the large crowd of visitors.

BORDER YELL. CK (19): 1, Wilson, fine position and finish, well staged; 2, Simpson, slightly heavier build, grand finish, slightly unsteady; 3, Thomson, grand head and front, slightly longer in wings; 4, Linton, nice filled-in back and front, bit unsteady; 5, Patterson, grand colour, not fined down; 6, Reid and Philip; 7, Jardine. HEN (14): 1, Patterson, very rich colour, and good finish, wins on condition; 2, Johnstone and Young, fine jaunty carriage and neat head; 3, McKenzie, grand type and nice position, little pale in colour; 4, Watson, neat body, scarcely ready yet; 5, Tait; 6, McWatt; 7, W. Dick. BUFF COCK (21): 1, McKenzie, good feather and well set on head, good wing carriage and neat pipe tail, well finished exhibit; 2, Wilson, not much behind, slightly better in colour and good quality feather, not quite so well up as winner in style; 3, Brown, another close up, very neat head, good rounded body and well tapered to vent; 4, A. and J. Thomson, slightly paler in colour, good wing carriage, well cut; 5, Patterson; 6, Johnstone and Young; 7, Robinson. HEN (23): 1, B.F.C.C. Novice Medal, McKean, well moulded, wing carriage of the best, and well carried head, wins well; 2, McKenzie, better finished feather, rather short in neck, but otherwise good type; 3, Watson, very fair, but not fit yet; 4, Brockie, neat bird, fails somewhat in colour and finish; 5, Barrie; 6, J. Tait; 7, A. Cairns. EVENLY MKD. (10): 1, McKenzie, very neat markings, fine carriage and feather, well staged, a buff; 2, A. and J. Thomson, well balanced Yell. Cin mark, good back and flights, rather flat below chest; 3, Barrie, good wing marks, rather longer in one eye, finely finished feather, buff; 4, Patterson, grand feathered Buff, fails slightly on right eye; 5, Alexander; 6, Simpson; 7, Reid and Philip. UNEVEN, ETC. YELL. (14): 1, Johnstone and Young, very fine variegated, in grand bloom, wins well; 2, Hughes, very jaunty three-pointer, falls slightly in finish; 3, Gilchrist, grizzle variegated, good quality. BUFF (14): 1, B.F.C.C. Medal for best Border, McKenzie, gem for quality; 2, fine eyes and one wing, A1 position and finely cut front, nicely rounded head, and not too heavy, eye well centred, staged to perfection; 2, Wilson, also a good exhibit, two eyes one wing, very steady and fine quality feather, just a trifle flatter in body than winner; 3, A. and J. Thomson, five-pointer, a bit heavier in body, good carriage and pipe tail; 4, Rutherford, close up A1 type, but not finished off yet; 5, Brown; 6, Kerr; 7, McKean. FOUL YELL. (1 or 2 marks), (7): 1, Gilchrist, very sweet head tick, neat and stylish, just a wee bit light in body; 2, Watson, head and wing mark close up, good finish and level colour; 3, Patterson, eye ticks, good drawn body, neat head, hardly finished; 4, Alexander, eye and wing tick, very fine, level colour and good finish, not much behind winners; 5, Barrie; 6, McKenzie; 7, J. Brown. BUFF (7): 1, Rodgers, grizzle back, well set on legs and nicely balanced body, a trifle unsteady; 2, McKenzie, eye tick Buff, grand quality feather, good back and wings, rather inclined to crouch on spake; 3, Arnot and Jamieson, foul on vent, good all-round exhibit, but not ready yet; 4, Reid and Philip, grizzle wing, fair good quality; 5, Cockburn; 6, J. Robertson. GREEN OR CIN. (17): 1, two specials, Watson, good sound green, well pencilled type of the best wins; 2, A. and J. Thomson, brighter shade of grass green, A1 feather, fails in under side pencillings; 3, Murray, another grass green, hardly so deep in colour, fine type; 4, Reid and Philip, Cin. hen, good feather and mould, well pencilled and sound under colour; 5, Arnot and Jamieson; 6, Watson; 7, Cairns. SELL. (18): 1, Murray; 2, McKenzie; 3, Linton; 4, Watson; 5, Johnstone and Young; 6, McKean; 7, Reid and Philip. NORWICH CK. (12): 1, confined special, Little, clear buff, fine full round head and grand front, beautiful frosted buff, wins easy; 2, Wilson, var. buff, grand head and back, deep body, hardly finished in front feather; 3, Black, Cr. Brd. good head property, and plenty of body feather; 4, Chalmers, spanking yellow, A1 head, rough in body feather; 5, Dick Bros.; 6, Small; 7, Roberts. HEN (13): 1, Wilson, a regular stunner for a hen, splendid head and short deep body, good bold eye and nice finish, wins well; 2, Chalmers, tick head, another bouncer of a hen, grand bullet head and chubby made in body, just a shade long in wings; 3, 7, Mitchell, Cl. Buff, hardly so deep in body build, good feather and front; 4, Lupton, well finished feather, rather on small side; 5, Gill; 6, Keddie. GOLDFINCH (3): 1, Brown, good size, remarkable buttons, hardly up on blaze yet; 2, Westland, good bird, hnt ragged in moult yet. BRIT. SMALL (14): 1, 5, A. and W. Sinton, former Bearded Tit shown and staged to perfection, a lovely exhibit; 2, 3, Laidlaw, former Meadow Pipit in splendid feather and very steady, latter a very fine coloured Wagtail; 4, Gill, Chaffinch in lovely feather; 6, Small; 7, Simpson. LARGE (5): 1, Laidlaw, Missel Thrush in good feather, finely spotted and pure front colour; 2, Pearson, Starling in lovely bloom, very steady; 3, Brownlee, Song Thrush in fine colour and well laced front, good shape and well staged; 4, Bruce, another grand Thrush, but seemed cowed a bit, will improve yet; 5, McBain. FOREIGN (7): 1, Mason, lovely pair of Red-faced Gouldian Finches, looked as if newly arrived from the painters, so good were they in colour; 2, 5, 7, Watson, second, Long-tailed Parrakeet in good feather; 3, Alexander, a good King Parrot, fine body colour, hardly finished on head; 4, Leach; 6, Bruce. SELL. 15s. 6d. (7): 1, 4, 5, Hughes; 2, Chalmers; 3, J. Watson; 6, Gill; 7, W. Bruce. BRADFORD (EAST) C.S.

The fourth members' show was held on October 12th, when a splendid entry of 107 birds faced the judge, Mr. J. Wilson, of Allerton. All the open classes were well filled, and competition was very keen amongst the first half-dozen members in either section, who are running close for points. The following is the total points, including to-day's shows. Champion Section: Cruise, 88 points; Farrar, 57; Cowgill, 37; Hill, 27; Rushworth, 21. Novice section: Stables, 52 points; Northrop, 33; White, 30; Priestley, 29; Chapman and Bateman, 21. The shows have been productive of keen enthusiasm. The members have each entered into the contest with a firm determination to win, and there is only one more show (Boxing Day) to decide who shall be the winners of the various prizes offered by the society. Amongst the winners there were some real good exhibits that should hold their own at the Yorkshire Union shows this season. The novice classes contained some nice specimens, and many of these will find their way into the Union novice classes, where they will undoubtedly stand a good chance of carrying off some of the coveted prizes. Winners of most points were:—Champion section: 1st, Cruise; 2nd, Farrar; 3rd, Rushworth. Novice section: 1st, White; 2nd, Northrop; 3rd, Priestley. Mr. Wilson had a stiff afternoon's work selecting the winners, but came through the ordeal well, his awards being received with satisfaction. CHAMPION SECTION:—YELL. YORKS. (9): 1, 2, Cruise; 3, c, Cowgill; vhc, hc, Farrar. BUFF (6): 1, Cruise; 2, Rushworth; 3, c, Farrar; vhc, hc, Cowgill. YELL. HEN (12): 1, 2, Cruise; 3, Farrar; vhc, Rushworth; hc, c, Hill. BUFF (9): 1, 2, Farrar; 3, hc, Cruise; vhc, Hill; c, Cowgill. NOVICE SECTION:—YELL. YORKS (29): 1, c, White; 2, Northrop; 3, Warner; vhc, Peacock; hc, Chapman and Bateman. BUFF (13): 1, 2, Northrop; 3, vhc, c, Stables; hc, White. YELL. HEN (17): 1, Peacock; 2, 3, White; vhc, Stables; hc, Priestley; c, Chapman and Bateman. HARTLEPOOLS C.B.S.

Meeting held October 2nd. It was decided to fall in with CAGE BIRDS Prize Scheme. The table show brought out some nice quality birds, although many had not quite finished the moult; especially noteworthy was the Buff Yorkshire hen of Mr. Easby's, and the Buff Norwich cock of Mr. Meynell's. YELL. YORKS.: 1, Woodhead; 2, Easby; 3, Ratch. BUFF 1, 2, Easby; 3, Ratch. NORWICH: 1, 3, Meynell; 2 Popple.—E. WOODHEAD hon. sec.

BROUGHTY FERRY.

Broughty Ferry held their third annual show in the Good Templars' Hall on October 12th, and it proved a great success. The hall is an ideal one, being free from draught, well lighted from the roof, with plenty of show space for the judges. The management of the show was up-to-date, the working stewards being well up to their respective parts, good all-round, energetic, and obliging members, who did their utmost for the benefit of the exhibits and public. To mention one individually would be impossible, as everyone strove to outdo his partner. The management was under Mr. Chas. Muir, and right well he carried out his important duties of secretary, being here, there and everywhere, yet always to be found when wanted. One special feature of the show was a lady steward on the Norwich section in the person of Mrs. Keill, wife of the well-known Scotch Fancy breeder, and I should say she is a better attendant than her better half. The way she handled the birds proved she had not obtained her knowledge from one year's experience. Another feature was that exhibitors were allowed to remove their birds in time to catch their trains, which is always a good point, and one to be remembered with extra entries the following season. The entry all round was grand, some classes being very closely contested, especially in the Scotch Fancies and Norwich, some rare high-class specimens being on view. The judges had a very heavy day's task, but managed to get through in good time, and their awards on the whole were well received. Catalogues, marked, were on sale by three o'clock, and the show was largely patronised by fanciers and the public, and everything looked like its being a financial success. Scotch Fancies were judged by Mr. Wm. Webster and Mr. John Kean conjointly, and their awards were well received; in fact, we did not hear a single murmur. The cup winner for best young bird was that grand Yellow cock shown by C. W. Keill, a gem for a youngster, plenty sub, and fine style. These classes throughout contained many outstanding specimens, and on the whole competition was keen. A bird that took my eye was the Buff cock, a splendid moulded one and very free. I heard that the Yellow pied hen, commented on last week at St. Andrew's, has been purchased by Mr. Carmyllie, of Broughty Ferry, the price paid being a good one. The Norwich section was judged by Mr. Campbell, a well-known breeder of this variety, and he was rewarded by a large and varied entry, which he handled in his usual masterly style. The Plainheads were exceptionally strong both in numbers and quality, many tip-top specimens meeting to do battle. The Crests and Crestbreds were a superb collection, some heavy eye-browed gentry being on view. The best in Norwich section turned up in this lot in the shape of a topper of a Crested hen, shown by C. W. Reid, and which was fully commented on at St. Andrew's, where it also won. You could scarcely see her for cards, she being the winner of 1st in class, Hyde's special for best, cup for best young bird in section, and another special. This hen is only six months old, and a tempting offer was refused by her breeder at St. Andrew's. Borders were judged by Mr. Pettigrew. On the whole, the classes were well judged, the winners being all feathered like boxwood, but I thought some of them a trifle too large. Competition for the cup was keen in this variety, and was secured by a yellow mark, Mr. H. Bennett's, a bird of grand type, and teaming with quality. This was Mr. Bennett's first turn out this season, and the team he had down looks like upholding his reputation. Entries in this section were strong, and the judge had some trouble to spot the winners. Mules and British and Foreigners were a show in themselves, and were judged by Mr. P. Pettigrew, who is always at home among the wild birds. Peter can get through them when he is in order, and to-day he was at his best, and judging as fine a collection as ever were drawn together at a country show. The Linnet, Siskin, etc., classes were bot ones. Birds of great merit being on view and contesting leading honours closely. Foreigners were a splendid show, birds of gorgeous plumage being on view.

"CAGE BIRDS" COMPETITION.—This being the first Scottish fixture to run CAGE BIRDS Competition, there was some excitement among the various exhibitors, who would supply the winner, as an extra 10s. means something towards paying your expenses at a show when you have a team. There were thirty-two competitors. This competition in the opinion of many, will be the means of drawing more Scottish exhibitors than ever to the Great Glass House in London, and probably bring together such a collection of the Bird of Circle, that has never been seen in the South. The 1st prize winner turned up in the winning Yell Pied Scotch Fancy cock exhibited by C. W. Carmyllie, a bird of great quality throughout. The 2nd prizewinner was the 3rd prize Yellow Scotch Fancy hen exhibited by Mr. Keill, a lady of good shape and quality. The 3rd prizewinner was Cameron's unnoticed Buff Norwich cock, a bird of great promise, a beauty for type and quality, but which when judged in class would not show. Later on, however, it was all that could be desired.

Scotch Fancies.

EDINBURGH WESTERN O.A.

The annual show of the Edinburgh Western O.A. was held under the same roof as the Edinburgh O.S.—the Grindlay-street Hall—on October 12th, and was a pleasing success. The exhibits consisted of Scotch Fancy, Norwich, Crests, Border Fancy, Canaries, and Mules. In Scotch Fancy there were some very fine specimens. Norwich were strong and of grand quality, and they were benched in faultless condition. Crests were good and of great substance and quality. The Borders were a treat; it is really marvellous how the Border gets into such beautiful feather—little wonder he is a special favourite. The Mules might have been stronger in quality. A splendid executive, namely, President Mr. Ballantine, the popular and enthusiastic secretary, Mr. Thomson, and a practical committee, made excellent arrangements for the exhibits and visitors, and to them is due every credit for the treat those who visited the exhibition enjoyed. They announce that the Society re-opens on Thursday, November 7th, and cordially invite fanciers to join. With the judges, wisdom was shown in the selection; they were Messrs. Arnot, Urquhart, Muir, Hogg, and King for Scotch Fancy section, and Mr. Patterson, Chirnside for Norwich section.

CORRESPONDENCE.

DOES THIS BREAK THE RECORD?

Hatching in October.

SIR,—Seeing a letter in CAGE BIRDS from a gentleman saying he has had eggs in September, I thought I would write and tell you of my birds. I have a Green hen with a clear Yellow male bird, both last summer's birds. She has three young birds, a month old last Saturday, October 12th, and is now sitting again on five eggs. So I should think this will almost break the record.

(Bournemouth). H. HAILEY

"STAMP FOR REPLY."

SIR,—"Annoyed" has my fullest sympathy. I also have written to a regular advertiser in your columns, under the heading of "wanted." I also enclosed a stamped envelope for reply. I can assure him it was plainly addressed to me, so he evidently never replied. I certainly fixed a price for what I wanted to sell, but if he thou the price was too much the least he could have done was to acknowledge receipt of my letter. It is a pity that such men advertise, but I can assure you if I have a good cause I shall certainly expose such. Last spring I wrote to a large dealer at Bradford, and a more courteous letter could not have been written than I received from him (and without a stamped envelope for reply, too).

ANOTHER ANNOYED.

CANCELLATION OF CAGE BIRD CLASSES AT BLYTH SHOW.

SIR,—I would be obliged if you will kindly advise Cage Bird exhibitors that we have had to cancel their section owing to being unable to get the Cage Bird Union licence on account of clashing with Darlington and Jarrow on November 30th next. I pointed out to Mr. Lythgoe that we would not be likely to affect or be affected by these shows, and that we could not alter date as we have all arrangements made for poultry, pigeon, cats and fancy mice class judges, but it appears that he was instructed by his council not to grant licence, consequently we have been reluctantly compelled to concel the Cage Bird classes. It is a great pity, as we intended to make a bold bid for success this year in this department. I might mention that our date was fixed immediately after our 1906 show.

NATIONAL DERBY ASSOCIATION.

Presentation to Mr. Thos. Smith.

SIR,—Again we ask you to insert the following subscriptions that have been received on behalf of this presentation, and from the remarks made in the letters we receive the members are quite in sympathy with the step taken. One correspondent states that no man can equal our worthy Secretary in the getting-up of a show, or for the deep interest taken in the advancement of the Scotch Fancy Canary. Robert Moonie, Glasgow, 1s.; McVie and Sons, Bonnybridge, 2s. 6d.; R. Bunten, Kilmarnock, 5s.; A. McCaig, Glasgow, 3s.; R. Thom, Dundee, 2s. 6d.; A. Hamilton, Caldencuit, 2s. 6d. We will be in attendanee at the Glasgow Show on Saturday next, Oct. 19th, and members who are inclined to assist us we shall be pleased to meet and receive whatever they may be inclined to give. Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for your kindness in assisting us by allowing us to report collections in your paper which has grown so much of late. No wonder its rapid growth has taken place, being conducted on sound commercial lines, and giving freedom to both sides in matters of correspondence.

THE TICKED AND CLEAR QUESTION

An Appeal to Settle it.

SIR,—It is interesting to see how this question again crops up simultaneously with the opening of the show season. Sooner or later the question will have to be dealt with in a businesslike way, and some definite interpretation decided upon. Why, then, should not it be tackled without delay, and thus save many heart-burnings and disappointments? Last season I drew attention to the ruling of the "Father of the Fancy" on this point—a ruling which left no doubt as to which class any given bird belonged to. But the voice of the majority should prevail, and if it should by chance go against that ruling, of course that rule should go. But the voice of the majority must first give forth a definite sound. Discontented growls and mutterings are worse than useless. Will not fanciers rouse up and make an earnest endeavour to settle once for all, and for every variety, the question—What is a tick?

CLAUDE ST. JOHN.

Order the "Bird World" NOW

GLASGOW AND WEST OF SCOTLAND SHOW.

SIR,—The question has frequently been asked of late: "Who are the parties responsible for the running of this show?" Further, rumours have been circulated throughout the country with the evident intention of injuring this Society, to the effect that the promoters are a few irresponsible fanciers of mushroom growth, and quite incapable of carrying such an undertaking to a successful issue. I shall, therefore, esteem it a favour if you will permit me, through the columns of your widely-read journal, to inform all fanciers that this show is being engineered by the Glasgow and West of Scotland Norwich, Mule, British and Foreign Bird Club, with a membership of 80 fully paid-up members, and which is in a sound financial condition. The club was instituted as far back as October, 1889, and one year later held its first club show; further, under its auspices one of the largest, if not the largest, club shows in Scotland has been held for the past 17 years. Open shows were also held for three successive years in the early nineties, but were discontinued from various causes, so that the show to be held this year is simply a revival of an old fixture. On its membership roll are included Messrs. J. Ferguson, president of the Scottish Norwich Plainhead Club; J. M. Lay, and A. Chalmers, president and secretary respectively of the Scottish Crest Club; T. Erskine, an ex-president of the Scottish British Bird Club; R. Eastman, A. Sloan, S. Ward, M. Craig, G. G. Henderson, G. McPhail, W. Griffiths, R. Young, A. K. Chalmers, P. Easton, etc., all of whom are fanciers well and honourably known in the exhibition world. I should liked to have furnished a complete list of members' names, but that would take up too much of your valuable space. The names submitted, however, will suffice to prove that the men responsible for the management of the Glasgow and West of Scotland Show are fanciers of ripe experience, and are no novices at the game. In conclusion, I beg to assure all intending exhibitors, and I hope they are many, that everything possible will be done for the birds' comfort and welfare while under the care of my committee.

GOLDFINCH-BULLFINCH HYBRIDS AND HOW THEY WERE BRED.

SIR,—When reading my CAGE BIRDS I notice almost every issue contains some very interesting and instructive articles on Hybrid breeding. Hearing of a personal friend of mine being home for a holiday, and having brought a Goldie-Bullie Hybrid with him (one of two cocks, his own breeding), I made straight away to see him. On enquiry he tells me his Hybrids were bred in the kitchen, on a shelf near the water tap, only 2½ feet from the floor. This is encouraging to breeders who have no special bird-room or aviaries. The facts of the case are, I think, worth recording. This being his first attempt at Hybrids, he purchased a wild Goldie and a German hen Bullfinch in February. Some wise fancier advised him against the unmoulted Goldie cock, saying it would not breed. So he tried the Bully hen with a Norwich cock Canary, but the hen would have nothing to do with him. A house-moulted cock Goldie was introduced, with the same results. Then a big Mealy Redpoll was tried, but it was no go! At his wits' end, he put the unmoulted Goldie cock in with her, with the result she was soon swirling in the nest and crooning to him all day. She laid five eggs, and thinking they would be empty, he left three with the hen Bully (which the Goldie soon disposed of). The other two eggs, being placed under a hen Canary, hatched out, but she would not feed them. My friend then purchased a green hen Canary to be ready for the next round. The hen Bully laid five more eggs exactly ten days after. The green hen laid her first, as the Bully laid her last. So they were placed under the Canary, and the Canary eggs placed under the hen Bully, who sat on them nine days unmolested, but then left them. In the meantime, the Canary hen hatched out two Hybrids and reared them. The Bully hen laid three more eggs, and the Canary five, but as the two Hybrids were still being fed by the Canary hen, the eggs were sacrificed for want of a foster-mother (which should be a warning to all Hybrid breeders to keep a good stock of feeders). These Hybrids were bred by Mr. Thomas Hood (Portobella). Both being cocks, they will, no doubt, make their debut at some leading show in the North, and make the breeder feel proud of his birds, and will reward him for his paticnce, also induce him and others to redouble their efforts, making the backbone of their birdroom the feeding hens.

THE CAGE BIRD UNION AND NON-UNION SHOWS.

A Warning.

SIR,—Further to my letter of last week, as to affiliated or licensed shows being able to accept entries from any exhibitor, C.B.U. members must not understand this to mean that they are eligible to exhibit at all shows. C.B.U. members can only exhibit at shows held under C.B.U. rules, and unless the Union Show rules appear in the schedules, they must not assume that the show is held under its rules, though it may be so announced. This warning is necessary, as some shows are advertised as held under C.B.U. rules that have not had licenses granted them.

SCOTTISH BRITISH BIRD AND MULE CLUB MEDALS.

SIR,—To pursue this correspondence further seems needless and likely to serve no good purpose. Still, I cannot refrain from taking notice of the three letters in your last issue on the above subject. Interested readers will observe that all three writers assert there is a "clique" in the S.B.B. and M.C. If such as they say exists, I am not aware of it, and I defy anyone to say I have ever acted in part with any "clique" in connection with any society or club I am a member of. Might I ask the wiseacres, of whom this supposed clique is formed, and how they work? The 14 members present at the Kirkcaldy meeting were all, more or less, from different parts, and I challenge "A Member" on the accuracy of his statement when he says a dozen or so of these members form a clique. The meeting consisted of two members from Glasgow, two from Bathgate, four from Edinburgh, one from Cupar, one from Dunfermline, one from Leith, one from Thornton, one from Ketty, and the Secretary (the latter took no part in the voting). Does this look like the combination of a clique? Take it from me, the clique is all on the other side, and that the three writers form part, if not all, of the clique. It is passing strange that three writers in one issue should all make the word "clique" their distinctive text, for from that word the entire matter of their letters emanates. Had they been tactful they would have refrained from using the same word in all three letters. But what else can you expect? One man has the courage of his convictions and signs himself "W. Johnstone." Who Mr. Johnstone is I know not, unless it is a new member last year, in the person of Mr. Johnstone of Auchenheath, Hamilton, who, of course, must be one of the aggrieved of Hamilton. Of the other two writers, no one need take much heed, for a man is no man at all who cannot place his name to his production, so that it might be known how to answer him—in fact, I might almost presume they are not members at all, as a grave doubt always exists under a nom-de-plume in cases such as is before your notice. So far as I am aware, the S.B.B. and M.C. is in quite a healthy state. The Secretary assures me new members are joining weekly. What else can we expect, or what more can we desire?

DARLINGTON C. & B.B.F. ASSOCIATION & CAGE BIRD UNION LICENCES.

SIR,—As the Cage Bird Union have refused to grant us a licence to hold our second annual open show on November 2nd under Cage Bird Union rules, on account of the date clashing with Blaydon-on-Tyne (an affiliated society), we take this opportunity through the fancy press of asking all members of Cage Bird Societies non-affiliated to the Cage Bird Union to patronise our show by giving us a good entry. In fairness to the Secretary of the Cage Bird Union, on application being made for a licence, he stated that the date for our show clashed with that of Blaydon-on-Tyne, and asked if we could not alter our date. I informed the Secretary (Mr. Lythgoe) that, as we had made all the necessary arrangements to hold the show on that date (having engaged judge, place to hold show, etc.), it would not do to alter date then, and asked for our application to be reconsidered by laying it before the Council of the Cage Bird Union, which was done, and the licence refused. It seems rather strange that a licence can be granted to the Darlington Cage Bird Society, although the date of their show clashes with Jarrow (an affiliated society). It would be well if secretaries of non-affiliated societies would work together, and try to get their members to exhibit at each other's shows, as in a case like this the Cage Bird Union are not dealing fairly in granting a licence to one society and refusing a licence to another society in the same town, as if our show clashes with Blaydon, the other society's show must clash with Jarrow, the latter place being nearer Darlington than Blaydon. Schedules for our show have been sent out, and if any fancier intending exhibiting has not already received one, on application being made one will be duly forwarded.

QUAKERS THAT TALK.

SIR, Doubtless the letters in CAGE BIRDS anent Quaker Parrakeets talking will bring out news of several other talking Quakers. It would be interesting to learn in each case whether the talker was a male or female, or, if both, which sex possessed the fullest repertoire and the plainest speech, and—this point should be important—whether it was a single bird kept alone as a pet, or whether it had other companions. The probability is that when kept alone as a family pet the Quaker is quite capable of acquiring speech somewhat freely, but its objectionable cries do not appear to be lessened by its ability to talk. If this were not so, we should scarcely expect good practical aviculturists, such as the late Dr. Greene, Russ, and several others, to put on record the ability of the Quaker to acquire speech. Indeed, one old authority went so far as to declare he heard the birds talk in their wild state—that, however, was doubtless an error of judgment or observation; at any rate, it is best taken "cum grano salis," and a fairly big-sized grain, too, I would say.

Writing of recording the sex of the Quaker Parrakeet that speaks most fluently, calls to mind the fact that much more might yet be learnt as to the respective abilities of male and female in other varieties of the Parrot tribe. Take the most fluent species all round, the Grey, as the type of all the talkers, we know comparatively little whether the male or female is the cleverest mimic. Considering the power of speech as analogous to song, we should, of course, expect to find the best talking Parrot among the males, although for some inscrutable reason the talking Parrot is proverbially a "Polly," and thus, theoretically, a female.—F.Z.S.

A SIMPLY-REARED GREENFINCH-BULLFINCH HYBRID.

SIR,—Hybrids being few and far between it may interest your many readers to know that Mr. H. Connerton, of Carlisle, has succeeded in rearing a very fine specimen of the Greenfinch-Bullfinch cross. This respected fancier's speciality is the "Wee Gem," but usually he has one or two British in his well-appointed bird room, just by way of a little variety. As the breeding season comes round he generally puts one pair of British together, making no elaborate arrangement, simply running them into a single breeding cage, nest pan hung in corner (same as for canaries), puts part of an old nest taken from the hedgerow in bottom of cage for building material, and takes his chance of getting a cross. He has tried many crosses, had full eggs, but still some misfortune or other spoiled his chance. This year he put up a Greenfinch cock with a hen Bullfinch; they soon became mates, and went to nest, laying three eggs, which the birds somehow destroyed. But on the appearance of their second nest Mr. C. paid more attention; two eggs were saved, both laid in the nest pan; a third one had apparently been dropped on the sand tray and broken. These two eggs were placed under a trustful Border Fancy, and on August 27th one youngster made its appearance, the other dying in the shell. The young Hybrid grew very fast, being a glutton for egg and ground biscuit and simple canary fare. When a fortnight old it was strong enough to leave the nest; it was a rough looking customer, and never seemed content but when it was hunting its small foster parents up and down the cage for food. A month old it began to pick for itself, at which it soon became an adept. The foster parents were no doubt much relieved when their strange care was removed to an apartment of its own. It still shows its wild nature, but is now becoming steadier, and doing well under the attentive handling of its owner. In appearance at present it looks like a young Bullfinch, and is undoubtedly a cock. This bird having been so simply reared, let us hope that Mr. C. safely moults his first Hybrid, and that it may find its way to the show bench, where other fanciers can pass an opinion on probably the first Greenie-Bullie ever reared in Carlisle.

My Young Robin.

With Some Practical Observations on Hand-rearing.

By DYDDGU HAMILTON.

Except to the skilful and experienced fancier the hand-rearing of young birds is supposed to offer insurmountable obstacles. Yet the knack can be acquired by almost anyone, although at some ages birds are far more difficult than at others.

Human Babies and Birdie Babies.

The human infant of a few weeks old will suck at anything by whomsoever offered, but, after he begins to "take notice," will accept his milk from no one but his mother or his nurse; even so a baby bird, naked and blind, will gape for anybody, and will swallow down any kind of food they may choose to pop into its open beak. But no sooner is it feathered and able to flutter from its nest than the young brancher becomes as fractious as its human brother, keeps its beak obstinately shut against even the most appetising morsels, and would rather starve to death than demean itself by taking sustenance from any other than its lawful parents. Unfortunately, it is just when the baby birds are at this wayward and intractable stage of their existence that the unskilled are most often called upon to nurse them.

The Responsibility Fixed.

Unless one happens to be a real bird fancier, no thoughtful person lightly carries off a nestful of young birds for the mere pleasure of bringing them up by hand. Yet for many of us, never a summer passes without our having brought to us some feathered baby, which has been blown from its nest by a storm, or rescued from the jaws of the cat, or picked up on the highway, quite unable to help itself, and yet apparently deserted by all those rightly responsible for it. One must be hard hearted indeed to resist the double appeal of the defenceless bird and of its youthful finder and would-be friend.

"Mother is too busy, but you will take care of it, won't you?" is the request confidently made by my own child companions many times during the spring and summer. Yet the task is no light one. It means very early rising, the utmost perseverance and patience, and the exercising of a kind of skill only acquired after long practice.

When I myself was a child, my "finds" in the way of little birds were usually put on a little hay, in the bottom of a covered basket, with a pan of water and a saucer of soaked bread beside them. If the unfortunate little creatures did not promptly drown themselves in the water-pan, they quite certainly refused to taste the sop, and their death was usually as speedy as it was inevitable.

The then authorities excused themselves for their ignorance and incompetence by saying that "wild birds always die of a broken heart when taken from their parents and deprived of their freedom." Sentimental rubbish! Birds die from improper feeding (or no feeding at all), not from lack of liberty; and, therefore, when early this spring a baby Robin was brought to me to rear, it was with the full knowledge that the success or otherwise of the experiment depended entirely upon my own ability that I undertook the responsibility.

Deserted, but Independent.

The little bird was found deserted on the drive, on one of the wettest days of this very rainy spring, and he was certainly too young to have left its nest. Although partly feathered it had no tail at all, and much black down still showed on its back and on the top of its head, giving it a most quaint and uncanny appearance. Such plumage as it had was yellowish-brown, mottled with buff, each feather being tipped with darker brown. It had the large, full, black eyes and slender bill of the Robin, and a wide yellow gape.

In spite of being wet and cold, and draggled as to its plumage, it greatly resented any advances or efforts made for its comfort. The larvæ-box, or caterpillar cage, was warmly lined and softly padded with scraps of flannel, and in that it was placed, after having its bill forcibly but gently opened, and two small mealworms resolutely crammed down its throat.

Every half hour this feeding was repeated, but not before two whole days had thus passed, would it open its beak of its own free will to be fed. Then for two weeks more it made no attempt to pick up its food for itself, though crying eagerly for it to be given to it as often as I approached its cage. After the first few days it seemed to grow thirsty, so each mealworm was dipped in clean water before being dropped down its throat.

Precocious Feasting and Vocalism.

For the first fortnight the little Robin ate nothing but mealworms; after that, for about a week it had earthworms, cut small; and then again, as soon as it began to pick up for itself, it was given mealworms and ants' eggs and small green caterpillars unrolled from the curled-up leaves of hazel and oak, in which they conceal themselves. In addition, he ate many spiders which were caught running with their bags of eggs over the fallen beech leaves in the wood.

The tiny stranger grew apace, and when it had been with us for a month (and it could have been only about six weeks' old), one fine morning, very early, it started singing—further, it sang the real Robin song, although in a very low and gentle voice. Its singing thus was the more remarkable because it had spent the greater part of its four weeks' captivity in London, and could have heard no bird's song but that of the Canaries and the Weaver bird, which were the home pets at the time.

Master Robin very soon took to pulling up and swallowing long blades of grass, and it likewise devoured a considerable quantity of earth. It would, too, eat the wings of moths and of butterflies, after feasting on their bodies, and occasionally it would gulp down a fluffy feather. It had the appetite of an alderman, and the digestion of a schoolboy!

Some Interesting Traits.

The Nightingale and the Robin certainly, and all other insectivorous birds probably, cast up pellets (just as Hawks and Owls do), formed of the indigestible portions of their food. So it seems likely that it was to assist it in making these castings that the little Robin ate the grass, feathers, and other things of that sort which could hardly be supposed to form part of its diet proper.

In the early weeks of its captivity, although ready enough to fly upward, it was very reluctant to fly down from its perch to the ground, and therefore a slanting branch was placed in such a way that it could sidle down it from its favourite perch to its food-pan on the floor of its cage.

Long before it had lost all its down, Bobbie took vigorously to its bath, splashing about in it until it was too saturated with water to be capable of flight. But outside its bath it seemed to have few interests, and for the most part would eat and sleep, stretch, and sleep again. As it grew older it became more lively, hopping about the grass and searching for insects with great agility, occasionally jerking up its tail till it looked like a Jenny-wren, with its brown plumage and whirring wings. Then it would seize a tiny pebble in its bill, throw it and knock it about and pursue it round the cage, as though it were some live prey it was intent on slaughtering and devouring.

Pictures of Contentment.

All young animals, when they are well and happy and in good spirits, seem to play games just for amusement—as kittens run round after their tails and rabbits jump over each other for fun; Pee-wits and Night-jars tumble in the air; the agile Jerboas frolic with the sand.

So my little Robin, too, is subject to this universal joyous instinct, and delights me with its merry gambols. Of all playful pets there are none more companionable and amusing than the young birds that one has taken the trouble to rear from the nest. They know no fear and show a perfectly whole-hearted devotion to those who care for them. They cannot miss the freedom they have never enjoyed, and, indeed, far from trying to escape, if allowed to fly they will always return to their cage—perfectly content with captivity.

How I Bred my Winning Canaries.

Some Reminiscences of an Old-time Fancier.

By JOHN B. WATERMAN.

A VICTIM OF THE WEATHER.

In common with a great number of fanciers, I was the victim early on of the execrable climatic eccentricities then experienced, having the misfortune to lose a most charming buff hen. She was on her first round and had been brooding four eggs twelve days, when she was suddenly seized with acute inflammation, and despite all my efforts to save her she died within a few hours. I at once placed her eggs under another hen, and I am delighted to say they all hatched out and the birds form a most promising quartette. Still, the loss of the hen was a serious one, as she was well-bred, her father winning first at Morecambe and her mother third at Manchester, both in 1905. A few days after sustaining this loss I had a beautiful buff stock cock, one I had purchased two seasons back from that well-known Yorkshire judge, Mr. W. Mundell, seized with illness during one of the cold snaps, and he too quickly went "across the bar."

FIGHTING DIFFICULTIES.

Then I lost several promising young birds, but these misfortunes only served to spur me on to further effort, and I am delighted to say I experienced no further mortalities amongst my stock. These disappointments and failures are at sometime or the other the lot of all bird-keepers, but young beginners must not for one moment permit these little drawbacks to discourage them, as if they do, they can never do much good. They must peg away with a firm determination to overcome the difficulties, remembering the old adage, "its a long lane that has no turning." They are sure to come out triumphant in the end.

THE CLOSING STAGES.

I separate my breeding couples with the close of July, as I am no believer in late hatching, and my stock of young birds numbers fifty—all doing well. Besides Yorkshires, I have up a canary and siskin, a goldfinch and bullie, a greenfinch and bullie, a greenfinch and canary, and a bullfinch and canary; but with these I have so far had no luck, as the weather has been all against hybrids. I am not without hope, however, as the hen bullie has laid four eggs to the greenie, and is sitting them with as much apparent solicitude as a canary. She is in a double breeder, with the nest pan shaded from view, and takes not the least notice when being fed and watered. At the recent Dulwich and Peckham C.B.S. Young Show, I put down a team of fourteen, and despite having three birds wrong classed as being slightly ticked, I succeeded in winning a first, second, third, fourth, and two specials. The birds put out of competition were highly eulogised by the judge, and two of them won first and second at the Deptford C.B.S. Young Bird Show. In feeding I have worked on the well-known orthodox lines, but all information of this sort will be found clearly set out in "House's Canary Manual," which has very considerably helped me, and I would advise all beginners to obtain a copy of this most excellent work. Thus equipped, and with the addition of CAGE BIRDS every week, they will find the hobby of bird keeping, breeding, and exhibiting, one of the most fascinating known to mankind.

FAMILY REMINISCENCES.

My late grandfather, and his father before him, both kept the London Fancy, and on the walls of their rooms I have seen hanging many fine drawings of these truly handsome birds. The plumage was of a rich golden yellow, or deep orange, the flights and tail being jet black. These birds commanded high prices, despite the fact that their beauty was short-lived, and it was very difficult indeed to obtain one out of the Metropolis. My father always showed a predilection for the Yorkie, and when visiting the Crystal Palace with him a quarter of a century back, I have heard some extremely heated debates as to what constituted a good bird of this variety. Indeed, so excited did the rival parties sometimes become, that the assistance of the police had to be invoked to remove them from the show arena. They were stirring times to be sure!

"FOLLOWING IN FATHER'S FOOTSTEPS."

Well, I determined at last to follow the parental footsteps and take up the "bird of grace and beauty," and accordingly made a start with fifteen pairs. I acted upon the advice given previously and went to one of the best breeders in Yorkshire, told him what I wanted, the price I was prepared to go to, and I am pleased to say I was well served, as, instead of getting a lot of "wasters" for a small sum, by paying a trifle more, I secured some really choice birds which had come from a pedigree strain. Perhaps before detailing my breeding experiences a description of my bird-room and cages may prove of interest. The former is favourably situated, as facing south-west it gets plenty of sun (when there is any, and there has been precious little this summer), while it is sheltered from the cold winds, which in the spring and early summer play such sad havoc with the birds. I have never had any artificial heat in my room, but as this is situated over a warm kitchen and has a small hot-water pipe running through it in connection with the range below, the temperature is always equable, and in the depth of winter my glass seldom drops much below 40 deg. Fahr.

HOW TO TREAT THE BETTER HALF.

The room is always made as cosy as possible, and if fanciers are blessed, as I am, with a wife who takes an enthusiastic interest in the birds, they will look after this part of the business. If, however, the "better half" displays any apathy towards your hobby, employ a little diplomacy in the shape of an occasional visit to the favourite milliners—this will often work wonders!

I have fixed up on three sides of the room four tiers of stout shelves, upon which are placed the cages. These are made of the best pine wood and are what are known as the box-pattern. They are enamelled blue inside and black out, with loose wire fronts. They are each 30 ins. long, 10 ins. wide, and 16 ins. high, with a movable partition through the centre so that one pair of birds can be accommodated on either side, if desired. I find it best, however, to allow one pair to have the sole use of the cage, as I am a firm believer in letting our feathered pets have as much room as possible in which to exercise their beautiful wings, especially during breeding operations. The partition is fitted with a small wire-work arrangement, so that when placed in position the young birds can be placed on one side and fed by the parents from the other, the latter meantime preparing for their next family.

THE END OF THE SEASON.

When the pairs are broken up at the end of the breeding season, the cages are thoroughly washed in hot water and carbolic and used as training-cages thus: the partition is placed in position with the wire work spoken of uppermost, and the birds being on either side will draw themselves up to their full height in order to get a view of his next-door neighbour through the aperture, for canaries are notoriously of a very inquisitive turn of mind. These cages in Yorkshire are styled "Peeping Toms," and are found in many of the big Bradford rooms. Of course, all the training in the world will never make a winner if the bird does not come of the right stock, but if he be well-bred, blood will tell, and this training will help him to catch the judge's eye, for judges do like a Yorkshire to pose well when being handled. This is why I would urge beginners to pay a fair price and get the genuine article, for one real good bird will bring more honour than a hundred duffers.

The Treatment of Parrots.

Some Hints for Lovers of Talking Pets.

By "ALBA."

The management of pets is not always associated with neglect; indeed, there is such a thing as "killing with kindness," and disease occurs with much greater frequency where pets, avian or quadruped, are kept under unnatural or unfavourable conditions, and are overfed or fed on improper food material, than when natural conditions are accompanied by a certain amount of privation.

Quite as bad is that intermittent attention which is unfortunately all too common, when the bird is "forgotten," and so alternates between a feast and a fast; the neglect of to-day being atoned for by a plethora of food to-morrow.

To keep birds successfully in captivity it is essential to bear in mind their natural habitat and habits. Parrots are preeminently a tropical group of birds, only one or two species being found beyond the limits of the tropical and sub-tropical regions. The English Parrot market is supplied almost entirely by importation; and in starting to keep a parrot it is highly desirable to acquire an acclimatised bird, and when it is acquired to remember its tropical origin. Many of the birds hawked about the streets are fresh from ship-board—not the private property of the sailor who has "had it with him several voyages," or has "brought it home for a friend who has since died," or who "cannot be found,"—but from ship-board as part of the cargo, brought over as a commercial speculation, and a large proportion of those imported die.

The wisdom of giving preference to a bird known, or warranted, to be acclimatised, even if it does cost a few shillings more, and of selecting a variety recognised as long-lived and hardy, cannot be too strongly insisted upon. Some varieties of parrots, of which there are a great many, are much more delicate, and, so far as this country is concerned, much shorter-lived than others.

THE GREY PARROT.

The Grey Parrot.—Psittacus erythacus—is the most frequently kept in this country, and deservedly ranks first in popular favour on account of its docility, superior intelligence, hardiness, and fluency of speech. It is one of the most healthy and long-lived of Parrots, although not the most handsome, or remarkable for its brilliant plumage, and by far the best "talker." It is a native of Guinea and other of the hottest parts of Africa. In size, the grey parrot varies from 9 to 12 inches in length. The bill is black, strong, and much hooked, and the orbits and space between them and the eyes covered with a bald, white skin. The entire body is of a combined pearl grey and slate colour. The feathers of the head, neck, and underparts of the body are also edged with a greyish white. The tail is of a deep bright scarlet, and the feet and toes are grey, tinged with red.

An example of longevity, says "Alba," in the "Mark Lane Express." is given of a bird at Amsterdam that had attained its eighty-first year, and had moulted for sixty-five years before the process had become irregular and the plumage defective.

The great essentials for keeping Parrots healthy are plenty of warmth and sunshine, as becomes their tropical origin, and scrupulous attention to cleanliness, as becomes birds whose favourite abiding places in a state of Nature are the banks of streams and rivers, in which they bathe many times a day.

Except in the case of the Cockatoos and the long-tailed Macaws, whose plumage would be injured, a cage is better than a pedestal, to which the bird is chained by the leg, because the cage can be covered during winter nights, which prevents draught, and adds greatly to their comfort.

OBSERVATIONS ON FOOD.

In a state of Nature, the food of the Parrot consists chiefly of fruit and berries, although it is asserted by some authorities that a few of the tribes live on roots and succulent herbs. Since the introduction of sheep into New Zealand, a Parrot—Nestor mirabiles—has changed its habits, and taken to flesh feeding—tearing the lumbar muscles of the living sheep in order to get at the kidneys.

None of the species brought to England are, however, other than vegetarians, and thus meat, butter, eggs, salt, and sugar are not natural foods. The staple diet of many Parrots, especially Lories, in confinement, is bread and milk, and an essential is that it should be fresh. Milk, especially in warm weather, soon goes sour, and stale food of any kind induces disease. Sour bread and milk is especially productive of diarrhœa. The orthodox method of preparation is to cut sufficient bread in thin slices, soak it in hot water for a few minutes, and then squeeze it as dry as possible, afterwards pouring over it a sufficiency of scalded milk to moisten it without making it too soft. Nothing left over the previous day should be allowed to remain, especially in summer, and the food-vessel, which should be of glass or earthenware, never of zinc, should be carefully scalded out.

Some authorities deprecate the use of bread and milk as a staple diet, and, remembering the natural food of the Parrots, recommend seeds, nuts, fruits, and vegetables as not only ample for the bird's requirements, but most conducive to the preservation of its health.

FORBIDDEN THINGS.

Parrots appreciate variety, but, unfortunately, they are very much like their owners in displaying a strong preference for the foods that are most injurious. Being interesting and companionable birds—inclined to be "chummy," if we may so express it, with those to whom they take a fancy—they are often fed from the table, and treated all day long to tit-bits. In the interests of the bird such promiscuous feeding should not be indulged in, and should be sternly forbidden. Dr. W. T. Greene, author of "Parrots in Captivity," and many other works on cage birds, deprecates the use for Parrots of animal food in any form, and recommends good, sound hemp and canary seed, maize, oats, dari, buckwheat, fruit, green foods—such as lettuce, green peas, and cabbage—and a bit of sugar now and then, but nothing containing salt.

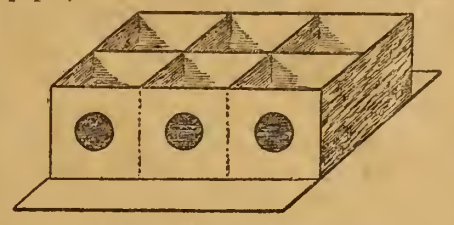
Many Parrots have a great liking for meat, and a great many indulgent owners are even ready to satisfy the "likes" of their pets, regardless of future ill-effects on their health, and then want a "cure" for what would have been much more easily prevented. There is no kindness in this. There is a general agreement among authorities that feather plucking and eating—a most troublesome habit, in respect of which no bird is such a frequent offender or so difficult to cure of it as the Parrot—has its origin in an acquired taste for meat induced by the bird being indulged with scraps of animal food. Whether this be so, or a heated state of the blood and irritable condition of the skin is caused by feeding with flesh, the practice of giving meat or bones to pick is bad.

IMPORTANT POINTS.

Parrots do not drink a great deal, although natural frequenters of well-watered situations; but there should be provided for them a never-failing, pure and clean supply of water, and ample opportunity for free bathing. This is very beneficial to the health of the bird, and in accordance with its habits in a state of Nature. If opportunity is afforded, Parrots will bathe several times a day.

An important point, and one often overlooked by those keeping birds in confinement, is the provision of grit. The gizzards of birds is to them what teeth are to mammals and sharp grit is to the avian subject, a necessity to digestion. The fine silver sand, which seems used by many for sprinkling the bottom of the cage with a view of facilitating cleaning out rather than providing food grinding material is not sufficiently coarse. Clean, coarse, dry gravel, or fine flint grit, should be supplied, and it should be frequently changed, so as to let the bird select what instinct teaches it is best suited to its requirements.

ILLUSTRATED IDEAS



Under this heading we shall illustrate weekly some idea useful to the bird-keeper. Readers are invited to send us particulars of any novel and practical appliance of use in our hobby, either in cage, bird-room or aviary, with a rough sketch of same where possible. Every "Illustrated Idea" used in this column will entitle the sender thereof to a postal order for two shillings and sixpence.

No. 145.

A NOVEL AVIARY SEED BOX.

Sent by F. A. Wilkinson, Prospect House, Taylor Hill, Lockwood, Huddersfield.

Enclosed is a sketch representing a seed box that I have made for the finches in my Aviary. It is made out of an ordinary oblong 50 cigar box, divided up the centre, then across in two places (as shown in drawing), thus making six separate spaces for different seeds. The top of the box, forming the lid, is of glass cut to size, thus giving plenty of light; the edges are covered with a narrow strip of tape, or paper, so as not to cut the birds' feet.

A Novel Aviary Seed-Box.

Holes 1 inch in size are drilled opposite each space, rather above the centre, so that birds can get at the seed. This I find a very useful idea, where seeds are required to be kept separate. It can either be laid on the floor of aviary, or, if desired to be hung up, an extra piece of flat board can be nailed to the bottom of box, allowing, say, 2 or 3 inches to project on each side, where the holes are, thus making a platform for the birds to stand upon.

A NOVEL SPRING PERCH.

Sent by R. H. Fell, 31, West Avenue, Leicester.

A spring perch that will easily fasten on the back of a cage can be made as follows: Get an ordinary picture holder, as per illustration, and straighten it out flat, and then make the holes at the bottom. Then get your perch, a round one about 6 to 8 inches in length, and nail or tack it on through the small holes. When you have fastened it on, bend the holder back again to its original position, only a trifle further back, if anything. The slot at the top, shown in sketch, is so that it can be easily removed from (lifted off) a round-headed screw. I think the illustrations will convey what I mean. Readers will be more than surprised at the "springiness" of these perches.

HOUSE'S
CANARY MANUAL
Price ONE SHILLING. Post Free 1/2.
Superbly illustrated by the Champion Canary Artist Mr. H. NORMAN. EVERY BIRD DEPICTED IS A VERITABLE MODEL, and shows the breeder what to aim for. Some idea of the popularity of this Practical Manual may be gathered from the fact that under the title of "The British Canary," it has passed its Third Edition, entering upon a Fourth Edition of 5,000 copies under the new title of "House's Canary Manual." MR. HOUSE has thoroughly revised and brought this work up-to-date and incorporated a chapter on the "Roller or Singing Canary."

WILD BIRD LIFE.

Late Sand Martins.

To see a couple of Sand Martins in the middle of October is a rather unusual sight, although instances have been noted of later appearances, but these would be quite the exception. As a rule this smallest of our Swallow birds is the first to depart south. Since the end of August the weather has been exceptionally mild and summer-like, and this may possibly account for the late departure of many species. The Sand Martin is the least familiar of our migratory common birds. As is well known, they nest in the sides of some disused sand pit, where they burrow holes to a considerable depth, sometimes as much as four feet, two feet or a little more, being about the average depth. Both birds assist in this work. The diameter of the hole is about three inches, but at the extreme end it is widened to allow room for the nest and the sitting bird. The gallery slopes upwards from the entrance and often turns two or three times before the end is reached.

In searching among these colonies, I have frequently found places where the birds have excavated only a few inches into the soft soil, having abandoned the position. In many cases a large stone in the way has been sufficient to turn them, but this is not always the cause, and it is a difficult matter to account for the birds giving up the position after expending so much labour upon it. Sand Martins are the earliest of our Swallows to arrive in the Spring, consequently we should expect them to be slightly hardier than their relatives, and therefore in no hurry to depart, but as they go first, it only proves how little we actually know of the economy of birds. These birds are rather capricious in the choice of a site for a colony, although sand cliffs, railway cuttings, old quarries, or places of a soft or sandy nature are the usual places selected.

There are few more interesting sights than to watch these little birds upon a summer evening, flying about the vicinity of the nests. Some are clinging to the face of the cliffs, others darting in and out of the holes or sitting quietly at the entrance preening themselves, as birds do, while the majority are hawking about for insects, never straying far from the colony. When once established they will return year after year to the same spot, and I have seen the workmen digging for sand, and the birds nesting in the same sand pit, almost side by side. As a rule, one will find these birds selecting a site in the vicinity of water, possibly on account of the insect life so frequently found in such spots.

Habits of the Widgeon.

The Widgeon breeds in the Arctic regions, and migrates here in vast numbers, frequenting our coasts and marsh lands during the winter months. Here they form fair game for the wildfowler, and occasionally big bags are obtained. Upon the approach of summer they disappear northwards, just a few pairs remaining to breed in the northern parts of Scotland, where they nest upon the marshes near the mountain forests. Streams and pools of water must be plentiful to suit the Widgeon, for, being a duck, he is naturally in his element where these abound.

A Note on the Grebe.

Few birds are able to swim and dive so well as the little Grebe. If one of these smart little birds be examined closely, it will be noticed that the feet are not webbed like the Ducks, but have lobes upon them like those of the Coot. It is very seldom we manage to see the Grebe upon land, for he is almost as much at home in the water as the fish, upon which he mostly feeds. Occasionally in the early morning or late evening we may surprise him some little way from his beloved rush-fringed stream, when he instantly dashes back to cover.

A Pretty Sight.

One of the prettiest sights in the meadow now is provided by the parties of Pied Wagtails. By the size of the flocks (generally five to seven in number) they are evidently all of one family, and two or three of them appear to be just a shade smaller in size than the others, and have hardly the clear marking one expects to see in adult birds. It is very seldom one sees a Wagtail feed from the ground upon grass land; they appear to catch most of their food while it is in the air. Flies and gnats would be their principal prey just now. But a little later, when they may be seen following the plough, they evidently take an enormous number of small grubs, beetles, etc., for they can be seen running swiftly over the rough ground, and frequently stopping to pick up something. They evidently have good appetites when at liberty.

ALWAYS USE OUR

DEPOSIT SYSTEM.

We are not responsible for the statements made in advertisements, nor for the bona-fides of either buyers or sellers. In all transactions the adoption of our Deposit System should be insisted upon.

IMPORTANT.

SEND THE FULL COMMISSION.—If the full commission does not accompany the deposit, the vendor will not be notified of its receipt until the amount deficient, plus the extra postage incurred, has been paid to us.

HOW TO REMIT.—Under no circumstances will Cheques or Post-dated Money Orders be accepted as deposits. Uncrossed Postal Orders must be sent and the numbers taken for safety.

RULES.

1.—PROCEDURE.—The intending purchaser should send to this office the amount of the purchase (our deposit fee included), and at the same time he should communicate with the seller, stating what it is he requires sent on approval. We acknowledge receipt of the deposit to both parties. In all cases the depositor should give his name and address, and also that of the vendor, and must write same clearly and distinctly.

2.—END OF TRANSACTION.—The deposit is retained by us until we hear from both parties that the transaction has been completed. If a sale has been effected, we hand the amount deposited to the seller. If a sale has not been effected, we return the amount to the depositor. The transaction must be conducted by the parties themselves. We merely hold the deposit.

3.—AMOUNT OF COMMISSION.—The fee is 6d. for each £1, or fraction of £1, and it must be sent at same time as the deposit.

4.—IMPORTANT POINTS.—The depositor must decide within forty-eight hours of the receipt of the goods whether he will keep or return the same, unless, that is, some other period of approval (of which we must be advised) is agreed upon by both parties. The depositor must at the same time notify us of the fact that he has returned the goods. If the goods are not returned within the said forty-eight hours, we reserve the right to send the deposit to the seller after the expiration of that period. And should the seller fail within three days to notify us of the receipt of his goods back again, the transaction will be treated as ended, and the deposit be returned to the depositor.

5.—A SATISFACTORY PURCHASE.—When a transaction has been completed to the satisfaction of both depositor and seller, both parties must at once return the deposit receipts as a guarantee of its completion. The depositor must at the same time instruct us to pay over the deposit to the seller.

6.—GOODS ALREADY SOLD.—If the goods are sold before our deposit note reaches the seller, or, if for any other reason he declines to do business, he must at once return the deposit note to us. Failing its receipt, we reserve the right to return the deposit to the sender after the expiration of three days.

7.—FRESH TRANSACTION.—In case no sale be effected, a deposit is available for purposes of a fresh transaction, provided another deposit fee be paid.

8.—GOODS IN TRANSIT.—Goods in transit are at the seller's risk, and any damage or loss sustained on the journey must be borne by the seller. But goods not approved of must be properly packed and returned by the same means as were used in sending the same.

9.—PAYMENT OF CARRIAGE.—The payment of carriage must be a matter for arrangement between the vendor and depositor. We do not undertake to settle disputes affecting questions of carriage. But in the absence of other arrangements the purchaser is liable for the carriage of the goods, and if the goods are sent on approval and returned, each party pays the carriage one way.

10.—DISPUTES.—In case of a dispute, the decision of the Editor is final.

PREPAID ADVERTISEMENTS

UNDISPLAYED.—Three Words a Penny up to eighteen words, MINIMUM Fourpence. One Halfpenny per Word for each word over eighteen.

IMPORTANT NOTE.—Two or more Advertisements coming from the same advertiser, even if sent in different names, are reckoned together, and, after the first eighteen words, are charged at two words a penny, but no single advertisement, even if accompanied by others, will be charged at less than the minimum price, viz., Fourpence.

Headlines or Footlines 6d., 9d., 1/-, 1/6, according to size.

Postal Orders must be sent as far as possible. All moneys should be made payable to F. CARL.

The Proprietor reserves the right to refuse any advertisement, or to cancel any advertisement ordered for a series, at any time, without assigning any reason for so doing.

IN MY OPINION

satisfied customers are the best possible advertisement a man can have, therefore my sole ambition is to give every customer the fullest satisfaction possible, and to do this I send everything I sell on approval entirely at my own risk, and refund every penny of your money if you are not thoroughly satisfied with goods I send you. If you would have the best catching appliances, as used by all the leading professional bird-catchers, I earnestly solicit a trial and as I am supplying all the large catchers throughout England and Continent, I am certain of pleasing you; clap nets made from genuine thread, ¾ inch mesh, 3 yards long, 4/- pair, 4 yards 5/-, 5 yards 6/-, 6 yards 7/-, 7 yards 8/-, 8 yards 9/-, 9 yards 10/-, 10 yards 11/- per pair; all are 5 feet 6 inches deep and fly 4 feet. Each pair clap nets have two nets to the pair, and are complete with birch, stave, poles, beech pegs, hemp lines, geared all round to hang level and work true, and are fitted with every requisite ready for immediate use; bat folding Sparrow nets, fitted on 19 feet bamboo poles, 6/6 pair complete; loose netting, made from genuine thread, specially for bird nets, ¾ inch mesh, 7 feet deep, 3d. yard, 9 feet deep 4d. yard, 12 feet deep 5d. yard, post free, This netting must not be confused with the thick American cotton netting now being sold as bird netting; mine is very fine, but strong, and does not show on ground. Pure hemp pull lines, strong as boat lines, 65 yards long, 1/4 each, carriage paid. Stave poles, pegs, store cages, etc., all in stock, real Japanese bird-lime, absolutely strongest made, guaranteed to hold a Hawk, or Rook, and will hold birds in frost or rain, ½ lb. 6d., ½ lb. 10d., 1 lb. 1/6; sample 2d., all post free. Self-acting spring net traps 24 inches long, 1/- each, 18 inches long, 9d. each. These net traps are by far the largest and best traps on the market, and are guaranteed to catch and hold any bird from a Wren to a Rook. They cannot get out of order, and a child can set them. Single trap cages 6d. each, 4/6 dozen; double ditto 10d. and 1/- each, 7/6 and 8/6 dozen; treble ditto, 1/3 each, 12/- dozen. All have separate compartment for call bird, in addition to the traps. Patent self-setting and self-acting trap cages, guaranteed to reset without any attention immediately a bird is caught, 1/6 each. Round or square topped call cages 3d. each, 2/6 dozen; 27/- gross. Goldfinch and Linnet cages, 6d. each, 4/6 dozen; Lark runner cages 6d., 8d., 10d., and 1/- each, 3/6, 4/-, 4/6, and 6/6 dozen; singing box cages, 10d., 1/- and 1/3 each, 8/6, 10/- and 12/- dozen. Bright all metal drawing-room canary cages, with cut glass round, 3/6 and 4/6 each. Solid brass ditto, with ruby glass round, 5/6, 6/6, 7/6, and 10/6 each. Parrot cages from 4/6 to £10 each. Penny tin drinkers, absolutely neatest and most durable made, three doz. 1/3, six doz. 2/3, or 4/- gross; zinc ditto, same size, 9d. doz., three doz. 2/-, six doz. 3/6, or 6/- gross. Black enamelled drinkers for show cages, 1/- doz., post free, half-penny tin drinkers, three doz. 10d., or 3/- gross. Dealers should send stamp for trade list of cages, prices and sizes will astonish them. See following testimonials. Little Eaton, near Derby, October 10th.—Sir,—Received netting this afternoon; many thanks for same; it is stronger than I expected.—Yours, F. Moss." "Milton, near Northampton, October 10th. Sir,—Please send ½ lb. lime, as I cannot get any good about here.—Yours, John Green." "19, Victoria Street, Buckland, Dover, October 8th. Sir,—I am very well satisfied with the nets, they are far better than I expected. Yours, R. Buddle." "2, Hollingdrake Yard, off James Street, Doncaster, October 7th,—Sir,—I received netting, and think it is the best netting I ever had, and I have tried all the other firms, as I should know. Please send another 12 yards.—Yours, A. Croxford." (On October 14th Mr. Croxford orders another 20 yards.—W.G.) "23, Clarence Square, Gosport, October 7th. Sir,—Birds, cages, nets, etc., to hand, and I am very well satisfied with all, thanking you for promptness.—Yours, W. Buxton." "47, Bells Road, Gorleston. Dear Sir,—I like my nets very much; indeed, they work splendidly, they are so light and fine they enmesh the birds so well, it's a pleasure to use them.—Yours, E. Morley." "1, Field Cottages, Nassau, Mon. Sir,—Please send following netting, etc. The last netting I had from you was grand, I caught a number of birds with it, and then sold it for treble the price I paid you for it.—Yours, W. Hayward." "Gedney, Holbeach, Lincs.—Sir,—Your netting is as superior to other firms' stuff as gold is to copper.—Yours, C. Cubley." "46, George Street, Altofts, Normanton. Sir,—I am very pleased with nets you sent me, and I only wish every other advertiser would be as honest as you have been to me. Please send on the following.—Yours, Ben. Siddaway." "Greenfield House, Bedwas, Mon. Sir, —Received netting and am quite satisfied with it; please send 3 more yards same as last.—Yours, A. Davies." "89, Cumberland Road, Reading. Sir,—I am very pleased with netting received from you before; it gives every satisfaction, and I recommend it to all my friends. Please send on the following.—Yours, G. Bowyer." Please note some of the above letters are from expert catchers, who probably catch more birds in one season than most men see in course of their lifetime. For full printed list of all catchers' appliances, send stamp, and don't forget that everything I sell is guaranteed exactly as represented, and sent on approval, entirely at my own risk, either cash or deposit system, and money fully and freely refunded if every satisfaction not given. See British Birds, and also Roller Canary columns, for further advertisements.

THERE'S NO HURRY

yet for you to get your Siberian Goldfinch, as the first consignment of the real Siberian birds will not reach England until first week in Nnvemher. I am now booking orders in strict rotation for the selected exhibition specimens, from my first consignment at 7/6, 10/- each. During past 14 years I have supplied hundreds of winners to Scotch exhibitors alone not to mention other parts of United Kingdom, but as the real "Deck Sweepers" are not at all plentiful it would behove all intending purchasers to send in their order quickly as possible, in order to avoid disappointment. Birds will be sent on approval as usual, and money refunded if fullest satisfaction not given. See other advertisement in this column, and also Appliance and Roller Canary columns.

SAMUEL YOUNG

Practical Netmaker Birdcatcher, CREWKERNE, SOMERSET.

MATTHEWS, LINNET KING.

To exhibitors, Mule-breeders, and contest singers. I have the largest stock of British birds than any man in England. All large, healthy birds; been carefully selected from hundreds of dozens which passes through my hands every week. This enables me to send you the largest and best-coloured birds you can possibly get. Have supplied winners in open All-England shows for the last five years at working men's prices, and patronised by all the leading exhibitors, Mule-breeders, and contest singers. I wish that all fanciers who wish to obtain a fierce-singing Linnet or a few show birds would call and inspect my British bird buildings, specially built for British. Everyhody is delighted who goes through them, as they receive my best attention. Always keep 500 in stock. Scores of fanciers call every week, and are all astonished at my stock of birds and my well-constructed aviaries. I keep every variety, so anyone who wishes a first-class team of British should state their wants. I have the finest and largest selection of Linnets in England; some big, fine, healthy Linnets with nut-brown backs, spotted like Thrushes, nicely-pencilled Norwich type, 2/- each. I have a few massive Giant Linnets beautifully pencilled and marked, ready for the keenest competition, 3/6 each. These specials are the best you can possibly get, and are worth double. I have a large stock of clean-moulted, fierce-singing Linnets, been specially trained under my noted champions, and are all in grand song and perfect health, sacrifice 2/- each; or with beautiful large singing cage and packet of my special mixture, secrets how to feed, 3/-; bargains. Every intending contest singer should send at once for one of these special trained birds; also a few good noted stop birds, been used to catching, 2/6. Goldfinches, Goldfinches. Real Peartree Goldfinches, the largest, best-coloured birds you can get; all guaranteed to have been properly netted from the Cheshire orchards and fruit gardens, not so-called Peartree Finches, but guaranteed real Peartree Goldfinches. Being a constant advertiser for the last few years of these special birds, I have a grand lot of big, fine, healthy Peartree Finches, large moons, good coloured, well buttoned, and mooned, nicely tanned with feathers, like silk, 2/6 and 3/- each; also a few specials in perfect show condition, good square, deep blazes, buttoned, mooned, tanned, etc., 4/- and 5/- each; real bargains. Also a few good call birds, used to catching, 3/- each. Bullfinches, Bullfinches. Real Cheshire Bullfinches, through their moult, with blood-red breasts, good black cap, good wing bars, in show condition, 3/6 each; large Yellow Greenfinches, 1/6; large Redpoll, well marked, good deep bibs, 1/6; splendid cock Chaffinches, in full colours, 1/6. All birds sent out exactly as described, and are sent on seven days' approval. Gentlemen, could fairer terms be offered? Others are copying me, so beware of worthless imitations, as you get the real birds from me. Read what others say:—"October 19th, 1907. Gladstone-st., Loftus, in Cleveland.—Sir,—I received the Peartree-Goldfinch safe, and is a grand large bird; can trust in a man like you. Shall send for more shortly, and shall recommend you to all I know who wants birds. Thanks for your honesty. From Mr. Watson to Linnet King." "October 20th, 1907. Joseph Burden, Ann-st., Wheatly-hill, Thornely, R.S.O.—I received birds safe, and I am sure I have got above my value. Am highly delighted with them. Please send the following, and I will try to do you as much good in getting sale as I possibly can, as I find you are a honest man. Wishing you every success. From Joseph Burdon to Linnet King." Gentlemen, I could fill this paper with testimonials, in which I have over 300 for inspection. If you want some real good large birds, send at once; all on approval; cash or deposit; CAGE BIRDS deposit system.

there is method, so why shouldn't there be a method in buying birds. The best method I can advocate is to buy on my well-known approval system, so that unless you are perfectly satisfied with your deal I refund money in full. I was originator of approval system in connection with wild birds, and during the whole of my business career have never dealt on any other terms. Genuine large Worcestershire cock Goldfinches, in perfect health and condition, 1/6 each, three 4/-, six 6/6, twelve 12/-. Specially selected cocks, for exhibition or muling, and warranted in song, 2/- each, three 5/-, six 8/6, twelve 16/-. Few extra large clean-moulted cocks, in full colour and superb condition, 3/- each, three 7/6. Hen Goldfinches, 1/- each, three 2/6; specially large cock Brown Linnets, with rose-red breasts and nut-brown backs, 8d. each, three 1/6, six 2/6; twelve 4/-; specially selected cocks, for show or muling, and warranted in song, 1/- each, three 2/6, six 4/-; every Linnet sent out is guaranteed clean-moulted, in pink of health, and are exactly same as supplied to contest winners throughout England. I am selling 100 dozen of these cock Linnets weekly, and people who have never before purchased Worcestershire Linnets are astounded at their quality. If I wished, I could fill this page weekly with testimonials from Linnet customers alone. Cock Chaffinches, 8d. each, three 1/6, six 2/6, twelve 4/-; hen Chaffinches, three 1/-, six 1/6, twelve 2/-; cock Greenfinches, three 1/-, six 1/6, twelve 2/-; cock Brambtefinches, three 1/6, six 2/6; Redpolls, three 1/3, six 2/-, twelve 3/6; grand large cock Larks, three 1/6, six 2/6, twelve 4/-. All Larks guaranteed big bold cocks, not half hens, as my hens are sold to poultry dealers. All birds are guaranteed to be well caged, steady, and well on hard seed before being sent out, and visitors can come and see hundreds upon hundreds in stock at all times. See following testimonials, all recently received, and never before been published. "Croom Station, County Limerick, Ireland, October 12th.—Sir,—Please send following; you are the only man advertising that has ever given me satisfaction, as every bird I got from you turned out well. Yours, P. McCarthy." "35, Titchfield-st., Mansfield, October 12th.—Sir,—Please send following. I had three Goldfinches from you last year, and was highly satisfied. Yours, R. Ellis." "26, Albert-road, Tonbridge, October 9th.—Sir,—Please send following. I had four cock Goldfinches from you a few years ago, and better birds I never saw. Yours, J. Peters." "35, Watson-crescent, Edinburgh.—Sir,—Received birds all right, and am very well pleased with them. I am expecting to send another order shortly. Yours, J. McDonald." "22, Primrose-place, Tillicoultry.—Sir,—Bird arrived to-day in pink of health, and is a splendid bird at the money. You will hear from me again. Yours, A. McIntosh." "56, Hume-street, Batley.—Sir,—Please send three more Linnets; the last I had proved good birds, and have given every satisfaction. Yours, W. Spidding." "2, Westminster-parade, Lower Edmonton.—Sir,—Received Goldfinches in pink of condition, and have advised CAGE BIRDS to pay the money over. Will send another order shortly. Yours, G. Smith." "156, Marine-street, Tallis Town, Cwm, Mon.—Sir,—Please send another Linnet. I had one from you last year; he started singing week after arrival, and been singing ever since from morning till night, and even through the moult, and so tame and steady. Yours, T. Baker." "140, High-street, Falkirk.—Sir,—The three Goldies arrived safe. Am well pleased with way you executed order. You will hear from me again shortly. Yours, D. Boyd." "13, Byron-street, Burnley.—Sir,—Please send me three Linnets. I got some from you when working in Birmingham, and was always well satisfied. Yours, C. Mitchell." "35, Grey-street, Carlisle.—Sir,—Please send cock Linnet. Those I got from you when in Birmingham turned out very well. I think you can claim the honour of being the largest bird dealer in England, as I have seen a good many bird shops; but as regards your establishment, seeing is believing as regards the quantity of birds you stock. Yours, S. Stamper." "45, Highland-road, Southsea.—Sir,—Blackbird arrived safely, and is singing nicely already, although only been here few hours. I must confess he is a perfect gem, so very tame with the best plumage a Blackbird can have, and his song is purely the mild one. I have, during past few years, bought a number in order to get one such as he is, and have never before been able. Yours, A. J. Burridge." The above few letters by no means exhaust my stock of testimonials, as I have piles upon piles of them, which have never been published, not one of which has been solicited by me as apart from business transactions; the senders of these testimonials are utter strangers to me. Please note every bird is sent on approval entirely at my own risk; either cash or deposit system, and money refunded in full if fullest satisfaction not given. If you would like genuine Worcestershire netted birds, together with straightforward, honest dealing, please give me one trial. See appliance column for list of cages and further testimonials, etc.

ESTABLISHED 1879.

In response to numerous enquiries. In consequence of my agent having succeeded in purchasing the entire stock of the renowned Herr Siegmund Hollander, I am able to offer to the general public, as well as to my private clientele. I guarantee these birds to be in full song, day and gaslight. Customers will find they eclipse anything hitherto imported. Genuine St. Andreasburg Rollers, with marvellous trills of melody, pure, deep, sweet, soft, bass rolls, water bubble runs, bell, harp and Nightingale notes. Seldom heard in England, and infinitely better than the ordinary run of imported birds. Prices, 7/6, 10/6 and 15/-, on seven days' approval, at my risk, on receipt of cash or deposit note. Travelling cages free. Printed directions for feeding, etc., with each bird.—Gibbins, 10, Mediandrd., Clapton, London. Bankers, London, City and Midland.

THE CONFIDENCE TRICK.

Pearson's confidence is so great in his Cascade Rollers which, as the name implies, are Cascades of rippling, bubbling, liquid, melodious song, that he sends them on seven days' trial and refunds money if they don't give satisfaction. Perhaps you think this is a confidence trick. Well! deposit with CAGE BIRDS; I shall never see your money unless you are satisfied; then I gain your confidence, see the trick?; and all your neighbours will want to know where such a Roller was obtained for 10/-, which includes a splendid fitted British Roller Singing Cage, an ornament to any home. This strain has never been sold in England under £2 2s. If you have not heard a Cascade Roller you have not heard the perfection of Roller song. It's a revelation, and it costs nothing to prove this; ask your local dealer to let you have a Roller for a week before you pay for it, and let me have his answer; it will be more amusing than Limericking:—"63, Waterside, Chesham, Bucks. 21/10/07. Dear Sir,—I am delighted with the Cascade Roller you sent me. It is singing from morning till night, and is the finest songster I ever heard. Please accept my best thanks for the way you have treated me.—C. Nash."—Note, a fresh testimonial every week, full name and address. Cascade hens, 2/- each, special terms to trade and large buyers.—

Thousands of testimonials have been published by me in CAGE BIRDS from satisfied customers. I guarantee strictly honourable trading and satisfaction to all.—Varney, sole proprietor and importer of this remarkable Roller Canary. Twenty years advertiser.—Varney, Stratford, London. Export a speciality. "The Schools, Overton, Ellesmere.—Hummel arrived, it at once commenced to sing—yes, a song worth listening to. It is the most exquisite songster I ever heard—decidedly a perfect Roller. I may say I never expected such perfection; they are worth all you charge for them. I must thank you for your courtesy, and shall be able to recommend your firm to those who require birds and not rubbish."—F. Robbins. June 22nd, 1907. N.C.O., Royal Engineers, Aldershot.—"Hummel arrived; delighted with it.—J. H. Munford." "June 12th. Stobo Castle, Stobo. N.B. The Hon. Mr. Philipson has had the Hummel a week and will keep him; he is such a sweet singer." "June 24th. Ash View. Allmans Mold. I am writing to say I am delighted with the Hummel purchased a few months ago. Please send another.—R. James to Varney, the Great Hummel Importer." Sole proprietor and only importer of Hummel Rollers, Stratford, London.

WHY INCUR THE DANGER

of a bad bargain when you can purchase Rollers of the best quality from us on seven clear days' approval entirely at our own risk; our first consignment of pure Seiferts Rollers have just arrived from Germany with pure deep sweet soft bass rolls, water-bubble runs, etc., bell, harp, and gong notes, Nightingale, Woodlark and Titlark notes, perfect little music boxes, 7/6, 8/6, 10/6, and 12/- each; hens, 2/-, 2/6 each, also our first consignment of Hartz Mountain Rollers, pure day and gaslight, with good loud clear song, 5/-, 6/- each, hens 1/6 each, 2/6 couple; proper made Roller singing cages 1/6 each, all on seven clear days' approval.—Parker and Wilden, Bird Merchants, 257-258, Farm Street, Birmingham.

have been waiting for this advertisement to appear, and I am pleased to inform everyone that my first consignment of the season of the world-renowned Leipzig Rollers has arrived in grand condition and song. Every cock is guaranteed already in full song day and gaslight, with long hollow and double rolls, sweet silvery trills, soft roulades, water-bubble runs, piccolo trills, jug jug of the Nightingale, bell, harp, gong, and du du pipes, etc., and guaranteed entirely free from Titlark or other harsh notes. Prices for few weeks only, 6/- and 7/6 each; no Roller hens nor common Hartz cocks yet. Although I have not previously advertised Rollers this season, I am already receiving testimonials from delighted purchasers, of which following is sample. "11, Sandbach-rd., Coleridge, Staffs. Oct. 8th., Sir,—Please send following birds. The Roller I had from you is doing well, and I am very pleased with him. Yours A. Draycott." "Copeland-rd., Govan, Sir,—Received Roller no worse for his long journey, he soon started to sing, and I am well satisfied with him. Yours, W. Simpson." "108, Leamington-rd., Blackburn, Dear Sir,—Re Roller, I am very grateful to you for your prompt and straightforward dealing. The contest master you sent me is truly a champion and is in every way indicated as its name implies. With all future success for you, Yours, J. Ward." "53, Pemberton-lane, Wigan, Sir,—Rollers arrived Wednesday in splendid condition. I think they are three fine birds and give me entire satisfaction. Your honest and straightforward dealing reflects great credit upon you, Yours, J. Webster," "28, Church-lane, Wolverhampton, Sir,—Received Roller quite safe, am well pleased with him, he has some splendid notes. Please send, etc., Yours, F. Chcese." "125, Church-st., Silverdale, Sir,—I am pleased I sent to you for Rollers, they are just the sort I want, I am more than satisfied, I am delighted. Wishing you every success. Yours, A. Cadman." Every bird is guaranteed exactly as represented, and sent on full week's approval at my risk, either cash or CAGE BIRDS' deposit system, and money refunded in full if every satisfaction not given. I don't say that Rollers advertised by others are no good, but I do say that there is no other Roller being imported that can equal the Leipzig Rollers imported by me, and to test this statement to your own satisfaction, have one from me and one from elsewhere at any higher price than mine, test them side by side for a week and keep the one which suits you best. I am the actual importer and can therefore offer you better birds at lower prices than middlemen. Dealers please send for wholesale list. See British birds and appliance columns.

Finest Talking Parrots. I only deal in Parrots that will make first-class talkers; no rubbish. I am willing at all times to send my Parrots on four weeks' trial and three months' talking guarantee. Why? Because all my Parrots are young, strong, and reliable. My lifetime has been spent among grey Parrots, both at home and abroad. I guarantee every customer every satisfaction. Grey Parrots are my special fancy. I have trained them, know their wants, and can give every purchaser a bird that will please him in every way. I can supply grey talkers, not thinkers, that will say almost anything, at reasonable prices. Before you purchase a grey or green Parrot, send for my Booklet, entitled "Talking Parrots." All my birds are sent on four weeks' trial, at my risk. Send postcard for catalogue.—Mrs. Forster, Princes Park Aviaries, Violet Street, Liverpool.

PARROT PROBLEM

solved. For full proofs send postcard at once for my large book, "Parrot Prattle," now containing 168 pages. This is the most wonderful book ever offered free of all charge to all Parrot fanciers. (This "Parrot Prattle" is registered copyright, and all infringers and imitators will be proceeded against). It contains hundreds of testimonials from all parts with full names and addresses, many interesting facts, and gives valuable advice and hints to all parrot buyers. Full details of our original system of selling Parrots on four week's trial, at our risk, which we were the first to introduce. We sell Parrots of all descriptions on four weeks' trial, at our risk, before settlement. Cheapest and best in the Kingdom, and any Parrot sold by us, and not giving full satisfaction, will be exchanged any time within twelve months. Remember we lead and others try to follow. Write to other dealers as well as us, and judge for yourselves. Lists of Parrots for sale and above book post free on receipt of postcard.

A few words concerning the Rhodesian birds so long expected, six cases of which have now arrived by the mail steamer on 19th October. About 500 were sent down, from the interior of which only 300 arrived at Cape Town, and of these 160 alive and 140 dead were landed at Southampton, the former consisted as follows: 21 Black-eared Waxbills, 26 Bluebreasted Waxbills, 10 Violet-eared Waxbills, 14 Quail Finches, 5 Melba Finches, 20 Rhodesian Cutthroats, 20 Cape Doves, 8 Ruddy Finches, 12 Cape Waxbills, 6 Giant Whydahs, 18 mixed birds. Unfortunately, the 140 dead represented some of the very rare birds, which, if alive, would have been worth quite one hundred and fifty pounds here. This is naturally a very heavy loss, and I shall not attempt another importation unless personally accompanied. The steamer reports the roughest voyage ever experienced; perhaps that has to do with the great mortality. Still, this is far from satisfactory. Other arrivals were: 1 large male Chimpanzee, 6 Dogfaces, 4 Hussar Monkeys, 1 Schmidts, 2 Barbary Apes, 2 Rbesus, 40 Budgerigars, 100 Whitebellies, 100 Blackheads, 100 Avadavats, 20 White Javas, 20 St. Helena Waxbills, 1 large Greenbilled Toucan, 3 Rosybilled Ducks, 1 Hybrid Duck, 2 female Gazelles, 6 young Rheas, 1 Hornbill.

Rederested Cardinals, 5/- each; Pekin Nightingales, 2/6 each; superb Tanager cocks, 15/-; Violets, 20/6 pair; White Javas, 7/6; Greenbilled Toucan, beauty, 60/6; Redfronted Lorries, beautiful pair, £6; Cape Waxbills, fine large birds, 5/6; St. Helena, ordinary, 3/6; Avadavats, sometimes called Strawberry or Tiger Finches, cocks in full red colour, 3/6; Giant Whydahs, showing tail and colour, 30/6; Sulphury Seedeater, 12/6; Bluebreasted Waxbills, 25/6 pair; Blackfaced Waxhills, 40/6; Rhodesian Cutthroats, 10/6; Redheaded Finches, 15/6, genuine pairs; Budgerigars, pairs, 6/-; Greyheaded Love, 2/-. hen Ganga Cockatoo, £4; Leadbeater, 20/-; Corrilla, 30/6; Rose, 10/6; pair Lemon-crested, 60/6; the Congo Jardines Parrot, rare, 40/6; pair Indian Cuckoos, rare, 60/6; Indian Black Mynah, 25/6; pair Australian white-eyed Wood Swallows, 60/6.

Selection I.: 2 Whitebellied, 2 Avadavats, 2 Blackheads, 2 Combassons, 2 Spice, 1 Saffron, 1 Whydah, 12/6.

Selection II.: 2 Javas, 2 Spice, 4 Waxbills, 2 Weavers, 2 Blackheads, for 9/6.

Ten minutes from Mark Lane Station. Tel.: 6341 Avenue.

ROCHDALE.

Rochdale Town Hall Show, as it is generally known, was held on October 18th and 19th, and was a great success. The entry showed a slight increase on last year's figures, whilst the quality generally was most excellent. In the open Lancashire section there were 110 entries, an increase of 32 on last year's figures, and in point of merit they were the best but we have seen in the famous Town Hall. No one could look through the birds staged and not feel that there is still a vast amount of fine left in the Lancashire fancy yet. We never remember to have seen so many tip top specimens staged before; class after class the competition was very close indeed, and the most gratifying feature of all was the absence of cripples and birds of slovenly carriage. In two or three classes were birds that gave evidence of having Norwich blood in their veins, but they were left severely alone by the judge. The veteran Barrass, as is usual, put down a marvellous team, secured the bulk of the premier awards. We have seen Robert stage some extraordinary teams in previous years, but on this occasion he out rivalled his previous best; his ticked Yellow Coppy, and his ticked Buff Plainhead were marvellous birds, and as full of quality and style as they were of substance; and, further, Messrs. Oldham, J. Butterworth, W. Mills, and J. Howarth each put down birds of most excellent merit. On this occasion an experiment was tried in this section by the provision of two classes for young birds, and it proved such a success that we shall doubtless see it continued. A better sample of young Lancashires than that shown by Messrs. Whitworth, King, Butterworth, Lee, Lord, Vickers, and Mills one need not wish to see. The Lizard section was chiefly remarkable for the fact that in the two hen classes no less than thirty four birds were staged. Two better hen classes we have never seen. What struck us most about the Lizards was the great number of birds showing well developed crealing on the sides and breasts. There were sixty-nine exhibits in the six classes, and the honours were very widely split up. The veteran Levi Butterworth once again got well to the front, and his silvers were indeed good. Mr. J. Dewsnap had a good day out, and his birds excelled in spangling. One of the most striking exhibits in the section was Mr. Rukin's Gold hen; she is indeed a gem. Very choice exhibits were also shown by Messrs. Hampshire, W. Dewsnap, F. Turner, E. Sidawny, W. Lawton, E. Lowe, and C. E. Fisher. Last year the Yorkshire section was poor both in numbers and quality, but on this occasion "the straight 'uns" gave Mr. Mundell something to tax his capabilities. The entry came up well, the average merit in each class was great, and the competition very close indeed, and the awards were well distributed. Cinnamons used to be a strong feature at Rochdale, and we have seen some wonderful collections there, but year by year they have got less and less until this year the climax has been reached by both classes being cancelled, and yet the stronghold of the Cinnamon Fancy is in Lancashire. Crests and Crestbreds were just average classes, and Mr. Mundell's selections were well made. Norwich came up exceptionally well, and right through the section some grand birds were shown; but especially was this so in the Buffs, which were superior to the Yellows. It is many years ago now that we first saw Mr. W. Bowyer standing in the premier position in the Norwich section at Rochdale, and it gave us the greatest pleasure to see such a veteran still keeping his end up. Mr. Mundell was loud in his praises of the Leek Buffs. Messrs. Herd, Booth, Sharples, Todd, and Hindley all staged birds of remarkably nice quality and colour and good type. A topping pair of Yorkshires ran away with the top card in the pairs, and Mules were only few in number, but the quality was good, whilst the British and Foreign, although not numerically strong, were yet very choice, especially the Foreigners, amongst which were some very choice Tanagers. One of the most striking features of an admirable show was the class for stuffed specimens, which contained some very choice examples of the taxidermist's art—by Mr. W. Lord. As is usual at Rochdale, the management was all that could be desired, and with such experienced fanciers as Messrs. Levi Butterworth as chairman, John Naden vice-chairman, and R. Barrass, treasurer, backed up by an earnest and willing lot of members, things could not easily go wrong. Mr. J. Butterworth, the secretary, is one of the best, and no man could be more anxious to please, or more indefatigable in the discharge of the onerous duties of the secretarial office. The ladies' refreshment stall, presided over by Mesdames Buckley, Naden, Turner, Whitworth, Leach, Lawton, Lord, Butterworth, A. Butterworth, Grindrod, and W. Grindrod, has much to say towards the financial success of the show, and Rochda' Brid men are much indebted to these good ladies for the interest they take in the Rochdale Town Hall Show.

The opening ceremony was performed by Lady Beatrice Kemp, the chair being taken by Mrs. Arthur Harvey, who was supported by a number of ladies and gentlemen, amongst whom were Lady Egerton, Miss Kemp, Colonel Kemp, Councillors Sharp, Howarth, and others. In opening the show Lady Beatrice Kemp spoke of the refining and elevating influence which birds exercised upon those who came in contact with them. She was herself greatly interested in birds, and kept a number, but she had never owned a Canary, and had never before opened a bird show. All who led a lonely life she thought should have some birds as pets, as they added greatly to the interest and happiness of one's life. After making some references to wild bird life in and around Rochdale, her ladyship made an eloquent appeal to the ladies present on the subject of aigrettes. Councillor Sharp, in a humorous speech, proposed a vote of thanks to Lady Beatrice for her kindness in opening the show. Mr. Butterworth, the secretary, gave some interesting facts relating to the work of the Rochdale Ornithological Club, and Mr. House spoke of the chief features of interest in the show. At the conclusion of the function, Lady Beatrice was presented with a very handsome Canary and cage, and Mrs. Harvey with a bouquet.

The judges were: Messrs. C. A. House (Lancashires, Lizards, Mules, and Foreign), and W. Mundell (the remainder).

Lancashires.

YELLOW COPPY (5): 1, 3, Barrass, nice spread of copy, stout neck, nice length and carriage of body, stands well; 3rd large, massive bird, not so smart in carriage, plenty of headgear, but not so neatly put on; 2, Whitehead, splendid shape and quality, nice length, stands well up, very neat, well centred coppy, not so long in feather. BUFF (5): 1, Oldham, large, well spread, and capitally formed coppy, very wide and well finished at back, stands well, hardly the length of body for such a grand head; 2, J. Butterworth, more length and substance of body, grandly feathered body, long feathered coppy, not so nicely arranged, nor so broad in front as winner; 3, c, Barrass, tremendous head and feather, great length and substance of body, but does not take perch well, in cage, 1st if he would stand; 4, Garner, neat centre, good head, but rather too much droop, splendid length and carriage of body, vhc, Swalwell rare spread of coppy, hc, Turner. PLAIN YELL (6): 1, 2, Barrass, 1t grand lnped skull, well lashed, great substance and length of feather, rare shape and carriage of body; 2nd a noble head, densely feathered and lashed, great substance of body, but not to long, and not so smart in carriage; 3, 4, Naden, very long, stylish body of nice substance, well shaped skull, not so broad; 4th, massive body, but lacks length, broad skull, but rises rather too much, and lacks the scowling look which a Plainhead should have; vhc, Adams, great length of body, beaten in width of skull. BUFF (7): 1, Mills, takes L.L.F.A. spl. for best bird shown in standard cage, very stout in head and neck, broad massive back, rare length and style, grand entrance and brow; 2, Barrass, better quality of feather and nicer carriage, not so massive in head and neck, and hardly ready; 3, Swalwell, grand length shape, and carriage of body, not so stout in head; 4, Law, beautiful body and style, splendid back and skull, not so wide in front; vhc, Garner, wonderful feather, nice carriage, good broad skull, lacks length; hg, c, Collinge. COPPY TICKED YELL. (10): 1, Barrass, large spreading coppy, excellent width of front, neat centre, nicely finished behind, and rare body properties; 2, 4, Mills, not so much substance of body, grand style and length, very neat coppy; 4th, big massive bird, with a wealth of feather, loses in finish of coppy and carriage of body; 3, Adams, splendid shape, size and carriage of body, very neatly formed coppy, lacks length of coppy; vhc, Oldham, capital and carriage of body, loses in coppy; hc, c, Garner. TICKED BUFF (13): 1, Barrass, just a wonder, immense spread of coppy, great length of feather, rare shape and substance of body, splendid quality, and rare style; 2, c, West, longer in body, but not so stylish, big well-spread coppy, but inclined to lift, a clinking bird, but just lacks the finish of winner; 3, vhc, Vickers, great length and substance of body, splendid carriage, good front of coppy, but twists a bit at side; 4, Lowe, very shapely and nice substance, well formed coppy, but lifts; hc, Garner, a very hot class. PLAIN. TICKED YELL. (6): Only six, but all gems, wonderful lot for shape, substance, and style; 1, 2, Barrass, 1st a youngster, splendid length, shape and style of body, great width of skull, which placed it over 2nd, last year's winner, an immense bird in every respect, but hardly the width of entrance possessed by 1st; 3, Turner, grand shaped bird, wonderful length and style, grand skull and lashing, not quite so massive; 4, Oldham, magnificent shape and substance of skull, rare feather, nice style, but shorter in body; vhc, Lowe, wonderful body for shape, size, length and style, but too high in skull, just the bird for a Crest breeder to get hold of; hc, Garner. TICKED BUFF (11): 1, vhc, Barrass, another giant indeed, wonderful substance right through, rare style and carriage, immense substance and shape of skull, splendid length of body and feather; 2, Oldham, another clinking good bird, stands splendidly, capital quality, plenty of feather substance, hardly so massive; 3, Howarth, splendid shape and substance of head, great length and width of feather, not so long in body; 4, hc, West, rare length and carriage, well shaped skull, hardly so much substance; c, Turner. HEN COPPY (10): 1, J. Butterworth, most charming Yellow, beautifully formed and well spread coppy, neat centre, nice back, grand shape and substance of body; 2, Fallows, very massive body but a trifle short, nice substance and length of body feather, neatly centred and well spread coppy, a buff; 3, Barrass, about the biggest bird in the class, great length and width of feather, grand front, but not quite fit; 4, Naden, splendid shape, length and style of body, neat, well finished coppy, but lacks spread; vhc, hc, Garner, another grand shaped, stylish yellow, nice headpiece, but not so long in feather, or so massive in body; c, Mills; No. 7, Turner, too much droop for a Lancashire. PLAINHEAD HEN (7): 1, Barrass, a wonderful yellow, extraordinary substance, grand length and style, great width of front, grandly lashed, stout neck and back; 2, Howarth, buff, grand shaped skull, well lashed, plenty of length and substance both of body and feather; 3, Vickers, buff, splendid shape and substance, great length of feather on body, not so well lashed; 4, Hughes, buff, rare head and body, plenty of length and substance, but tail not down; vhc, Adams, very nice, stylish, lengthy yellow, but needs a bit more substance; hc, Naden; c, Lord. BRED 1907 COPPY (12): 1, Whitworth, wonderful length and spread of coppy, very long, massive, well-carried body, a future champion; 2, King, a topping yellow, grand body, plenty of feather, needs just a bit more front, wins L.L.F.A. spl.; 3, J. Butterworth, grand fronted, nicely centred coppy, hardly so well finished at back, splendid body; 4, vhc, Lee, shapely, stylish yellow, nice shaped coppy, but not so much length of feather; vhc, rare shaped body and great length of feather, beaten in centre; hc, Horsman; c, Howarth. PLAINHEAD (15): 1, B, Lord, wonderful yellow, great length, substance, and style, capital skull; 2, Vickers, clinking buff, all that a young Lancashire ought to be; need I say more? These two babes should have very distinguished careers; 3, Lee, wonderful quality buff, grand skull, plenty of feather, not quite so much length; 4, c, Mills, a topping bird in every point, but had to go down because of condition—properly shown it doubtless would have won; vhc, Oldham, grand bodied yellow, not so much substance of skull; hc, Butterworth.

Lizards.

GOLD (8): 1, Turner, grand shape and finish of cap, rare shape and quality, sound colour, and full of work; 2, Hampshire, larger bird of nice shape, plenty of work, but hardly so distinct; 3, Gaskill, splendid body, plenty of work, grand colour, bit mooned in tail; 4, Lowe, another grand bodied bird with the same fault; vhc, c, Lawton; hc, Dewsnap. SILVER (13): 1, 4, vhc, L. Butterworth, grand shape and size, neat cap, very clear and distinct in spangling, wonderful breast and sides, rare shoulders; 4, grand shape, rare back, but grey in flights; 2, J. Dewsnap, not quite so large, but all there in colour, shape, and spangle; 3, hc, Fisher, grandly spangled, capital shape, nice cap, not in such good form; c, Lawton. BROKEN GOLD (7): 1, 2, J. Dewsnap, 1st almost a no-cap, very brilliant colour, grand quality and shape, grandly spangled, splendid shoulders and sides; 2nd very regular and distinct in spangle, grand quality and colour, hardly so large; 3, hc, Lowe, grandly spangled on back, not so much work on shoulders, rare shape and quality; 4, Rukin, very bold spangle, but not so much of it, nice shape and colour; vhc, Lawton; c, Hampshire. BROKEN SILVER (7): 1, Fisher, a gem, one of the best spangled Lizards I have seen, almost as good on sides as on back, splendid quality, fine shape and size; 2, L. Butterworth, more colour, very distinct spangle, not so much work on shoulders and sides; 3, Lawton, grand shape and feather, good colour, splendid sides, not quite so distinct on back; 4, Hampshire, nice shape, plenty of spangle, not quite so sound in colour; vhc, hc, c, Dewsnap. HEN GOLD (16): 1, Rukin, almost a no cap, a real gem, full of spangle, rare shape and style, and full of colour; 2, hc, Hampshire, a larger bird, full of work, but not so rich in colour, clear cap; 3, Sidaway, splendid shape and feather, nice colour, not so closely rowed, clear cap; 4, Turner, capital shape and colour, carries a lot of work on back and side, but is not so regular; vhc, c, Dewsnap, splendid back, not so well worked on shoulders and sides. SILVER (18): 1, H. Lord, grand shape and size, nice colour, wonderful back, rare quality; 2, W. Dewsnap, very bold clear spangle, splendid breast, rare colour and shape, a very tight race indeed; 3, J. Dewsnap, not quite so regular, but a lot of work, grand shape and colour, nice size; 4, hc, Hampshire, wonderful shape, style and quality, lovely back, full of large, distinct spangling, a bonny bird, but mooned in tail; vhc, Lowe; c, W. Dewsnap.

DULWICH AND PECKHAM.

Held October 17th and 18th in the Peckham Public Hall, a good and spacious room. Although so young in years, this popular metropolitan society has put up some remarkable open shows in the past, and it the one now under notice promised to quite eclipse all previous efforts. Exhibitors rallied strongly round the executive, and favoured them with an entry, not only magnificent in number, but exceptional in quality—a fitting reward for the strenuous efforts of the officials, and the good classification and splendid list of specials put before the Fancy. Unfortunately, however, the arrangements, to use a sporting phrase, "fell at the last hurdle." In plain English, the staging provided proved entirely inadequate to accommodate the number of birds sent to the show—considerably over a thousand, some four hundred more than last year's total, we believe. In consequence, the exhibits could not be staged as they were unpacked, but for the time being had to stand about the hall, anywhere and everywhere. This resulted in the stewards being quite unable to cope with the extra work involved, made the judges' task one of extreme difficulty, and put a damper on what had promised to be a most successful show, and a "red letter day" for the Dulwich and Peckham C.B.S. It must, however, be put to the credit of those officials closely associated with the working of the exhibition, that none felt the disaster more keenly than themselves, or laboured more unceasingly, and with not a little self-sacrifice, to straighten things out. Many good fanciers amongst the visitors also lent willing hands, and everything had been put as ship-shape as possible during the afternoon of the opening day. It seems hardly fair to single any out for special mention, but among those good friends we noticed Messrs. Dunn (Portobello), Baker (Cowes), Warr (Hastings), Webb (Westcliff), Hill (Deptford), Warley, Easterling, Jaggard, Marry, Kates, Rees, Turnber, Watts, Goodale (Watford), and Leclair. Of the committee, etc., Mr. Brownlie put in many hours of unwearying labour, and had the Border section in really good order, while as good seconds came Messrs. Waterman, Cunningham, Bussey, Garlick, Kent, Lugg, Meredith, Rogers, Wall, Wetenhall, Matthews, Morris, W. Goodwin and Hodson, many of whom will remember their experiences for a long time to come. In Mr. G. F. Woolhouse the society found a most energetic show manager, enthusiastic and a hard worker, and, from what we heard, he certainly could not be blamed for the unexpected misfortunes which fell upon the venture. Having devoted so much space to affairs generally, little is left to discuss the exhibits. The Norwich Plainheads averaged 21 a class, and contained some grand birds, the section best being Mr. Hodder's fine clear yellow, which was brought out to compete for the shield. Yorkshires averaged just over 14 per class, and had the distinction of holding the ultimate winner of the £7 7s. silver shield, in Mr. R. L. Crisp's clear yellow, a young bird of remarkable promise, which took the trophy after a keen struggle with Mr. Maxwell's very rare and beautiful Wall Creeper, Mr. Hodder's aforementioned bird being also close up. The Borders broke all Southern records in number and quality, averaging nearly 22 per class, and containing many "cracks," the pick of the bunch, we thought, being Messrs. Duncan and Logan's even-marked yellow, a real gem. The British and Foreign sections were also remarkably good, many of the best-known exhibitors "crossing swords." The hottest classes were the Small Softbills (26), A.O.V. Hardbills (27), and small Foreign (19), though several of the others had over 20 entries. In the Hybrid class a said-to-be Chaffinch-Canary Mule was exhibited, but we believe the judge passed it as simply a Chaffinch "sport," with a tendency towards albinism. The members' classes, as is usual at this show, were very strong in quality. The judges were Messrs. W. Vardy (Norwich), J. Robson (remainder of Canaries), and G. E. Weston (Hybrids, British, Foreign and Selling), and, considering the disabilities under which they laboured, they deserve congratulating on getting through their tasks with so little adverse comment. Many of the classes had necessarily to be adjudicated on by gaslight. The Novice Cup went to Mr. F. Davies (King Parrakeet), the special for best ladies' bird to Miss Reeves (Bramblefinch-Chaffinch Hybrid), Ramsden's special to Mr. Maxwell's Yellow Wagtail, Sandiford's Cup to Mr. Hodder's unflighted Yellow, best British to Mr. Brett's Great Grey Shrike. CAGE BIRD'S Coupon Scheme Competition had a very fair number of birds entered for it, and much interest was evinced as to the eventual destination of the three prizes. The best first prize bird competing was held to be Mr. Lawrenee's Canary-Bullfinch Hybrid; the best second prize, Mr. H. Mill's almost green Crest; the best third prize, Mr. F. J. Green's Lancs. Coppy; while Mr. Prior's Yellow-hammer stood reserve.

Mr. Vardy's Classes.

NORWICH CL. YELL. (25): 1, Hodder, not over large, but beautifully built and cut away, clinker for colour and quality, and will improve yet, best of carriage, very neat wings, one of the runners up for the shield; 2, Morris, another fine specimen, all quality and very typical, graud chest and head; 3, Lowe, shade longer, but of good substanee and quality, neat, well-rounded chest, shapely head; 4, Miles, very typical frame, silky feather, neat, trifle fine in head; vhc, Lowe; hc, Richardson; c, Hirst. BUFF (19): 1, Morris, real good one for type and quality, neatest of heads and wing carriage; 2, Patterson, close on winner's heels, grand under-colour and meal, chubby and well-cut, fine size; 3, 4, Battison, two clinkers for size, grand chests and heads, shade loose as yet, but will doubtless improve; vhc, spl, hc, Hodder; c, Boydon; TKD., ETC., YELL. BUFF (19): 1, Boydon, again a wonder for size, immense frame, well-cut up, fine under-colour and meal, just a trifle loose to-day; 2, Ellis, close up, another slashing big one, full of colour and quality, good head and wings; 3, Hodder, heavy mkd., excellent quality, good chest and head, well cut all over; 4, Muscott, cap mkd., shade longer, nice style, and silky feather, good type; vhc, Battison; hc, Morris; c, Meades. UNFLIGH. YELL. (24): 1, Morris, grand chest and cut, A1 head and wings, hot, even colour, splendid carriage, a clinker, and will improve, not finished yet on head; 2, Hirst, a real hot 'un for colour, big, fine bodied youngster, neat all over, full of quality; 3, Bellamy, just beaten on head, yet a nice one all-round, shapely and stylish; 4, Midgley, very promising, shade coarse yet, will do better later on; vhc, Lowe; hc, and Sandiford's Cup, Hodder; c, Richardson; W.C., Creasc, a hot-fed Buff, and Lowe. BUFF (31), a very hot class: 1, Morris, another beautiful youngster, a Clear, thick-set, roundly moulded body, very boxy feather and lovely under-colour, wins nicely; 2, Lowe, variegs., teems with quality, splendid meal and under-colour, good big body, well ent; 3, C. H. Cooper, mkd. cap and tail, looks like a hen, very short and chubby, well rounded and neat to a fault, best of quality; 4, c, Hodder, promising youngster, plenty of substance, well cut away, nice under-colour and meal; vhc, Richardson; hc, Mullis. VARIEG., ETC. (9): 1, Hodder, short and cobby, good head and wings, buff, hot colour, nice quality; 2, spl, Drakeley, buff, very stout, nice shape and carriage, neat; 3, Sprules, shade heavy at tail, good bird for body and quality; 4, Day, good big one, well-rounded chest, neat, just beaten at neck; vhc, Curtis; hc, c, Morris. HEN (25): 1, Sandiford, very fine cl. yell., short, chubby, tight as wax, hot, even colour, very silky in plumage; 2, Spinner, cl. yell., not so well-rounded on head, but close up in other respects, all quality, neat, stylish, nice size; 3, Hodder, choice cobby buff, not quite ready yet, beauty for shape and carriage; 4, Bellamy, nice hen, short and chubby, full of quality, neat, good in carriage; vhc, Ellis; hc, Morris; c, Lowe.

Mr. Robson's Classes.

YORKS CL. OR TKD. YELL (15): 1, £7 7s. shield, Crisp, with a smashing clear, wonderful length and shape, very finely drawn, not a feather out of place, rich, even colour, grand legs, a trifle short of bloom to-day, should take a bit of stopping; 2, Cuthbertson, another rattling good clear, very silky feather, well on leg, fine head, wings and tail, lovely body, trifle loose at throat; 3, Broughton, same fault, otherwise a nice one, long, slim, full of quality; 4, Jones, very hot in colour, stands on good legs, neat, wee bit strong in build; vhc, Easterling; hc, Webb; c, Hirst. BUFF (11): 1, Warr, good length and position, well moulded, neat body and head, fine pair of legs, not quite finished on head; 2, Cuthbertson, tkd. neck, perhaps a shade flat on head, but close up, well drawn and lengthy, neat wings and tail, very boxy feather; 3, Broughton, beauty for quality and neatness, typical position, good length, trifle stronger; 4, Philpot and Cross, nice length and stand, excellent quality, neat; vhc, Wilcock, rare good quality and shape, we fancied for a higher place; hc, Hirst; c, Webb. YELL. MKD. (8): 1, Wilcock, clinking long, slim, neat bird, teeming with quality, stands like a guardsman, almost four-pointed; 2, Hall, cheek and neck mkd., tight, lengthy specimen, little heavy at shoulder, very breedy, A1 quality; 3, Pattrick, eye mkd., hot one for colour and quality, fine length and stand; 4, Hirst, cinn.-mkd. wings, eye and rump, tight as wax in feather, fine length and shape, a bird we liked, not quite fit as yet; vhc, c, Warr; hc, Broome. BUFF (8): 1, 2, Crisp, brace of beauties, winner cinn.-mkd., eyes and wing, great length, well-drawn, A1 head, wings and tail, lovely position, 2nd mkd. wings and eyes, another very long-sided, typical specimen, all there for quality, maybe hardly so good on head; 3, Cuthbertson, mkd. checks and wings, good type of bird, full of quality, long and slim, trifle sharp on chest at present; 4, Pattrick, wings, head and breast, shade thicker at waist, beauty for colour and quality, nice length and stand; vhc, Elsmore; hc, Sapwell; c, Lucas. UNFLIGHT. (25) splendid class: 1, Crisp, another young cl. yellow of remarkable length, beautifully drawn, tight as wax, colour and quality A1, straight as a rush, wins hands down; 2, Cuthbertson, not quite the length of winner, yet a real beauty for shape and style, breedy looking, fine positioned bird, teeming with quality, also a clear yell.; 3, Pattrick, another cl. yell., of lovely colour and quality, feathered like a Java, excellent length and position; 4, Warr, cl. buff, not the largest, but well-drawn, neat, and full of style, gem for quality; vhc, Mabey; hc, Burton; c, Easterling. YELL. HEN (12): 1, 3, Crisp, clear leading, lovely hen for shape and style, all quality, neat as a new pin, 3rd cinn-mkd. wing, again a gem for quality and type, close up; 2, Broughton, tkd. right wing, sweet hen for quality, well drawn, neat, stylish; 4, Burton, clear, excellent position, tight, boxy feather, well put down, shade stouter than leaders; vhc, Rennie; hc, Webb; c, Warr. BUFF (20): 1, Pattrick, shade thick-set, but all there for quality and style, sweet head and wings, in nice trim; 2, Jones, neck tkd., taking hen, very neat, excels in quality, shapely, typical stand; 3, Broughton, mkd. wings and eyes, trifle strongly built, but again a fine hen for neatness and quality, well on leg; 4, Burton, wonderfully good boxy feather, neat head, well-carried wings and tail, same weakness as third; vhc, Crisp, very close up, may beat those above her later on; hc, Cuthbertson, another sweet hen; c, Broome. CRESTS (23): 1, Tyson, the well-know variegd. dk. crest, splendid width and frontal, big and well-radiated, good quality of feather, grand body, trifle unfinished in centre, closely pressed to-day by 2, Mills, well-known almost green, very good in substance, and carrying a beautifully-rounded and drooped crest, well built and very neat, a taking bird; 3, Broad, was just taking a bath when we looked in, rare body substance, fine quality feather; 4, Slade, promising youngster, good body and expanse of crest, little short at frontal as yet; vhc, spl, Greenwood and Burson; hc, c, King. CRESTBRED (24): 1, Tyson, a gem, variegd. buff, immense body, big, wide, well-rounded skull, finely lashed, grand turn-over of leafy feather; 2, Horton, heavy variegd. again of wonderful substance, topped by a grand cushion skull, plenty of good feather; 3, James and Son, very large variegd., heavy frame, well clothed all over, wide skull, good entrance; 4, Broad, nearly green hen, smaller, but grand type, short and thick-set, heaps of feather, very nice head; vhc, Gale; hc, Eley; c, Shearman. BORDERS—CL. OR TKD. YELL CK. (27): 1, Reid and Phillips, gem of a clear, faultless shape and style, feathers like glass; 2, J. Thompson, another rattling good clear, beautifully moulded, correct size and carriage, in the pink of condition, close up; 3, spl, Brownlie, very smart and jaunty, beautiful quality, travels in great style, perhaps a trifle hollow at throat; 4, J. S. Wilson, a clinking good bird when caught in the humour, but inclined to be unsteady, will do better; vhc, Aberdeen; hc, spl, Hawkins; c, spl, Duncan and Logan. HEN (18): 1, Aberdeen, clear, simply lovely feather and colour, A1 type, like boxwood in plumage, best of wings, splendid hen; 2, Calderwood, another smart one for type and neatness, very stylish, lacks a shade in quality; 3, Wilson, very tight race, smart as they make 'em in style, full of quality, well-rounded head, neatest of wings and tail; 4, spl, Sheldon, in rare good trim, excellent shape, travels in taking manner; vhc, Bayley; hc, Brownlie; c, Blackshaw. BUFF CK. (26): 1, Wardleworth, clear, correct in size, and model for shape, best of boxy feather, A1 order; 2, spl, Brownlie, cheek tkd, another good one for type and quality, sweet head, neat to a fault; 3, vhc, Blackshaw, tkd. skull, perhaps a shade heavier at waist, but hard to find fault with in other respects, very tight and stylish; 4, Lockett, clear, excellent quality, good mover, tips wing over at times, but typical and in rare bloom; vhc, Waters; c, Aberdeen. HEN (25): 1, spl, best bird, Duncan and Logan, tkd. wing, all over a topper, lovely moulded body, neatest of heads, wings and tail, in perfect order, wins well; 2, Gordon, not quite finished on cheeks yet, but shows quality all through, and is all there for pose and shape; 3, Jenkins, shade strong, but not a feather out of place, well rounded all over, very jaunty mover; 4, vhc, Dr. Bowes, trifle hollow in back, otherwise close on third, very good in type, quality A1; hc, Hawkins; c, Brownlie. EVEN MKD. (12): 1, spl, Duncan and Logan, a stormer, and the admiration of all, mkd. eyes and wings, the neatest we have seen for years, perfect eyes, very even wings, above all, very true to type, will want beating, a yellow, full of colour; 2, hc, Seiranac, very good with winner out of sight, fine type, but well beaten at eyes and for colour here; 3, Reid and Phillips, little long, well marked, grand quality; 4, Calderwood, runs a little at eyes, otherwise a very decent specimen of this difficult-to-get variety; vhc, McKenzie; c, Cubby. UNEVEN (26), a very hot class: 1, Jenkins, nearly four-pointed buff, rare good bird, excels in type, feathered like glass, and as jaunty as a bantam cock; 2, spl., Brownlie, buff cinn-mkd., gem for wax-like condition, very correct in shape and style, a grand one, close on winner; 3, Meekly, eyes and wing mkd. yell., a shade fine, for style and neatness, however, hard to beat, teeming with quality and colour; extra 3, McKenzie, eyes and wing mkd. buff, one we were sweet on, lovely shape, like polished marble in feather, beautiful style, somewhat unlucky, we thought; extra 3, 4, Seiranac, eye-mkd., leading, two rattling g'ld all-round Borders, right type, in fine form; vhc, Hawkins; hc, c, Wilson. GREEN (18): 1, spl, Blackie, fine type, good head, close and neat in wings and tail, above all, a lovely shade of colour, sound all over; 2, 4, spl, Cubby, leader a grand little bird for shape and position, not quite fit yet, trifle sharp on chest, latter also not quite ready, both of excellent colour, and very neat; 3, Cairns, again a grand coloured bird, very stylish, trifle longer than leaders; vhc, spl, Hawkins; hc, Gordon; c, Metcalfe. CINN. (11): 1, spl, Reid and Phillips, clinking good yell., finely moulded, feathered to perfection; 2, spl, c, Brownlie, a good one of Mr. B.'s favourite colour, true to type, and jaunty in carriage, hardly so fit as leader; 3, Hamilton, yell., correct size and shape, nice mover, beautiful quality, will tighten up and improve yet; 4, Cubby, smart buff, all there for type and quality, travels in great style, close up; hc, Metcalfe. LANCS. Coppy (7): 1, 3, 4, spl, Green, clinking team, grand cl. yell., leading, splendid long-sided bird, excellent substance, good legs, full of quality and colour, neat, correct coppy, 3rd, grizzle, 4th clear huff, two fine specimens, latter just beaten in length; 2, vhc, Phillipson, grizzle, fine frame, clothed with good quality feather, very good on leg, plenty of wing, neat coppy, good finish at back. PLAINHEAD (8): 1, 2, 3, 4, vhc, spl, Green, another clinking team, yellow, leading, a topper for substance and quality, takes a grand position on very sound legs, plenty of side, fine width of skull, 2nd a buff, grandly made, full of quality, rare wide sulky head, close on its stable companion, 3rd and 4th also two smart ones, buff and yell, respectively. A.O.V. CAN. (11): 1, vhc, hc, Mrs. Reeves, rich coloured jonque Cinnamon, fine size, excellent substance and quality; 2, Saunders, another of the same persuasion, but not yet quite fit, fine type, will do better later; 3, 4, Green, cl. cap, silver, and bantam cap Lizards, two good birds for type and ground colour, very well spangled and rowed.

Mr. G. E. Weston's Classes.

GOLDFINCH (22): 1, Prior, huge blaze, square-cut and fairly forward in colour, nice, shapely, richly-tanned body, best of buttons, should do well; 2, Maxwell, neat as a new pin, not quite up in colour yet, very expansive and square-cut face, nicely marked all over; 3, Hopkins and Allsop, another promising Goldie, fine body colour and markings, nice square face, very steady and stylish; 4, Baker, wonderful colour, apparently not moulted yet, in very fair condition, except for beak badly over-grown, deep, rich blaze, somewhat oval in shape; vhc, White; hc, Francis; c, Rouse. BULLFINCH (10): 1, Vincent, very cobby and shapely, good, well-rounded, jet-black cap, nice back and bars, very clean breast colour, not quite up yet; 2, Mays, very tight race, short, thick-set, good headed bird, good breast colour for time of year, inclined to be loose under when judged; 3, Prior, good shape and feather, very promising, wants time; 4, Rouse, good, chubby hen, very tight in feather; vhc, Andrews; hc, Adamthwaite; c, White. No. 492, a light Goldie Mule, evidently in by mistake. SISKIN, ETC. (19): 1, Andrews, topping Mealy Redpoll, wonder for size and quality, good bib, will take beating; 2, Bird, rich-coloured Siskin, good size and shape, excellent cap and wings, well laced, trifle out in throat feathers; 3, 4, Goodall, nice Lesser Redpoll, good colour, shape and size, well pencilled, fine bib, 4th very fair Twite, not up in bloom yet, good size and marking; vhc, hc, Francis, good non-fed Siskin, leading, unsteady; c, Hawes. LINNET (17): 1, hc, Prior, grand one for size, rare width of chest, lovely clear, rich, colour, full of pencilling in nice bloom; 2, 4, Maxwell, leader a stormer for size and shape, very tight in feather, but dull in coat as yet, 4th a mass of marking, good size and shape, will beat its stable companion later on, we think; 3, Turnber, wonderful condition and bloom, rich nutty colour, trifle short of size, not moulted this back-end, apparently; vhc, Vale, big, fine bird; c, Morris Bros. A.O.S. SEEDEATER (27), a hot class: 1, Rouse, extra large and shapely Hawfinch, grand chest, fine big bib, good condition, shade nervous; 2, Levett Yellowhammer, fine, big, well-marked bird, lovely deep colour, steady as a rock; 3, Mays, hot-coloured Bramblefinch, well spangled and marked, fine head, very steady, in splendid condition, a shade small; 4, Prior, another clinking Yellowhammer, non-fed, beats 2nd for markings, fine condition; trifle unsteady; vhc, hc, Francis, former nice Cirl, Bunting; c, Gunnell. No. 550, Ortolan, not on N.B.B. and M.C. list; abs., Nos. 534, 535, 557. SMALL INSECTIV. (26): 1, Mays, one of the best Gold Crests we have seen, lovely colour, very prominent and rich "crest," gem for condition, well staged; 2, 3, vhc, Maxwell, leader one of the grandest Yellow Wagtails seen for many a long day, steady, wax-like in condition, and wonderfully rich in colour (takes Ramsden's special), close run for first, 3rd very fine Tree Creeper, in the pink of condition, and staged to perfection, vhc splendid Black Redstart, charming colour and condition, unfortunately has two partly-broken claws, which lost it a higher position; 4, Goodall, spotted Flycatcher, smart little bird, in fine trim, steady as a rock; extra 4, Burrows, big, grand shaped Wryneck, very sharp and distinct in markings, exceptional colour; vhc, Francis, one of the finest Nightingales on the bench, great size, lovely shape and colour; hc, Withers Bros., noted Tree Pipit; hc, Morris Bros., really fine Bearded Reedling; hc, Hathaway, lovely Blackcap; c, Gardner, Lesser Whitethroat, excels in condition; c, Cook, rare White Wagtail, not in full colour, lovely condition, perhaps deserved a higher place; one of the hottest classes ever seen, and a rare puzzle to judge; No. 583 a little thick at judging time. A.O. SPECIES (14): 1, spl, hc, Brett, very fine Great Grey Shrike leading, steady as possible, faultless condition, takes the special for best British bird; 2, Maxwell, grand Magpie, equally faultless condition, perfect tail and markings, lovely sheen on plumage; 3, Hawes, fine Ring Ouzel, well marked for time of year, in splendid bloom, very steady, cage has much too large a water-tin; 4, Cook, the noted Nutcracker, striking exhibit, not quite in condition yet; vhc, Francis, nice Song Thrush; c, Carter. LIGHT HYBRID (12): 1, Hopkins and Allsopp, tkd. wings and eyes, lovely colour and quality for a buff, feathered like wax, good size; 2, hc, c, Andrews, buff, tkd. eyes, almost clear, nice size and substance, carries a good colour, little coarse in feather at present, will doubtless improve; 3, Lamb, almost six-pointed, fine coloured yellow, grand quality, good shape; 4, Bloomfield, fine coloured variegd., shapely and neat—all winners Goldie-Canarys; vhc, Cooper. DARK (21), fine class: 1, Lawrence, pretty Canary-Bullie, very tight in feather, good bloom and colour, fair size, nice exhibit, wins CAGE BIRD'S Competition; 2, Maxwell, very smart Siskin-Canary, good size and shape, stylish, rich colour, well marked, well polished; 3, Hingley, Redpoll-Canary, excellent size and markings, quality and condition A1, good bird; 4, Best, buff Goldie-Can., good in size and substance, well put down; vhc, Lamb; hc, Morris Bros.; c, Andrews. Wrong class, 627, carries light feathers. A.O.V. HYBRID (9): 1, two spls, Miss Reeves, Bramble-Chaffinch, best-coloured and marked example of the cross we have seen, lovely condition, shade small; 2, hc, Maxwell, fine Goldie-Bullie leading, excellent size and shape, lovely rich colour, worth an equal first; 3, Lamb, very stylish and shapely Linnet-Bullie, grand condition, nice colour; 4, Cutting, smart Redpoll-Greenfinch, excellent size and shape; vhc, Vale; c, Goodall. ALBINOS (7): 1, Mrs. Vincent, pure white, pink-eyed Ring Dove, rare and pretty exhibit; 2, Welch, very fine white Blackbird, in lovely condition; 3, Gaunt, nice little Cinnamon Redpoll; 4, Miss Brammer, pretty pied Linnet. FOREIGN LARGE (8): 1, c, Cooper, Varied Lorikeet, in very nice condition, rich colour, well marked; 2, 3, Davies, grand King Parrakeet fine colour all over, and in splendid condition, won the cup for best Novice exhibit in open classes, 3rd a fine pair of Red-rumps, also in excellent trim; 4, Brost, very fine Grey Parrot, lovely tone of colour; vhc, H. H. Cooper, good Blue Bonnet, very nervous; hc, Bennett; c, Miss Bulteel. SMALL (19): 1,3,4, Maxwell, splendid trio, Wall Creeper, leading, exceedingly rare, in beautiful condition, and most artistically staged, ran a close race for the £7 7s. shield, 3rd very fine Shaft-tailed Whydah, perfect plumage, 4th fine Superb Tanager, gem for colour and condition; 2, Cook, beautiful Golden Crowned Troupial, in lovely plumage, very attractive, and filled the show with melody when things were quiet; vhc, Botting; hc, Miss Davies; c, Walls; a grand class, many charming exhibits of the commoner species having to stand cardless. SELLING, 15s. (12): 1, Dr. Sidgwick; 2, hc, Richardson; 3, Peters; 4, Greenwood and Burson; vhc, Cole, Matthes; hc, Day; c, Saunders. DO., 25s. NEWCASTLE.

The second annual exhibition promoted by the Newcastle and Dis. C.B.S. took place Oct. 18th and 19th. A more ideal showroom than the Cambridge Drill Hall would be difficult to find. It has a magnificent top light, and is electrically lighted by night. There is abundance of space. The room is lofty and well ventilated, and free from objectionable draughts. The venue is within easy distance from the various stations. Our Newcastle friends, taking it altogether, are highly favoured in being able to command such a suitable hall. On the evening previous to the show we had the pleasure of closely inspecting the arrangements for coping with a wonderful collection of our feathered pets, and cannot speak too highly of them. The masterly manner in which the staging had been set, the unpacking of the exhibits, manipulated by master hands, called for warm encomiums. Everything appeared in apple-pie order, and management of the strongest kind was in evidence in every little detail. The staging was on the rack principle, holding three tiers of cages high, with ample room between each section of exhibits for visitors and fanciers to pass to and fro with comfort and pleasure.

The schedule issued by the Newcastle Society was on a lavish scale. Excellent prize money was offered and guaranteed, with no stipulations as to the number of entries in each class. Hosts of valuable specials, extra specials, silver bowls, medals, teapots, etc., etc., were offered for competition. Need it be said that the response to such enterprise and attractions was all that could be desired. The entries, totalling upwards of 1,530, a magnificent result, almost doubled last year's figures.

The exhibition was held under The Cage Bird Union rules, and had the patronage of the following specialist clubs: Northern Crest Club, Green Canary Association English and Welsh Border Fancy Club, National British Bird and Mule Club, Northern Yorkshire Canary Club, Yorkshire Canary Club, and the Norwich Plainhead Club, cup show.

High Merit

As one went over the various sections, merit of the highest order met one's gaze. No matter what variety one inspected, the "creme de la creme" was present in full force.

First in the catalogue came the Norwich Plainheads. The birds here were extremely warm of colour, hot enough in most cases to set fire to their cages. Many of them had a superb quality of feather, and their richness was almost indescribable. Type, in many instances, bordered on perfection, and size was there in abundance. It was excellence, excellence, bang through every class. A finer display of the "short and chubby" variety has not been seen for many a day. Mr. Tweddle's clear yell. cock stood out as a gem, as did Mr. Seed's clear buff cock. In the ticked yellows, Mr. J. Trengove exhibited a rare specimen, and in the buffs Mr. J. Evans had a couple of very charming birds on view. The yellow hen shown by Mr. A. Grey (Morpeth) (breeder of the noted Queenie) was quite a "Lady of the Lake," and Mr. Tweddle's buff hen is a real eye-opener.

The unflighteds mustered 128 birds in the three classes provided, with hardly a bad one amongst them. Competition waxed exceedingly keen, and several sets of winners could easily have been chosen—many standing cardless capable of winning at the majority of shows. The yellow cock staged by Mr. J. Lees found hosts of admirers, and was voted a topper. The buff cock owned by Mr. R. W. Mercer was a real eye-opener, and the yellow ticked hen, the property of Mr. T. H. Dent, was quite a charmer. Other notable exhibitors who staged specimens far away above the average were Messrs. A. Brown, F. Coventry, T. Fletcher, J. and J. Hopkins, J. McGuiness, S. Cook, G. Gowland, Bailey, J. Atkinson, Marlor Bros., G. Dobinson, W. Thompson, T. Crimes, J. Beswick, J. Raynes, W. N. Midgeley, and C. Laskey.

Next came the Norwich Greens. One noticed in this variety a most decided improvement, both in type and depth of colour, and of this correct shade (not smoky), lovely specimens were the representatives of Messrs. T. Ryno, R. Davies, J. Walker, S. Hadwin, R. Jenkins, V. H. Deacon, A. E. Doughty, and J. H. Isaac.

Cinnamons were not over numerous, but for quality could scarcely be surpassed. Messrs. Dormer and Godley fought battles once again, with honours fairly even, and Messrs. Taylor and Sanderson, Todd and Son, and J. Wilson, answered for the rest of the spoil. The colour and polish of the specimens gave pleasure to all who observed them.

The Impressive Crests

Crests and Crestbreds created a great impression. Birds massive in build, with a superabundance of rich quality feather, with slashing head points, were to be seen all along the line. The former with wonderful size and radiation of crests, thickly thatched, and of beautiful droop and centre, filled us with amazement. The latter, with their wonderful rise and width of skull, magnificent shape and lashed to perfection, were the admiration of all who favour the "topper variety." A really delightful collection they made, and convinced us that around Newcastle they can "bred 'em," without doubt. Some fair stormers were staged by Messrs. A. Lister, W. Marshall, T. Pearce, Dobson and Son, T. Taylor, and A. Armstrong. Other exhibitors who placed on view birds of great merit were Messrs. W. Stoves, R. S. Bewick, D. Scott, J. Gray, T. Crawhall, E. Richardson, and W. Marshall.

The 1907 bred Crest deserves special mention. It is a gem of the first water, and a lovelier specimen would be hard to find. This bird has a great future with luck, and we wish Mr. Taylor every success with him.

Yorkshires, the birds of "grace and beauty," mustered strongly, and amongst them were many possessing wonderful characteristics. Feathered like wax, standing like guardsmen, cheeky and defiant, great length and well on leg. Principal exhibitors were Messrs. Wilcock, Hellewell, Towers, Wilson, Wadsworth, Irwin, Cathbertson, Carr, Chew, and Stokoe, Broadley, Stebbings, Davison, Wear, and Edmondson.

Yorkshire Greens were good in numbers. As in the Norwich, one found a vast improvement, both as regards colour, position, and length, to what was seen a year or two ago. The colour is of a better tone, they are slimmer and of much better type.

The competition was hot here, so many birds being of an almost equal merit. Great birds were exhibited by Messrs. Clayton, Tempest, Gill, and Pickup, Hughes, Martin, Handley, Carlisle, Wright, Doughty, Hellewell, Deacon, and Vernon.

The winning yellow self, owned by Mr. P. Clayton, and the foul yellow, the property of Mr. Hellewell, are a couple of beauties, and great credit is due to their breeders.

Scotch Fancies made a nice display, size, quality, position, and drive, all being there. Exceptional birds were staged by Messrs. Little, Lugton, Chapman, Thompson, Smith, Cobb, Taylor, Craig, and Dixon.

Border Fancies turned up in large numbers, 154 in 8 classes, making an average of almost 20 per class. Pretty as paint, with wax like fitting packets, quick in movement, are the Borders, and one receiving much pleasure when looking over the fountains of Canarydom. Specimens bordering on the ideal were those shown by Messrs. Bennet, Scott, Wilson, Poole, Clinch, Smart, McKenzie, Hopper Bros., Cox, Pearson, Lewthwaite, Brown, and Drinkwater.

A Very Rare Mule

The Hybrid section of this show contained some fine specimens of various crosses. The most unique turn-up in this lot was an almost clear Siskin-Canary, a bird bred this year by Mr. J. Maddison, and exhibited by him. It has a very slight grizzle on wings, and has the appearance of becoming quite clear. We believe it is the first and only one ever put on the show bench of this cross so light. No wonder then that it found a majority in the judges who awarded it the Challenge Bowl for the best young bird bred in 1907, and shown here. Right well does it deserve its honours, for it stands out as a unique specimen of its cross. We could not follow a remark overheard that "It was only a freak." May many more freaks of the like, grace the show bench in the future, is the wish of the writer and many of the fanciers who set eyes upon it. The breeder deserves great praise for being rewarded thus for his dogged perseverance. The winners in each class were birds of special merit. The critique on these classes will be found elsewhere.

The Britishers! What shall we say of them? They were simply grand for so early a show. Quality excellent, and quantity in abundance. Goldfinches leading these classes were very promising birds, and some of them, with luck, may be heard of again. Out of the whole section, the Goldie is the slowest bird in recovering his brilliant colours and condition. There is something to be learnt yet to hasten the moult of this leading favourite. They can be helped forward if our exhibitors will only handle and use the silk handkerchief more. There's the tip. Bullfinches were very pretty, and the leader is a very large specimen (which some might question), but as there is a doubt, the bird got the benefit. He is a grand specimen, and all the world like Job Williams's old champion. The Linnets were wonderful, 83, and no duffers. The winner and runner-up are A1, the first excelling in size and type. Extra prizes were generously allowed in the big classes. Greenfinches were not so numerous as usual, but some of the very tip-top were on view. Siskin, Redpoll, or Twite produced a most sensational Redpoll, which won handsomely. It is a wonderful specimen, and quite took the breath away of British bird fanciers as they gazed upon it. The Bramble and Chaffinch class was a marvel, 29 superlative birds putting in an appearance. 24 of these were Brambles of great merit. The winner to-day was the best shape and most perfectly-conditioned bird of a grand lot. With a shade more spangle and colour it might be termed perfect in all respects. More body condition in many of the beaten birds will bring them to the front. The leading Chaffinch won his place handsomely, and is a lovely bird. The hen Finches were good, and the winning hen Bramble was in splendid form. The A.O.V. seedeaters saw a lovely Yellow Bunting to the front. Blackbirds. Thrushes, and Starlings were a treat, 18 fine birds, the winning Thrush was a gem.

The large Soft Bills brought out 2 Choughs, both very good and little in them. They were beaten by a very pretty Hoopoe. The small Soft Bills, 21 of them, were all practically fit to win, and 4 Wrynecks, 2 'Gales, 4 Blackcaps, Treecreepers, Gold Crest, Wagtails, Wheatear, etc., made up a very attractive display. A grand Wryneck won after a hard fight with a splendid Nightingale.

The Lark or Pipit class produced 14 fine birds, and a magnificent Meadow Pipit won here. The Skylarks were good, but hardly the high standard usual in these parts. The Foreigners were a lovely lot, a very grand Eclectus winning in the Parrots, etc. A very fine Siberian Goldfinch won well in the Seed-eating class, whilst in the Insect or Fruit-eaters' class, a delightful Indian Rock Mynah won. This bird also secured the special for best bird in the show. Altogether, this section was a treat such is not usually seen anywhere.

The guinea for best bird in the show went to Mr. A. Brown, of Gateshead, his superb Indian Mynah answering to the call. A magnificent specimen it was too, in full bloom and delightfully shown. The Northern Crest Club's medals, three in number, found claimants in Messrs. T. Taylor (2) and R. Armstrong, with birds of excellent type and feather. The Northern Yorkshire Club's three medals fell into the hands of Messrs. J. Davison (2) and J. Carr. Birds of lovely outline and quality were staged by them. Best in Norwich Greens, Mr. T. Ryno; Yorks. Greens, Mr. P. Clayton. Best in Norwich Novice, Mr. W. McGinn; second, Mr. J. Flint. Best in Yorkshire Novice, Mr. J. Kent; second, Mr. J. H. Leach. Best Norwich (members), Mr. A. Grey. Best Novice (members), W. McGinn. Best bird (members), Mr. J. Maddison, Canary-Siskin: second, Mr. J. Little, Scotch Fancy. Best in Norwich open, T. Seed. Best in Crest or C.B., A. Lister. Best in Crest or C.B. (1907), T. Taylor. Best in Yorkshires, W. Wadsworth. Best in Scotch Fancy, T. Chapman. Best in Border Fancy, P. McKenzie.

The Managing Officials

The President (A. J. Haggie, Esq., J.P.) rendered valuable help. He is heart and soul for the welfare of the Society. Amongst the Vice-Presidents are Dr. Galloway, Alderman H. W. Newton, Councillors A. Scott, D. Adams, Dr. Welch, Dr. R. H. Jude, and Messrs. J. F. Maling, J. T. Parrish, J. B. Harris, J. Harris, F. T. Latimer, and G. Reid. The Chairman is Mr. J. Shepherd, who is a most capable official. Vice-Chairman, Mr. J. Currah is a capital understudy. The Committe of Management consists of Messrs. T. Robson, G. McPartling, J. Hubbock, M. C. Pots, J. Maddison, J. R. Slack, J. McDonald, J. Bertram, A. Storey, T. C. Crawhall, R. Howard, W. Reay, J. Thompson, J. Coutts, and R. Young. When one sees such a practical and genuine lot of fanciers as these, one does not wonder at all that the management was of the highest order. Each and all worked with a will, doing all in their power to help things to a successful issue. Praise is certainly due to them. Messrs. W. Curry and J. G. Hutchinson act as secretaries. My pen is unable to adequately describe their value. Energetic to a degree, prompt, and always most courteous, they controlled their duties with master hands. They were always on the go, and nothing seemed too much for them. The exertion they must have put forth previous to the show must have been terrific, while the work they got through on the show days was Herculean. Much of the success the function secured certainly was due to these two members. They proved themselves regular Trojans. We shall not readily forget the courtesies received from them. The judges were Messrs. J. C. Barnes (Norwich, Yorkshire, and Norwich Greens), T. Heath (Cinnamons, Crests, and Yorkshires), J. Patterson (Scotch, Borders, and Selling), C. Houlton (British, Mules, and Foreign). All are well known throughout the fancy as capable, conscientious, and experienced. Their awards appeared to give entire satisfaction, and little or no grumbling did we hear. Prize slips were fixed on the cages quickly by the following stewards: Messrs. A. Grey (Morpeth), Mr. Nelson (Liverpool), Hubbock, Bertram, Thompson, Slack, G. Taylor, J. Currah, junr., Dobson and Son, and J. Maddison. A more willing lot of workers would be difficult to find; real genuine "backachers, not thinkers." Mr. J. Currah (Gosforth) acted as show manager, and proved himself the right man in the right place.

The show was neatly decorated with ferns, etc., which naturally added greatly to its attractiveness. Amongst the visitors we brushed up against, Messrs. Stokoe (Leeds), Evans (Burnley), Pearse (Newburn), G. Reid, Esq., Belgian Consul (Newcastle), and the worthy President, A. P. Haggie, Esq., J.P., (Newcastle).

Plainheads, Greens and Crests.

Our Stall.

CAGE BIRDS Stall presented a very pretty picture in the show, and was very artistically arranged by the representative in attendance. The exquisite drawings were much admired by the many who visited the show.

OTLEY.

The Otley and District O.S. held their annual open show in the Recreation Hall, on October 19th. This was the 7th show held in Otley, and the committee are worthy of support, as they are loyal workers for the Fancy. The entries numbered close on 300. Mr. W. Dawson, the secretary, had the birds well-staged, and he was assisted by a good working committee: Messrs. J. Thomas, J. Robinson, C. Thornton, J. Crossley, J. Dawson, etc. The attendance was a large one, and the show should prove a success. The quality of birds was very good. Mr. Shackelton's champion yellow tick and his yellow hen was much admired; Mr. C. Thornton's buff tick is a bird of position and quality very seldom seen, but he would do with being a little longer. Messrs. Bearpark, Denton, Ogden Bros., Crossley, Walsh, Cook and Son, put down some typical Yorkshires, which will be heard of again during the season. Mr. W. Mundell, Bradford, judged the Canary section, and Mr. Cowgill, Bradford, the British, Foreign, and Selling. YORKS. TWITTERINGS.

Wellingborough.—Entries close October 27th, not 21st, as stated in schedule.

Mr. A. Wellings (Prescot) will judge Widnes, November 23, also Bootle, December 7th.

Fanciers should note extensive classification at Kirkcaldy; good prize money. Entries close November 2.—(ADVT.)

I now reside at 76, Market-street, Ashby-de-la-Zouch, having left Blackpool-street, Burton-on-Trent.—WILFRID R. BELLAMY.

At Bodwin's last members' show, Mr. Tickell judged, and the principal prizes went to Messrs. Hare, Pincombe, Wills, and Lobb Entries will be accepted by first post on Tuesday morning, writes Mr. R. S. Black, Hon. Sec. Darlington C. and B.B.F.A.

At Great Harwood Show last week, I won Sandiford's Cup for the hottest bird in show, writes Mr. J. E. Davies (Stockport).

Edinburgh O.S. Show report credits Mr. Foster with a third for Norwich Cock (yellow). I had that honour.—P. S. Ross (Edinburgh).

Class 28, Border Fancy, should read Yellow Cock or Hen, and Class 29, Buff Cock or Hen, writes Mr. S. J. Nicholas, Hon. Sec. of the Welsh National C.B.S.

The Western F.S. (Plymouth) are holding a show in the Plymouth Market, January 1st, 1908. Cage birds will be liberally treated.—W. J. SLOMAN, Secretary.

Entries for the Wolverhampton Show, writes Mr. F. Howes, secretary of the Wolverhampton and District C.B.S., are coming in very slow. I will accept till Sunday.

I have posted over 600 schedules away. Any fanciers that I have overlooked, if they will only write, I will gladly forward one.—V. W. MARSDEN, Blackburn Show.

Kindly thank all applicants for my Goldfinches advertised last week. They were too numerous to answer individually, for I had no fewer than 22 letters.—D. CARTWRIGHT (Pershore).

We omitted to state prize money in schedule for our show on November 9th, writes Mr. J. Wilson, Sec., Kirkcaldy Show. It is: first 10s., second 5s., third 2s. 6d.; entry money, 1s. 6d.

Mr. John W. Hartshorn, of Leicester, writes: Kindly intimate to your readers my change of address from 7, Scott-street, Knighton Fields, to 61, Central-road, Fosse-road North, Leicester.

Kindly thank the Grimsby officials, writes C. Nash (Chesham), for the prompt way in which they returned my exhibits from their show. I received them by 10 o'clock the next morning.

Will you kindly thank the applicants re phonograph and records, as advertised, writes Mr. D. Lanford, of Morecambe? I am unable to reply to all, having received over 20 letters.

Kindly thank all applicants for Green Crested Cock, as advertised in last week's issue, writes Mr. J. Grihbin, of Newcastle, Staffs, as I cannot reply to all. He was sold by telegraph P.O.

A meeting of the Cinnamon Canary Club will be held at Manchester Show on Saturday at 4.30 p.m. The rendezvous will be posted on the cage of the winning yellow cock.—R. J. PRETTY, Hon. Sec.

Mr. J. W. Marsden, Hon. Sec. Blackburn Show, writes: I have just had a unique entry made in the pet class, viz., the Talking Canary, also his trainer, the Parrot. These birds should form a great attraction.

A bronze medal has been added to the list of specials in the Watford Show since the printing of the schedule, writes Mr. Watts, secretary. The attention of exhibitors is drawn to the extensive classification.

All schedules for Sheffield Show will be posted to-day, Saturday, October 26. No exhibitor can afford to be without one. Anyone overlooked kindly write.—T. BISHOP, Sec., 69, Alexandra-road, Heeley, Sheffield.—(ADVT.)

This year, writes Mr. John Thomson, sec. Edinburgh Western O.S., we had a record entry, and the birds were of a good class. Councillor J. T. R. Wilson presented the prizes to the successful competitors at the close of the show.

In our report last week of the Great Harwood Show we inadvertently omitted the name of the owner of the birds which won the 1st, second, and 4th prizes in the foreign section, the owner being Mr. W. H. Pickles, of Morecambe.

Mr. R. Brownlie (Brockley) writes: As I gave the special for most points at Dulwich Show, and have won it, I intend giving it to Gateshead Show, when the international contest takes place with the E.W.B.F.C.C. and the B.F.C.C.

At the Dundee and Lochee O.S. Club Show, on November 2nd, Messrs. T. Allison, Aberdeen, and C. Berwick, St. Andrew's, will judge Scotch Fancies; Robert Whitton, Broughty Ferry, Norwich and all other varieties.—D. Low, Sec.

Through my ad. in CAGE BIRDS, I have sold right out of Seifert Rollers, writes Mr. Clarence Gibbs, Sandy, Beds., and have to refuse orders. Cannot possibly answer all enquiries, and hope applicants will understand. Truly C.B. is a grand medium for disposal of stock.

We are holding our annual members' show, writes Mr. Mead (Walthamstow), at the Public Baths, Walthamstow, Oct. 31st. There will be gift classes in the different sections, and some good specimens will be in same. It will be a good chance for local fanciers to buy some bargains.

Mr. J. Shufflebotham, Hon. Sec. of St. Helens F.A., writes: Please note change of my address to 121, Morley-street, St Helens; also that for our show on November 23rd we have been successful in obtaining the use of the Volunteer Hall, which is only five minutes' walk from the station.

We have only got 24 entries throughout all the classes up to time of writing. Come, fanciers, send on your entries and give us a good show.—W. HOWE, Hon. Sec. Wellinghro' Show

At Holyland Show on Friday last a number of school children were invited to inspect the show by the committee. The "nippers" enjoyed the sight immensely, and departed quite gleefully. This was also the case at Rochdale, where some hundreds of kiddies put in an appearance.

The London and Provincial O.S. will hold their Members' Autumn Show at the Crystal Palace on November 6th and 7th. The L. and P.O.S. Committee hope that all members will make as many entries as they possibly can. Surplus stock entered in the selling classes is sure to command a quick sale. (Advt.)

Kindly notify members of the Welsh C.B.C., writes Mr. A. Hitchings, hon. sec. of Swansea and District C.B.S., that our printers have omitted to put in schedule Hyde's special, viz., teapot value 25s., and Mr. Sandiford's cup, value £2 2s., both confined to members of the W.C.B.C. Will exhibitors please note.

The following specials have been received for the Markinch Show since schedules were printed, writes Mr. G. Mitchell, secretary Markinch P. and C.B.S.: 5s. for best game bantam bred and shown by a member, confined to Markinch Parish; 2s. 6d. by John Lindsay for best third Scotch Fancy Canary, confined to Postal District.

Torbay Ornithological Society, Paignton.—Entries for the above are very short, and this being our first open cage bird show, we should like to make a successful start. Now, fanciers, do huck up, and help us with a few entries, which will be taken if they reach me not later than Saturday, 26th inst.—E. C. PARNELL, 12, Princes-street, Paignton, S. Devon.—(ADVT.)

Many fanciers, writes Mr. Geo. Hill, secretary of the Greenwich and Deptford C.B.S., are under the impression that that Society is a newly-formed one; this is not so, we have only added the word Greenwich to the title. We have procured the Borough Hall for our show—one of the finest halls in London. With a full classification, five cups, and plenty of cash specials, we look for a good entry.

Bo'ness Show is on 9th November, and schedules are now issued. There is a splendid classification; also specialist judges, hosts of specials. Ample inducement for all sections of Cage Birds. Remember the 10 guinea challenge cup and medal is at stake. Those who have not received a schedule can have one by applying to the secretary, Findlay McGillivray, Bo'ness. Fanciers are requested to enter early, to give the secretary a chance to get through with the work. (ADVT.)

The dinner in connection with the Newcastle and District C.B. Society, on Friday last, was, so we hear, a decided success. An excellent spread was provided, and after the inner man had been satisfied, speech-making was the order of the evening. Messrs. Slack, Crawhall, Grey, Hutchinson, Clayton, and others spoke generally on the excellence of the show and the capital entry obtained. The judges, Messrs. Barnes, Houlton, Heath, and Patterson, received many compliments re their capabilities and work executed. Messrs. Barnes and Houlton replied on behalf of the judges.

The Kent County C.B.A. is going ahead very strongly, writes "Exhibitor." I believe this is their second year, and they are giving patronage to six societies and holding a show of their own, at which the classification and list of specials speak volumes for the enthusiasm of its members. To get together eight cups and bowls, besides other specials, is no light task. If the fanciers of Kent will do their utmost to support this fixture and help the association by becoming members, I feel sure in the near future we shall have a Cage Bird Society in Kent second to none. Several members of the committee, secretary included, can lay claim to having been in the fancy close on forty years.

A South London correspondent writes: "Mr. R. L. Crisp, the winner of the "News of the World" Challenge Shield for the best bird in the show at Dulwich, has been the recipient of numerous congratulatory letters, and with his usual modesty the genial President of the Southern Y.C.C. informed his friends that no one was more surprised than he at his success. The winning exhibit is a charming specimen of the bird of "grace and beauty," and was greatly admired. Mr. Crisp has bred some fine Yorkies in his time, but this one (to employ his own words) is 'the best bird I have ever bred.'"

Gloster and Dis. C.B.S. is hard up for entries, writes Mr. J. Houghton, secretary, and compelled to extend the closing date until Monday, 28th, first post. We hope fanciers will rally round and not let us suffer a loss. We are doing everything possible for exhibits and exhibitors. We have numerous specials not in schedule, but which will appear in catalogue. Seeing that our showroom is one of the finest in the West for a Cage Bird Show, being well lighted and free from draughts, we have always held a good name among exhibitors for the way their exhibits have been treated in the past.

"Cold Steel" writes:—What a fight took place at Newcastle Show when the awarding of the challenge bowl was to be decided! One judge stuck out for a Crest, another for a Scotch Fancy, and another for the Canary-Siskin. None of the trio would give way; each declaring his nomination to be the best young bird in the show. Strong arguments were used all round, and for a long while too. The fanciers and visitors crowded round the judging arena, each and all enjoying themselves to the full, whilst this special was argued about. At length the judges retired to a more secluded spot; ultimately the decision was arrived at.

Entries at Manchester.

Just as we go to press we learn that Manchester Show has closed with a very fine entry, though not quite up to last season's huge total. Over 1,350 birds will be on view, apportioned as follows in the various classes:—Lancs. 31, Lizards 37, Yorkshires 177, Greens 178, Norwich 282, Crests 12, Cinnamons 105, Borders 108, Stock 90, Hybrids 53, British and Foreign 150, Members 127, total 1350.

Sad Death of a Prize Bird.

At the recent Hayle Fanciers' Show, an otherwise excellent occasion was saddened somewhat by the fact that one of the prize Canaries, a Yorkshire Ticked Buff, died within two hours of the judging. The bird was the property of Mr. Pethick, and took the premier position in its section, having a ticked neck, and being of fine substance and style. Mr. Pethick has the sympathy of all Cornish fanciers.

In a Good Cause.

A novel feature at Dulwich and Peckham Show was provided by Mrs. Goodwin (better half of the worthy treasurer) and a bevy of fair ladies, who "staged" a pretty stall, filled with good things, to be sold for the benefit of the Lord Mayor's Crippled Children's Fund. We hope their efforts met with a liberal response. Many of the fanciers present (and not all bachelors either) seemed to enjoy the purchasing process. Even the writer was wheedled into buying a cigar—which left him considerably queer. Still, even the loss of a dinner can be viewed with equanimity, "in a good cause."

Welsh Cage Bird Club.

Mr. D. H. Tedstone, secretary of the Welsh C.B.C., writes that when drafting out particulars for the club's rule book and list of membership, he overlooked the fact that Mr. D. S. A. Longden, Swansea, tied with Mr. J. Pritchard for one of the positions as judges. That being the case, they were both elected. The following were elected members of the club:—Messrs. G. Gregory, W. J. Chard, Rees Rees (Mountain Ash), Maurice Evans (Neyland), E. R. Roberts (Penygroes). Those desirous of competing at the following shows should join the club at once:—Swansea Welsh National, Swansea C.B.S., Llanelly C.B.S., and Merthyr and Dowlais.

To Disinfect a Bird Room.

Mr. J. North writes in answer to B.J.J.:—Instructions on this point have frequently been given in CAGE BIRDS, and are also, I believe, fully explained in Dr. Clarke's book on the subject of "Bird Fever," which you would do well to purchase and peruse. Carbolic acid, which you mention as having been used in your cages and room lately, has proved to be quite an inadequate disinfectant in cases of bird fever, besides which it is a dangerous poison, and very disagreeable smelling. Better work can be done with other germicides, which have also the advantage of being non-poisonous. The bird-room, empty cages, and all appliances should be fumigated with burning sulphur, the windows and doors being sealed with paper. Everything washable must be treated regularly with solution of boric acid, one teaspoonful to a pint of boiling water. There is no cure for this or any other fever; all one can do is to disinfect and to feed any healthy looking birds that remain on milk sops and scalded seed.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

DOUBTS AND DIFFICULTIES SOLVED BY SPECIALISTS.

For Conditions see Issue dated October, 5th.

CANARIES.

NORWICH PLAINHEADS.

Answered by J. H. Payne.

What Class?

F. Clayden.—If your bird is clear all over, except a slight dark streak on the beak, then you must enter it in the clear class. I should recommend you to thoroughly look it over before entering, to make sure that it has not a slight tick somewhere. Examine the thighs well.

Pairing.

J.T.S.—For your rich-coloured yellow hen you will have to procure a buff cock, and as you say she is bred from a variegated hen, I should recommend you to purchase a clear bird. You will be sure to breed some marked birds from them in addition to clears, but if you can procure a clear buff cock bred from clears, then you may reasonably expect to get most of the young ones clear.

Prize Birds.

J.T.S.—As you wish to breed prize birds, you will have to give from one pound to thirty shillings for a stock bird suitable for your purpose, but if you can see a real good one and can afford it don't stick at a few shillings, if your hen is as good as you say.

Difficult Breathing.

Pantus.—Give your hen, in drinking water, fresh daily for a week, ten drops of solution of acetate of ammonia, and then on alternate days for another week. Then give instead for ten days, ten drops of tincture of quinine. 2. Rape seed soaked, occasionally given, is a very good thing for Canaries, but to feed them as some of your fanciers say they do, on nothing but Rape seed, in its raw state and soaked is quite a mistake; let the staple diet be plain Spanish Canary seed, with a little mixed seed twice or three times, as a change, and tit-bits.

Colour Feeding.

J. C. Begg.—The colour-food you have been using is just what we used in the days when classes were styled "Yellow Fed," and is not nearly strong enough for colouring purposes for successfully moulting Canaries for the show bench to-day. You must continue using the same feed for this season; if you use any thing stronger now, they will become patchy in colour, and this would quite spoil them for exhibition, as there are not many judges that will stand a bird showing two colours; next season use the best tasteless pepper you can procure, and the best Natal pepper, using two or three ounces of the latter to one pound of the former, when you will find they will come out a good colour. The sample of Natal you sent is not nearly rich or deep enough in colour. If present day fanciers could only see Natal pepper as we used to get it some thirty years ago, they would be surprised. I have paid as much as 6/- per pound for it.

Norwich as Breeders

Airship.—Yes, I certainly think Norwich as profitable a breed as you can take up, and I do not think you can do better than try them. I quite think that you can exhibit them without hand-washing, as you are living in a place where there are no factories. With a free use of the bath if you have the right stock you may reasonably look forward to successfully exhibiting them.

YORKSHIRES.

Answered by H. W. Battye.

Coughing and Sneezing.

New Reader.—When you see this, stop the medicine you are now using, and for two weeks give in place of it ten drops each of tincture of lobelia and paregoric.

Moping after Moult.

M.B.—Your bird requires a little extra good keep, in addition to its ordinary seed give a small teaspoonful of egg food every morning, well mixing with same six drops of Parrish's Chemical Food, sprinkling a pinch of mawseed over it. For one week give in its drinking water ten drops each of Syrup of Buckthorn and good Scotch whiskey. Try above treatment for one week, and then give half a teaspoonful of mixed seed, consisting of two parts good summer rape and one part mawseed, when I think your bird will come round all right.

Sore Throat.

W.T.N.—Your feeding is fairly correct, but should advise stopping the hemp and niger seeds, as these are very fattening, and not suitable for Yorkshires when you want to get them into show condition. I suppose your bird has caught a chill on being exposed to draught at some time, or from some other cause. This has affected its voice, but as you say he is otherwise in the pink of condition, you need not be at all uneasy about him. You might, with advantage, try giving in the drinking water, fresh every morning, twenty drops of the following mixture: equal parts ipecacuanaha wine, syrup of squills and glycerine. Try for two weeks.

Birds in the Bath Room.

Yorkshire Novice.—The bath-room is not a very suitable place in which to keep Canaries, and I am of opinion that the chances are it would injure your birds, either by causing them to drop into the soft moult, or to become wheezy. Variations of temperature and damp or moisture are not calculated to keep birds in high condition. (2) You may use the young Buff hen, but I would not use the Buff cocks. Pleased to hear you have done so well up to this, and that you find Cage Birds useful.

Wheezing after Moulting.

Novice 999.—Perhaps your birds have caught cold. You may have stopped giving soft food too suddenly. Try a little egg food with a little mawseed sprinkled over it, and give in its drinking water ten drops of whisky and six drops of paregoric. If not better in a week, write again, and give more particulars as to room, feeding, etc.

Bald Patch on Head.

Tow'd Cinnamon.—Get a little curd soap, and make a lather with warm water; wash the part well, clean off all the vasaline and dip your finger end in paraffin to daub lightly over the bare place. You may continue to use the colour food until the bird has finished growing the new feathers, which I think it will begin to do in a week or two. I don't see how you can get the bird ready to show by the time you name, as the new feathers will take six weeks to grow.

Ticked Birds Wanted.

James Beattie.—To breed birds such as you say you require, with the marked hen you describe, I should advise you to get a clear cock, and should prefer it to have been bred from clear or lightly-marked parents. The best seed diet for Yorkshire Canaries is, in my opinion, good, sound, clean, white Canary seed in the hoppers as a standing dish, and, three times a week, half a teaspoonful per bird of the following mixture:—Two part best summer rape to one part of the best maw seed. As a regular diet, I can strongly recommend the above, along with clean water daily, and a regular supply of clean, sharp, gritty sand.

ROLLERS.

Answered by "Schoolmaster."

Stock Seed Mixture.

W.E.—The best stock mixture for Rollers, in my opinion, is one simply of best Spanish Canary seed and German summer rape—two pints of the former to one of the latter. A feed of "song mixture" (any good maker's packet mixed seed will do) should be given once a week—say, on Sunday. A pinch of maw twice a week or so in a finger drawer should also be given; likewise a half-teaspoonful of Canary bread now and again. By all means give a little tender green food occasionally; a small piece of ripe apple or pear is also good.

Two Rape Seeds.

W.—The sample marked "II" has a very decided hot taste when chewed in the mouth, and so I fail to see how it can be all genuine "rubsen," or German summer rape. The other sample, "B," looks all right, and tastes pleasantly, and I should prefer it for my own use. Give the birds with the "swollen bellies" two drops of pure salad oil direct into the beak—from the blunt end of a knitting needle, or blunted tooth-pick. Repeat after a day's interval if it seems necessary to do so.

A Forbidden Affinity.

Snip.—The only time when the mating of birds closely related is permissible is when a breeder is striving to establish some particular point in his strain. As you have no such excuse, I certainly cannot recommend you to pair father to his daughters. You will do far better to obtain an unrelated Roller to mate with the young hens you bred last season.

Two More Samples.

T.I.—Colour is not always a sure guide to the quality and genuineness of summer rape—it varies considerably, according to the locality it comes from and the soil in which it is grown. Of the two samples you send, I should prefer the redder-coloured. The blackish sample has an acrid taste when chewed, which does not commend itself to me. I fancy, however, you could get better German rape than either of them.

Upset in the Moult.

J. E. Owens.—You must move the bird at once into a warmed room, hanging it well below the level of the gas. See no draught can get to it; partly cover the cage in the daytime, and wholly cover it at night. Your feeding is fairly correct (note reply to "W. E." this week). Give the soft food oftener and mix three or four spots (not more) of the chemical food with it. Get a chemist to mix you one ounce each of oxymel of squills, ipecacuanha wine and glycerine, and well stir a small teaspoonful of this into the bird's drinking water daily. To effect a cure it may take some little time.

Two in Trouble.

A New Reader.—I cannot quite fathom what is the matter with your hen Canary. All breeding hens look more or less bare underneath the tail. Thus, if your hen has not moulted, there is nothing to worry about. In any case, there can't be much amiss, or she would hardly be looking so well as you say she is doing. When she has moulted the bareness will not be apparent. The weakly cock bird you should feed on the lines advised "W. E." in this issue, but giving the egg-food (or a good patent Canary food) every day, and always with chemical food (Parrish's, obtainable from any chemist), mixed amongst it. If this feeding and treatment fail to pull him together, I don't know anything that will.

Has Lost Its Song.

A Novice.—You do not say how you are feeding the bird, but will find this information given this week. Keep it under the same conditions as recommended "J. E. Owens," and give it the mixture of oxymel of squills, etc. If this does not cure in a fortnight, write me again, giving full particulars. Give the egg-food (or Canary-bread) regularly, but do not put any chemical food with it. You must keep the bird warm and out of draughts, however.

MISCELLANEOUS CANARY QUERIES.

Answered by "Old Judge."

Breeding Songsters.

F.B.—(1) If you want to breed birds that will sing sweetly, and yet be robust, I should advise you to pair your half-bred Norwich-Yorkshire cock with a German Roller hen. (2) If you paired him to a Green hen, that is a Norwich or a Yorkshire-Green, you would doubtless get power of song, but there would not be much sweetness about it.

Cause of Death.

A. E. Bate.—With the fuller particulars that you give me, I quite think that the seed had something to do with the cause of death. Seed sold in small country shops is seldom good. You should send to one of the large firms who advertise in Cage Birds, and ask them to send you samples and prices of their best Canary seed, and Linnet mixture. Birds should be placed in an outdoor aviary in the summer months, so that they may become acclimatised before the cold of winter makes its appearance. I would advise you to secure a copy of House's Canary Manual from this office.

Kitchen Aviary.

W.H.W.—I am afraid the fact that the kitchen is used for washing, would prove disastrous to your birds. It means that one day in the week the kitchen would be at a high temperature, and the other six very low. It will not do to fix the aviary under such conditions. I understood from your previous letter that the kitchen was never used.

Hen for Breeding.

Novice.—Most certainly not is what I should say about the use of such a hen for breeding. You would be courting trouble from the start. If you wish for strong, healthy progeny, never use diseased stock birds. Not only will their young be weak and delicate, but you will have unceasing worry and trouble with the parent birds themselves.

BRITISH BIRDS, MULES AND HYBRIDS.

Very Old Friends.

Throstle.—I have given the stock mixtures for Thrushes, Blackbirds, and Larks, a terrible number of times. A good and simple stock food for Larks, which should be stored in tins, and which any good dealer or seller of birds' foods will mix is:—Game (or pheasant) meal, six parts; ground silkworm pupae, meat meal, good ants' eggs and dried flies, one part each, by measure. Get the game meal without grit. If you have any difficulty in doing so, finely crushed puppy cakes make an excellent substitute; or the "broken" biscuit obtainable from the grocer. If the latter be used, add an extra part of meat meal. Damp quantity required for daily use with a little water, or grated raw carrot, or cold boiled potato, or finely chopped lettuce, chickweed, watercress, or other green food in season. Vary them frequently and add a teaspoonful of preserved egg finke or half a hard-boiled egg twice or so a week. Give three or four mealworms daily, and any other insects you can lay hands on. Give seed in a separate vessel (not along with the soft food), about a teaspoonful of Canary seed daily, with, for a change, crushed hemp, groats, maw, or rape. The above mixture will also answer perfectly for Thrushes and Blackies, who, however, want no seed; mix it as advised above. Let them have mealworms and other live insects as freely as possible; also ripe fruit and berries frequently.

Sex and Age of Skylarks.

F. M.—Both cock and hen are alike in plumage, though in the spring and summer the males (in the fields) are generally of a richer brown than the females. Cock Skylarks are invariably bigger than hens, though, and holder looking, and have a greater expanse of wing. Thus, when the latter are folded, they reach further down the tail, and are bigger when expanded and compared. If you pick a very big bird, which looks boldly at you, and paces in a defiant manner about the cage, you can bet on it being a cock. The signs of age cannot well be explained on paper; they can only be read by experienced eyes—after, that is, the birds cast their nestling plumage. If you see a bird showing scales on the legs, and with very strong-looking claws and spurs, that will doubtless be an old bird. The state of the legs is invariably a fair guide to the age of Larks kept in captivity.

Hybrids Wanted.

Lover of Small Birds.—Your aviary 4 ft long, 4 ft. high, 20 inches wide is really only large enough for one couple of would-be Hybridisers—certainly it is much too small for six birds. Did it not occur to you, too, that if you put a cock and a hen Linnet therein, they would simply "pal together" and ignore the cock Goldie and hen Bullie you would like them to pair up with. You seem to have got the idea so many fallaciously entertain, that it is only necessary to throw a mixture of male and female and British birds together, higgledy piggledy, as it were, to breed some hybrids. I can assure you that it won't work in practice—the odd instances of success recorded are only the exceptions that prove this rule. You will do far better to choose one male bird of the species you like best, and give him and a hen Bullie the run of your place—at most I should try two hen Bullies, as there is a chance of such a trio agreeing.

Albino Dove.

F.V.—I note your further remarks concerning this said-to-be Albino Ring Dove. There is no reason at all why it should not turn out to be exactly what it purports. So far as I know, pure white pink-eyed Ring Doves are very uncommon, and you appear to have laid hands on a bargain.

Hen Siskin Breeding.

W.J.C.H.—You certainly were decidedly fortunate in getting a hen Siskin which sat, and reared her own young, "as good as any hen Canary could." Such instances are not unknown, however, for I have several friends with whom hen Siskins have turned out exemplary mothers. These are the exceptions, however, and prove the rule contrariwise, for most hen Siskins would probably decline to do any such thing, or, at least, so thoroughly and well. It is curious, too, that your mules should be better birds than those obtained by the usual mating, viz., cock Siskin to hen Canary. I have always found the reverse the case, and so have many others I know. By what standard do you judge them, however? Are they fit to show and win? It would be interesting to know in what respects you think the Canary-Siskins better than Siskin-Canaries.

Keeping Goldfinches.

H.W.—Goldics are quarrelsome chaps as a rule (some more so than others), and if several are kept together a good sized flight is desirable. If your 4 ft. long place is of a good width (say not less than 2 feet), your four Goldies should winter nicely in it, but would require separating before the breeding season. You could run their future mates (the hen Canaries) along with them, if the flight be sufficiently large. I must say, however, that if it is an all-wire flight (of the waggon-shaped, or Crystal Palace aviary type), I don't advise you to turn the Finches in it at all—Goldies seldom do well in such places. A large flight wired at front only is the best.

Siskin Queer.

Anxious.—The very fat Siskin you bought may have serious liver trouble, or some internal upset that medicine cannot put right. I certainly think you ought to turn him out of doors in the large aviary—specially seeing he has been used to outdoor existence. Before doing so, I should keep him on the plain diet for three days, and treat him to a few doses of sulphate of soda. For one day dissolve in two tablespoonfuls of drinking water as much as will lie on a shilling. Then give plain water for half-a-day; for the rest of the three days giving the sulphate at half the above strength. Then turn him into the flight, and in a week the bird may be lively and well again.

Black in the Face.

V.S.H.—There is no legitimate method of removing black feathers from the blaze of a Goldfinch (a black-faced bird is a long way from being a show-bird, by-the-bye). Of course, a few might be pulled out. But that is "faking," and if the judge detects the holes, you may collide against trouble—or, at any rate, the bird would be pegged back because of the holes in its face. Further, the feathers will soon grow again. I can tell you this: The majority of Goldies that have not a quite clear ground colour to the blaze (i.e., with underlying black feathers, or one or two peeping through) look to fail very much more in this respect just at the conclusion of the moult than at any other time. The paleness of the blaze is responsible for this. As the bird comes up in blaze colour, the black seems to disappear—it is lost in the intense rich red. So your own bird may not displease you so much in another week or two's time.

Bullfinch's Damaged Wing.

Very Anxious.—It really is impossible to grasp from written particulars exactly what is the matter with your Bullfinch's wing. If the bird simply fighted itself during the removal process, then the damage is nothing to be anxious over, as the knocked out flight feathers will be almost certain to be properly reproduced in a few weeks' time. Whether the wing was broken or not, only personal examination could help me to say. If so, then it is highly probable the set of the wing will be permanently affected. Could you not show him to some bird-keeper or bird-dealer, in your town, and see what he says? Your feeding seems fairly correct. For the other trouble, try half-a-teaspoonful of dandelion juice (taraxacum), from the chemist, in two tablespoonfuls of drinking water. Give for two days running; then two more doses on alternate days. This should bring the excreta to a normal state. Add a little teazle to the stock-seed mixture.

Selecting Goldfinch Mule.

Redrob.—The two chief points to look for are size and colour—without them no Goldie Mule is of much use for show purposes. The bird should have a good, broad, well-rounded chest and a bold, wide proportionate head. If a dark mule, it should have no light feathers whatever upon it (all, of course, run more or less light in colour about the ventral region). If you can get a bird of this description which is rich and bright in colour, with an expansive rosy-red "face," and nicely marked wings, then you may rest assured you are not far off the show mark. Hens are quite dingy coloured compared with decent cock birds, having very little blaze, and that pale and dull. The only exceptions are hen Mules bred from yellow hen Canaries, which are at odd times good enough in colour to "take in" even the experienced.

Concerning Two Birds.

One in a Fog.—Don't speak of fogs—it reminds me painfully of November in London. I don't see what else you can possibly do for the Greenfinch—if he won't moult, he won't moult, and there's an end on't. You can only wait patiently; the sheeting-down process ought to soon persuade him. The bare spot on the head of the Goldfinch you should lightly smear once daily for 10 or twelve days with just a touch of paraffin. Use the finger tip, and don't over-do the oil. I trust you let him bathe freely.

Linnet Bad in Feather.

Rehcluf.—You cannot do better than continue the paraffin (see reply to "One in a Fog" this week). Instead of the chemical food, try 10 drops of fresh lemon-juice daily in the drinking water (two tablespoonfuls). You want to make quite sure over the red-mite.

FOREIGN BIRDS.

Answered by Wesley T. Page, F.Z.S., M.B.N.H.S.

Green Amazon in Rough Plumage.

M. Scott.—The first moult with these birds in this country is often a very protracted one. Continue your present diet, also the chemical food. Let it have a liberal supply of ripe fruit and greenfood, with cuttlefish continuously in its cage, and if you notice the bird pulling its feathers, spray the parts affected with quassia solution. If the bird is at all weak or thin, let it have a little boiled maize every other day. Note: the boiled maize only keeps fresh one day, and the food vessel must be kept strictly clean. Keep the bird's bowels open (not loose), with Dinneford's Magnesia. See reply to "Romo" in this issue.

Weavers for Small Aviary.

A.E.G.—I cannot advise you to keep Weavers with Budgerigars in an aviary 5 by 3½ by 7 feet high, as sooner or later the former, though well able to look after themselves, will sustain broken legs or be otherwise maimed. Neither can I recommend you to keep the Indigo Bird, Goldfinch, and Paradise Whydah with them. However, the birds named will be as safe as any with them, and possibly (for there is a great deal of individualism even in Budgerigars), your mishaps may be few and far between. See that there are several food hoppers so that all do not have to crowd round one or two, and let the perching accommodation be ample. You have space for about 18 birds the size of Budgerigars. As regards Weavers, the Madagascar, Orange, Napoleon, Grenadier, Half-masked, or Black-headed would give you a pleasing variety.

Grey Parrot with Rough Plumage.

Romo.—Diet: Canary, oats, dari, wheat, hemp, and sunflower seeds. Let this be your staple food; give also for variety ripe fruit, plain biscuits, nuts, green-food, grit, cuttlefish, and water ad lib. Give it a dose of Dinneford's Magnesia, one teaspoonful in its drinking water for one day, repeating same in a week's time. When not giving the magnesia, make the drinking water the colour of pale port with Parrish's Chemical Food, and continue this for some time, say, a month at least. It is as well to let the bird have a drink of clear water occasionally, say, twice a week. Spray the affected parts of the bird with quassia solution every other day, and anoint any raw places with clean vaseline or spermaceti ointment, not making the bird at all greasy. Be careful to keep the bird out of draught till dry.

Grey Parrot Moulting.

W. Hogg.—The particulars to hand are very meagre. It appears to me that the bird is plucking itself; continue the quassia solution, and give 3 or 4 doses of Dinneford's Magnesia (one teaspoonful in about an ounce of water, withholding all other liquids for the day), with 4 days' interval between each. On other days make its drinking water the colour of pale port with Parrish's Chemical Food, and continue same for some time. Let it have as much ripe fruit as it will eat, also cuttlefish, and give it a damped crust of household bread daily, which has been dusted with flowers of sulphur. Let your diet, other than above, be in conformity with that regularly advised in this column. If the bird is really a confirmed feather puller, I question if it will ever permit its plumage to come into decent condition. There is nothing to do but to persevere in the hope that the distastefulness of the quassia may check it.

Grey Parrot with Severe Cold.

J. H. Fisher.—Continue the application of the diluted glyco-thymoline, but do not spray its head. Spray its nostrils. Get from your chemist equal parts of glycerine, oxymel of squills, and ipecacuanha wine. Put one teaspoonful of this mixture in two tablespoonfuls of water, and give this to the bird in lieu of its drinking water. Keep the bird warm, but not in too dry a heat, and strictly out of all draught. Give daily 10 or 12 drops of Parrish's Chemical Food on a piece of bread, plain biscuit, or other wholesome absorbent food, which the bird will eat. I take it you are feeding the bird as advised regularly in this column. Do not give sops, slops, table scraps, or any kind of animal food. Examine the bird's mouth, and if there should be any small ulcerations, repeat query at once.

Parrot not Talking, &c.

New Reader, Surrey.—As regards the eye trouble, you cannot do better than bathe with rose-water and sulphate of zinc solution till relief is given. Continue to syringe its nostrils with diluted glyco-thymoline till the discharge ceases. The bird will ultimately take to the present seed mixture, which is very wholesome and all that can be desired. Crush up some cuttlefish to about the size of grains of wheat, and mix this with its seed mixture. Give Parrish's Chemical Food, as already directed, or 10 to 12 drops on a piece of plain biscuit, crust of household bread, or on its boiled maize. Note: the latter only keeps fresh one day, and the food vessel must be kept strictly clean. As regards talking, whether it has previously talked or not, if you keep it where it will hear plenty of conversation, and also teach it by constant repetition, as soon as it is in good health it will not be long before it begins to respond. Could not reply by post, as your query bore no address.

Green Parrot's Soiled Front.

G. Tarratt.—As you have succeeded in getting off the paint, it is only a matter now of properly cleansing its plumage. Get some warm water, and Sunlight Soap. Well sponge him with this. Get a good lather on the greasy parts, and then well sponge out with clean warm water. One or two such applications should cleanse the plumage. When the stickiness has disappeared, it is very probable the bird will preen its plumage as usual. At the same time, you must exercise care, and keep the bird out of draught till it is thoroughly dry. My Hawk-headed Parrot regularly has his wash, whatever the weather. He is put right into the water, but all the surplus wet is wiped off him with a towel, and in cool weather he is held on the finger about a yard away from the fire till dry. It is quite probable after the way it has already had to be treated, that its plumage will not have the glossy sheen it had before the occurrence.

What Bird?

"Corbatita."—I am of the opinion that your bird is either the Collared Finch (S. cucullata) Black-headed Finch (S. melanoccphala), or Lineated Finch (S. lineata). As you have my paper on the Spermopila in "Bird Notes," carefully read the descriptions of the following, and compare with your bird, if you cannot fit it in, repeat query next week, noting points of difference with the respective species. In the meanwhile I will see if I can give you a more definite reply next week—compare with S. poliontо, torquela, albitorquis, moreteti, and parva, you will see from such comparison how difficult it is to definitely name a bird from a written description, unless such he very minute. Diet: Canary, millet, rice in the husk; and, if it will take it, one or two mealworms per day, my Spermophilæ pick over the soft foodsaucer, a little green food, cuttlefish, and water for drinking and bathing. See paragraph on diet in my article in "B.N." I should certainly keep this bird caged up in the kitchen till after next March, it will be far better to do so than to take risks with a rarish species. Next spring, say about April, it should be sufficiently established (or hardened off) to put in the aviary.

Parrakeets for Aviaries.

Parson.—I am assuming that each aviary has a shelter. In the larger one you could keep the pair of Cockatiels and five pairs of Budgerigars and Lovebirds, that is for breeding purposes, three times the number merely for a mixed series flying loose together. In the smaller aviary limit the quantity to two-thirds of the above numbers. But you would find the following of much more interest and beauty. Small aviary: One pair Cockatiels, two pairs Yellow Budgerigars, and one pair Madagascar Lovebirds. Large aviary: One pair Rosella Parrakeets, one pair Blossom-headed Parrakeets, and two or three pairs of Green Budgerigars. If you preferred the birds to range at will through the two aviaries, you could do so with safety; but I should advise them kept separately. Procure fully adult birds, and they should soon settle down to breeding. Don't get your Budgerigars all from one source.

What Parrakeet?

Lister Wright.—I am of the opinion your bird is the Yellow-collared Parrakeet, but will give a definite reply in our next issue. If so, it can hardly be called a talking species, at the same time, I believe nearly all, if not all, species of Parrakeets are capable of articulation, if sufficient pains be taken with them.

GENERAL.

Answered by THE EDITOR.

Stamp for Reply (Third Annoyed).—We regret space is too valuable for us to publish further letters on this topic. The point, we think, has been sufficiently dwelt on.

Scottish B.B. and M.C. (R. Farmer).—No time this week to go into the matter of your letter. Will see what we can do with it later.

Omitted (J. E. Davies).—We regret mention of your win should have been omitted. Glad to know you stick to "C.B.," and hope we shall have many more wins to chronicle for you.

Champion of Leeds (Fancier).—We cannot take notice of anonymous letters.

Swallows Feeding Young (P.G.F.).—Thanks for note. May use it next week.

A telegram from Battersea Show secretary, Mr. Easterling, informs us they have closed with over 600 entries.

More Appeals.

Entries for Cheltenham Show are very short, and the secretary appeals for fanciers' assistance in making the fixture a success.

Our date for closing of entries has been extended to Sunday morning's post, the 27th inst., writes Mr. Geo. Sanderson, Sec. of Kent County C.B.A.

Judges at the L.C.B.A. Show.

Mr. J. Tyson writes: The following gentlemen have finally been appointed to judge at the forthcoming show, namely, Mr. T. J. King, Crests and Crestbreds; Mr. J. Robson, Norwich, Cinnamons, Lancashires, Lizards, and Border Fancies; Mr. R. Halliday, Yorkshires; Mr C. Houlton, Hybrids and British Hardbills; Mr. P. F. M. Galloway, British Insectivorous; and Mr. W. T. Page, Foreign Birds, with power to add another should entries warrant it.

CLUB REPORTS.

SCOTTISH BRITISH BIRD AND MULE CLUB.

Special meeting held in the City of Glasgow. Messrs. J. F. Dewar, J. Winter, R. and A. Watson, J. Strachan, G. Reid, M. Craig, W. Cullen, T. Erskine, L. J. Arright, J. Brown, being present. Mr. A. C. Dundie presided. It was agreed that no patronage be given this season. The unsuccessful application of Bathgate was duly considered, and it was agreed that seven silver medals be granted.—R. FARMER, Secretary.

WIBSEY AND DISTRICT C.B.S.

A very successful judging competition was held October 12th. Ten birds were staged, and Mr. Dan Sutcliffe judged. Fourteen members tried their hand as judges of the "straight un," and a very close competition was won by Mr. S. Wilkinson, Mr. H. Bairstow being second, Messrs. E. Wright and D. Thornton joining at 3rd and 4th prizes, and Mr. S. Bateman winning the 5th. There were only nine points between the first and the other 13 members.—E. W. JOHNSON, Hon. Sec.

LANCS. AND LIZARD F. ASSOC.

SIR,—We are needing more members to do justice to our two varieties at the All England shows. The contributions are not heavy. Fanciers kindly rally round us, and let us make the club show at Nottingham one of the best on record. We have engaged one of the best judges of these varieties, Mr. Barker Clegg (Manchester). I will be pleased to furnish any fanciers with all particulars. The following is a list of the three highest for cup competition, and won at Rochdale:—Lancashires: Mr. J. Oldham, 20 points; Mr. J. Vickers, 19 points; Mr. J. Garner, 12 points. Lizards: Mr. J. Dewsnap, 22 points; Mr. J. Hampshire, 20 points; Mr. C. E. Fisher, 14 points.—H. OLIVER, Secretary.

SALE OPEN O.S.

Meeting on October 14th, when Messrs. Reginald Unwin, Aaron Taylor, and Ernest Schofield, of Altrincham, and Mr. S. Beaty, of Alderley Edge, were elected members of the Society. At our show to be held on November 9th all amateurs and open exhibitors must show in amateur classes, and all novices in the novice classes, with the exception of British and Foreign selling and gift classes, where all members show together. Mr. F. Wardleworth gave an electro-plated nickel silver tankard for competition at this show, for which the Society voted him their thanks. Rule cards will be ready on October 28th, when members can have same upon the payment of 2d. Our membership is now 51.—GEO. F. HARDCASTLE, Secretary.

BINGLEY AND DISTRICT O.S.

The members had the pleasure of hearing a very good lecture on October 8th, given by Mr. W. A. Cowgill, of Bradford. The subject was, "Preparing Birds for Exhibition." It was dealt with in a masterly manner, and illustrated by the relation of experiences which had presented themselves to the speaker during the many years he had been connected with the Fancy. His subject opened out with the birds coming nicely through the moult, training and steadying processes, and eventually the washing of the birds. Upon the whole, it proved a most instructive and edifying lecture. A great number of questions were asked at the close of the lecture, which showed the great interest the audience had taken in the matter which had been so ably demonstrated. The questions were answered in a practical manner, and to the general satisfaction of all present. A hearty vote of thanks, proposed by the chairman, Mr. E. Barker, seconded by Mr. Dean, and carried unanimously, brought one of the most enjoyable of meetings to a close.—A LIVESEY, Hon. Sec.

YORKSHIRE C.C. OF IRELAND.

Committee meeting held at the Douglas Hotel, Dublin, Mr. Devitt (chairman) in the chair, also present eight members. The committee had under their consideration several letters which passed between the secretary of the club and the secretary of the Norwich C.C. of Ireland, re patronage, and the secretary was instructed to apply for patronage of N.C.C. of Ireland, and to inform them that the committee had agreed to give the classification as asked for Norwichs at the Y.C.C. show on 28th and 29th November. Patronage was granted to the Dublin P.C.B. and P.A. for show on 14th and 15th November. Judge, Mr. Cowgill, and also to the Dundalk C.B. and P.A. show, to be held on 15th and 16th January. Judge not yet selected, but Mr. Rowe undertook to see a proper judge would be elected. It was agreed that a Hen Bullfinch Class be added to schedule for show, and further, to get prize cards same as last year. Application for patronage from Sligo was allowed to stand over. A vote of condolence was given Mr. Bray, of Dalkey, who has lost his son while bathing.—W. C. SHOLEDICE, Hon. Sec.

"CAGE BIRDS" LATEST HANDBOOK.

YORKSHIRE CANARIES.

HOW TO BREED, MANAGE AND EXHIBIT.

Price 1/- nett. Post Free 1/1½.

This book is absolutely the very best that has been put on the market. It deals fully with the Yorkshire and its sub-varieties, and should, without doubt be in the hands of every breeder of the bird of Grace and Beauty. It contains instruction upon Pairing, Breeding, Moulting, Exhibiting and how to treat this popular variety in both health and disease.

Obtain your copy AT ONCE, as orders are coming in fast and the information given is invaluable during the Show season.

"CAGE BIRDS," 154, Fleet St., London, E.C.

C.B.U. DELEGATES DISTRICT 12.

A meeting of the delegates of the above district was held in the Cloak Room of the Dulwich open show on October 17th. There were present, Chairman, Mr. W. H. Vale, and Messrs. W. Hodson, W. Pawley, W. H. Column, G. Hill, and secretary, F. J. Martin. Letters of apology were read from Messrs. Geo. Crabb, J. Abrahams, and C. Pearce. Representatives were appointed to represent the Cage Bird Union at the following shows: Battersea, Portsmouth, Greenwich, N. Berks, Chatham, Hastings, Guildford, Plumstead, Lewes, Dover, Bromley and Wimbledon, etc. The Union representative at Dulwich was Mr. Geo. Hill.

BATTERSEA C.B.A.

Monthly meeting at headquarters, October 2nd, when there was a large gathering of members and friends to witness a washing exhibition by their able and energetic secretary, Mr. F. Easterling. Among the visitors were Messrs. Webb and Fortunato, of Southend. After Mr. Easterling had given his instructive and interesting exhibition, a washing competition took place, in which twelve took part. Mr. Webb was elected judge, and fulfilled his duties with every satisfaction. The prize winners were: 1st, Mr. Taw; 2nd, Mr. Goodridge; 3rd, Mr. Brooks. After arranging a judging competition for the next meeting, November 6th, at which Mr. H. Davis has kindly consented to place the cards, a very enjoyable evening was brought to a close.—F. C. ALLEN.

WEST OF SCOTLAND.

Usual monthly meeting, held October 3rd, in Nelson's Hotel, Glasgow, Mr. Jas. Lappin occupied the chair. The minutes of last meeting were approved, also a number of letters from donors of special prizes for the annual show. Mr. A. Muir gave an exhibition of washing and staging. He is an expert at the job, and before he started gave a thorough explanation of how to handle a bird, and the different positions. He then set to, and washed a number of birds, and while they were drying, an all-round discussion took place on the different points, and of the best soap to use. Various were the brands recommended, and finally a member closed the discussion by saying he had used black soap, and the bird had won a first prize in a strong class! With votes of thanks to Mr. Muir and the chairman, the meeting closed.—GEO. SMART, Sec.

EAST BOWLING AND DIS. B.F.A.

The East Bowling and District B.F.A. held a rabbit pie supper social on October 5th at their club room, Barley Mow. Mr. G. Thompson presided. The eating repast was of the best, and a social evening was spent, the artists giving some very good turns. Miss Whitaker opened, and the following contributed:—Messrs. Denning, Clark, Smith, Bottomley, G. Thompson, W. Movement, and Mrs. W. Bleazard. A vote of thanks to the host and hostess, proposed by Mr. T. E. Higgins and seconded by Mr. Thompson, was carried, and Mr. Smythe responded. Mr. Smythe then proposed, and Mr. Sewden seconded, a vote of thanks to the chairman and secretary for their hard work in arranging the whole affair. Messrs. Thompson and Mr. Hudson having responded, the proceedings terminated. —J. E. HUDSON, Sec. (Matter for publication must be written on one side of paper only.—EDITOR.)

BRADFORD EAST O.S.

Mr. H. J. Chittenden opened the winter syllabus of lecturers, etc., at the Bradford (East) O.S.'s headquarters, Park Chapel Schools, on October 1st, with a capital address, "Hybrid Breeding and British Birds I have kept." Mr. G. R. Rushworth was in the chair, and in calling upon Mr. Chittenden said that he felt sure we should have a treat—a remark which proved to aptly fit the lecture. The room was well filled with members and visitors, amongst the latter being Mr. S. Dean (secretary of Great Horton) and Mr. Inman (a British Bird fancier). Mr. Chittenden had a splendid reception on rising, and after begging indulgence, as this was his first effort at giving a lecture, told us that as a boy he had been brought up amongst wild birds, and used to be able to catch his own British birds with a very short distance of where he lived. He related to us how he started in the fancy—and how we should start if we wanted to get a good Hybrid or Muling strain together. He gave us a good description of the Bullfinch, Goldfinch, Chaffinch, Bramblefinch, Linnet, Greenfinch, and one or two other birds, and the various points that it was necessary to know in order to tell a good show finch when we saw one. He also told us how he gained that most essential point in an exhibition bird, namely, steadiness; this he does by gaining the complete confidence of his birds by giving them tit-bits and various kinds of insect food nearly every time he goes into the room. This the bird soon learns to know, and he is not long before he gets so tame that he will take the food out of the hand. Mr. Chittenden showed several illustrations of different Finches and Mules, and these were very instructive. He said that in going in for a Muling strain he wanted the most ideal Finch he could get hold of, as one stood a better chance of breeding good ones off these when paired to a large Norwich hen that had been bred clear for a year or two, than we did off the so-called sib-bred hens. The lecturer said that he hadn't much faith in these latter, adding the remark that perhaps many would not agree with him, but that was the conclusion he had come to after years of experience. He also said that he was not particular about the Finch being a house-moulted specimen, as he had found that there was more likelihood of success with one caught, as they were more vigorous as a rule than one that had been kept in a house. This was another point on which he thought some would differ. The best way for each was to follow that principle in his method of breeding that had given the best results and the most satisfaction. Mr. Chittenden said the chief aim of Mule breeders was to breed a clear Mule, and that he had only seen about two proper clear Mules. Knowing the history of these, he related to us how they were bought by their owners. One item brought forth a round of applause as he related how this bird had been bought from a woman who had hand-fed it herself from being eight days' old, and didn't know the value of her pet. She was, however, rewarded with selling the bird for a nice round sum of money. The lecturer then told us what kind of seeds he gathered for his birds, and how and when he gathered them. This also proved very interesting, and stamped Mr. Chittenden down as a man who has spent his time freely and to much benefit in the study of nature. In bringing his lecture to a close, Mr. Chittenden said he should be only too pleased to answer questions, and Mr. C. Cowgill availed himself of the opportunity to ask him some information with regard to a Bramblefinch which he had in his possession. He also told his experience in trying to do a bit of Mule breeding this year, and it caused a lot of amusement to those present. Mr. H. Hill finally proposed a vote of thanks to Mr. Chittenden, which Mr. C. Cowgill seconded, and Mr. S. Dean, in a few well-chosen remarks, supported. Mr. Chittenden achieved a great success in his lecture.—H. HILL, Secretary.

OUR LITTLE FLUTTER.

"Cage Birds" once again gives away a Coloured Plate for a Penny.

Notwithstanding the substantial increase in the number of pages in CAGE BIRDS this week, we are compelled to hold over many interesting reports and items of news. But the issue, with its thorough and lengthy reports of the great shows at Glasgow, Newcastle, Rochdale, Plymouth, and Dulwich, is a highly representative one, and more than good value for the penny in itself. To celebrate the start of the season, and follow our usual practice, we are "throwing in" a handsome coloured plate by an artist new to our readers—Miss Medland. Her style is entirely distinct, and the plate offers a pleasing variant from anything of the sort we have given in C.B. before. Mr. Frank Finn's notes on the subject of the plate will be read with interest. Fanciers who are curious as to the financial aspect of these gifts of ours may like to know that the actual cost to us of such a plate from start to finish is well over £100 sterling. Only by the increased goodwill of our readers can we be recompensed for such an outlay, and we sincerely trust that our efforts to please will be rewarded by the personal recommendations of readers to all likely subscribers.

LOWESTOFT & DISTRICT C.B.S.

Mr. Jacob Mackley (Norwich), at their last meeting, gave the members of Lowestoft and District C.B.S. washing exhibition, which was much appreciated. Two of the members tried their luck with the same tools.—GEO. FRANCIS, hon. sec.

NATIONAL BRITISH B. AND M.C.

Committee meeting, held at Headquarters, Sept. 26th. Present, Messrs. Trower (in the chair), Cooper, Maxwell, Dobson, Silver, Lott, Plumbridge and Carr. Proposed by Mr. Cooper, seconded by Mr. Lott, and carried:—"That in recognition of the success which has attended Miss Reeves' untiring efforts to produce rare hybrids, the committee award her with the Club's Gold Medal for rearing successfully Chaffinch-Bramblefinch, and Bramblefinch-Chaffinch." Proposed by Mr. Cooper, seconded by Mr. Lott, that three silver medals be granted to the Scottish National Show in the classes Messrs. McQuiston and Langlands are judging. Club's patronage and two silver medals were granted to Hull Show. It was agreed that a gold, silver and bronze medal be granted in each section, viz., Hybrid, Hardbill and Insectivorous, at the Club Show to be held in conjunction with the L.C.B.A. Mr. Trower presented a gold medal for most points gained by a member who has not previously won a medal, throughout the three sections at the Club Show.—PLUMBRIDGE and CARR, hon. secs.

CLAPHAM AND DIS. OPEN C.B.A.

Monday evening last, members and friends of above enjoyed a very pleasant evening at headquarters, "The Alexandra." The energetic secretary, Mr. Stephen Baker, a short time since conceived the idea of holding a smoking concert, with the object of raising a fund for the purchase of a challenge cup, for competition at the club's annual show. As a result of his energies a good programme was arranged. Among those present we noticed Messrs. W. H. Vale (in the chair), Maxwell, Sandy, Willis, Browne, Clarke, Hathaway, Askew, Sexton, Berkshire, Hunniset, and numerous others, and if the spacious room was not filled to overflowing, the company were not lacking in enthusiasm. The artistes included Messrs. Frank Cary, Will Allen, F. Turney, C. Cooper, and others, who kept the harmony going with some well selected songs, whilst Mr. J. Sayhurn Wilson's recitation, the "Ballard of Eliza Davis," was loudly applauded. The chairman, in a few words, gave those present a short outline of the objects of the association, and said that although only a very short time had elapsed since the club was formed, they now had a membership of 68, and their list of patrons included Mr. Percy Thornton, M.P., and many other influential local people. The concert was brought to a close shortly before midnight by the singing of the National Anthem.—S. A. SANDY.

LONDON FANCIERS DISCUSS TWO KNOTTY POINTS.

The Novice Definition and Proposed Federation.

A meeting of delegates of the London Societies was held on October 19th at the Napier Tavern, Holborn, to further consider the definition of the words: "Novice," "Amateur," and "Champion," also to consider the advisability or otherwise of forming a Federation of the London Societies. The following Societies were represented: City and Suburban, L.C.B.A., Battersea, Clapham, London and Counties, Wimbledon, North London, Greenwich, West London, and Queen's Park and District. The Secretary pro tem. (who also had charge of the arrangements for the meeting) was Mr. J. W. Rennie, who stated that each London Society had been written to, asking that its definitions of "Novice," "Amateur," etc., might be sent to him, and the majority had replied.

Answering the question as to whether or not, in the event of a decision being arrived at by that meeting, it would be binding on all Societies, Mr. Crisp (City and Suburban) said he thought that if they could come to a decision upon one particular definition, that definition should be sent round to the various Societies for their consideration and amendment if necessary.—Mr. J. Carson (Wimbledon) said he thought there would be no doubt about that meeting's decision being accepted, and Mr. Johnson (Greenwich C.B.S.) thought it probable that the several societies which had not as yet replied to the Secretary's communication would also willingly fall into line.

Mr. Crisp then moved: "That (a) a Novice is one who has not won a first prize at three separate shows in novice separate classes; (b) an Amateur is one who has won a first prize at three separate shows in novice members' classes, and ceases to be such when he has won a first prize at three separate shows in amateur members' classes; (c) a Champion is one who has won a first prize at three separate shows in amateur members' classes, or three first prizes in open novice classes, or one first prize in open competition; (d) Limit classes of over £3 shall be considered open classes."—The resolution was seconded by Mr. Honysett (Battersea) and carried unanimously.

Mr. Johnson (Greenwich) then moved: "That there should not be less than three competitors in each class for wins to count."—This was seconded by Mr. Marley (North London), and carried.

Mr. Adamthwait (London and Counties) then moved: "That a Novice shall not remain in his section for a longer period than three years, whether he has won the requisite number of prizes or not." He said that he had been instructed to see that a novice should have a time limit, his Society considering that to be a very necessary provision, as at present a man could be a novice all his life.—Mr. Pretty (London and Counties) seconded the proposal, and stated that while a man remained a novice for years, the beginner, for whom the novice classes really catered, stood no chance whatever.—Mr. Yeoman (Clapham) opposed the suggestion on the ground that it dealt a great blow to the amateur section.—Mr. Dewhurst (West London) said that inasmuch as the novice was trying to win prizes in support of his Society, he ought not to be time-limited.—Mr. Rogers (Queen's Park) was of the same opinion. On being put to the vote, Mr. Adamthwait's resolution received only two votes, the rest of the meeting voting against.—On the motion of Mr. Adamthwait, seconded by Mr. Dewhurst, it was decided to send copies of the various resolutions to all the London Societies.

On the question of the proposed Federation of London Societies, it was decided, by 14 to 3, to establish a Federation.—Mr. Burn (City and Suburban), who proposed the resolution, said he did so believing the Federation to be a very necessary and helpful thing.—Mr. Honysett seconded.—Mr. Yeoman thought there were many Societies which were too poor to be able to contribute their quota to the Federation, otherwise he was in favour of the proposal.—The resolution was supported by Mr. Crisp, who said that in doing so he had no desire to cut the ground from under the feet of the C.B.U.—Mr. Rogers was of the opinion that they should have an organisation to which they might refer difficult questions. The proposal, as has been stated, was carried, and a further resolution, moved by Mr. Crisp, and seconded by Mr. Honysett, was carried, and was to the effect "That a delegate from each Society which favours a Federation, should be appointed to constitute a committee for the purpose of formulating some rules and objects."

Seeing in CAGE BIRDS at the beginning of this year about English grown Canary seed, I thought I would try the experiment. The wet season has been much against it. Still it has done fairly well. I have been a reader of CAGE BIRDS for just on a year now, and would sooner loose my breakfast on Fridays than my CAGE BIRDS. Wishing "C.B." every success, also the new poultry paper.—GEO. E. H. GRIMSBY.

Grimsby and Dis. C.B.S. first open show, October 15th and 16th, in the Corn Exchange, was a success. The room was lofty, and well lighted. The entry totalled over 300. Norwich provided a treat to those who favour the "short and cobby" variety. In the novice classes several birds of good merit met one's view. Yorkshires were not numerous, but the quality was good. Crests and Crestbreds were of a nice order; Cinnamons were of nice feather and of good colour. Mules and Hybrids claimed many observers. British made a good collection, and most of them were shown in excellent dress. The exhibition was opened by Lady Doughty with a few appropriate observations, which were cordially received. Mr. H. E. Stubbs, the worthy chairman, and Mr. T. Crowston, vice-chairman, deserve high praise for their efforts on behalf of the society. The committee consists of Messrs. Clews, Emerson, Ellender, Johnson, Moore, jun., Nightingale, Robinson and Townsend. A more hard-working set of fanciers would be hard to find, and great credit is due to them. The hon. treasurer is Mr. W. H. Moore, and a better man could not be chosen. He is a genuine fancier. Mr. J. W. Harness is hon. auctioneer. Mr. H. E. Emerson, who acts as hon. secretary (assisted by Mr. W. H. Moore, jun.), is the right man in the right place, doing all in his power to ensure success. He was well backed up by his willing assistant. They worked like Trojans. Exhibits could be seen at a glance. The showroom presented a pleasing spectacle. It was well decorated with ferns, etc. Judging was through in good time, and the cards displayed quickly. The special for best young bird in show went to Mr. A. Townsend for his clear Yellow Norwich. Mr. J. C. Barnes (Sheffield) judged, and his awards appeared to give general satisfaction. NOR. YELL. (16): 1, D. Hope, cl., lovely colour, wonderful shape, short and thick throughout, soft silky texture of feather, clean cut, in grand order, a gem; 2, H. E. Stubbs, "Togo," cl., another right sort, beautifully feathered, grand head, neck and chest, well up in size, A1 colour, a bonny specimen; 3, Godley, cl., red hot, showing fine substance nice shape and feather, good enough to win at most shows; vhc, W. H. Moore, hc, Harland; c, Mennard. BUFF (21): A teaser of a class; two sets of winners in it easily. 1, 2, vhc, Hope, trio of gems, winner one of the best clears we have seen for some time, put down in capital form; 2, cl., warmer in colour, fine size, lovely feather, grand head, neck, and chest properties, clean under; 3, Barwise grizzled on breast, tight as wax, grand feather, nice colour and frosting, neat wing carriage; hc, c, W. H. Moore. YELL. UNFLI. 1907 (12): 1, Townsend, cl., wonderful size, rare colour and quality, capital type, well over perch, best of flights, another year with luck should make a topper; 2 vhc, Hope, another bouncing cl., A1 feather and colour, jaunty carriage, nicely cut, will improve; 3, Vardy, cl., rattling quality, nice colour, sweetly moulded neat carriage of wings; hc, Barwise; c, Hemming. BUFF, 1907 (17): Good class. 1, Stubbs, "Marcus," magnificent quality, feathered like a Java, slashing type, fine tone of colour; 2, Peplow, shows more substance than winner, of excellent colour and quality, beaten slightly in type, but one we greatly admired; 3, Godley, similar to 2nd, and not much between them, capable of a lot of winning; vhc, Harland; hc, Moore; c, Pepper. HEN, YELL. (17): Rare lot. 1, Harland, cl., a fine bouncing damsel, sweetly moulded, full of quality and colour, rare head, neck and chest, clean sweep, perfect wings and tail; 2, Edwards, cl., very promising unflighted, soft silky texture of feather, rich colour, A1 quality and shape, will be heard of again; 3, hc, Vardy, couple of charming exhibits, former cl., wonderful size, sweet bird; vhc, Townsend; c, Moore. BUFF (25): Hot collection. 1, Godley, cl., an eye-opener, massive in build, delightful feather, best of type, rare colour, covered over with rich mealing, all-front, a gem of the first water; 2, 3, Stubbs, "Nina" and "Sadi," respectively, couple of magnificent ladies, former grizzled head, beautiful feather, sweet shape, nice size, grand carriage; 3rd marked neck, A1 feather, good size, grand carriage; vhc, Hope; he, Hemming; c, Vardy. NOVICE NOR. YELL. (19): Nice class. 1, 3, H. Emerson, both clears, winner fine size, good colour, nice shape, neatly cut away, capable of doing well in better company; 3rd hot colour, good substance; 2, Stead, cl., about hottest in class, with a little more size would be a grand specimen; vhc, Nash; hc, Moore, jun.; c, F. Emerson. BUFF (26): Another rare lot. 1, Stead, cl., rattling specimen, full of colour and quality, grand shape and size, A1 wings and tail, would do well in open competition; 2, H. Emerson, cl., unfli., well up in colour and quality, very shapely and of good substance, hardly ready, pen feathers about head and eyes, will improve; 3, Moore, cl., A1 quality and colour, fine type, not over large, but a sweet youngster; vhc, he, Oliff; c, Duckitt. YORKS. YELL. (4): 1, Spencer, cl., unfli., fine long-drawn specimen, lovely quality, stands beautifully, grand back flights and tail, a gem; 2, Simpson, marked neck, hot in colour, magnificent feather, well up in position; 3, Peck and Fawcett, cl., smaller, nice feather, fair type, well on leg; vhc, Cook. BUFF (6): 1, Hodgson, cl., very stylish, long and neatly-drawn specimen, feathered like wax, beautiful position, shows thighs well; 2, hc, Beard, marked head and right wing, capital quality, excellent position, good length, neat wings and tail; 3, Peck and Fawcett, Cinn., marked both wings and head, full of colour and quality; vhc, Simpson; c, Spencer. NOVICE YORKS. (10): 1, 2, Galling, cl. Yell. and cl. Buff, both of grand quality, stylish, and in rare trim, very little between them, a couple of taking exhibits; 3, Stamford, cl. yell., very lengthy and of good position, nice feather and colour; vhc, hc, Kling; c, Potter. CRESTS (9): 1, Hope, buff, marked both wings DC, showing fine substance and abundance of feather of a rich texture, crest round large and of excellent droop, well placed centre, a gem; 2, Seagrave, cl. buff, lovely quality, nice shape and size, crest of neat formation, shown in fine condition; 3, Clarke, buff var., DC, good substance and shape, crest neat; vhc, Simpson; hc, Clews; c, Memmott. CRESTBRED (6): 1, Seagrave, buff almost green, rare size, grand Nor. shape, fine width of skull, well browed, showing heaps of feather; 2, vhc, Calam, former buff, marked head and neck, lovely quality, plenty of feather, grand-shaped body, good skull well lashed; 3, Simpson, cl. buff, soft silky texture of feather, very shapely and of good substance; hc, Smithurst; c, Memmott. YELL. CINN. (7): 1, 2, 3, Godley, with a trio of gems, all of excellent colour, A1 quality, winner has it in type and tightness of feather; 2nd is a little better cut away behind than third; vhc, Ingram; hc, Swingler and Blackwell; c, Medley. BUFF (5): 1, 2, vhc, Godley, again with three right sorts, winner of grand type and size, lovely depth of colour, rare feather, clean under; 2nd good colour and quality, nice shape, well up in size, close up; 3, Ingram, fine shape, grand head, neck and chest, really capital feather; hc, Medley. A.O.VAR. (8): 1, Hodgson, cl. buff Belgian, nice quality, good size, grand shoulders and flights, nervy, a good one; 2, vhc, Gostling, buff, four-pointed Norwich, A1 feather, nice shape, not over large, fair markings, well shown; 3, c, Peck and Fawcett, yell. var., Scotch fancy, nice feather, good circle, not one of the biggest, but very neat; hc, Barwise. CIRENCESTER.

Tenth annual show October 23th and 24th, owing to a C.B.U. licence not having been taken out, only three classes remained uncancelled. This, we understand, will be adjusted another year. The energetic secretaries, Messrs. Wallace and Walker, and their committee certainly deserve support. Mr. Greenwood judged. YORKS. (7): 1, 3, Smith, 1st really good all-round bird of great length, very neat head and body, 3rd not so smart, may improve; 2, 4, Carter, 2nd smart little bird, lightly marked on one wing; vhc, hc, Sendell. ASHFORD.

At this fixture, held October 17th and 18th, Cage Birds were a failure, the open classes being cancelled. The reason for this we think is not far to seek. The Swan Buildings, apparently a horse repository, being quite unsuitable for a two-day show of cage birds. The roof is only composed of galvanised sheeting. This drawback is unfortunate as the management otherwise is as near perfect as one can reasonably expect, whilst the committee are composed of men who would do anything possible to make the show a success. Mr. T. J. Ambrose judged the few classes, which were confined to members, and which included many nice exhibits; the special for best going to a very nice clear yellow Norwich shown by Mr. Ward. NORWICH (10): 1, spl. best bird, H. J. Ward, best type, colour, and feather; 2, 3, vhc (2), Berry, a very nice team, 2nd a good buff, bit slack; res., A. J. Ward. YORKS. (6): 1, 2, 3, res., vhc, Offer, a very nice lot, winner best style, position and feather. CREST or CREST-BRED (4): 1, 3, Grant, nice crest leading; 2, Hooker. BRIT. (4): 1, Ward, Bullfinch; 2, 3, Berry, Chaffinch and Goldfinch in the order named; loses in feather; res., Browne. SELL. (10/-) (8): 1, Berry; 2, Ward; 3, Berry.

BRIGHTON F. AND F.

Sixteenth Annual Show, held on October 15th and 16th at the Lecture Halls, North Road, Brighton. Inclement weather on both days was the cause of a poor attendance of exhibitors and visitors, but an excellent show took place. Mr. A. E. Enfield judged. NORWICH (20): 1, sp. and vhc, Ellis, a yell., did not look at all well; 2, Frost, superior buff; 3, Bellamy; res., Godden; vhc, Harris Bros., Harker, Gibb, Frost, Pennells, hc, and c, Roberts. VAR. (17): 1, 2, spl., Ellis, very good buff, the judge had to search for the tick, which was found under a wing; 2, nice variegated yellow; 3, Pennells; res., Miller; vhc, Harris Bros., Upton and Button, Gibb, Frost. HAYLE.

Hayle fanciers held their fourth open show in the Drill Hall on October 16th and 17th under C.B.U. rules. The entries showed a splendid increase over those of last year, and the officials were all well pleased with the success of the exhibition, which they well deserved. We must congratulate the Committee upon the businesslike way in which the arrangements were carried out, the birds lacking nothing in the way of attention. But we were sorry to see a poor attendance, it being a wet and stormy day. The second day, however, was better, and the visitors were highly delighted with the display of birds. The special prizes were arranged on the platform, and were presented to the winners on the second day. Plainheads were exceptionally strong both in numbers and quality, many good specimens taking a back seat. The winning Ticked Yellow shown by W. Collings (Devonport) was a gem all over; the same bird, we think, was passed last year as a clear. The Buff class was good, the winner being a typical specimen. The Tick Buff of Mr. Pethick which took premier place, we are sorry to say, died two hours after judging; it was a splendid bird, and all Cornish fanciers will sympathise with you, Mr. P., I know. The hen class was excellent, the winner being quickly claimed at catalogue price. The non-flight class was well contested, and the winners will be heard of again. Yorks were a splendid lot, the winner in the Yellow class being a beauty and well staged. The Cinnamon class was the best seen in Cornwall for a long time. The Crest and C.B. class were strong, and the winners were lovely Crests. Mule classes were champions, the winner in the lights being a lovely six-pointed Buff, and in the dark a good-sized and lovely-coloured Goldie-Bullie. The Hardbill class was good, and also the Softbill, which contained some rare birds and came in for a good deal of scrutiny. The members' classes contained some nice specimens. The special for best bird bred by a member was secured by Mr. W. Paull, the hon. secretary, with a good Buff Norwich. The five-guinea silver cup given by the President for most points was secured by Mr. F. Collins with a creditable team; he also won the gold medal for second in most points by W. Ellis, who won the members' cup for most points. The silver medal for second in number of points, by P. Oatey, was also won by Mr. W. Ellis. The management was in the hands of Messrs. Paull and Cock, and well they carried out their duties, being well backed up by a good, all-round, energetic committee, who did their utmost for the exhibitors and their exhibits. Mr. J. H. Roe judged. CAGE BIRDS Competition.—This being the first Cornish fixture for the Cage Bird Competition, there was a good number of entries, and the first prize winner was found in Mr. J. Ryder's Crest, also second the same owner, another Crest, two lovely birds. The third fell to Mr. W. H. Tottle with a tick-wing Buff Norwich Nonflight. NORWICH CL. YELL. HOYLAND.

Hoyland and Dis. O.S., seventh annual show was held October 18th and 19th. The Town Hall is a most suitable place, nicely lighted, free from draughts, fairly spacious and cosy. Entries totalled 289 in the 21 classes provided, giving an average of 14 per class. The staging was neat, and every exhibit could be seen at a glance. Both the president of the society, Mr. T. Taylor, and the vice-president, Mr. T. Whittingham, actively interested themselves in the society. The treasurer is Mr. J. T. Crosswaite, who is a real good fancier, and a genuine worker. The committee of management consists of Messrs. T. Williams, A. H. Waters, W. Evans, H. Humphrey, E. Robinson, J. Kenny, W. Oakley, A. Taylor, W. Hutson, F. Ottley, T. Finckinn, A. Watkin, T. Steele, F. Short, H. Adderley, E. Thompson, S. Guest, J. Johnson, and J. Simmonds, most of whom are practical fanciers, and know how to manage show duties. Mr. J. Warrender acts as secretary, and a better man could not hold the reins. Jabez is a hard and enthusiastic worker, nothing being too much for him to do. Messrs. J. Wilson (Allerton) and W. Vardy (Hucknall) adjudicated. Their awards, on the whole, appeared to give great satisfaction.

SKELMANTHORPE.

The fourth annual show of Cunar's was held in the Working Men's Club, October 19th. The room is an ideal one, a nice size, lofty, well lighted, plenty of ventilation and free from draught. The secretary, Mr. H. W. Gill, along with a willing band of helpers, had everything in good order, and are to be congratulated upon the working of the show, everything possible being done for the comforts of both visitors and exhibits. Mr. J. Robson, judge. Eighteen classes were provided, these attracting an entry of 251, giving an average of 13 per class, a moderate number considering the good list of specials offered. The show was held under the Yorkshire Union Rules and was the third of the series. Messrs. Bailey and Swanger secured the special for most points in the open section, and Mr. W. Beaumont the one in the Novice Section. Ramsden's medal for best fed bird went to Mr W. H. Shackleton's Ticked Yellow, the Members' Cup, after a close race, going to Mr. E. Radley. YORKS. CL. We have appointed Mr. Chas. Berwick (St. Andrew's) as an additional judge in Scotch Fancy Classes at Cupar Show on December 7th, writes Mr. W. Ruddiman, the Sec.

Mr. W. Bowyer has been engaged to judge the 10th annual members' show of the Crewe and District O.S., which takes place on November 2nd, writes Mr. J. C. Heaton, the secretary.

CITY OF GLASGOW.

The City of Glasgow show was held on October 18th and 19th, and proved a record, drawing together no less than 1,384 birds in the various sections, comprisod of 321 Scotch and Belgian Fancy, 381 Norwich, Plainheads, Crests and Crest-breds, 95 Mules and Hybrids, 353 British birds, and 234 Border Fancy Canaries, a collection which contained the cream of the Fancy in all varieties. Scotch Fancy and Belgians, as befitting the City show, occupied leading position in the schedule, but, unfortunately, they did not exactly maintain their proud position, as there was a slight decrease in the number of entries. One reason was that fanciers have had a more than usual trying breeding season, having lost many young. A great many were still raw, and hardly fit for exhibiting. Taking them all round, the exhibits were of a very high class order, having plenty of substance, and being fine, free-nethered birds. The honours, too, were well distributed. The handsome silver cup for best young bird in Piebald Green cock classes was secured by a gem in the shape of a Bull Piebald, the property of Mr. Morrison, of Glasgow. This is a bird of immense substance, rare size and a beauty for action, put down in irresistible fashion. The spl for best young cock in the hall was Mr. McClure, Buff Foul, a facsimile of its companion, which was 1st. This bird has a great length of side, splendid reach and finely moulded, grand quality and substance throughout; all over, in fact, a gem that will take some stopping. The hen champion turned up in another noted cradle for good ones, a representative of Mr. McLennan's, of Edinburgh, substance, shoulder, quality, reach and drive all combined, in as taking a specimen of an ideal Scotch Fancy, it has ever been our pleasure to see. These were the three outstanding birds in the show, and were greatly admired, their various points, good and bad, fully discussed, but the majority of the large gathering of "Oracles" were of the unanimous opinion that the judges had decided on the "recht yins."

Position, Shape, and Feather.

The Scotch Fancy section was judged by the following well-known breeders: Messrs. Higgins, Hamilton; Nisbet, Galston; Smith, Howwood; Park, Govan; Thomson, Glasgow; and Fulton, Partick. Belgians were a good show, the various classes being strongly contested. Capt. Philp, of Edinburgh, as usual, had a choice collection forward, and he cleverly accounted for U.F.B.C.A. gold medal and also a bronze medal, with his youngster. The former was his 4th prize Yellow hen, a very showy one, gets well on leg, fine droop, and good substance. His bronze medallist was the 4th Buff cock. For a youngster it possesses good bone, and nice thickness, is very showy, and was nicely shown. Competition throughout these classes was of a high order. Many close tussles were the rule. This section was under the adjudication of Mr. J. Kean, of Edinburgh, whose awards were well received.

Norwich Plainheads were a strong collection, grand classes, and rare quality, many good ones having to be content with a 3rd or 4th. The team sent by Mr. Young was a strong one, and also a picked one. His Buff cock secured the McLean Challenge Cup, medal and spl. This bird is a bouncer for size, and grandly moulted, beautifully built, no heaviness, but that grand substance you want in a Norwich, and feather; well, it was just like wax, so neat and tight-fitting was his coat, he seems to have a good valet. This gentleman's Buff hen also accounted for the spl for best Nor. hen, another of the same mould as cock. Non-feds were large classes. The type and quality in them was all that could be desired. The best bird here was a Var. cock, the property of Mr. Allan Roberts, a well-known and respected breeder. This Var. was a beauty for shape, had grand front and style and lovely wing carriage. It was exceedingly well put down. The Novice classes contained some beauties, the spl winner was a very good one, a Buff cock, contained a grand amount of substance, was of splendid shape, and grand quality of feather and rare shade of colour. It was well put down, a credit to his owner, Mr. Henderson. The hen class was a strong one, and the winner proved to be that fine exhibit of Mr. Curwen, which for shape and quality will be hard to surpass.

Crests and Crest-breds were well represented, some toppers being seen. The winners in the Crest section were birds with great top-pieces, splendidly groomed, long, leafy feather, and plenty of it, nicely-balanced, and bodies of great substance. The spl. winner was a hot one, shown by Mr. Noble, whose team throughout was greatly admired. Crest-breds contained some of the stars of the browy variety, the winning cock being a champion of the first water, great lash and enormous entrance. A trusty warrior, but showing signs of age now, being very hard up on his legs. This section was judged by the renowned Mr. John Donald, of Aberdeen, who gave every satisfaction, not a murmur being heard throughout.

Splendid Hybrids and British.

Mules and Hybrids followed, and were as fine a collection as will be gathered together this season. All the winners were outstanding specimens. The winning Clear Mule was a bouncer, and good colour throughout. Scarcely up in face yet, but in grand bloom. It was shown by the well-known firm of Messrs. Jackson and Bond, these gentlemen also won in the Hybrid class with a clinking Greenie-Bullie, a hot one for colour and size. They also accounted for the hen class, with a slashing Clear Buff, which wins on its rarity, being in rather poor feather. Mr. Cunningham had also a good team forward, and secured the covetcd red riband with his dark yellow Goldie Mule, a bird of plenty size and good colour, well up in face, and teeming with quality, a Yorkshire type Mule, and also the British Hybrid class with a Goldie-Greenie, showing the crown very distinctly, grand blaze of great size. Mr. Leigh, of Warrington was also forward with a few of his choice specimens, and accounted for the Var. class, with his new purchase, the splendid Siskin-Mule, commented on at St. Andrews. He also secured leading honours in the Greenfinch-Mule class, with a clinking Yellow, rare size and colour. These classes were the most interesting in the show, specimens of every conceivable cross being on exhibition.

British, as was only to be expected in this locality, were extra strong, some gems being on view in all the classes. The only class, however, where 1st and 2nd were awarded to the same exhibitor was the Bullfinch class, when the pair sent by Mr. Cullen, of Crieff, proved to be inseparable. The leader was the Broughty Ferry winner, and still led in his deep crimson breast colour, although the 2nd was even a shade better in body formation. Mr McQuiston, of Ayr, had forward a good team, and accounted for a goodly number of 1sts, his most noted win being the two Greenfinch classes. He staged a pair of gems, grand faces and well up in bloom, and led in each class comfortably. He also won with a good Twite, and his well-known Corn Bunting. Mr. Craig, who knows how to stage a Bramble, accounted for this class, with one of his picked gems. Mr. Brown, of the now-dissolved Brown and Arrighi partnership, was also to the fore as of old, and secured leading honours with his grandly-shaped natural coloured Greenie. "It is grand to see this sort winning," was a general remark. You can make them out, some times they are a puzzle between a Greenfinch and a Red Indian. Chaffinches were headed by a sweet one shown by Mr. Reid, plenty of colour and sheen, while Yellowhammers had as a leader a clinker, from the stable of Mr. Malcolmson. Lesser Redpoll, always a strong class, was secured by the veteran, Mr. Martin, with a Poll of his usual standard, faultless. Bullie hens were well represented, and leading honours were secured by Mr. Porteous's gem. Siskins were a large class, but were somewhat easily headed by a clinker for size and markings, staged by Mr. Arrighi, lastly, but not least, by any means, was the Linnet class, which brought together a collection of 46, and was cleverly captured by Mr. Cassidy, of Dundee, with his gem, that was commented on last week. To-day it was shown to perfection, and led comfortably. This bird was secured at catalogue price £4 4s., by Mr. L. Arrighi, who also claimed the 2nd Siskin-Mule. Softbills were a charming collection, all varieties, from a Chough to a Crested Wren. The smalls were headed by Mr. McQuiston's Wryneck, which was beautifully staged, while the larger class, which contained no fewer than 25, was accounted for by an old warrior in the shape of a Fieldfare, the property of Mr. McWilliams, of Carlisle. This is the best specimen of this bird to be seen on the show bench, and he still upholds his reputation. Foreigners were not altogether a large collection, but some good ones were on view, especially the winning King Parrot shown by Mr. Moreland, of Falkirk. He is a gem, of great density of colour, well-marked, and well put down. The small class was headed by a nice Paradise Whydah, which might easily have been better staged, and must have been closely pressed by a pair of the best Red Head Gouldians travelling, shown in faultless style by Mr. Mason. These classes were judged by Messrs. Langlands, Montrose, and Taylor, of Greenock, and their awards were well received.

A Fine Section.

Borders closed the programme, and in strong numbers. They were carefully handled by two well-known and highly-respected breeders, Mr. McCredie, of Dumfries, and Mr. Hamilton, of Hamilton, the former taking the odd numbers, and the latter the evens. Many well-known studs were represented, and the pick for the B.F.C. medal to-day was decided on for the Clear Buff cock, shown by Mr. Thomson, of Newtongrange, a gem for condition, grand stamp all over, lovely shade of colour, beautifully feathered, rare shape, and as steady as a rock. The runner-up proved to be another gem, in the shape of a Clear Buff hen, which won in her class somewhat comfortably. This bird was feathered to perfection; lovely size, grand style, and shows for all she is worth—a gem of the breeder's art (first time out, I believe). This bird was the property of that go-a-head fancier, Mr. A. Gilchrist, of Coldstream. The novice medal was awarded to the winning Even Buff—a triumph of condition, rare feather, grand style, very good markings, the only fault a shade strong. It was claimed at catalogue price, £2 2s. 6d., by Mr. Martin, of Hamilton. The Yellow cocks was headed by a swell for style, and in good trim, shown by Mr. Heslop. The Yellow hens class was won by another beauty shown by Mr. Massie, who is usually strong in this variety. Uneven Yellows were good, and the winner was a nice one shown to perfection by Messrs. Johnston and Young. Uneven Buffs were strong, and Mr. Thomson again scored a success. Foul Yellows were good, and here the winner was found in that beauty shown by Mr. Dempster. Foul Buffs were a shade down in numbers, but the gem of the show for type was found heading this class in a hen which, for body, position and style, will take some beating. Failed in cleanness to winners of specials, shown by Mr. Smillie, of Kilmarnock. Greens were grand, the Yellow class being accounted for by Mr. Patterson, with a rare feathered Green, lovely pencilling, and good order, staged to perfection, while the Buff class was secured by Mr. Findley's well-known specimen, shown in rare bloom. This closed an exhibition which, for numbers and quality gave satisfaction to one and all. The working of a show of this magnitude takes some forethought, but the society are happy in the possession of two gentlemen who know their business to the least detail. The harmonious way in which Mr. McDonald, of the Scotch Fancy and Belgian section, and Mr. A. Muir, of the Var. section, worked, meant only one finish, and that was excellence.

Busy Officials.

What with conducting sales, answering questions, and other details, their life was kept up, but the pleasant manner of each gentleman wins for them each year the gratitude of many an outside exhibitor and visitor. The genial president, Mr. John Young, of Crest fame, was, as usual, supervising the show and giving his fatherly advice to many. He takes a great interest in the society. The committee was composed of the following gentlemen, all willing workers, who did their best to bring the city show to the great success it was:—Messrs. J. Knox, Wm. M'Clure, John Muir, Alex. M'Millan, J. J. M'Ilwain, J. Kerr, J. M'Quillan, J. Ward, Cliff Bell, E. G. Wright, J. M'Laren, Wm. Morton, C. Hunter, A. Malcolmson, Wm. Fraser, H. Henderson, Peter Thaw, G. Smart, J. Lappin, and J. Munro. The show was held in the Stirling Road Drill Hall, which is well suited for a cage bird show. It was well patronised by fanciers both from England and Scotland, and sales seemed to be plentiful among them. The public were also out in force, and the show, it is hoped, will be financially a record. As usual in Glasgow, visitors who stay the Friday night are invited to the little social meeting which takes place. Mine host of the evening was Mr. Slater, a newly-made member of the City Association, and right well did he uphold his geniality. After placing on the table a bottle of Auld Kirk, the toasts of the evening were loyally given. Songs were ably rendered by Messrs. Muir, McDonald, Todd (ex-president), Baird, Young (president), Renfrew, Adams, and by the father of the society, the venerable Mr. Sam Graham. This gentleman is now 75 years of age, and, as he says, still as game as a young one. If his voice is a guide towards health, we may hope to see him on many more occasions. The time being limited, many friendly discussions were cut short, and as the hour "When a'w must gaun" drew nigh the prosperity of the President, the City Show, and the host were drunk, thus concluding a very happy evening.

The Plainhead Classes.

The Norwich Plainheads were the grandest collection ever seen in Scotland, over 300 birds facing the judge, Mr. Alexander McFarlane, who went about his work in a cool and workmanlike manner, and carried uniformity of type in his eye from start to finish. His work was not light, still everyone seemed pleased with the awards. The winner of the McLean challenge cup and Scottish Plainhead Club medal is a stormer of a clear buff cock, rare good size and quality, wing carriage perfection, beautifully mealed, and rare bold carriage, owner must be congratulated on possessing such a bird. CL. OR TKD. YELL. COCK (28): 1, Chalmers, large typical bird of rare good quality and colour, a good leader; 2, Davidson, very fine quality bird, similar stamp, fails to winner a little in breast only, close up; 3, Wilcock, grand shape and size, very rich colour, teeming with quality, scarcely so close in feather as winner; 4, Hector, nice shape and size, good carriage, but scarcely so stout as winner; 5, Chalmers; 6, Steele, very fine quality and size; 7, Davidson; 8, Martin. BUFF (22): 1, Young, winner of McLean Challenge Cup, and Scottish Plainhead Club medal, one of the best for shape, quality, and colour, simply superb, a popular win; 2, W. Watson, a beauty for shape and quality, nice round head and chest, neat wings and tail; 3, Chalmers, all there for type, but fails to winners in fineness of feather, rare good colour for a buff; 4, Cameron, best of shape and quality, fails in head, not a large one, but a model; 5, Martin, good stamp, but inclined to be feathery; 6, A. Watson, rare good stamp; 7, Martin; 8, Cleminson; very strong class. VAR. OR GREEN YELL. (16): 1, A. Watson, heavily variegated, thick-set bird, rare noble appearance, neat tail and wings, scarcely finished; 2, Young, fails to winner a little in size and rather finely got up, but full of quality; 3, Muir, very little to choose between second, and must have been difficult to separate; 4, Chalmers, good for size and colour, but a shade too thin and long, still worthy of its place; 5, Riley, nicely marked bird, full of quality and very fair shape; 6, Young, nice exhibit; 7, Cameron; 8, Steele. BUFF (28): 1, Davidson, a topper, rare good head and chest, best of wings and tail, best of quality and well placed; 2, Strachan, another good one, a true Norwich and presses winner; 3, Cameron, a gem for quality and shape, but loses a little in size to winners; 4, Muir, larger, good shape, but beaten in fineness of feather; 5, Marr, a bold-looking bird, rare carriage, nice short tail; 6, Calderwood, almost as good as anything in class, but wild; 7, Howie; 8, Thaw; another strong class. CL., ETC., YELL. HEN (18): 1, A. Watson, perfect model, with a little more size would be unbeatable, a clinker and no mistake; 2, Malcolmson, unflighted, a gem, beaten in colour only, these two are teeming with quality; 3, Hutchison, larger than winners, but lacking the bold appearance, still well placed; 4, Winters, rare good typical hen, capable of winning in almost any show; 5, Winters, presses hard, good shape and quality of feather; 6, Cleminson, fine big hen of correct stamp; 7, Martin; 8, Chalmers. BUFF (33): 1, Young, clinker for shape and size, rare round chest, good wing carriage, quality good, well placed; 2, 4, McLay, another topper and no mistake, must have been hard to separate these two; 3, Young, still another real good one, just a shade coarser in feather than winners; 4, very shapely hen, teeming with quality, fails only in size; 5, Thomson, shape, size, and quality good, but fails in stoutness; 6, Henderson; 7, Miller; 8, Young; best class of buff hens ever seen in Glasgow. VAR. ETC., YELL. HEN (15): 1, Milne, a bouncer, best shape, stout cobby bird, neat wings and tail, and lovely condition; 2, Braidwood, heavily marked, same stamp as winner, good size, beaten in quality; 3, A. Watson, very fine feathered hen, in lovely condition, beaten in size; 4, Davidson, good stamp and size, not so chubby as winners; 5, Muir, nice size and condition, but a shade long; 6, Cameron; 7, Strachan; 8, Will. BUFF (15): 1, Howie, big bouncing hen, rare good head, nice round chest and back, wins well here; 2, Steele, a topper for size and shape, bold hen, rich quality, well placed; 3, Cameron, very shapely bird, teeming with quality, scarcely so thick as winners, a good one; 4, Marr, another bouncer, good size, beaten in quality; 5, Chalmers, very typical and little to choose between 4th; 6, Cleminson, grand quality bird; 7, Fraser; 8, Roberts. NONFED CLEAR OR TKD. COCK (22): 1, Chalmers, not a large one, but lovely shape and condition; 2, Howie, shade larger, same stamp, but fails a little to winner in quality, still little to choose between; 3, Marr, another shapely bird, nice round chest, best of wings and neat short tail; 4, Roberts, very neat cobby bird, with a little more size would be a stormer; 5, Renfrew, a true Norwich, rare good shape, well shown; 6, Wm. Watson, very shapely, and shown in perfect condition; 7, Herbert; 8, Edwards. HEN: 1, Duffus, a model for shape and quality, neat short wings and tail, perfect condition; 2, Roberts, another of the same stamp, but scarcely so tight in feather, presses hard; 3, Mayberry, larger than winners, good shape, but beaten in quality; 4, Renfrew, nice round-chested bird, neat tail, and shown very fit; 5, McLay, good stamp and quality; 6, Roberts; 7, Winters; 8, Grey. NONFED VAR. COCK: 1, Roberts, one of the most typical birds in the show, teeming with quality, set on nice short legs, a gem; 2, Wm. Watson, another topper, but scarcely so chubby as winner; 3, Byars, rare good stamp and size, nice carriage and condition; 4, Davidson, nice bold bird, of good substance, well shown; 5, Flood, shown in perfect condition, thinner got up than winners; 6, Steele; 7, Winters; 8, Roulston. DITTO HEN: 1, Shearer, heavily variegated yellow, a bouncer and no mistake, well worth its place; 2, Muir, short, thick buff, very shapely, with nice short legs and tail; 3, Shearer, almost evenly marked yellow, rare chest, and in fine condition; 4, Sinclair, very typical buff and good size, requires to get steadier; 5, Duffus, almost green, thick-set, good shape, but on the small side, well shown; 6, Herbert, wing marked, very typical, and of good quality; 7, Davidson; 8, Marr. NOVICE, COCKS, A.C. (23): 1, Henderson, very shapely, good size, rare round chest, and shown in lovely condition; 2, McNeill, another of the same stamp, real Bullfinch shape, and presses winner hard, grand bird; 3, Thaw, large bouncing bird, true Norwich type, in lovely condition; 4, Murray, very shapely bird, neat head, and good quality; 5, Brown, very shapely, good size and quality; 6, Fernie; 7, Smart; 8, Johnstone. HEN, DITTO (28): 1, Murray, grand clear, perfect condition, real Norwich type; 2, Mitchell, another of the same stamp and nothing to choose between; 3, Gove, nice upstanding bird, grand round chest and nicely carried wings; 4, Edwards, big bold bird, very typical, shown in fine condition; 5, P. The committee of the Pwllheli Fanciers have decided to hold their next show on December 26, 1907, Boxing Day. Mr. Hadwin (Liverpool) will judge cage birds. Prize money will be paid day of show. Schedules ready shortly.—W. H. Davies, Hon. Sec.

KIRKCUDBRIGHT.

The above F.A. held its fifth show Oct. 16th, in the Drill Hall. This is a spacious and well lighted building, free from draughts. Entries showed an increase of nearly 200, and the Association is now, we were told, on a fine financial footing. The attendance was splendid, and an influential crowd of patrons had been enlisted. The arrangements were capably supervised by Mr John Wilkinson (president), and Mr. James Brown (vice-president); Mr. John Kelly is an ideal show secretary, always considerate and on the alert. He had a good helper in Mr. John Milligan, the treasurer. Mr. Robert Paterson, general manager, had a busy time of it, seeing that exhibits were properly penned and attending to lots of other odds and ends which always creep up at the last moment. These gentlemen were well supported by the following enthusiastic fanciers who composed the committee: Messrs. A. Garmory, E. Dalziel, D. Kelly, A. Campbell, A. Candlish, T. McCoull, J. Cruickshank, P. McCoull, J. McMillan, J. Robison, J. T. Cannegan, D., Middleton, J. Murphy, G. Penny, J. Souray, J. Ramage, J. C. Beeby, J. Crosbie, J. C. Clues, S. McNellie, W. McMonies, J. Tracey. Everything was in good working order for the various judges, and catalogues were consequently early on sale. The cage birds were a good turn-out, entries coming well up to this Society's average. Quality, on the whole, was well up to the standard, and not a few of the winning exhibits could well hold their own at some of our largest shows. The Norwich classes contained some extra good specimens, the winning buff Plainhead hen is one of the real short-waisted and chubby-bodied ones we admire so much. Bullfinches were a taking class, although the winner stood out well by himself, being a bird of very even colour and distinct cut markings. Small British were well to the fore, the winning Yellowhammer being one of the finest for colour and markings we have seen this season. SCOTS COCK (5): 1st and spl., M. Candlish, clear yellow, of good substance and quick action, good set shoulders and fine reach, wins for best bird; 2nd, McKeand, clear yellow, not so nervy and a bit on small side; 3, Welsh, buff, fair bird, not so well up on spake; 4th, 5th, M'Monies, clear also. HENS (3): 1, M'Monies, buff, fine reach and prominent shoulders, well filled in, a taking exhibit; 2, McKeand, buff pied, good substance, good breadth of shoulders, rather straight in tail; 3, Walsh, buff pied, quick on pereh, rather light in body. BORD. CL. YELL. COCK (7): 1, Clues, fine stamp, neat head and well-drawn body; 2, 3, Welsh, former rather longer in body, good tail; 4, Burnie, fair, good type, good wings, and a wee bit soiled. HEN (5): 1 and spl. for best bird, Robinson, lovely type, A1 carriage and well-closed in tail, a fine exhibit, well staged; 2, 3, Welsh, former better in colour and well moulded; 4, 5, Clues, not quite ready yet. A.O.V. BORD. COCK (10): 1, Robinson, very fine close feather, neat head, just a shade flat on back, hut wins, clear buff; 2, Welsh, buff, of good type and position, not so well finished as winner; 3, Hunter, yell. var., well drawn body and jaunty style; 4, Gass, cl. buff, fails a bit front; 5, Rae and Son; 6, Creary. HEN (7): 1, 3, Clues buff leading, grand tight feather and fine type; 3, yellow grizzle, just a shade slack in neck; 4, Welsh, cl. buff, fails in close tail; 5, Creary; 6. Gass. CREST OR C.B. (6): 1 and 2, Griffith, former fine grizzic Crest, good radiation and well filled-in centre; 2nd green, finely drooping Crest, hardly finished centre; 3,5, Devoy, rather short on front crest feather, good dense body; 4, 6, Hunter. NOR. COCK (6): 1,2, McQueen, very hot and level colour, tight as wax in feather, wins well; 2, also good colour, grand size, a shade bumpy on chest; 3, M'Neilly, grand nat. colour, rare good head, well laid-on wings; 4, Andrews neat body, trifle on small side; 5, Nicholson; 6, Kelly. HEN (6): 1, 2 spls., 4, McQueen, grand fed clear buff, short flights, lovely feather, eyes well in centre, nicely placed on legs, wins well; 2, Andrews, shade larger in body, grand head, not so short in waist as winner; 3, Shields, clear yell., finely formed head and short in flights, will improve; 4, even mark buff, fair good substance and quality feather; 5, Nicholson; 6, Harper. YORKS COCK (8): 1, Heron, good upstanding, neat head and well laid-on wings and tail, finely drawn front; 2, Flannigan and Murphy, well fed yell., good taper throughout, inclined to frill in front; 3, Jardine and Son, nat. col. yell., smart and well drawn, fine pipe tail; 4, Martin, cinn. var. buff, close feather and good length in body, stoops rather on perch; 5, M'Minn; 6, Welsh. HEN (4): 1, Welsh, very hot in colour, well drawn and in lovely feather, an easy win; 2, Jardine and Son, nat. yell., good size, fails in feather; 3, Flannigan and Murphy, buff, rather rough feather; 4, M'Minn, fine quality, small in body. LIGHT MULE (2): 1, Doolan, large var. Goldie-Canary, finely shaped; 2, Flannigan and Murphy, smaller body, neat style. DARK (7): 1, spl., best Mule. Doolan leading with a slashing Linnet-Canary, splendid size and markings; 2, Flannigan and Murphy, close up with a grandly coloured Greenie-Canary, good length, level colour; 3, 6, McQueen, former large buff Goldie Canary, splendid blaze; 4, Kelly, yell. Goldie, good colour and haze; 5, Coutts. GOLD. BRIT. (6): 1, Coutts, very steady well tapered body, clear cut blaze and extra good buttons; 2, Gourlay, shade stouter body, well cut blaze and cheeks, shade flat on skull; 3, Jardine and Son, real good one, splendid blaze and wing bars; 4, Cruickshanks, not nearly up in blaze, good clear cut wing bars and buttons; 5, Hannah; 6, Heron. GOLD. FOR. (3): 1, Hannah, finely formed head, good in body colour, and grand wing bars; 2, McKinnell, good coloured, rather stout in body; 3, Flannigan and Murphy, fine size, not up in face yet. BULL. (5): 1, spl., Welsh, very clean cut in cap, finely coloured front and back, distinct bars; 2, Garmory, good exhibit, fails in breast colour; 3, 4, Paterson; 5, Barrice. BRIT. A.O.V. SMALL (4): 1, spl., 3, Crearie, leading with a grand Yellowhammer, well defined in markings, rich ground colour; 3, good Bramblefinch, fine colour and markings; 2, Dunbar, Hawfinch, well cut bib and head; 4, McKinnell, Yellowhammer. FOR. SMALL (6): 1, 2, 3, 6, McKinnell, leading with yell. Budgerigar in good feather; 2, fine Java Sparrow; 4, no name; 5, Dunbar. SELL. (10/-) (7): 1, McQueen, lovely even mark Nor., worth double; 2, McKeand, Scot. Fancy; 3, Robinson. Bord.; 4, Kelly; 5, 6, Hastings. SELL. (5/-) (3): 1, McQueen; 2, Kelly; 3, Hunter.

PLYMOUTH (W.C.O.S.)

With an entry of nearly 900, a high standard of excellence in the exhibits, and a splendid attendance, the forty-eighth annual show of the Western Counties Ornithological Society, which was held on October 22nd and 23rd, was indeed a huge success. The W.C.O.S. is the oldest of our ornithological societies, and its past is as glorious as its present is strong and virile. There is nothing effete or of an anachronistic nature about the W.C.O.S.; it displays all the enthusiasm and energy of youth tempered with the wisdom and experience of a ripe old age. In fact, many younger societies are not half so smartly conducted as is the one which is most distant West of all our societies holding purely cage bird shows. Ever moving with the times, Plymouth has at one time and another been famous as a centre of breeding in connection with Mules, Crests, Belgians, and the old-fashioned English or Common Canary, now glorified into the neat and natty Border; but through all its changing phases it has ever been a stronghold of the Norwich Plainhead Fancy. In years gone by, Plymouth was great in Crests, and even to-day there are within its confines breeders who remember and speak with bated breath of the doings of those grand old Crest breeders, Messrs. Halse Bros., W. Radmore, J. Findlay, Kent, and Langman, F. W. Holman, and others, all of whom were giants in the Fancy and officials of the W.C.O.S. When one thinks of Mules and British, the names of Messrs. Doel and Sleep instantly occur to one's mind. To-day Norwich Plainhead breeders are perhaps the greatest force in the society, and they worthily uphold all the traditions of those breeders whom we remember a quarter of a century or more ago as strenuous supporters of type and quality. The big bird craze has never held away down West, yet the breeders of "the three towns" have ever been able to hold their own with Norwich breeders in all parts of the country. Of late years the Yorkshire has taken a strong hold of the affections of Western breeders. We remember the day when not a single representative of the breed graced the benches at Plymouth, yet to-day, at the fixture under notice, we find them producing the best average per class of any variety in the show. This year's event was held in the Corn Exchange, one of the finest buildings in the country for a cage bird show, being lofty, well lighted from the top, and absolutely free from draughts; it is capacious, and thus affords plenty of room for the exhibits to be viewed with ease and comfort. Plymouth fanciers know how to stage a show, also how to look after the exhibits, and they do it. Sportsmen to the backbone, they give every attention to birds from a distance, and this it is which causes their shows year by year to be such a success. Exhibitors have learned from past experience to place implicit confidence in the management of the W.C.O.S., and that confidence is not misplaced. Plymouth is to the West what Manchester is to the North, and many fanciers yearly take a trip to the show in the town of Drake who never go to any other show outside their own town or village from one year's end to another. Amongst the executive are to be found such well-known names as those of Messrs. A. E. Cheney (vice-president), C. Dart (chairman), W. French (vice-chairman), W. Spillman and H. A. Clear (auditors), C. Hoar, T. Deeble, G. Garland, J. Ryder, R. Browning, E. Shelf, F. G. Snell, W. H. Tottle, J. H. Full, H. Farmer, C. Jewell, C. Reed, S. Tucker (committee), and a better lot it would be hard to find. They know their work, and they do it. Messrs. Pope and Dyer, the two secretaries, have now run in double harness for some time, and they go splendidly together. No hurry, no bustle, but quiet, methodical, businesslike methods prevail in the working of the show; these two officers have made the secretarial work of the society to move with ease and celerity, whilst by their tact and courtesy in attending to the wishes of exhibitors they have earned for themselves and the W.C.O.S. the respect and admiration of all with whom they have been brought in contact. For some twenty-five years have we known and followed the work of the W.C.O.S., and we can with confidence say the society, good men as it has had, never had a better crew to work the old ship than it has at present. The schedule opened with the Yorkshires; and what a lot they were! Averaging over twenty-two per class, they beat all records for the West of England, and a finer lot we doubt were ever got together at any provincial show outside the county of Broad Acres. Right through the section were to be seen birds of exquisite shape and style, birds that would do credit to any West Riding fixture; especially noticeable were the exhibits of Messrs. J. Hawes (whose Yellow won the special for the best cock), C. W. Mabey (who secured the special for best hen with his buff), Thomas, Broome, Burton, Smith, Harries, Knight, Pattrick, Bassett, Staples, and Lashbrook. We like to see length in a Yorkshire, but some of our friends are exceeding the limit, and two exhibits were passed by the judge as being over length. The standard gives 6¾ inches as the limit; these were well over seven inches.

With an entry of 165 in eight classes, it is needless to say the Norwich Plainheads took some sorting out. The show was under the patronage of the Southern Norwich P.C., and its members turned up in full force to do battle with the local giants. Type has ever been a strong point with the local breeders, and this, coupled with quality, dominated the section on this occasion; especially was this so in the Yellows, which, all through the show were superior to the Buffs, and of the Yellows the pick undoubtedly was Mr. Collings' Yellow hen, which secured the members' challenge cup. This hen is a gem; a better we have never seen. Mr. Spillman's unflighted Yellow is a wonderfully stout bird, short, and compact, but possessed hardly the bloom we like to see. That good old fancier, Mr. Banbury, put down a romping Yellow cock, which won well in its class. Mr. Taverner, the erstwhile secretary of the W.C.O.S., won cleverly in a very hot class of young Buffs. Other most charming exhibits were staged by Messrs. Hodder, Veale, Border, Hopkins, and Allsop, Pethick, Skinner, Rickard, Pope, Redwood, Menadue, and Bailey. The challenge cups were won as follows:—Crest, Mr. French, Tope, Rev. G. W. Joyce; Norwich, Mr. Collings; Yorkshire, Mr. Bassett; A.O.V., Mr. Pope. The judges were Messrs. C. A. House (Yorkshire and Norwich), G. E. Weston (Mules and British), J. Robson (the remainder).

The Yorkshires.

YORKS. YELL. (26): 1, spl., and spl. best cock, Hawes, very fine head and neck, nice racy body, rare carriage and splendid feather; 2, vhc, spl., best vhc, Mabey, very sweet head and body, grand style, not quite so well put down as the winner; 3, Thomas, rare quality of feather and style, not quite so shapely; 4, Banks, grand shaped body, lovely feather and style, a wee bit flat in skull; hc, Mrs. Vipond Crocker; c, Webb. Passed as over standard length, No. 7 Broome, 7¼ inches; No. 8 Rennie, 7⅜ inches. BUFF (20): 1, spl., Burton, very finely drawn, grand head, rare feather, stands like a soldier; 2, Broome, very slim and racy, splendid carriage, not quite ready; 3, 4, Mabey, 3rd, lovely body and feather, just a shade short on leg, 4th and spl. best 4th, rare length and style of body, plenty of leg, but trifle open in one wing; vhc, Webb; hc, Philpot; c, Knight. MARKED (21): 1, spl., hc, Mabey, very slim, stylish cinnamon-marked yellow, grand feather, lovely head, as straight as a dart; 2, Smith, variegated buff, as tight as wax, and full of nerve, splendid shape and style; 3, Hawes, long variegated yellow, full of quality and style, hardly ready, grand shape and rare tail; 4, Harris, very close feathered, stylish variegated buff, nice shape, not quite so clever with his wings; vhc, Broome; c, Wills. UNFLI. (28): 1, spl., Knight, very handsome buff, as tight as wax, grand head, neat wings and tail and plenty of nerve; 2, Pattrick, lovely body for shape, style, and feather, just a wee bit flat in head, handles well; 3, Bassett, takes Members' Challenge Cup, a romping good bird, and had he been served up in the same style as the winner, would doubtless have won, the burnishing means something in keen competition; 4, Mabey, saddle marked yellow, in perfect feather, nice style, but just a wee bit strong; vhc, Forse; hc, Lohr; c, Hawes. HENS YELL. (22): 1, spl., Staples, wonderful style, superb quality of feather, very fine shapely head, rare tail, just a trifle too stout for her length, but her lovely feather pulled her through; 2, Mabey, finer drawn and very stylish, and had she been in the same lovely condition as first would have won; 3, Harris, grand shape and style, beautiful feather, just a bit inclined to open her tail; 4, Knight, splendid colour, feather and carriage, but a shade on the strong side; vhc, Parnell and Son; hc, Barton; c, Rennie. BUFF (20): 1, 2, spl., and best hen, Mabey, two real beauties, as tight as wax in feather, stand like soldiers, neatly modelled; 2nd is hardly as clever with her wings as her mate, but they are two charming lasses; 3, Lashbrook, very racy and finely drawn, full of nerve, lovely quality of feather, given just a shade more length would be bad to beat; 4, Knight, grandly shaped hen of rare feather and carriage, but is apt to spread her tail; vhc, Megns, hc, Burton; c, Wills.

Norwich Plainheads.

YELL (22): 1, spl., Banbury, beautiful body, rich even colour, grand silky feather, rare wings and tail, could do with a bit more width of skull; 2, Hodder, better head, but lacks the depth of chest of winner, rare colour and quality; 3, Collings, very neat and sweet, not quite so stout in body, but a grand little bird; 4, Ham, grand shape and colour, not quite so tight in feather; vhc, Pettrick, hc, Bailey; c, Snell. BUFF (22): 1, spl., Lowe, grand Bullfinch shape, short in tail, very compact and silky in feather, stands well; 2, Veale, grand colour and feather, rare shaped body, neater in wing and tail, beaten in entrance of skull; 3, Hodder a picture for colour, feather and shape, but needs just a trifle more substance all through; 4, Border, grand shaped body, capital head, rare quality, just a shade longer behind; vhc, Bailey; hc, Pethick; c, Tucker. TICKED YELL (10): 1, spl., Spillman, saddle and cheek-marked, a real gem, full of colour and quality, rare shape, and well cut away behind; 2, Skinner, very handsome wing marked, most typical, and of rare quality, not quite fine; 3, Redwood, thigh ticked, splendid shape, carriage, and feather, just a trifle open in wing; 4, Lowe, big bouncing variegated, rare shape and substance, not so silky in feather. BUFF (14): 1, spl., Collings, eye, wing and tail marked, rare shape, colour and feather, neat compact wings and tail, a beauty and will improve; 2, 3, Rickard, a brace of short cobby eye and wing ticked birds, very typical, sound colour, nice silky feather, but hardly so tight; 4, Garland, rare shaped eye marked, splendid feather, but coarse in legs and trifle slack in wing; vhc, Redwood; hc, Snell; c, Veale. UNFLI. YELL. (26): 1, spl., Spillman, one of the stoutest yellows we have ever seen, and yet, though stout, very short in wings and tail, grandly fed, rare quality of feather, but needs tightening up a bit; reserve for Challenge Cup, and winner of 1st prize in CAGE BIRDS competition; 2, Pethick, capital shape, rare quality and colour, hardly finished moulting; 3, Banbury, wonderful quality and shape, but hardly enough of it; 4, Tottle, capital shape of body, neat wings and tail, lovely quality, fails in head; vhc, Coad; hc, Collins; c, Brown. BUFF (32): 1, spl., Taverner, grand chubby body, the neatest of wings and tail, feathered like glass, nice even colour; 2, Hodder, very neat wing-ticked, neat and compact in body, not quite so much depth of chest; 3, Pope, rare stamp of variegated, very typical, grand colour, needs tightening up, yet, and will then be a gem; 4, Nicks, splendid shape of body, grand wings and tail, hardly so stout in head; vhc, Lowe; hc, Staples; c, Blatchford. HENS. YELL. (16): 1, spl., and Members' Challenge Cup, Collings, a little wonder, nothing prettier ever seen, rare depth and width of chest, beautifully rounded head, wings and tail very short and tightly braced, very rich and even in colour, short and silky in feather, and staged in the very pink of condition; 2, Menadue, another model, grand shape and colour, rare quality, very short and compact, but lacks the exquisite finish of winner; 3, Bailey, rare head, chest, and back, lovely feather, shape and colour, just a shade longer in tail; 4, Hodder, rare shaped body, very neat and tight in feather, grand colour, not so much substance of head; vhc, Collings, another gem for shape and style, but just lacks the quality and sheen of her companion; hc, Yates; c, Taverner, one of the best classes of hens ever seen. BUFF (23): 1, spl., Hopkins and Allsop, most charming exhibit, very short and cobby, neat wings and tail, lovely head, grand quality and colour; 2, Collings, grandly feathered, full of colour, and beautifully frosted, lovely head and body, but a bit slovenly with her wings; 3, Pethick, rare shape, colour, and feather, hugs the perch just a bit too much, but for lack of style she is a clipper, train her, Mr. P.; 4, Snell, fine shapely hen, rare head, chest and back, nice wings and tail, rare carriage, not quite the colour or sheen of leaders; vhc, Hodder; hc, Rowe; c, Tucker. Another class of superlative merit.

Crests and Crestbreds.

The Crests and Crestbreds mustered in excellent numbers, and well upheld the reputation of the West-country as a hotbed of the breed. We noted more than one winner with the desirable short, thick-set Norwich type body carrying a crest of exceptional size and neatness. We were very pleased with Mr. Bale's delightful Clear, though it must be said that the birds shown by Messrs. Evins Bros., T. J. King, Mills, Rev. Joyce, Piper, Tope, French, Oliver, Broad, and Ryder, are equally entitled to a special mention. Interest in the section seemed very keen, indeed.

CREST CL. BODY BUFF (11): 1, spl., Bale, gem of a clear, big, massive body, carrying a crest of remarkable size, very thickly built up of good quality feather, grand frontal and droop, very neat; 2, Evins Bros., another clinking clear, lovely quality of feather, fine frame, real good big crest, well made and radiated, not quite the wonderful sweep of winner; 3, Hobbs, dark crest, good body substance, fine large crest, neat and thick, trifle shield-shaped; 4, King, graud bodied grizzle, very good expansive headpiece, not yet finished at centre; vhc, Symons, very neat dark crest; hc, Rev. Joyce; c, Rowe. MKD., ETC. (16): 1, spl., Joyce, lightly varieg,. tremendous head, topped with a very big crest, well centred, good frontal, nice texture, rare big body; 2, Mills, almost green, excellent body substance, fine quality, good shaped, well-drooped crest of splendid size, seemed inclined to lift a little to-day; 3, Slade, another excellent specimen, big, neat crest, nice droop and quality, fine body; 4, Ryder, grand bodied green, crest of fine size and shape, wee bit thinner at sides; vhc, King; hc, Tope; c, French. Hybrids, British and Foreign.

The Hybrid and British sections were very satisfactory, taken on the whole, especially so far as quality was concerned. Some well-known names figured in the catalogue, and some splendid exhibits appeared on the benches. Plymouth, however, never seems to muster any extraordinary number of either British or Foreign at its shows, though the average, true enough, is a highly respectable one. Whether this is because Canaries occupy more fully the minds of fanciers in this corner of England, or because of the early date of the show (as we overheard a committeeman say), it is not easy to decide. Anyway, they know how to breed good Mules round Plymouth, and apparently are very keen on it, judging by the members' classes (limited to young birds), which draw heavy entries and always contain specimens of more than average merit. This year the open Light Mule class was a stinger, and caused the judge some anxiety. A better lot of 4 and 6-pointed Mules has rarely been brought together and even then there were others —21 in all. Messrs Wasley, Collins, Browning, Hamblyn, and Jeffreys, staged grand birds in this section. In the British birds the chief winners were Messrs. S. E. Jones, C. Prior, A. Howe, F. J. Russell, Lovell, Longden, A. P. Hirst, J. Jones, Thomson, Bussey, Lean and Son, and Mrs. Taverner, who had out some most attractive specimens. The members British section was also very good, and the foreign really excellent. The strong lot of Hybrids we have already mentioned; the winner of the members' Hybrid Challenge Bowl turning up in the young Goldie-Bullie.

HYBRID LIGHT (21): 1, spl., Wasley, grand 6-pointed buff Goldie, fine size and shape, bold head, carrying a fine blaze, extra good in colour and quality, like wax in plumage, very well marked; 2, 3, F. Collins, also two grand Mules, leader the well-known 6-pointed, beauty for size, shape and colour, but meets its better to-day in a close-run race; 3, a lightly marked Linnet, fine size and stylish, both staged in grand form; 4, Hamblyn, another clinking good 6-pointed, exceptionally fine colour, excellent size and shape, not yet quite in show form; vhc, Browning, fine 4-pointed shade slim; hc, c, Gaved. DARK (14): 1, spl., 2, vhc, Browning, leader a remarkably good Jonque Goldie, rare size and colour, very stylish, plumage like satin, 2nd an almost equally good Jonque Greenfinch, full of colour and quality, fine substance and shape; 3, Jeffreys, Jonque Siskin, good one for size and shape, excellent in colour and markings, beautifully polished; 4, Slade, romping big buff Linnet, fine head and chest, full of quality, very neat all over; hc, Serines; c, Mabbot. A.O.V. HYBRID (40): 1, spl., Browning, very smart Linnet-Bullie, excellent size, stylish, lovely condition, fine expanse of rich colour on breast; 2, 3, F. Collins, good Greenie-Bullie leading, large and thick-set, neatly feathered, nice even colour; 3, Goldie-Bullie, very cobby, good-headed, wants time yet to get into show form, has plenty of colour; 4, Mrs. Skey, yet another Canary-Bullie, not by any means equal to the old champion, yet a big, bold-chested bird, very rich in colour, unfortunately carriage of right wing is faulty; vhc, E. Collins, nice Redpoll-Goldie; hc, Gaved, really good Siskin-Greenfinch; c, Wasley, said to be a Canary-Bullie, nice colour, no markings on back. GOLDFINCH OR BULLFINCH (21): 1, spl., Prior, clinking good Finch, not over large, but carries a very expansive well cut blaze, pure and rich in colour, well-marked body, coming into lovely condition, will take beating; 2, spl., S. E. Jones, fine, well-conditioned Bullfinch, good size and shape, bold head and cap, clean breast colour, should improve into a smart one; 3, Hopkins and Allsop, not the size of blaze as winner, yet a lovely Finch, square cut, nice coloured face, very shapely, well-tanned body, nicely marked; 4, hc, Ellis, very good face, not up in colour yet, fine all round specimen, only wants time; vhc, Mabbot; c, Buckland. GREENFINCH ETC. (17): 1, spl., A. Howe, a Greenie of grand size and shape, rich even shade of colour, beautifully feathered; 2, spl., 3, Russell, former a very smart non-fed Siskin, rich bright colour, good well-laced cap, with a distinct bib would be a topper; 3, a fairly good Twite, excellent size and shape, sound colour, trifle indistinct in pencilling; 4, Jones, very decent Lesser Redpoll, shapely and well polished, nicely marked; vhc, Serines, good hot-coloured Siskin; hc, Treharne; c, Jordan. LINNET (10): 1, spl., Prior, a beauty, fine size, well coned body, good whites, bright, sound colour, a mass of very distinct pencilling, full of life and bloom; 2, Lovell, grand one for soundness of colour and profuse pencilling, good size and shape, last year's Palace winner, showing signs of age; 3, Portman, similar type of bird to second, good even colour, grandly marked, shapely, steady, a trio of fine Linnets; 4, Staples, big, bold, well-marked bird, a little short of bloom; vhc, Pridham; hc, Williams; c, Wills. W.C., Cook, nice pied example. CHAFFINCH, ETC. (17): 1, spl, A. P. Hirst, really splendid Chaffinch, big, well-built, stylish fellow, very tight in feather, excellent markings, nice bloom; 2, spl., Longden, rare big shapely Bramble, grand head, good ground colour, finely-spangled, just needs a wee bit more polish; 3, 4, Prior, two more fine exhibits, Chaffinch leading, shines like silk, big, shapely bird, close on leader; 4, very smart, taking Bramble, waxlike in condition, loses only in size; vhc, Howe, smart Chaffie, wee bit small; hc, Olden; c, Jeffreys. THRUSH, ETC. (8): 1, spl., Mrs. Taverner, big, cobby Song Thrush, broad, well-rounded and mooned breast, fine head, in lovely order; 2, Lean and Son, splendid Starling, big, bold fellow, fine ground colour, beautiful even spangling; 3, Mrs. Kivell, another really smart Thrush, in charming condition; 4, Ford, grand-bodied Blackbird, needs a little more time to get into form; vhc, Camp; hc, Elias Griffith; c, Bray. A.O.V. SPECIES (7): 1, spl., Idris Jones, really fine Chough, grand blue-black plumage, deep red bill and legs, in tip-top condition; 2, Bussey, clinking good Jay, rich in colour, fine wings, steady, in AI form; 3, vhc, hc, Thomson, very nice trio, Wryneck leading, good colour and condition, finely-marked, unfortunately deficient in claws; vhc, grand Blackcap; hc, grand Chough, just beaten in colour; 4, Mewton, nice coloured Bearded Reedling, in excellent feather, rather unsteady; c, Tarratt. FOR. LARGE (Members) (6): 1, spl., Tremlett, real good King Parakeet, in fine bloom, nice rich breast colour; 2, Tarratt, lovely Yellow-collared Parrakeet, in beautiful condition; 3, Hoyte, attractive pair of Black-headed Conures, again distinguished by high condition. SMALL (11): 1, spl., 3, 4, Hoyte, perfect Paradise Whydah, leading, followed by a grand group of Finches, and a Red-headed Finch, fine colour and markings; 2, Tarratt, splendid rich-coloured Scarlet Tanager, very unsteady; vhc, c, Clear; hc, Tremlett. GOLDFINCH (8): 1, spl., —, exceptionally rich in colour, trifle frayed in wings, nice style and finish, apparently has not moulted; 2, ——, good face, nice shape and style, close up, pale yet; 3, ——, very neat, good tan; 4, ——grand body, needs time; vhc, ——; hc, ——; c, ——. BULLFINCH (1) 1, spl., ——, cobby and shapely, very fair colour. LINNET, ETC. (8): 1, spl., Pridham, sound colour, very decently marked; 2, Snell, grand conditioned, well marked hen; 3, Clark, good style and shape; 4, c, Camp; vhc, Brenton; hc, Wills, most of the exhibits here were too unsteady for words. A.O.S. SEEDEATER (6): 1, spl., hc, Camp, real good Yellowhammer leading, rich grand colour, well marked; 2, vhc, Snell, very fine Chaffinch, big, shapely, grand condition; 4, Watson, another very nice Yellowhammer. INSECTIV. (3): 1, spl., Clark, attractive Wheatear, nice size and colour; 2, White, good Great Tit and Robin. A.O. SPECIES (5): 1, spl., Hammett; 2, Tremlett; 3, Gouldson; 4, Dyer; vhc, Harvey; all very nice Song Thrushes, little between them, leader rather the best in colour. HYBRID LIGHT (bred 1907): 1, —— very promising 4-pointed Goldie, nice size and shape; 2, ——, clear Goldie, very nice quality, unfortunately small, and a hen, ran closely for the Members' Hybrid Cup; 3, ——, well marked 4-pointed, good quality; 4, ——, lovely feather, very well marked, a hen, though; vhc, ——; hc, ——; c, ——. DARK (bred 1907) (9): 1, Members' Cup, ——; promising Goldie-Bullie, chubby and shapely, showing colour nicely; 2, Browning, very taking Jonque Greenie-Canary, good size, shape and colour, full of quality, close up; 3, big smart buff Greenie.

Owing to defective catalogue names left blank cannot be given this week.

LIGHT MULE LOST FROM DULWICH SHOW.

SIR,—Our winning Light Mule at the Dulwich and Peckham Show has unfortunately gone astray, and up till time of writing has not been located. This will explain his absence from Plymouth, where he was entered. HOPKINS AND ALLSOPP.

MR CLARK'S RETIREMENT.

SIR,—We will close this correspondence on our part with the following remarks. Our old members still adhere to the fact that practically speaking, Mr. Clarke is only a novice, as they can give him years' start. As regards his hanging a Linnet in 1892, when Mr. Johnson was proprietor of the King's Head, one of our members who has hung birds for above 20 years at all the leading contests says that no contests were held at the King's Head when Mr. Johnson was the proprietor. Re Mr. Summers' remarks: He should have known that Mr. Wood was only fulfilling his duties as secretary to our association, and at the instigation of our committee was replying to Mr. Clarke's "twittering." Seeing that he, Mr. Summers, is the secretary of the King's Head Association, he will have to obey his committee regarding the correspondence of his club.

COMMITTEE OF THE PRINCE ALBERT INN LINNET ASSOCIATION.

SCOTTISH BRITISH BIRD AND MULE CLUB MEDALS.

SIR,—I desire to clear away any grievance which may exist amongst members who were unable to attend our meeting. It may be a difficult matter—nay, I am sure it is—to convince them that no clique exists at present for the purpose of refusing medals to any exhibition. Why? Because the club, being a popular one, cannot afford to do so. No one for a moment dreamt that some of our societies would be left out. Cupar, for instance, has lost them this season, and others who were granted last season. Hamilton has had them for three seasons now, and the members, without any prejudice whatever, thought it wise to encourage new societies. But it is not to be taken for granted that Hamilton or Bathgate will not apply again, or any others for that matter. We will gladly welcome any application again, and let them stand their chance. "Don't be downhearted." "A fair field and no favour." If a society gives good classification and appoints judges who are fearless and genuine men, there will be no fear of their show not being a success. An opportunity will be given members to attend a meeting on Saturday, the 19th, at 3.30, at the City of Glasgow Show, for important business, when I hope to see Mr. W. Johnstone and others there.

R. FARMER, Secretary.

THE COCKERMOUTH FEATHER SOCIETY AND THE C.B.U.

SIR,—Cumberland fanciers and others further afield will doubtless wonder why two shows should be announced and held on the same days within a limited area, and with a necessarily restricted local support; and, further, and, stranger still, both under the rules of the C.B.U. The committee of Cockermouth Show feel that the circumstances relating to the unfortunate clashing and the unfair and almost unfriendly attitude of the C.B.U. should, in justice to them, be placed before the Fancy. I wish at the outset to state that we have no quarrel with the —— Society; they are in no sense to blame, except involuntarily, as we also were, for an unfortunate selection. No words of mine must be taken as imputing other than honourable motives to them, and I wish them, even under adverse conditions, a successful show—a feeling I have no doubt they reciprocate. No, our complaint—a strong and just one—is against the C.B.U. for allowing the two shows to stand on the same days, and the deep feelings of resentment and sense of injustice aroused in Cockermouth will be shared by most of your readers after consideration of the explanations and correspondence which follows. This, sir, is not a matter affecting Cockermouth alone—it concerns every society affiliated to the C.B.U., especially the younger and less influential ones, those who have a position to make and a reputation to secure. This is, perhaps, an unnecessary preamble, but I must add to it the facts that we hailed the institution of the C.B.U. with unfeigned satisfaction, overlooking minor defects in its constitution, and giving the executive since its inception our unqualified support, that we have been members of Union almost from the first, and the present dispute notwithstanding, intend to continue so.

And now, Sir, to details. Our last two shows have been held in January, but on the suggestion of many friends and exhibitors we, on May 3rd, after two meetings of the committee, and having before us the dates, so far as was known, of all local shows, finally fixed on December 6th and 7th for our next show. The day following this was advertised in the "West Cumberland Times," a paper which circulates in every part of the county. Later, at a meeting of the Cage Bird Sub-Committee—we are a mixed society—it was casually mentioned that —— had fixed on the same dates. Our secretary, who was only acting pro. tem. was instructed to write the society in question and point out that we had already selected these dates and advertised them, and as they had, so far as we knew, omitted to do this, we thought they might change. In due course a reply was received regretting the clashing, but stating that their arrangements were so far forwarded that it was impossible for them to make any alteration. We then called a meeting of the full committee, but try as we could—we had poultry, pigeon and cage bird fixtures to consider—we could find no other suitable dates that did not clash with some other organisation, and even our old dates, so we were informed, had been taken up. So, much to our regret, we reluctantly adhered to the original selection. One consolation was that the other society had a large Scottish connection, which we have not, and that they were not members of the C.B.U., whilst we were. One member remarked, "Perhaps, after all, it will not affect either of us much, for the C.B.U. will give us their support." What misplaced confidence, as the sequel, will prove!

At this meeting, on June 14th, to prevent the necessity for appointing a paid secretary, I undertook to conduct the correspondence and complete the arrangements for the show, another gentleman offering to act as show secretary. Consequently we proceeded at once to complete contracts necessary for the holding of our show on December 6th and 7th, and advertised the same in your guarantee column, which all fanciers scan, and which most certainly would or should be seen by Mr. Lythgoe and his executive.

On August 6th the following postcard was sent on to me, the wording of which should be most carefully noted:—

Dear Sir,—Have applied for affiliation to the Union, their show date being the same as yours. If your Society intends renewing its membership please let me know at your earliest convenience if there is any objection to —— being affiliated and holding their show on this date.

Yours faithfully,
G. W. LYTHGOE

In reply to this, I sent the explanation detailed above, and after stating that we should welcome the adhesion of the —— Society to the Union, left the question of sanction of dates to the executive. This was the right course to pursue, and I followed it, trusting to the good sense of the executive to see that we, as then existing and original members of the Union, would receive as our due preferential treatment. So far I have placed before you all the facts that were placed before Mr. Lythgoe. His reply was received by me on September 8th, and is as follows:—

Dear Sir,—I send herewith receipt for 5s., your Society's subscription to the Union.

It is a pity that your date should clash with that of ——, and it would have been much better if you had intimated the date to me as soon as it was selected, as at that time —— had not affiliated.

I am afraid there is nothing for it but to allow the two shows to stand. —— had affiliated and notified me their date before I received your intimation that you were renewing your subscription. Moreover, —— fixed their date before you, and is a show confined to Cage Birds, giving a very good classification, and should really have the preference, but in view of the fact that you were members of the Union we cannot (of course) refuse you the Union's countenance, though many of the Council were opposed to the two shows being held on the same day.

Yours faithfully,
GEO. W. F. LYTHGOE.

Will readers kindly compare the postcard written on August 8th with the above and notice the inaccuracies and misstatements. To the above I replied at some length, but with your permission will hold over the further correspondence until next week. In the meantime it is sufficient to say that the above letter aroused here the deepest indignation not only at allowing the two shows to stand, but at the patronising, almost insulting, tone pervading it.

CLASSIFICATION AT SHOWS, ETC.

An Appeal for the Hybrid Section.

SIR,—Will you kindly allow me a little space in your valuable paper to show your correspondent, "Chas. J. Ward," that there are some shows in the provinces that do give a full classification for Mules and Hybrids, independent of Canaries or British Birds—a class for light Goldfinch Mules and also a class for Any Variety Hybrid. Such classification is very rare excepting in two of three of the largest shows. If anyone has not received a schedule for our Swansea and District C.B.A. show (on November 6th and 7th) I shall be pleased to forward one on receipt of postcard. I think that, with such classification the exhibitors ought to give us a record entry, so that it may encourage other societies to give similar classes. Then, if "Chas. J. Ward" and others will do their parts I am sure we, as one society, are prepared to still further improve our schedule. Other improvements your correspondent writes of I quite agree with excepting the full prize money. I am afraid this is the exhibitors' faults, in not giving them a full entry. You will admit that the majority of fanciers are working men, who can ill afford to pay towards "squaring-up" their expenses each year, as in some districts the shows get very little patronage from the outside public. That is the cause of a good many of the shows closing their books. We like to see the balance on the right side now and again. ALF. HITCHINGS,
Sec., Swansea and Dis. C.B.A.

ALLEGED LACK OF MANAGEMENT AT DULWICH AND PECKHAM SHOW.

SIR,—Answering the appeal from the above club, I made six entries, and on going to see the show on the opening day at 3.30 p.m., which was advertised to open at 2 p.m., I was told I could not enter until 4.15. After waiting I was at last allowed in, when you may judge my surprise to see hundreds of birds and cages in a confused muddle on the floor and packed under the staging, and exhibitors trying to find their birds to give them water. In one case I saw a glass of water knocked over one pile of birds that was stacked on the floor; also a female knocked over seven cages with her skirt as she passed. In fact, it was a complete muddle, like a ship without a captain. You will notice in their schedule they state, "The committee being composed of experienced fanciers, exhibitors may rely on all exhibits entrusted to our charge receiving the same careful attention that would be bestowed upon them by the exhibitors themselves." Now, sir, I should like to know where these fanciers were. True, I saw two boys staging at 5.30 p.m., and a nice job they were making of it, mixing several classes together. As a matter of fact, I called their attention to their mistake. I should also like to ask the exhibitors, Can the judge give satisfaction to them, having to judge by gas light, and a very bad light at that, as when I left the show, about 5.45 p.m., there were more than half the birds to be judged and staged? Well, on Friday, about 3.30, I again visited the show, which was looking more ship-shape. Nevertheless, not half the birds in the champion classes could be seen, birds could not be found by their owners; in one case a Mr. C—— found one bird entered in Class 8, Hens, at last he found it in Class 4, which, of course, was not judged. Then again, in Class 28, Mr. C—— had one marked absent. There were also about 20 other entries marked absent which were there. On calling the attention of the C.B.U. representative, he told me it was disgraceful how the birds were treated. He said he asked the manager to see that a lot of champion Yorkshires had water, but he took no notice. When they did get the water some had hardly the strength to drink. I also saw that some of the birds were dead, and I shall not be surprised to hear of more, after they reach home. Again, there was some trouble with the numbers; two cages were marked the same in packing up the birds I was bringing away. I noticed one I should be pleased to be the proud owner of. Of course, I returned it to the steward, and got my own one. It is a good thing for the officials that a representative of the Protection of Cruelty to Dumb Animals was not present. J. E. REEVES.

A SIMPLE HEATING APPARATUS.

SIR,—Having noticed many enquiries made in CAGE BIRDS for an economical heating apparatus for the bird-room, I enclose a sketch of one that I have used both in my bird-room and in my infirmary for dogs and cats, and trust the following few remarks will prove of interest to those who are in want of such an appliance. The apparatus itself needs no description from me, as your readers can see from the sketch what it is like. The extreme length from boiler to the curve at the end of the water tank is 6ft. 6ins., the extreme height from the ground to the water tank 2ft., and at other parts only 18ins. It will maintain a temperature of 80degs. F. at the cost of 2½ft. of gas consumed per hour in a room of 24ft. in length 16ft. in width, and 12ft. in height. But as there is no need to heat a room above 60degs. F., less gas will naturally be expended. As will be seen from the sketch, a vent pipe is affixed to the furnace to carry off the expended gas to the outside of the building. Personally, I am against artificial heat in the bird-room unless under certain conditions, namely—1. Where delicate non-acclimatised birds are kept; 2. Where it is considered necessary to breed young Canaries in the early part of the year, when the temperature of the outside atmosphere is changeable and the weather wet and chilly. Under these conditions I find it is imperative to use artificial heat. Experience dearly bought has taught me that the teachings of those who preach against the total abolition of artificial heat is only true in part. Egg-binding, always in my experience due to chilly weather, would be prevented if the birds were kept in an equable steady temperature during the early months of the year. As to delicate foreign birds, a very low temperature does not seem to hurt them so much as changeable, wet or chilly weather, and it is necessary, in order to prevent their death during the first winter and spring of their residence in our ever-alterable and damp climate, to have recourse to artificial heat. The maker of my apparatus, which I strongly recommend, is Mr. J. Dewhurst, 52, North End Road, West Kensington, who is not only a practical water engineer, but also a true lover of birds, and one who knows their wants. HENRY GRAY, M.R.C.V.S.

A MAGPIE IN TOWN.

SIR,—Passing by a busy thoroughfare (Walham Green, Fulham) on October 21st, I had the pleasure of witnessing what is not often seen by a Londoner. At about seven o'clock I saw a fine Magpie, flying rather low, so that I got a good view of it. I thought at first it had escaped from a cage, but on closer observation I saw the flight and tail feathers were in perfect condition. I expect it had got out of its latitude during the fierce gale on Sunday. It was flying in a south-westerly direction, no doubt making for Wimbledon Common. A little farther on I crossed an open space known as Eel Brook Common. Here I had the pleasure of seeing two House Martins hawking for food. They were flying very low, seemed in good condition, strong on the wing, and very happy, as I heard them twittering when flying over my head. On October 18th I saw a Sparrow Hawk flying over the City; I expect the rough weather had blown it out of its course. J. P. CARR. Fulham.

NEW SOCIETY FOR HOLYTOWN, NEW STEVENSON, AND DISTRICT.

SIR,—At a meeting recently held in Robb's Hall, a branch of the Ornithological Society was formed, to be called Holytown, New Stevenson and District O.S. The Chairman of the meeting, Mr. Robert Murdoch, in a few well-chosen words, explained the object for which they had assembled, after which the following office-bearers and members of committee were unanimously elected:—Chairman, Mr. John Gillan; Secretary, Mr. Hugh McCarey; Treasurer, Mr. Robert Murdoch; Committee, Messrs. David Harper, Robert Douglas, William Woods, James Lamb, James Millar, James O'Neile, and William Page. This being all the most important business, a hearty vote of thanks to the Chairman brought to a close a most successful first society meeting.

H. McCAREY, Secretary.

SOFT MOULT AND ITS CAUSE.

SIR,—Old fanciers who observe the above heading will thoroughly understand and appreciate the serious consequences resulting therefrom. Without doubt it is one of the most dreaded complaints that can visit a bird room, and there are not many old hands who have not had some experience of it at one time or another. No doubt some of them have been beaten as to its cause. They have looked about their rooms for draughts and damp, and found them not. They then put it down to the changeable weather—something they could not do anything to prevent. Now, the question is, do you disturb your stock at night after they have gone to roost by lighting a gas burner or lamp, so that the birds wake up and get on the move for an hour or so? If you do, you are a sure candidate for soft moulting, which you will not forget when next breeding season comes round. You will be able to count your young birds easily on one hand, for a bird that has gone completely through a soft moult is absolutely useless for the breeding cage for the following season, as it saps every bit of nature out of a bird and leaves it but a shadow of its former self. "Don't disturb your bird at night." Make that your watchword, and with good ventilation, cleanliness, and a good plain diet through the winter months the breeding season is sure to be fruitful. These remarks apply to those fanciers who keep their stock without artificial heat, which is by far the most healthy and natural.

"OLD HAND."

THE ETERNAL TRANSIT QUESTION.

SIR,—I should be glad to hear more about the Cage Bird Union and what it is doing for its members. Is not the Union sufficiently strong to tackle the different railways and get them to book our exhibits return journey when we are sending them to shows? If they would do so, I do think it would be a benefit to exhibitors at large. In this district we are in the happy position of having two railway companies. One, I might say, a train comes into soon after breakfast on Sunday morning, which is all right for week-end shows, but the other station is closed until after six o'clock on Sunday night. The first train, either luggage or passenger, arrives at 6.29 p.m., if we could book our exhibits return. The other company's servants, perhaps, would not be so ready at seizing them at the shows if they had the trouble of paying back through the clearing house the fares we had already paid. I sent to Newcastle Show, and marked return label via Midland, also asked the secretaries (whom I don't blame, for I know what railway servants are; they will collect anything) on the entry form to return certain via Midland, but they did not come Midland, therefore Mr. Bailey had a journey of five miles to Lancaster. Then, to his surprise, no one was at the station who dared deliver the birds to him, so he had another journey into the town to find the proper official before getting the case. Another of our members had a similar experience after Burnley Show. I might say, if one books a horse to a show, he can book it return at a fare and quarter; why cannot we book birds return journey?

HOUSE'S
CANARY MANUAL
Price ONE SHILLING. Post Free 1/2.
Superbly illustrated by the Champion Canary Artist Mr. H. NORMAN. EVERY BIRD DEPICTED IS A VERITABLE MODEL, and shows the breeder what to aim for. Some idea of the popularity of this Practical Manual may be gathered from the fact that under the title of "The British Canary," it has passed its Third Edition, entering upon a Fourth Edition of 5,000 copies under the new title of "HOUSE'S CANARY MANUAL." MR. HOUSE has thoroughly revised and brought this work up-to-date and incorporated a chapter on the Roller or Singing Canary."

The Yorkshire Canary.

A Lecture Delivered before the Wallsend and Mid-Tyne C.B.S.

By T. C. CRAWHALL.

In giving you a short paper on the Yorkshire Canary, or as they are called, "The gentlemen of the Fancy," I will endeavour to explain my views on this interesting variety.

I do not wish to pose as an authority on this subject, but I trust that in the course of this lecture I shall have been of some benefit to my brother fanciers of this Association, and to novices in particular.

Standard Show Birds.

To commence with, I think the standard of excellence should be the first consideration, as that gives us some idea of what a good specimen should be, and as it is rather a difficult matter to please all the judges, I believe we shall not be far wrong if we accept the standard laid down by Mr. J. Broadley, one of the oldest and most successful breeders and exhibitors.

I have taken the liberty of quoting this standard because I do not think it can be improved upon.

Allowing 100 points for a first-class specimen, they are allotted as follows:—

Clear, ticked and unevenly marked.—Shape of head, small and round, with a good bright bold eye, 5; neck long, straight, and well filled, 5; shoulders narrow and round, 5; back long, straight, and well filled, 5; wings, long, fitting close to sides and lying close on tail, 6; breast, round and smooth, 5; body, long, gradually tapering away to the tail, 8; legs, long, inclined to bend a little, showing thighs well and nicely covered, 4; tail, long, straight, and well folded, 4; colour, 5; feather, short, close and silky, 10; position, erect, appearance bold and cheeky, head, neck, back and tail running in a straight line, 20; size, length 6¾ ins., evenly built, 8; condition and cleanliness, 10.

Evenly marked. — An evenly marked Yorkshire must be either 4 pointed, both eyes and both wings; or 6 pointed, both eyes, both wings, and both sides of tail. The points are allotted as follows: Markings on eyes: neat and regular in outline and distinct, 20; markings on wings: even in character, value to decrease as the markings extend beyond secondary flights, 20; tail: long, straight and well folded, 5; shape: good position, fair size, and erectness of carriage, 25; feather: short, close and silky, wings to lie closely on tail, 15; colour: good, and markings dark, 5; condition and cleanliness, 10.

In my opinion the stamp of bird winning on the show bench at the present time is too stout, some of them resemble the Lancashire in size, and I prefer a slimmer bird myself, but as the saying goes, "When we are in Rome we must do as Rome does," so I suppose we must breed them to suit the judges. You will notice in the above standard for clears, ticked and unevenly marked birds, the greatest proportion of points is allotted to quality of feather, position and condition, 40 per cent. being allotted for these qualifications, whereas only 8 per cent. are given to size. By all means keep up the standard length of 6¾ inches and even build, but I would prefer to see them reduced in size of body.

The principal faults to be avoided are broad head and eyebrows, which show the Lancashire blood, a hollow neck or back, pointed chest with a frill, crossing the wings, dropping the tail, and crouching or standing across the perch, also a wide or fish tail.

Stock Birds.

Having noted the stamp of bird required to win on the show bench, the next point to consider is the kind and quality of stock birds to produce them, and I would recommend anyone starting this variety to obtain the pairs from one source and not to get a cock bird from one man and a hen from another, no matter how good they may appear, as you do not know how they are bred. There is nothing like pedigree in Yorkshires.

In my opinion the cock should be nearly 7 ins. long, and the hen 6¾, tight as possible in feather. I would not object to a hen only 6½ in. length, provided I was certain she was bred from long parents, but she must be full of style and quality. The usual method of pairing is buff cock to yellow hen, or vice versa, but I always like one of them to be ticked or lightly marked, as a blend of green blood retains the quality of feather. Obtain the best birds you possibly can, according to the depth of your pocket. Good stock birds will always fetch good prices, but it is far better to have one or two good pairs than five or six which will do you no good.

There appears to be a great demand for yellow hens. Nearly every application I have had for hens this year has been for yellows, but I am almost certain that birds equally good are bred from buff hens. You may find it necessary to double yellow occasionally to shorten feather, but you must remember that you will lose in size and length. I should not attempt it unless both cock and hen were full standard length.

If you do double yellow, the yellows from them should be mated next year to buffs which are bred from double buffs. This will improve the quality of feather in the yellows and will give a better colour to the buffs. I also like to breed from a clear bird mated to a nice bronzy green or variegated, but do not pair two clear birds together, as the progeny will not retain their depth of colour, no matter how much colour food you may give.

Pairing Up.

In pairing up I usually mate a two-year old cock to a young hen, or vice versa. The usual time for pairing up is the 1st week in April, but this year, owing to the exceptional weather, I mated my birds during the last week in March. Up to the present I have ten hens sitting out of 16 pairs, and the eggs appear to be very fertile; still, one must be guided by circumstances. If the birds are forward and the weather fairly warm, I should not hesitate to pair them up a little earlier; otherwise the hens may start laying, and the first clutch of eggs will be lost.

Breeding Cages.

I do not intend to go into details of feeding, as that is a subject more fitted for a separate paper on the general management of Canaries, and would take up too much time this evening; but I will pass on to describe the breeding cages I use and which I find most suitable for this variety. I made them myself, and the dimensions are 24 ins. long, 15 ins. high, and 11 ins. deep. They are all of pine wood, with a removable punched bar, wire front, having two doors in it, and a wire slide to part the birds when required. I have also a door cut in the end (7ins. from the top of the cage), and large enough to hang the nest pan on, so that when the door is opened the nest pan comes out with it, and the eggs or young can be easily seen without placing the hand inside the cage. I have here an example in cardboard, which will show you exactly what I mean (exhibit).

The perches are on a level with the top of the nest pan, which allows plenty of head room, and that is what is required for Yorkshires, these being birds of position.

Treatment of Young Stock.

As soon as the young birds are out on the perch, I ring them with removable rings, and about three days after I separate them from their parents by placing the wire slide in the cage, which allows the old ones to feed them between the wires. This prevents them from being plucked. I find it a good plan to ring all young birds on the same leg, i.e., this year on right leg and next year left leg, you can then distinguish them more easily when they are in flight cages. The numbers are entered up in my stock book, with description, date of hatching, and how they are bred.

When they are about a month old I remove them from the breeding cages into flight cages to develop, and as the moult approaches I put them on to colour food, hanging a thin red blind over the window of the room to keep out the sunlight.

Training Young Stock.

I now come to one of the most important points, and that is the training of the young birds for the show bench, for without this qualification of training it is useless exhibiting them with any hope of success.

My system is to run them into cages made especially for the purpose. Each bird has a separate compartment, and they can only see one another by standing on the perch and looking through a small hole cut in the side of the cage, high enough to make them stretch their legs and neck. Another simple plan is to put them in the usual show cages and have on each cage a piece of cardboard with two wire hooks attached, and hung on the top cross-bar. This will train them to assume a good position, if the cages are placed side by side, and will also steady them if you scratch the bottom of the cage occasionally.

I will conclude, thanking you very much for you kind attention, and I shall be pleased to answer questions to the best of my ability.

A WASHING EXHIBITION.

Some Hints from an Old Hand.

To witness a Washing Exhibition given by Mr. H. Davis, on October 14th, there was quite a good sprinkling of visitors. Having everything in readiness, Mr. Davis commenced operations by putting a knob of borax in the first basin, and a teaspoonful of glycerine in the third, amalgamating it with an egg whisp, the temperature of this water being a few degrees cooler than the second.

Catching a Yorkshire (the darling of his heart) and holding it very lightly with his thumb and first finger, he well soaked it with a sponge. Turning it over on its breast, he proceeded to wash it with a hair shaving brush, lathering it well with Vinolia Toilet Soap, wielding the brush with that dexterity and flexibility of wrist born only of years of experience. Placing its tail upon his wrist, which he well brushed in a downward direction, and turning his attention to both its wings, he then reversed the position and started upon its neck, being careful not to touch its eyes, he being a great advocate in allowing them to remain lively until the end.

The neck he considered highly important, for if it was not carefully performed it would have a tendency to twist, and would be in consequence difficult to eradicate. Upon reaching the head, he used a fine tooth brush, the dirt caused by the London atmosphere being hard to remove round the eyes and nose, and was one of the places that would be noticeable if neglected, concluding by rinsing it in clear water, and lastly the glycerine mixture. In all these operations, quickness was his keynote, for the sooner a bird began to shake itself, the better would its plumage appear. Having ready a hot handkerchief folded in three, he rolled the bird up sausage shaped, being careful with the tail, and then placed it on the hearth near the fire (tail towards fire) for a few minutes, previous to transferring it to the drying cage. At the close, which had been watched with intense pleasure, the following answers were given to questions asked by Messrs. S. Turner, A. W. Curtis, F. Pullinger, F. Easterling, P. G. Cooper S. Kelly, A. C. Burn, Trussler, and V. Wynn, viz.: A hot water tank was preferable to a drying cage. He liked a curd soap and would not advise Sunlight Soap unless exceptionally dirty, his favourite being a feather beautifier advertised in CAGE BIRDS. Would wash birds three clear days before a show, but if foggy then only one clear day between. Would spray birds the same evening with tepid water and glycerine. Washing takes the bloom off, but is a necessary evil. Polish is produced by the frequent use of soft water, which, for obvious reasons, is unobtainable in London, also by rubbing the hands lightly over the birds that have previously had glycerine on them (the hands) and rubbed off. The Chairman here remarked that he had been a few days in Lincoln, where he saw the shepherds (no relation to the three members) washing sheep and finishing them off by enveloping them in sawdust, he (the Chairman) supposed that was to produce sheen, and wondered if it would have a similar effect upon birds, which was humorously replied to in the negative.

In seconding a vote of thanks to Mr. Davis, proposed by Mr. H. Trussler, Mr. Easterling spoke of the services he was always willing to render to other Societies and in supporting the same, Mr. Curtis referred to the number of years he had been a member, during which time he had rendered yeoman service to the Association, and was also delighted to think that he would be present at a neighbouring Society, when he was to give them the benefit of his mature experience. Mr. Davis replied in a few well-chosen words.—VICTOR WYNN.

York Fanciers' Go A-Visiting.

On the invitation of Mr. Geo. Harland, writes Mr. A. RICHARDSON, the chairman of the York C.B.S., Messrs. T. Boyle, D. Hunter, H. Shorney, and myself paid a visit to Hull recently. We were met by Messrs. D. Hope and J. Calam, and visited the bird-room of the three gentlemen here mentioned, where it was our privilege to see some grand Norwich, both old winners and youngsters that should win—well-worth going forty miles to see. Mrs. Harland very kindly provided us with a right good Yorkshire dinner, and Mrs. Calam with a substantial tea. Altogether we had a most enjoyable time, and found it a hard task to say "good-bye" to our Hull friends.

The Black-Backed Tanager & Blue Sugar Bird.

By F. FINN, B.A., F.Z.S.

(See this week's Coloured Plate).

Few birds that I can remember met with such admiration in the Avicultural world as the Black-backed Tanager (Calliste melanonota), when Mr. S. M. Townsend's well-known specimen of it was first exhibited. It was not the first to reach England, because they had had it years before at the Zoo. This was before I knew the gardens well, however, and I never saw the bird there. The name Black-backed as applied to this Tanager is objectionable and misleading in more than one way. In the first place, there is another "Black-backed" Tanager (Pipridea melanonota); and, secondly, the most noticeable point about the appearance of Calliste melanonota is not the black on the back, but the wonderfully polished copper hue of the head, which, with the glossy sea-green and straw-colour of the rest of the plumage, make a most striking tout ensemble. In the hen the colours are much less pronounced, as the picture shows. This species belongs to the same group as the more familiar superb Tanager (Calliste fastuosa), and is about the same size, but more elegant in form.

Like so many other Tanagers, it comes from Brazil. It would appear to be not a difficult bird to keep, though one must not too hastily conclude that everything Mr. Townsend shows is an easy subject, it being well known that his skill and care are so great that he may well succeed where others fail. At the same time, Tanagers generally are certainly not delicate; a good soft-food mixture, plenty of soft ripe fruit, and a few insects, are what they require in the way of food, and given also large cages, kept very clean, they will live well for years. Some time ago there died at the Zoo a specimen of the rare and beautiful White-crowned Tanager (Stephanophorus leucocephalus), which had been there for about seventeen years. As long as I knew it, it was always in a cage, and it got a mixture with egg in it—a good proof that this much-abused article of food cannot be so very dangerous, especially as this rare bird was not the survivor of several, but a unique specimen.

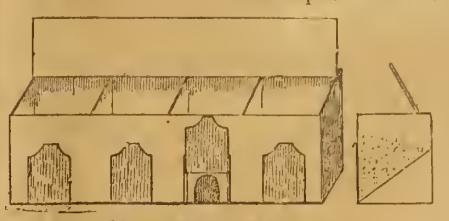
The Tanagers and Sugar-birds are very closely related, and the Blue Sugar-bird (Dacnis cayana) forms a link between them Indeed, in many ways, it is more Tanager than Sugar-bird, as it bites into a banana like one of the former, and does not suck at things like the long-billed purple Sugar-birds of the genus Coereba. It must be remembered that the Tanagers, like the Larks, vary very much in style of bill, some species having stout and others quite slender beaks. The Blue Sugar-bird only bears the colour from which it derives its name, if a male; the hen is a green bird, with a tinge of blue on the head, but without the black markings which diversify the plumage of her mate. The sort of food which would keep an English Blackcap would do well for this pretty creature, which, like most foreign soft-bills, is not a delicate bird. Really delicate soft-bills naturally very seldom get over a long voyage; fancy a big consignment of our Jenny Wrens being sent abroad!

While on the subject of Sugar-birds, I may as well allude to the other species of this charming group I have seen alive. The Green Sugar-bird (Chlorophanes spiza) is a lovely sea-green bird with a black head, and a decidedly long beak, but its beak is not nearly so long as those of the two lovely species of Coereba, which have the beak much like our Tree-Creepers in length and curvature. In fact, they are sometimes called "Blue Creepers." These are almost, if not quite, the most exquisite foreign birds in existence, I think, and it is difficult to say which is most beautiful. The best-known one, the Yellow-winged (Coereba cyanea), which is sometimes on sale, but very rarely, is a lovely purple like a cock Gouldian Finch's breast; the wings are black with the inner webs of the flights yellow, not visible in repose, and the crown on the head is of a metallic sea-green, which hue is enhanced by the bird's constantly erecting these feathers. The legs are a bright cherry-red, well shown off against the purple plumage. The hens and young cocks are of a subdued green, with the legs not quite so brilliant a red. The male, when out of colour, like a Weaver, he only bears his brilliant plumage part of the year, resembles them, but retains his distinctive wing-colouring.

This bird has lived for years at the Zoo in a cage in the parrot house; it needs good egg and other soft food, made up sweet and sloppy, as it likes sucking up its food. Soft ripe fruit is also good for it, and should always be given, to say nothing of insects.

The other species, the Purple Sugar-bird (Coereba coerulea) has not yet got beyond the Zoo's collection. It is a really wonderful bird, a self-purple, with the exception of black quills and tail, with the legs a brilliant mustard-yellow—quite a Blue-coat boy's costume. The hen is also a pretty little thing, green, with the under-surface streak, and some blue and buff marking about the head and face. Her legs are bright green, and those of the young males, which resemble her in plumage, are yellowish green. This species was actually described in an avicultural publication some time back as the young of the preceding one! It will be seen, however, that it is very notably distinct. The male appears to have the same change of plumage as the previous species, but I have never seen it completed. This bird has the habit of flying up and hovering exactly like a true Humming-bird, which gives it an additional charm. It feeds like the last one, and the two species live well together in a large cage. All these birds come from South America, and though they need not be kept hot, should be treated with care as regards temperature; I have no doubt that in real summer weather they would do all right outdoors.

ILLUSTRATED IDEAS



Under this heading we shall illustrate weekly some idea useful to the bird keeper. Readers are invited to send us particulars of any novel and practical appliance of use in our hobby, either in cage, bird room or aviary, with a rough sketch of same where possible. Every "Illustrated Idea" used in this column will entitle the sender thereof to a postal order for two shillings and sixpence.

STORE BOX FOR SEEDS.

Sent by R. C. Sands, 2, Laceby Street, Monks Road, Reading.

I am enclosing a sketch of a very useful Seed Box, which I have in use myself. The dimensions are 15 ins. long by 6 ins. deep, and 6 ins. wide inside, which allows of five compartments 3 ins. by 6 ins., for different seeds. In the front of the box, for each compartment, a hole is cut to enable the seed to pass through. A piece of zinc is made to slide up and down over each hole, and is bent over at the top to allow of drawing up. The box has two bottoms, the inside one having a good incline (as illustrated), so that when the slide is drawn up the seed will pass through the holes quite easily. The idea of this box is to enable one to fill the seed boxes easily and quickly, by simply holding a seed vessel under the compartment you require the seed from and drawing the slide. The box is provided with a lid to keep the seed free from dust, etc. When properly made and painted black outside the box has a very smart appearance.

AN EASILY-MADE MOUSE TRAP.

Sent by T. Aitken, 609, Springburn Road, Glasgow.

I enclose a sketch of a mouse trap which is easily made and may be useful to those who are troubled with mice in their bird-rooms, or elsewhere. The things required to construct the trap are as follows:—(a) A board about 18 ins. long and about 12 ins. broad, any thickness; also a heavy brick, or any other heavy substance to place on top of this. (b) A switch about 3 ft. long and about ¾ in. thick; this to be bent round in a semi-circle, and a cord about ¼ in. thick tied across from one end to the other. (c) A strong cord about ¼ in. thick. This is nailed at one end to the board (a) at the point shown in the illustration. The other end is tied on to the middle of (d) a stick 3 ins. long and ¼ in. thick, (e) a stick 6 ins. long and ¼ in. thick, with a piece of cheese or bread tied on to one end for bait. The method of setting the trap can be seen in the illustration.

WILD BIRD LIFE.

Across the Downs.

The ordinary wild bramble is about the commonest of our shrubs among the undergrowth of the woods and hedgerows, and yet it is a graceful and beautiful as any. I thought so when I saw a brown Linnet perched upon a berry-laden branch, with leaves of green, brown, and gold. It was a picture daily seen among the hedgerows, but none the less beautiful. It was a picture of colour and life, for birds are the very personification of life, being restless and active, and greatly exceeding animals in vivacity. Considering the many beautiful effects being produced daily by our common wild birds in conjunction with ordinary surrounding objects, it is a wonder to me that some of our great artists do not give us more representations of bird life upon canvas and paper. Year after year, at the end of the great picture gallery exhibitions, we can easily count upon our fingers the pictures in which birds form the principal subjects. But we may possibly see more in good time, for the study of nature is rapidly becoming more popular, and such pictures will be in demand. The brown Linnets have discarded their old clothes, and are now more soberly, yet clearly, clad. The cock birds have, for a time, lost the brilliant crimson of the poll and breast, a colour as rich and vivid as any worn by tropical birds. Thousands of these little songsters can be seen upon the Downs, and very few of the male birds show any traces of the beautiful colouring that will be so conspicuous later on. Without its bird life a large tract of open country like the Downs above Epsom would look cheerless and uninviting. I thought so, at least, as I tramped across them the other day, for the weather was rough and wet, with big, heavy, moisture-laden clouds driving rapidly across the sky, the falling rain quite obscuring the fine view of distant fields and woods. Out on the open Downs a flock of Rooks were busy, heedless of the weather. When disturbed they were carried swiftly away by the wind, or fought hard against it. The power of flight is never better demonstrated than under such conditions. The wind pressure upon a bird, fully exposed as he is, must be very great, and to hold up and gradually make headway against it must require considerable power. When a Rook flies against the wind it is, with him, all hard work; he does not appear to be able to expand his wings and glide as the Gulls and some other birds are capable of doing. One could hardly estimate the numbers of Starlings feeding in the same manner as the Rooks. There appeared to be an unusually large number of them. When seen upon the ground, but when in the air every bird comes into view, and one is able to take in at a glance the whole company. It is interesting to watch such a huge number wheeling and flying about the Downs, but if one could only find their roosting place, where they would no doubt be joined by a few more thousands, the sight of their nightly ariel flights would be worth a long journey to see. Linnets, Greenbirds, Buntings, Chats, Plovers, and Hawks may all be seen upon these open places, if one can only spare the time, and get as far, for a few hours. The bird lover will find plenty to interest him, although we have only our resident birds with us now.

THE YOUNG NATURALIST.

Prizes of 1s. and two of 6d. each will be given after next week for the best three anecdotes about birds written on postcards. Competitors must be children under sixteen years of age, and must state from where stories are taken.

Two stars indicate the Winning Contribution; one star the runners up.

*Canary-Hatched Linnets.

My father last summer found a Brown Linnet's nest with four eggs in it, in a bush on an open plain. He brought them home and put them under a Canary hen, which was already sitting. My father, thinking the eggs would have nothing in them, put the Linnet eggs in their place; they hatched all right, and the hen brought them all up. I am delighted with them.—WILFRED COLDFIELD (age 9), Howden Clough, Birstall, near Leeds.

*A Mountain Visit.

One Saturday I went up to the mountain, where there were some Peewits. The flight of the Peewit is much like that of the Gull. On a moor I saw a big reddish-brown bird rising rapidly in the air. It had a very short tail, and a short beak; I found out it was a Red Grouse. As I was walking along I found a nest with nine white eggs in it. Very often I saw some small birds rising from the ground in lots of twenty or more. Also I found a nest with four very large eggs. I took one of the eggs home with me. Its colour is grey, freckled with dark brown spots. It is very pointed, and is about the size of a hen's egg.—EVAN D. DAVIES (aged 13), 3, Cwmanne-terrace, Cwmanne, near Lampeter, Cardiganshire, South Wales.

*Happy Holidays.

This summer I spent part of my holidays at Filey. One afternoon we climbed the cliff or crags called the Brigg, to watch a colony of Sand Martins who had scooped out their nests near the top. When going near them, we went quietly and lay on our faces, and peeped over the edge. We did not disturb them, but watched them flit to and fro, bringing food to their young in the holes, and then darting off for more. A pretty sight was a flock of (I think) Chaffinches, who flew by just below where we lay, their backs showing the flash of pink, white, and yellow.—NAN SPINK (age 12), 6, Lily-grove, Greek-street, Anlaby-avenue, Hull.

UNDER THE WHITE ROSE.

ON Saturday evening next Mr. James Hartley gives a washing exhibition at the headquarters of the Wibsey O.S. Any novices not thoroughly versed in this subtle and essential part of the Canary Fancy will do well to pay a visit, and learn a wrinkle or two. Friend James gets them through very quickly and well, giving valuable information at the same time.

BRADFORD and district exhibitors not having any home fixture this week had perforce to send their birds away, and right well do they seem to have fared, many honours coming to the hotbed of the Yorkshire Fancy.

I SEE in the club notices of CAGE BIRDS' issue of last week that the Bingley O.S. were holding a members' show, and that the birds were to be staged at 3 p.m. This is against the usual custom of the Societies in the Yorkshire Union, who usually do not have members' shows before 8 p.m. on a day when a Society of the Union is holding an open show.

SOME conversation and arguments have taken place since the beginning of the show season as to what is best to be done in regard to the attitude of the railway companies in respect to the carriage of birds to and from shows, as now, even if the exhibitor is taking them to the show himself, he must pay carriage for them. This is very hard, and makes showing expensive, especially when you don't happen to notch the coveted prizes to pay for this. A great point is here provided, where the combination of the Cage Bird Union and the Yorkshire Union would be a matter of importance, as if only one of these were to bring the subject before the railway board they would try and shirk the application, whereas if in unity the numbers of fanciers names they would be able to lay before them would astonnd them, and awaken interest in what to them must be an enormous traffic; in the course of a year, thousands of pounds find their way annually into the coffers of the railway companies from the exhibitors of live stock. "Unity is strength," and procrastination is the thief of time, so let "Do it now" be the motto.

"STRAIGHT 'UN."

LEEDS.

Usual weekly Linnet singing contest for quality, held at Old Bird House, Shannon-street, when 20 of the picked birds of Leeds sung for three good prizes given by Mr. W. Tillottson. 1, W. Fisher; 2, J. Nicholls; 3, T. Stead. Judges, Messrs. T. Summers and C. Cooper.—T. SEMMERS, Hon. Sec.

LEWISHAM.

At Coach and Horses, High-street, Lewisham, October 19th, at 7.30 p.m. Seven pairs were put on the nail. Barnes ran away with the first prize, doing 2 score 9 in six minutes, the other birds only scoring a few chalks, Larney being runner-up with 2 score odd in ten minutes, other scores being Robinson with 1 score 17, Barber 1 score 11, Still 1 score 14. A special is to be competed for on the first Saturday in November (a Linnet show cage) for the most scores by any competitor.—E. S. LUGG.

ALWAYS USE OUR

DEPOSIT SYSTEM.

We are not responsible for the statements made in advertisements, nor for the bona-fides of either buyers or sellers. In all transactions the adoption of our Deposit System should be insisted upon.

IMPORTANT.

SEND THE FULL COMMISSION.—If the full commission does not accompany the deposit, the vendor will not be notified of its receipt until the amount deficient, plus the extra postage incurred, has been paid to us.

HOW TO REMIT.—Under no circumstances will Cheques or Post-dated Money Orders be accepted as deposits. Uncrossed Postal Orders must be sent and the numbers taken for safety.

RULES.

1.—PROCEDURE.—The intending purchaser should send to this office the amount of the purchase (our deposit fee included), and at the same time he should communicate with the seller, stating what it is he requires sent on approval. We acknowledge receipt of the deposit to both parties. In all cases the depositor should give his name and address, and also that of the vendor, and must write same clearly and distinctly.

2.—END OF TRANSACTION.—The deposit is retained by us until we hear from both parties that the transaction has been completed. If a sale has been effected, we hand the amount deposited to the seller. If a sale has not been effected, we return the amount to the depositor. The transaction must be conducted by the parties themselves. We merely hold the deposit.

3.—AMOUNT OF COMMISSION.—The fee is 6d. for each £1, or fraction of £1, and it must be sent at same time as the deposit.

4.—IMPORTANT POINTS.—The depositor must decide within forty-eight hours of the receipt of the goods whether he will keep or return the same, unless, that is, some other period of approval (of which we must be advised) is agreed upon by both parties. The depositor must at the same time notify us of the fact that he has returned the goods. If the goods are not returned within the said forty-eight hours, we reserve the right to send the deposit to the seller after the expiration of that period. And should the seller fail within three days to notify us of the receipt of his goods back again, the transaction will be treated as ended, and the deposit be returned to the depositor.

5.—A SATISFACTORY PURCHASE.—When a transaction has been completed to the satisfaction of both depositor and seller, both parties must at once return the deposit receipts as a guarantee of its completion. The depositor must at the same time instruct us to pay over the deposit to the seller.

6.—GOODS ALREADY SOLD.—If the goods are sold before our deposit note reaches the seller, or, if for any other reason he declines to do business, he must at once return the deposit note to us. Failing its receipt, we reserve the right to return the deposit to the sender after the expiration of three days.

7.—FRESH TRANSACTION.—In case no sale be effected, a deposit is available for purposes of a fresh transaction, provided another deposit fee be paid.

8.—GOODS IN TRANSIT.—Goods in transit are at the seller's risk, and any damage or loss sustained on the journey must be borne by the seller. But goods not approved of must be properly packed and returned by the same means as were used in sending the same.

9.—PAYMENT OF CARRIAGE.—The payment of carriage must be a matter for arrangement between the vendor and depositor. We do not undertake to settle disputes affecting questions of carriage. But in the absence of other arrangements the purchaser is liable for the carriage of the goods, and if the goods are sent on approval and returned, each party pays the carriage one way.

10.—DISPUTES.—In case of a dispute, the decision of the Editor is final.

PREPAID ADVERTISEMENTS

UNDISPLAYED.—Three Words a Penny up to eighteen words, MINIMUM Fourpence. One Halfpenny per Word for each word over eighteen.

IMPORTANT NOTE.—Two or more Advertisements coming from the same advertiser, even if sent in different names, are reckoned together, and, after the first eighteen words, are charged at two words a penny, but no single advertisement, even if accompanied by others, will be charged at less than the minimum price, viz., Fourpence.

Headlines or Footlines 6d., 9d., 1/-, 1/6, according to size.

Postal Orders must be sent as far as possible. All moneys should be made payable to F. CARL.

The Proprietor reserves the right to refuse any advertisement, or to cancel any advertisement ordered for a series, at any time, without assigning any reason for so doing.

Advertisements close Tuesdays first post in each week, and should be sent to the Advertisement Manager, CAGE BIRDS, 154, Fleet Street, London. Terms for Display Advertisements on application.

MY SELF-ACTING SPRING NET TRAPS.

catch birds of every description, without any attention, price 1/6; larger size, 2/-, carriage paid. I have received hundreds of testimonials stating they are worth double the money of any trap advertised. Read the following, and beware of cheaper imitations that are not worth their carriage:—Sir—I received the trap; it is honestly worth a dozen of some of the nets advertised. I tried it this afternoon, and caught more birds in two hours than I have in other net traps in two months. George Matthews, 2, Lucas-street, Stockport. Sir,—Trap arrived safe. It is far superior to all others. I have to-day caught fifteen Linnets, six Redpolls, and four Chaffinches, three Greenfinches. Joseph Scragg, The Old Brewery, Armitage-road, Rugeley. Entirely self-setting and self-acting trap cage, catches birds and resets without any attention, 1/6; call cages, 4d.; trap cages, single, 6d.; double, 1/-; treble, 1/3; holly bark birdlime, the best and strongest in England, 1/6 lb., 10d. ½ lb., 5d. ¼ lb.; send for a sample tin, and test it, 3d., post free; loose netting, ¾-in. mesh, the finest and strongest made, 7 ft. deep, 3d., 10 feet deep 4d. per yard; clap nets and drag nets, all sizes in stock; send stamp for prices and sample of netting; wholesale list on application.—Henry Morris, Cape Hill, Birmingham.

XXX BIRD LIME

4d. per Box.

W. RUDD, THE Bird Specialist, NORWICH.

IN MY OPINION

satisfied customers are the best possible advertisement a man can have, therefore my sole ambition is to give every customer the fullest satisfaction possible, and to do this I send everything I sell on approval entirely at my own risk, and refund every penny of your money if you are not thoroughly satisfied with goods I send you. If you would have the best catching appliances, as used by all the leading professional bird-catchers, I earnestly solicit a trial and as I am supplying all the large catchers throughout England and Continent, I am certain of pleasing you; clap nets made from genuine thread, ¾ inch mesh, 3 yards long, 4/- pair, 4 yards 5/-, 5 yards 6/-, 6 yards 7/-, 7 yards 8/-, 8 yards 9/-, 9 yards 10/-, 10 yards 11/- per pair; all are 5 feet 6 inches deep and fly 4 feet. Each pair clap nets have two nets to the pair, and are complete with birch, stave, poles, beech pegs, hemp lines, geared all round to bang level and work true, and are fitted with every requisite ready for immediate use; bat folding Sparrow nets, fitted on 19 feet bamboo poles, 6/6 pair complete; loose netting, made from genuine thread specially for bird nets, ¾ inch mesh, 7 feet deep 3d. yard, 9 feet deep 4d. yard, 12 feet deep 5d. yard post free, This netting must not be confused with the thick American cotton netting now being sold as bird netting; mine is very fine, but strong, and does not show on ground. Pure hemp pull lines strong as boat lines, 65 yards long, 1/4 each, carriage paid. Stave poles, pegs, store cages, etc. all in stock, real Japanese bird-lime, absolutely strongest made, guaranteed to hold a Hawk, or Rook, and will hold birds in frost or rain, ½ lb 6d., ¼ lb. 10d., 1 lb. 1/6; sample 3d., all post free Self-acting spring net traps 24 inches long, 1/- each, 18 inches long, 9d. each. These net traps are by far the largest and best traps on the market, and are guaranteed to catch and hold any bird from a Wren to a Rook. They cannot get out of order, and a child can set them. Single trap cages 6d. each, 4/6 dozen; double ditto 10d. and 1/- each, 7/6 and 8/6 dozen; treble ditto, 1/3 each, 12/- dozen. All have separate compartment for eall bird, in addition to the traps. Patent self setting and self-acting trap cages, guaranteed to reset without any attention immediately a bird is caught, 1/6 each. Round or square topped call cages 3d. each, 2/6 dozen; 27/- gross. Goldfinch and Linnet cages, 6d. each, 4/6 dozen; Lark runner cages 6d., 8d., 10d., and 1/- each, 3/6, 4/-, 4/6, and 6/6 dozen; singing box cages, 10d., 1/- and 1/3 each 8/6, 10/- and 12/- dozen. Bright all metal drawing room canary cages, with cut glass round, 3/6 and 4/6 each. Solid brass ditto, with ruby glass round 5/6, 6/6, 7/6, and 10/6 each. Parrot cages from 4/6 to £10 each. Penny tin drinkers, absolutely neatest and most durable made, three doz. 1/3 six doz. 2/3, or 4/- gross; zinc ditto, same size, 9d doz., three doz. 2/-, six doz. 3/6, or 6/- gross Black enamelled drinkers for show cages, 1/- doz. post free, halfpenny tin drinkers, three doz. 10d. or 3/- gross. Dealers should send stamp for trade list of cages, prices and sizes will astonish them See following testimonials. Little Eaton, near Derby, October 10th.—Sir,—Received netting this afternoon; many thanks for same; it is stronger than I expected.—Yours, F. Moss." "Milton, near Northampton, October 10th. Sir,—Please send ½ lb lime, as I cannot get any good about here.—Yours John Green." " 19, Victoria Street, Buckland Dover, October 8th. Sir,—I am very well satisfied with the nets, they are far better than I expected Yours, R. Buddle." "2, Hollingdrake Yard, off James Street, Doncaster. October 7th,—Sir,—I received netting, and think it is the best netting I ever had, and I have tried all the other firms, as I should know. Please send another 12 yards.—Yours, A. Croxford." (On October 14th Mr. Croxford orders another 20 yards.—W.G.) "23, Clarence Square, Gosport, October 7th. Sir,—Birds' cages, nets, etc., to hand, and I am very well satisfied with all, thanking you for promptness.—Yours W. Buxton." "47, Bells Road, Gorleston. Dear Sir,—I like my nets very much; indeed, they work splendidly, they are so light and fine they ensnare the birds so well, it's a pleasure to use them.—Yours, E. Morley." "1, Field Cottages, Rassau Mon. Sir,—Please send following netting, etc. The last netting I had from you was grand, I caught a number of birds with it, and then sold it for treble the price I paid you for it.—Yours, W. Hayward." "Gedney, Holbeach, Lincs.—Sir,—Your netting is as superior to other firms' stuff as gold is to copper.—Yours, C. Cubley." "46, George Street Altofts, Normanton. Sir,—I am very pleased with nets you sent me, and I only wish every other advertiser would be as honest as you have been to me. Please send on the following.—Yours, Ben Siddaway." "Greenfield House, Bedwas, Mon. Sir—Received netting and am quite satisfied with it please send 3 more yards same as last.—Yours, A. Davies." "80, Cumberland Road, Reading. Sir,—I am very pleased with netting received from you before; it gives every satisfaction, and I recommend it to all my friends. Please send on the following.—Yours, G. Bowyer." Please note some of the above letters are from expert catchers, who probably catch more birds in one season than most men see in course of their lifetime. For full printed list of all catchers' appliances, send stamp, and don't forget that everything I sell is guaranteed exactly as represented, and sent on approval, entirely at my own risk, either cash or deposit system, and money fully and freely refunded if every satisfaction not given. See British Birds, and also Roller Canary columns, for further advertisements.

BIRD CATCHERS.

Buy from Maker, and get best value obtainable; it would never pay me to send out cheap and blown together goods. I have been in the trade for years, and still sell more nets than all other so-called makers combined. Every article is sent out on approval; cash or deposit system; if not thoroughly satisfied return them and your money will be refunded; not a single article has been returned this season, but testimonials come in, by every post, although I seldom publish them. Here is one selected from scores, guaranteed unsolicited:—"Great Baddow, Chelmsford, Essex. Dear Sir,—Please send me a pair Clapnets, as per CAGE BIRDS, 18ft. by 42ft; amount enclosed. I had a pair of a Birmingham man which were practically useless.—Yours truly, S. G. Crisp." You can't afford to keep buying, but take my advice and buy a genuine article. MATTHEWS, LINNET KING.

To exhibitors, Mule-breeders, and contest singers. I have a larger stock of English birds than any man in England. All large, healthy birds; been carefully selected from hundreds of dozens which passes through my hands every week. This enables me to send you the largest and best-coloured birds you can possibly get. Have supplied winners in open All-England shows for the last five years at working men's prices, and patronised by all the leading exhibitors, Mule-breeders, and contest singers. I wish that all fanciers who wish to obtain a fierce-singing Linnet or a few show birds would call and inspect my British bird buildings, specially built for British. Everybody is delighted who goes through them, as they receive my best attention. Always keep 500 in stock. Scores of fanciers call every week, and are all astonished at my stock of birds and my well-constructed aviaries. I keep every variety, so anyone who wishes a first-class team of British should state their wants. I have the finest and largest selection of Linnets in England; some big, fine, healthy Linnets with nut-brown backs, spotted like Thrushes, nicely-pencilled Norwich type, 2/- each. I have a few massive Giant Linnets beautifully pencilled and marked, ready for the keenest competition, 3/6 each. These specials are the best you can possibly get, and are worth double. I have a large stock of clean-moulted, fierce-singing Linnets, been specially trained under my noted champions, and are all in grand song and perfect health, sacrifice 2/- each; or with beautiful large singing cage and packet of my special mixture, secrets how to feed, 3/-; bargains. Every intending contest singer should send at once for one of these special trained birds; also a few good noted stop birds, been used to catching, 2/6. Goldfinches, Goldfinches. Real Peartree Goldfinches, the largest, best-coloured birds you can get; all guaranteed to have been properly netted from the Cheshire orchards and fruit gardens, not so-called Peartree Finches, but guaranteed real Peartree Goldfinches. Being a constant advertiser for the last few years of these special birds, I have a grand lot of big, fine, healthy Peartree Finches, large moons, good coloured, well buttoned, and mooned, nicely tanned with feathers, like silk, 2/6 and 3/- each; also a few specials in perfect show condition, good square, deep blazes, buttoned, mooned, tanned, etc., 4/- and 5/- each; real bargains. Also a few good call birds, used to catching, 3/- each. Bullfinches, Bullfinches. Real Cheshire Bullfinches, through their moult, with blood-red breasts, good black cap, good wing bars, in show condition, 3/6 each; large Yellow Greenfinches, 1/6; large Redpoll, well marked, good deep bibs, 1/6; splendid cock Chaffinches, in full colours, 1/6. All birds sent out exactly as described, and are sent on seven days' approval. Gentlemen, could fairer terms be offered? Others are copying me, so beware of worthless imitations, as you get the real birds from me. Read what others say:—"Old-st., Riccarton, Kilmarnock, Scotland. Sir,—Linnet arrived safe, he is a good, big one; am highly pleased; you have always dealt honest with birds I have bought from you. Thanking you for your honest dealings. From A. Parker, to Linnet King." "Richmond-st., Jarrow-on-Tyne. Sir,—Goldfinch and Linnet safe; have advised CAGE BIRDS to forward deposit; they are the best birds I ever bought from anyone through advertisements, and shall show them at our show. Will let you know results. From F. Furlong, to Linnet King." "11, Angle-st., Stonehouse, Lanarkshire, Scotland. Sir,—Please send the following birds at once; the Linnet you sent me is in full song, and I must say it is a real beauty. From Mr. Melvin, to Linnet King." "5, Evenson-rd., Cheston, Staffordshire. Sir,—Have received Linnets safe and sound; am highly satisfied with them, they are well worth the money. Thanking you for your honesty. Wishing you every success. From C. Jackson, to Linnet King." Gentlemen, I could fill this paper with testimonials, in which I have over 300 for inspection. If you want some real good large birds, send at once; all on approval; cash or CAGE BIRDS deposit system.

there is method, so why shouldn't there be a method in buying birds. The best method I can advocate is to buy on my well-known approval system, so that unless you are perfectly satisfied with your deal I refund money in full. I was originator of approval system in connection with wild birds, and during the whole of my business career have never dealt on any other terms. Genuine large Worcestershire cock Goldfinches, in perfect health and condition, 1/6 each, three 4/-, six 6/6, twelve 12/-. Specially selected cocks, for exhibition or mauling, and warranted in song, 2/- each, three 5/-, six 8/6, twelve 16/-. Few extra large clean-moulted cocks, in full colour and superb condition, 3/- each, three 7/6. Hen Goldfinches, 1/- each, three 2/6; splendid large cock Brown Linnets, with rose-red breasts and nut-brown backs, 8d. each, three 1/6, six 2/6; twelve 4/-; specially selected cocks, for show or muling, and warranted in song, 1/- each, three 2/6, six 4/-; every Linnet sent out is guaranteed clean-moulted, in pink of health, and are exactly same as supplied to contest winners throughout England. I am selling 100 dozen of these cock Linnets weekly, and people who have never before purchased Worcestershire Linnets are astounded at their quality. If I wished, I could fill this page weekly with testimonials from Linnet customers alone. Cock Chaffinches, 8d. each, three 1/6, six 2/6, twelve 4/-; hen Chaffinches, three 1/-, six 1/6, twelve 2/-; cock Greenlinches, three 1/-, six 1/6, twelve 2/-; cock Brambiefinches, three 1/6, six 2/6; Redpolls, three 1/3, six 2/-, twelve 3/6; grand large cock Larks, three 1/6, six 2/6, twelve 4/-. All Larks guaranteed big bold cocks, not half hens, as my hens are sold to poultry dealers. All birds are guaranteed to be well caged, steady, and well on hard seed before being sent out, and visitors can come and see hundreds upon hundreds in stock at all times. See following testimonials, all recently received, and never before been published. "Croom Station, County Limerick, Ireland, October 12th.—Sir,—Please send following; you are the only man advertising that has ever given me satisfaction, as every bird I got from you turned out well. Yours, P. McCarthy." "35, Titchfield-st., Mansfield, October 12th.—Sir,—Please send following. I had three Goldfinches from you last year, and was highly satisfied. Yours, R. Ellis." "26, Albert-road, Tonbridge, October 9th.—Sir,—Please send following. I had four cock Goldfinches from you a few years ago, and better birds I never saw. Yours, J. Peters." "35, Watson-crescent, Edinburgh.—Sir,—Received birds all right, and am very well pleased with them. I am expecting to send another order shortly. Yours, J. McDonald." "22, Primrose-place, Tillicoultry.—Sir,—Bird arrived to-day in pink of health, and is a splendid bird at the money. You will hear from me again. Yours, A. McIntosh." "56, Hume-street, Batley.—Sir,—Please send three more Linnets; the last I had proved good birds, and have given every satisfaction. Yours, W. Spidding." "2, Westminster-parade, Lower Edmonton.—Sir,—Received Goldfinches in pink of condition, and have advised CAGE BIRDS to pay the money over. Will send another order shortly. Yours, G. Smith." "156, Marine-street, Tallis Town, Cwm, Mon.—Sir,—Please send another Linnet. I had one from you last year; he started singing week after arrival, and been singing ever since from morning till night, and even through the moult, and so tame and steady. Yours, T. Baker." "140, High-street, Falkirk.—Sir,—The three Goldies arrived safe. Am well pleased with way you executed order. You will hear from me again shortly. Yours, D. Boyd." "13, Byron-street, Burnley.—Sir,—Please send me three Linnets. I got some from you when working in Birmingham, and was always well satisfied. Yours, C. Mitchell." "35, Grey-street, Carlisle.—Sir,—Please send cock Linnet. Those I got from you when in Birmingham turned out very well. I think you can claim the honour of being the largest bird dealer in England, as I have seen a good many bird shops; but as regards your establishment, seeing is believing as regards the quantity of birds you stock. Yours, S. Stamper." "45, Highland-road, Southsea.—Sir,—Blackbird arrived safely, and is singing nicely already, although only been here few hours. I must confess he is a perfect gem, so very tame with the best plumage a Blackbird can have, and his song is purely the mild one. I have, during past few years, bought a number in order to get one such as he is, and have never before been able. Yours, A. J. Burridge." The above few letters by no means exhaust my stock of testimonials, as I have piles upon piles of them, which have never been published, not one of which has been solicited by me as apart from business transactions; the senders of these testimonials are utter strangers to me. Please note every bird is sent on approval entirely at my own risk; either cash or deposit system, and money refunded in full if fullest satisfaction not given. If you would like genuine Worcestershire netted birds, together with straightforward, honest dealing, please give me one trial. See appliance column for list of cages and further testimonials, etc.

WHY INCUR THE DANGER

of a bad bargain when you can purchase Rollers of the best quality from us on seven clear days' approval entirely at our own risk; our first consignment of pure Seiferts Rollers have just arrived from Germany with pure deep sweet soft bass rolls, water-bubble runs, etc., bell, harp, and gong notes, Nightingale, Woodlark and Titlark notes, perfect little music boxes, 7/6, 8/6, 10/6, and 12/- each; hens, 2/-, 2/6 each, also our first consignment of Hartz Mountain Rollers, pure day and gaslight, with good loud clear song, 5/-, 6/- each, hens 1/6 each, 2/6 couple; proper made Roller singing cages 1/6 each, all on seven clear days' approval.—Parker and Wilden, Bird Merchants, 257-258, Farm Street, Birmingham.

CASCADE ROLLERS.

The sweetest Roller procurable, a Cascade of Melody, a revelation of what a Roller's song should be. Read this. Full name and address: "The Delves, Swanwick, ur. Alfreton, Derbyshire, October 25th. Sir,—The Cascade Roller came safe to hand a week ago, and is very satisfactory, 10/- enclosed for another which I hope will be as good. The cage you sent is very suitable, and I think the lot very cheap. T. Argyle." One price only, 10/-, which includes a splendidly-fitted British Roller singing cage, an ornament to any home. If afraid to send cash with order deposit it with Editor, and if bird does not satisfy you have your money back; 475 Cascade Rollers despatched to date, only one has been returned. I positively assert that not one deposit has been returned. Orders executed strictly in rotation, as demand exceeds supply.

Hummel Rollers.

Finest Rollers imported. To speak well of the Hummel is to gild refined gold. Testimonials from customers who say the Hummel is still singing as sweetly as when purchased four, five, six, and seven years ago. All Hummels have delightful deep, delicate bow roll, hollow roll, hollow bow roll, du pipe, hollow bell roll, grand round bass roll, vibrating hollow roll, and charming water bubble roll; one price only, 12s. 6d.; no fancy prices; Hummel hens, 3s. each; a beautiful pair of Hummels for 15s. St. Andreasberg Rollers, 5s. and 7s. 6d. each. Hummel Schoolmasters, 20s. each, better than can be obtained elsewhere at treble the price. Thousands of testimonials have been published by me in CAGE BIRDS from satisfied customers. I guarantee strictly honourable trading and satisfaction to all.—Varney, sole proprietor and importer of this remarkable Roller Canary. Twenty years advertiser.—Varney, Stratford, London. Export a speciality. "The Schools, Overton, Ellesmere.—Hummel arrived, it at once commenced to sing—yes, a song worth listening to. It is the most exquisite songster I ever heard—decidedly a perfect Roller. I may say I never expected such perfection; they are worth all you charge for them. I must thank you for your courtesy, and shall be able to recommend your firm to those who require birds and not rubbish."—F. Robbins. June 22nd, 1907. N.C.O., Royal Engineers, Aldershot.—"Hummel arrived; delighted with it.—J. H. Munford." "June 12th. Stobo Castle, Stobo, N.B. The Hon. Mr. Philipson has had the Hummel a week and will keep him; he is such a sweet singer." "June 24th. Ash View. Allmans Mold. I am writing to say I am delighted with the Hummel purchased a few months ago. Please send another.—R. James to Varney, the Great Hummel Importer." Sole proprietor and only importer of Hummel Rollers. Stratford, London.

have been waiting for this advertisement to appear, and I am pleased to inform everyone that my first consignment of the season of the world-renowned Leipzig Rollers has arrived in grand condition and song. Every cock is guaranteed already in full song day and gaslight, with long hollow and double rolls, sweet silvery trills, soft roulades, water bubble runs, piccolo trills, jug jug of the Nightingale, bell, harp, gong, and du du pipes, etc., and guaranteed entirely free from Titlark or other harsh notes. Prices for few weeks only, 6/- and 7/6 each; no Roller hens nor common Hartz cocks yet. Although I have not previously advertised Rollers this season, I am already receiving testimonials from delighted purchasers, of which following is sample. "11, Sandbach-rd., Coleridge, Staffs, Oct. 8th., Sir,—Please send following birds. The Roller I had from you is doing well, and I am very pleased with him. Yours A. Draycott." "Copeland-rd., Govan, Sir,—Received Roller no worse for his long journey, he soon started to sing, and I am well satisfied with him. Yours, W. Simpson." "108, Leamington-rd., Blackburn, Dear Sir,—Re Roller, I am very grateful to you for your prompt and straightforward dealing. The contest master you sent me is truly a champion and is in every way indicated as its name implies. With all future success for you, Yours, J. Ward." "53, Pemberton-lane, Wigan, Sir,—Rollers arrived Wednesday in splendid condition. I think they are three fine birds and give me entire satisfaction. Your honest and straightforward dealing reflects great credit upon you, Yours, J. Webster," "28, Church-lane, Wolverhampton, Sir,—Received Roller quite safe, am well pleased with him, he has some splendid notes. Please send, etc., Yours, F. Cheese." "125, Church-st., Silverdale, Sir,—I am pleased I sent to you for Rollers, they are just the sort I want. I am more than satisfied, I am delighted. Wishing you every success, Yours, A. Cadman." Every bird is guaranteed exactly as represented, and sent on full week's approval at my risk, either cash or CAGE BIRDS' deposit system, and money refunded in full if every satisfaction not given. I don't say that Rollers advertised by others are no good, but I do say that there is no other Roller being imported that can equal the Leipzig Rollers imported by me, and to test this statement to your own satisfaction, have one from me and one from elsewhere at any higher price than mine, test them side by side for a week and keep the one which suits you best. I am the actual importer and can therefore offer you better birds at lower prices than middlemen. Dealers please send for wholesale list. See British birds and appliance columns.

THE PINNACLE OF FAME . . .

has been reached by our famous Schulzes Strains of Hartz Mountain Rollers, we smile at the puny efforts of would-be competitors; they have to make up 40 years' leeway before they can come anywhere near us for quality; these mushrooms come and go, but the firm of Augustus Zache & Co. is still here situated in the heart of the west end; we have the largest, cleanest and most up-to-date stores in the country; we are proud of our reputation, for honest and fair trading; no double meaning advertisements or shady transactions with us, we don't claim our Schulzes birds to be the most wonderful on or off this earth what we do claim is no better value can be had. We allow three days' approval; this is quite sufficient for our birds to prove their merits; no need to keep them a week or so; prices 10/-, 12/6 and 15/- each. Premier Bandmasters 21/- each. (N.B.—We coined the word Bandmaster relative to our first-class Rollers years ago. Look how it is copied on paper. Don't imagine you can buy a Bandmaster under 21/-, it is too absurd; anyone can advertise ordinary choppers and call them Bandmasters, at cheaper rates. Get the real thing from us, and be satisfied. All orders must have P.O. or cheque enclosed; our terms are cash with order; we give you utmost value, therefore cannot afford to wait clearance of deposit notes; over 450 sold within ten days and only one returned; the cash being posted 5 minutes after arrival of bird. Just a few testimonials; plenty more for inspection. Notice the dates, not last year's and months ago, but recent ones.

October 22, 1907.—Dear Sirs,—Bandmaster to hand—most pleased with his song. Please quote price of, etc.—Yours truly, John Wright, 40, Roser Street, Neath.

October 21, 1907.—Dear Sirs,—Canary arrived quite safe, and I am well pleased with him; he is a lovely songster—began to sing as soon as I put him in cage. Thank you for your honest dealing, and will recommend you to my friends.—Yours, Thomas Wood, Paget Bank, Spennymoor, Durham.

October 15, 1907.—Gents,—Bird arrived safely this morning, and is in every way quite satisfactory; he has been singing very nicely already nearly all this afternoon; his notes are very sweet and clear. I shall most certainly recommend you where I can.—J. Wright Brown, High Street, Cowes, I.W.

NORWICH! YORKSHIRE! CREST!

I claim to have finest strain in world, bar none, and have sold many winners out of my bird-rooms as anyone advertising. Few winners given out of hundreds, winner silver cup, Newcastle-on-Tyne; five firsts and gold medal Hull; nine firsts and five seconds, Cheshire; names and addresses given on application; Yorkshire cocks, standard length, feather like silk, Norwich cock, Bullfinch type, Green cock, big, bold birds, feather to end beak, 4/-, 5/6, 6/6, 7/6, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6; hens, 2/-, 3/6, 4/6, 5/6, 6/6, 7/6, 10/6, pairs selected to breed winners, easy payments taken; stamp reply. — C. Baker, Herbert Street, Redminster.

THE FOLLOWING ARE THE VARIETIES

Norwich Crested and Crestbred,
Norwich Plainheads, Lancs., Yorkshires,
Dutch Frills, Scotch Fancies, Border Fancies, Cinnamons, Hartz Mountain Rollers,

Light and Dark Goldfinch Mules,
Linnet Mules, Siskin Mules,
Muling Hens,

Goldfinches (including White-legged proved Breeding Cocks), Bullfinches, Siskins, Linnets, Parrots, Budgerigars.

Now it is very easy for anyone to state that they possess all these varieties, and have them for sale, but is it not another thing altogether to be able to produce them? Hence I cordially invite the Representative of this Journal, when in Norwich for the Show, on November 2nd, to call and inspect the collection as stated above, and if they are not to be seen according to this advertisement, to denounce the whole thing as a big piece of ignorant, empty bounce, as I ask for no favours from him or anyone else; all I want is facts proved, hence I actually court this test. For PRICES see my last week's advertisement in "Cage Birds," p. 264, or send for my
